(ii) the pass was a mere licence and not a "contract for the conveyance of a passenger" within s. 97, and, therefore, the provisions of that section did not apply.

Street and aerial traffic—Tramway car—Unlawfully endangering safety of passengers—Injury through driver not stopping at compulsory stop—Conductor collecting fares on top of car—No negligence on part of conductor—Stage Carriages Act, 1832 (c. 120), s. 48.

An information was preferred by the respondent, a police officer, before a metropolitan magistrate, charging the appellant, a tramway car conductor, with unlawfully endangering the safety of a passenger through negligence, contrary to s. 48 of the Stage Carriages Act, 1832. The magistrate convicted the appellant and fined him 10s. with 6s. costs. The appellant appealed to the County of London Sessions, where it was established that on July 20, 1946, while proceeding along Woolwich Church Street, the driver of the tramway car of which the appellant was the conductor slowed down to a pace of a mile an hour on approaching a compulsory stopping place. He passed the stopping place without coming to a standstill and continued at the same pace. When the car reached the stopping place an elderly woman passenger, who wished to alight and believed that the car had come to a standstill, began to get off the platform. While she was in the act of doing so, the driver accelerated and she was thrown into the road. At the time the appellant was collecting fares on the top of the car. He was unaware that any passenger wished to alight and he took no steps to see whether anyone was going to do so. It was contended for the appellant that the conductor of a tramway car was under no duty to see that passengers were descending safely, and that, when engaged in collecting fares, there was no duty on him, in the absence of notice, to do anything to assist passengers in alighting. The appeals committee dismissed the appeal, being of the opinion that the appellant by negligence had unlawfully endangered the passenger. The appellant appealed:—

Held: the appellant was entitled to assume that the driver would stop at the compulsory stopping place and that passengers would not get off before the vehicle came to a stop. There was, therefore, no evidence on which he could be found guilty of negligence, and the conviction must be quashed.—ASKEW v. BOWTELL, [1947] 1 All E. R. 883; 63 T. L. R. 316; 91 Sol. Jo. 249; 45 L. G. R. 476. [1493]

Master and servant—Common employment—Servant temporarily off duty—Injured by negligence of fellow servant—Liability of employer.

The plaintiff, an omnibus conductor employed by the defendant board, having completed a journey, was standing, during her off-duty time, by her omnibus on the unenclosed forecourt of a station on the underground railway which was owned by the corporation. She was free to do as she liked until the time came for her to resume duty. An omnibus, driven by another employee of the corporation, drew up alongside, and was then backed and driven forward again so negligently that the plaintiff was crushed between the two vehicles:—

Held: although the plaintiff's work had brought her to the locality and created the opportunity for her to stand where she was at the time of the accident, at that time she was not doing the work which she had contracted to do, nor was she doing anything which was a natural or necessary consequence of her work or incidental thereto, and, therefore, she was not debarred by the doctrine of common employment from claiming damages from the board for the negligence of their servant.

While on a tower wagon, engaged in repairing the overhead gear which supplied current to the defendants' trolley omnibuses, the plaintiff, who was employed by the defendants as a linesman, was injured through the negligence of the driver of one of the defendants' trolley omnibuses:—

Held: the plaintiff's safety depended to a special degree on the care and skill of the drivers of all trolley omnibuses proceeding along the route, and the mere fact that there might be other vehicles which would constitute a danger to the plaintiff did not make the danger from a trolley omnibus an "ordinary traffic risk." The plaintiff was, therefore, in common employment with the driver of the trolley omnibus, and the defendants were not liable.

Master and servant—Common employment—"Common work"—"Special risk"—Omnibus collision on highway—Injury to conductress.

A motor bus owned by the appellant corporation, on which the respondent in the course of her employment by the corporation was acting as a conductress, was run into from behind by another of the corporation's buses which was negligently driven by one of the corporation's drivers, and the respondent was injured. The buses were on different services, but a substantial portion of the routes followed in those services was common to both and they were timed to travel along the street where the accident happened at an interval of a minute. The street in question was one of the main thoroughfares of the city for traffic of all sorts:—

Held: the respondent had no "special interest" in the skill and caution of the negligent driver arising out of their relationship as fellow servants, but was the victim of a risk of the road which might equally well have arisen from the negligent conduct of any driver of any vehicle moving close behind the bus on which she was, and, consequently, the doctrine of common employment did not apply and the corporation were liable.

Rates and rating—Valuation—Agricultural dwelling-house—Limitation of value by amount in respect of the dwelling-house which may be deducted from wages—Local Government Act, 1929 (c. 17), s. 72.

The ratepayer was a farmer who occupied two cottages in which two of his agricultural workers resided by virtue of their employment. By an Order, dated December 12, 1941, made by the Worcestershire Agricultural Wages Committee under the Agricultural Wages (Regulation) Acts, 1924 and 1940, these cottages were to be treated as worth 3s. a week each, and only 3s. could be deducted weekly for each cottage from the minimum wage paid to each worker. The assessment committee valued the cottages for rating purposes at higher values than they would have borne if they had been let at only 3s. a week each :—

Held : assuming that under s. 72 of the Local Government Act, 1929, consideration of competition to obtain the cottages by other farmers in the neighbourhood must be excluded so that the only hypothetical tenant who was to be taken into account was the farmer whose workman was residing in the cottage occupied by the farmer; that farmer might be prepared to pay a higher rent for the cottage than 3s. a week, and, therefore, the assessment committee was not limited in its valuation by the 3s. a week laid down by the Order under the Agricultural Wages (Regulation) Acts, 1924 and 1940, which were enacted for an entirely different purpose from that of the Local Government Act, 1929.

Rates and rating—Assessment—Basis—Profits basis—Electricity undertaking—Calculation of profits—Deduction of excess profits tax.

Where the rateable value of a public undertaking is assessed on the profits basis, the whole of the sum payable by the undertaking in respect of excess profits tax should not be deducted from the gross receipts of the undertaking in estimating the rateable value of the undertaking, but the liability to pay excess profits tax is a factor which a rating authority is entitled to take into consideration with others in deciding what percentage of the net receipts should be allocated to tenants' profit when the net receipts are apportioned between hypothetical landlord, hypothetical tenant and rating authority: per TUCKER and COHEN, L.J.J., Lord OAKSEY, L.J., dissenting.

Rates and rating—Exemption—Lands belonging to a vicarage—Exemption from parochial rates under Inclosure Act—Exemption from general rate imposed by Rating and Valuation Act, 1925, s. 2—Rating and Valuation Act, 1925 (c. 90), ss. 2 (1), (2) and (3) (a), 64 (1) (b), (2) (a) and (b).

By the (local) Ramsbury Inclosure Act, 1777, it was provided that all the lands belonging to the vicarage of Ramsbury should be exempted from all parochial taxes and duties so long as the vicar should perform the offices of the church as vicar for the poor of the parish without fee or reward. The question was whether this exemption operated to exempt lands of the vicarage from the general rate levied under the Rating and Valuation Act, 1925, s. 2, and, if so, whether the exemption applied to land which had been let on a 999 years' lease to the rural district council:—

Held: (i) the provision of the Act of 1777 exempted the lands of the vicarage from the general rate levied by the Rating and Valuation Act, 1925.

(ii) until a scheme had been made under s. 64 (2) of the Act of 1925 by the rating authority or the Minister, the exemption must continue.

(iii) the exemption extended to the lands of the vicarage which were let on a 999 years' lease to the rural district council, because the land still "belonged" to the vicarage even though a long leasehold interest had been imposed on the freehold interest.—*WILTSHIRE COUNTY VALUATION COMMITTEE v. Rates and rating—Derating—Industrial hereditament—Egg-packing station—Adapting for sale—Rating and Valuation (Apportionment) Act, 1928 (c. 44), s. 3 (1).

Under a licence granted by the Minister of Food, home-produced eggs were taken to an egg-packing station in bulk, being ungraded and very dirty. They were cleaned, tested for soundness, sorted and graded by machinery according to weight, stamped, and packed in crates for collection by wholesalers to whom they were sold. It was an offence to sell home-produced eggs which had not been graded and stamped:—

Held: these processes were an adaptation for sale in that they made the eggs legally saleable and produced an article different in bulk from the original, and, therefore, the premises were an "industrial hereditament" within the meaning of the Rating and Valuation (Apportionment) Act, 1928, s. 3 (1).

Rates and rating—Valuation list—Revaluation—Validity of large-scale revaluation—Proposals by county valuation committee to increase large proportion of assessments in area—Systematic examination of all assessments with a view to revaluation—Rating and Valuation Act, 1925 (c. 90), s. 37 (1).

In December, 1940, the respondent county valuation committee, being of opinion that the general level of existing assessments in its rating area was too low, made proposals to increase the assessments of between forty and fifty houses, and in November, 1941, these proposals were approved by the assessment committee. Between December, 1941, and December, 1942, the valuation committee made proposals relating to 577 hereditaments, the assessments in respect of which, with few exceptions, were increased by the assessment committee. In addition to these proposals, 618 further hereditaments were inspected on behalf of the valuation committee, and systematic inspection was continuing of all hereditaments. One of the proposals allowed by the assessment committee was that the gross value of a hereditament belonging to the appellant should be increased from £14 to £20 and the rateable value from £8 to £12. In making this and all other proposals, the valuation committee were purporting to act under the Rating and Valuation Act, 1925, s. 37, which provides: "(1) Any person (including the county valuation committee and any local authority) who is aggrieved by the incorrectness or unfairness of any matter in the valuation list for the time being in force, or by the inclusion therein or omission therefrom of any matter . . . or otherwise with respect to the list, may make in manner provided by this section a proposal for the amendment of the list . . ."

Held: the proposal to increase the appellant's assessment was within the plain meaning of s. 37, and, although it might well be that the legislature did not contemplate the making of wholesale proposals as a normal operation of the section, it was impossible to find anything in the Act which rendered such proposals illegal.

Per Lord UTHWATT: a proposal for an amendment of a specific entry is not altered in character by reason that it forms part of a series of cases calling for alterations in value due to an identical or general cause, and, however numerous the amendments, the valuation list retains its character as the current valuation list.

A ratepayer made a proposal under s. 37 of the Rating and Valuation Act, 1925, for the amendment of the valuation list, contending that his factory should be derated, and at the same time the rating authority made a proposal to the assessment committee that the valuation should be increased. On both these matters coming before the assessment committee at their meeting, the county valuation officer appeared, and claimed the right to represent the views of that committee by virtue of a general resolution passed by the county valuation committee. The assessment committee refused to hear the valuation officer on the ground that the proposals had not been expressly before the county valuation committee, and they had not specially authorised the valuation officer to appear at the hearing. On motions for orders of certiorari and mandamus directed to the assessment committee :—

Held: although the marginal note to s. 31 of the Act read : “ Appeals to quarter sessions ”, and the section mainly dealt with such appeals, sub-s. (9) of the section was not confined to those appeals, but gave the valuation committee power by general resolution to authorise any officer to institute, carry on and defend any proceedings whatsoever in relation to the valuation list, and, consequently, orders for certiorari and mandamus must go.—*R. v. #### EXPLANATORY NOTE

The Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries was originally the Minister responsible for the enforcement of the Rats and Mice (Destruction) Act, 1919. In 1922 his functions in respect of port sanitary districts and vessels were transferred to the Minister of Health. In 1942 the remaining functions of the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries under the Act, except so far as they were exercisable in rural districts, were transferred to the Minister of Food. The Minister of Food was also empowered by the Infestation Order, 1943, made under the Defence (General) Regulations, to control infestation by rats, mice and food pests.

This Order transfers all the functions of control of rats, mice and food pests in England and Wales to the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries with the exception of the powers of the Minister of Health in relation to vessels employed in trading, or going, between some place in the United Kingdom, the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man and some place situate elsewhere.

STATUTES

BIRTHS AND DEATHS REGISTRATION ACT, 1947

(10 &amp; 11 Geo. 6, c. 12)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

This short Act, which was brought into force on December 15, 1947, by Order in Council (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2463), removes a source of hardship to persons of illegitimate birth or of adopted parentage by authorising the issue of a new type of birth certificate omitting references to parentage or adoption.

Hitherto there has been only one type of birth certificate, i.e. a certified copy of the entry either in a local birth register or in the central register of certified copies kept at the General Register Office (Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1836, ss. 35 and 38, and the Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1874, s. 32; 15 Halsbury's Statutes 707, 708, 746).

A birth certificate thus contains all the particulars required to be registered on the registration of a birth, namely: (i) date and place of birth; (ii) name (if any) and sex; (iii) name, surname and rank or profession of father; (iv) name and maiden surname of mother; (v) signature, description and residence of informant; (vi) date of registration; and (vii) signature of registrar (Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1836, Sched. A; the Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1874, s. 47, and the Registration (Births, Stillbirths, Deaths and Marriages) Consolidated Regulations, 1927; 15 Halsbury's Statutes 710, 752, 775). In addition to these particulars, a birth certificate may also provide evidence of adoption. Where, on an application for an adoption order, the date of an infant's birth and the identity of the infant with a child to which an entry in the register relates is established, the order must direct the entry to be marked "adopted," and any certified copy of the entry made thereafter is to include that addition (Adoption of Children Act, 1926, s. 11 (3), and regs. 54 and 55 of the above-mentioned Regulations; 9 Halsbury's Statutes 831 and 15 Halsbury's Statutes 789).

In a large number of cases, as, for example, on application for employment, the production of a birth certificate is required only as evidence of age. In such circumstances the disclosure of the full particulars contained in the certificate has not only imposed upon persons of illegitimate birth or adopted parentage unnecessary embarrassment, but has been known to lead to their being refused or dismissed from employment.

Following a successful experiment in Scotland from 1934 onwards, the present Act provides for the issue by the Registrar General, superintendent registrars and registrars of abbreviated certificates at a reduced fee (in addition to the normal form of certificate) in which only the name, surname, sex and date of birth, with such other particulars as may be prescribed but not including particulars relating to parentage or adoption, are to appear.

Apart from search fees, the fee payable for the shortened form of certificate will be sixpence as against the normal 2s. 6d. (Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1836, ss. 35 and 37, and the Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1874, s. 32 and Sched. II; 15 Halsbury's Statutes 707, 708, 746, 754) plus a stamp duty of one penny (Stamp Act, 1891, s. 64 and Sched. I: "Copy or Extract (certified)"; 16 Halsbury's Statutes 637, 667), making a total of 2s. 7d. This comparative cheapness is designed to popularise the new certificate and so avoid application for such certificates being confined to persons who wish to conceal their illegitimacy or adoption, which would frustrate the purpose of the Act. In this connection the Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Health, in moving the Second Reading of the Bill, expressed the hope that the new certificate would rapidly come to be regarded as the normal form for use on all occasions where only evidence of age was required. He added: "I understand that it will be normally acceptable to the Civil Service Commission and to the Passport Office, and for the purposes of the Shops and Factories Acts. I am confident that it will be generally accepted also by education authorities, and I see no reason to believe that employers will refuse to recognise it as well" (432 H. of C. Official Report 2113).

Subsidiary matters, such as the form and detailed contents of the new certificate, the particulars to be furnished by applicants and the manner in which certificates are to be compiled are the subject of regulations by the Registrar General with the Minister's consent (see S. R. & O., 1947, Nos. 2501 and 2675). [1507]

1. Shortened form of birth certificate.—(1) Any person shall, on payment of a fee of sixpence and on furnishing the prescribed particulars, be entitled to obtain from the Registrar General, a superintendent registrar or a registrar a certificate in the prescribed form of the birth of any person compiled from the records and registers in the custody of the Registrar General, or from the registers in the custody of that superintendent registrar or registrar, as the case may be. [1509]

(2) The power conferred by section forty-four of the Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1874, on the Minister of Health, or the Registrar General with the consent of the Minister of Health, to make regulations shall include power to make regulations prescribing the forms of certificate to be issued under this section, the particulars to be furnished by applicants for certificates thereunder, the manner in which those certificates are to be compiled, and the particulars which are to be contained therein, so, however, that no certificate issued under this section shall include any particulars except the name, surname, sex and date of birth and such other particulars, if any, as may be prescribed, not being particulars relating to parentage or adoption. [1510]

Registrar General.—The Registrar General is appointed by the Crown under the Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1836, s. 2 (15 Halsbury's Statutes 700), and is subject to such regulations as may from time to time be made by the Minister of Health for the management of the General Register Office (s. 5 of that Act). As to his duties generally, see 28 Halsbury's Laws (2nd Edn.) 120 et seq.

Superintendent registrar and registrar.—Superintendent registrars and registrars are appointed by the local authorities responsible for the administration of the Registration Acts (Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1836, s. 7, and the Local Government Act, 1929, s. 21; 15 Halsbury's Statutes 701 and 10 Halsbury's Statutes 898).

Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1874, s. 47.—15 Halsbury's Statutes 751.

Search fees.—To obtain the prescribed particulars required to be furnished in an application for a certificate, it may be necessary for the applicant to search the indexes of the registers and records kept at the General Register Office. The fees payable for a search are as follows:—for every general search (i.e. a search during any number of successive hours, not exceeding six, without stating the object of the search) £1, and for every particular search (i.e. a search over any period not exceeding five years for any given entry) 1s. (Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1836, s. 37, and Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1874, s. 42; 15 Halsbury's Statutes 708, 751).

Form of certificate.—The Registrar General with the consent of the Minister of Health has made the Birth Certificate (Shortened Form) Regulations, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2501) and the Birth Certificate (Shortened Form) (No. 2) Regulations, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2675) by which the appropriate forms are prescribed.

2. Short title, citation, construction, commencement and extent.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Births and Deaths Registration Act, 1947, and shall be construed as one with the Births and Deaths Registration Acts, 1836 to 1929, and those Acts and this Act may be cited together as the Births and Deaths Registration Acts, 1836 to 1947. [1511]

(2) This Act shall come into force on the first day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-eight, or such earlier date as His Majesty may by Order in Council appoint. [1512]

(3) This Act shall not extend to Scotland or Northern Ireland. [1513]

Births and Deaths Registration Acts, 1836 to 1929.—The Births and Deaths Registration Acts, 1836, 1837, 1838, 1874 and 1926 (15 Halsbury's Statutes 700, 712, 736, 737, 768), and the Local Government Act, 1929, Part II (10 Halsbury's Statutes 898).

Construed as one.—Accordingly, this Act is to be construed as if it were contained in the Births and Deaths Registration Acts, 1836 to 1929, supra, unless there is any manifest discrepancy showing that this Act has modified something to be found in the earlier Acts (Canada Southern Ry. Co. v. International Bridge Co. (1883), 8 App. Cas. 723, at p. 727; Hart v. Hudson Brothers, Ltd., [1928] 2 K. B. 629, at p. 634; Phillips v. Parnaby, [1934] 2 K. B. 299, at p. 302). Thus words defined in the earlier Acts will bear the like meaning in this Act unless it is clear from the context that their construction in this Act is different. This Act is the latest of a series of Acts dealing with the registration of births and deaths and any amendments effected by this Act should be construed consistently, if that be possible, with any scheme which can be seen in clear outline from the Acts (Fendoch Investment Trust Co. v. I. R. C., [1945] 2 All E. R. 140, at p. 144, per Lord SIMONDS).

Date of operation.—On November 13, 1947, an Order in Council (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2463), made pursuant to sub-s. (2), ante, ordered that the present Act should come into force on December 15, 1947.

(3) This Article shall take effect subject to the provisions of the Diseases of Animals Acts, 1894 to 1937, and of any Orders or Regulations made thereunder. [1519]

7. Infringements of this Order are offences against the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939. [1520]

8. This Order shall not apply to Northern Ireland. [1521]

9.—(1) The provisions of this Order are subject to—

- (a) any directions which may at any time be given by or on behalf of the Minister in relation to the articles to which this Order applies ; and
- (b) any licence or authorisation which may be granted under this Order by or on behalf of the Minister.

(2) Every person holding a licence or authorisation granted under this Order shall comply with every condition imposed by that licence or authorisation.

10. The Livestock (Restriction on Slaughtering) (No. 2) Order, 1940, as amended, is hereby revoked, but without prejudice to any proceedings in respect of any contravention thereof :

Provided that any licence or authorisation granted by or on behalf of the Minister under the said Order, and subsisting immediately before the coming into force of this Order, shall continue to have effect as though granted under this Order. [1523]

11. This Order shall come into force on the 8th day of June, 1947, and may be cited as the Livestock (Restriction on Slaughtering) Order, 1947. [1524]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

This Order consolidates with amendments the Livestock (Restriction on Slaughtering) (No. 2) Order, 1940, as amended. The following are the principal changes in the Order :—

- (1) The period within which the owner of any livestock which has been slaughtered on account of accidental injury to, or illness of, that livestock is required to notify the District Chairman of Auctioneers at the nearest Collecting Centre is reduced from 48 hours to 24 hours ;
  - (2) As an alternative to notifying the District Chairman of Auctioneers the owner may deliver the carcase within 24 hours of slaughter to the nearest Government Slaughterhouse between specified hours or to such other place as may be designated by a person authorised by the Minister ;
  - (3) The prohibition of the purchase by way of trade except from the Minister or from a person selling on his behalf, of any meat derived from livestock slaughtered in Great Britain is extended to apply to all meat, i.e. including imported meat ;
  - (4) The requirement that meat derived from horses or livestock which is not fit for human consumption shall be stained in the prescribed manner before leaving the place of slaughter or death is extended to make it clear that it applies to meat derived from horses and livestock which have been slaughtered in a knacker's yard and which might be fit for human consumption, though its use for this purpose is prohibited by Section 19 (1) of the Food and Drugs Act, 1938.

ROAD TRAFFIC (DRIVING LICENCES) ACT, 1947

(10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 8)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

The Road Traffic (Driving Licences) Act, 1947, which received the Royal Assent and came into operation on February 18, 1947, restores the pre-war procedure as to the granting of provisional driving licences, exempts certain holders of war-time provisional licences from the requirement of being tested, and amends the existing provisions as to the destination of fees for driving tests.

The Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 5 (3) (23 Halsbury's Statutes 614), as amended by the Road Traffic Act, 1934, s. 6 (2) (27 Halsbury's Statutes 451), authorised the issue of provisional driving licences (to be in force for three months) to applicants for licences for enabling them to learn to drive motor vehicles with a view to passing a test as to their physical fitness, ability or competence to drive. Holders of such licences were required by r. 16 (3) of the Motor Vehicles (Driving Licences) Regulations, 1937 (S. R. & O., 1937, No. 438 ; 30 Halsbury's Statutes 864), to carry " L " plates, to be accompanied by an experienced driver, and, in the case of motor bicycles without sidecars, not to carry any passenger other than such driver. First, these conditions were removed by the Motor Vehicles (Driving Licences) (Amendment) Provisional Regulations, 1940, dated May 29, 1940, and later, by Regulation 72 (6) of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939 (S. R. & O., 1939, No. 927 ; 39 Halsbury's Statutes 1053), the above provisions as to the actual issue of provisional licences were suspended, and provision was made for licences to be issued for any purpose, and to be valid for twelve months.

S. 1 of the present Act revokes the above Regulation 72 (6) and accordingly restores the previous law as to the granting of provisional licences, though licences in force at the date of the revocation, namely, February 18, 1947, are not affected. The conditions attaching to the grant of provisional licences (see supra) were reimposed by the Motor Vehicles (Driving Licences) (Amendment) Provisional Regulations, 1947, dated February 18, 1947, later revoked and consolidated with other Regulations in the Motor Vehicles (Driving Licences) Regulations, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 925), post.

So many persons were granted provisional licences under the emergency provisions referred to above that it would be administratively impossible to test them all within any reasonable space of time. The majority, moreover, drove during the war under difficult conditions and have by now become experienced drivers (see H. of C. Official Report 1622, 1623). S. 2 of the Act therefore exempts from the requirement of passing the driving test imposed by s. 6 of the Road Traffic Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 540), applicants for licences who have held provisional licences granted on or after October 18, 1940 (the date of the coming into force of Defence Regulation 72 (6), ante) for a period of not less than twelve months before the passing of the present Act, if they apply within twelve months thereafter. Exemption will not, however, be granted to holders of provisional licences who have been convicted of certain offences, and licences will only be granted under this provision for the driving of such kinds of vehicle as the applicants satisfy the licensing authorities that they were in the habit of driving before the passing of the present Act while they were holders of provisional licences.

The position as to fees for driving tests is also changed. S. 3 of the Act, amending s. 6 (5) of the Road Traffic Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 542), empowers the Minister of Transport to prescribe by regulation the persons to whom fees for driving tests are to be paid and to provide for the payment of such fees by them into the Exchequer. Regulation 14 of the Motor Vehicles (Driving Licences) Regulations, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 925), post, makes provision in this respect. [1525]

TRANSPORT ACT, 1947

(10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 49)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

This Act, which implements part of the Government's programme of nationalisation, establishes the British Transport Commission as a public authority charged with the general duty of providing or securing the provision of an efficient, adequate, economical and properly integrated system of public inland transport. In addition to the provisions dealt with in this title, the Act, which consists of nine Parts and fifteen Schedules, contains provisions (Part II et passim) relating exclusively to railways and canals, which are outside the scope of this work, and provisions (ss. 66—71) dealings with harbours and coastal shipping for which reference should be made to the title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante. The principal effects of the Act, so far as road traffic is concerned, may be summarised as follows: (1) the Commission is placed under an obligation to acquire existing long distance road haulage undertakings; (ii) as from an appointed day, restrictions are imposed on the carriage of goods for hire or reward by persons other than the Commission; and (iii) area road transport schemes may be made for co-ordinating the local passenger transport services serving the area, whether by road or by rail, and for providing passenger road transport services suitable to the needs of the area.

With the exception of the restrictions referred to in (ii), supra, the provisions of the Act with which this title is concerned came into force at the date of its receiving the Royal Assent, namely, August 6, 1947.

Part I of the Act deals with the British Transport Commission. Many of the provisions relating to the Commission, in particular those dealing with the powers of the Minister of Transport in regard to it, are very similar to the provisions of other nationalisation Acts, for example, the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 251) and the Electricity Act, 1947 (for which see the title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante). The Commission is to consist of five to nine members (including a chairman) appointed by the Minister of Transport (s. 1). The powers of the Commission, which are set out in s. 2 in a form similar to the objects clause in the Memorandum of Association of a limited company, cover a wide range of powers relating to the provision of transport services and port facilities within Great Britain and the carrying on of activities ancillary thereto. Certain specific limitations are, however, placed on the powers of the Commission, including a restriction on the number of chassis and bodies for road vehicles which they may manufacture in any year, and the Commission are, subject to a minor exception, prohibited, inter alia, from (1) manufacturing anything not required for the use of the Commission; (2) purchasing a road vehicle for the purpose of sale; (3) trading in spare parts, accessories or petrol or oil for road vehicles; and (4) engaging in maintenance or repair work for road vehicles other than vehicles of the Commission. The Commission must allow users freedom of choice where there are different kinds of regular goods transport services serving the same points (s. 3 (1)), and give not less than one month's notice of their intention to discontinue any such regular service by road (s. 3 (3)). Wide powers of giving directions to the Commission are conferred on the Minister, including directions of a general character on matters affecting the national interest (s. 4). The Commission is to make an annual report which the Minister is to lay before each House of Parliament (s. 4 (7)).

Public authorities, known as Executives, are to be established to exercise as agents of the Commission functions delegated to them under a scheme made by the Commission and approved by the Minister. The Minister, in moving the Second Reading of the Bill, stated that the Commission were to be regarded as the policy instrument and the Executives were to carry out the management (431 H. of C. Official Report 1624). Each Executive will, like the Commission, consist of between five and nine members appointed by the Minister (s. 5, Sched. II). The numbers and names of the Executives will be such as the Minister may by order from time to time provide, but unless and until so provided the Executives will consist of five specified Executives, including a Road Transport Executive (s. 5 (3)). The Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Transport stated during the Committee Stage of the Bill that it was highly probable that, on the coming into force of area road transport schemes under Part IV of the Act, a Road Passenger Executive would also be established (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., February 26, 1947, col. 452). Within the scope of its delegated powers an Executive is, except as between itself and the Commission, to be regarded as a principal (s. 5 (9)).

Next, there are to be a Central Transport Consultative Committee for Great Britain and for each area either a single Transport Users Consultative Committee for both passenger and goods traffic or a separate Committee for each of these classes of traffic (s. 6 (1)). The members of the Committees will be appointed by the Minister and must include, unless the Minister considers such representation in any particular case unnecessary, members appointed to represent agriculture, commerce, industry, shipping, labour and local authorities (s. 6 (4)).

Part III of the Act deals with the transport of goods by road. It will be remembered that the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 870), which instituted a licensing system for goods vehicles, provided for three classes of licences. These three classes are (1) a public carrier's licence (an A licence) under which the holder is entitled, in accordance with s. 2 (2) of that Act, to carry goods for hire or reward, or for or in connection with his business as a carrier of goods; (2) a limited carrier's licence (a B licence) under which the holder is entitled, in accordance with s. 2 (3) of that Act, to carry goods either for or in connection with any trade or business carried on by him or, subject to such conditions as the licensing authority may impose, for hire or reward; and (3) a private carrier's licence (a C licence) under which the holder is entitled, in accordance with s. 2 (4) of that Act, to carry goods for or in connection with any trade or business carried on by him but not ordinarily for hire or reward. Part III of the present Act imposes on the Commission a duty (subject to the power to make exceptions in certain cases) to acquire all undertakings operating any A or B licence vehicles which come within a formula of acquisition laid down by the Act.

This formula is designed to include all those long distance road haulage undertakings whose activities should essentially be co-ordinated with rail transport (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., March 13, 1947, col. 792). To come within this formula an undertaking must be one that in the opinion of the Commission (1) has been carried on during the whole or some part of 1946, and (2) has been engaged in that year, so far as it was engaged in the carriage of goods in goods vehicles (including A, B and C licence vehicles), predominantly in ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward (s. 39 (1)). Undertakings operating C licence vehicles only do not fall within the formula of acquisition but, where an undertaking operating any A or B licence vehicles also operates a C licence vehicle, the carriage of goods in that vehicle is brought into the reckoning for determining whether or not the undertaking was predominantly engaged in ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward.

Ordinary long distance carriage consists in the carriage of goods, whether in one or more vehicles, for a distance (a) which totals 40 miles or more, and (b) which takes the vehicle, or one or more of the vehicles as the case may be, at some point in the journey more than 25 miles from its operating centre (s. 39 (2)). It should be noted that both these conditions must be satisfied, and thus neither a journey for a total distance of 39 miles even though the vehicle travels more than 25 miles from its operating centre, nor a journey for any number of miles within a twenty-five mile radius from that centre, comprises ordinary long distance carriage. In addition, the carriage of the following special types of goods are specifically excluded by the Act : (i) bulk liquids carried in special tanks ; (ii) goods of a special character, the carriage of which is regulated under any statutory provision (e.g., petroleum spirit) ; (iii) ordinary furniture removal ; (iv) meat ; (v) livestock ; (vi) felled timber carried in a specially constructed vehicle ; and (vii) abnormal indivisible loads carried in specially constructed vehicles and apparatus ancillary to those vehicles (s. 39 (1), proviso). The acquisition of any undertaking which it is the duty of the Commission to acquire is to be effected by means of a notice of acquisition served by the Commission on the person carrying on the undertaking (ss. 39 (1), 40 (1)). Provision is made, in cases where the person served contends that the undertaking is not one with respect to which a notice should be given, for the determination by the Transport Arbitration Tribunal of the question whether or not the notice is to have effect (s. 40 (3)). A person who considers that an undertaking carried on by him with respect to which the Commission fail or refuse to give a notice of acquisition is one which the Commission ought to acquire may also have the matter determined by the Arbitration Tribunal (s. 40 (4)).

For the purpose of arbitration proceedings, condition (2) of the formula of acquisition, supra, is deemed to be satisfied if, during 1946, either (i) the total weight of goods which were the subject of ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward exceeded half the total weight of all the goods carried, or (ii) the receipts from ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward exceeded half the total value of the services of those vehicles (including in that total a reasonable sum in respect of goods not carried for hire or reward and excluding any receipts in respect of any carriage for which no licence is required) (s. 41). Special modifications of the formula may be made for the purpose of facilitating the acquisition of any undertaking which was controlled by, or whose vehicles were hired to, the Minister through the Road Haulage Organisation which functioned during the period 1942—1946, if the person carrying on the undertaking so desires (s. 42). Special modifications of the formula are also applicable in the case of mergers (s. 43).

The date of transfer of an acquired undertaking will be either the date specified in the notice of acquisition, or, where arbitration proceedings are taken in accordance with s. 40 (2), either that date or one month after the Tribunal's finding, whichever is the later. The Commission are, however, given power to agree to the substitution of any other date, which will enable them, where desirable, to make the transfer coincide with the end of the undertaking's financial year (s. 44).

Subject to any agreement to the contrary, the general effect of a notice of acquisition is to transfer to the Commission : (a) "relevant property," namely, property held at the date of transfer for the purpose of the undertaking or where the operation of A or B licence vehicles is only one of the activities of the undertaking, property held wholly or partly for that activity, and (b) "relevant contracts," as analogously defined. Provision is, however, made in cases where an undertaking carries on some other activity in addition to that of operating A and B licence vehicles, whereby the transferor may secure the exclusion from transfer of any specific property or contract held or made partly for purposes of that other activity unless it is reasonably necessary to the Commission's purposes that it should be transferred (s. 45 (1)). In addition, the Commission have power to disclaim any relevant property acquired or any relevant contract made after November 19, 1945 (the day on which the Government announced their intention to nationalise the transport industry), which was not reasonably necessary for the purpose of the undertaking or was an act of unreasonable imprudence, and any disclaimed property or contract will be deemed never to have been a relevant property or contract (s. 46).

Compensation resulting from the transfer of an undertaking by virtue of a notice of acquisition will be payable by the Commission under four heads : (i) goods vehicles transferred ; (ii) property other than goods vehicles transferred ; (iii) partial or total cessation of business ; and (iv) where applicable, severance. The amount of compensation under head (i) will be the replacement cost of the vehicle as at the date of transfer, less a sum in respect of each complete year since the vehicle was first registered or used, the amount being subject to adjustment where the vehicle's condition differs materially from the normal condition of that type of vehicle (s. 47 (1)). The amount of compensation under head (ii) will be the market value, estimated as at the date of transfer and as if the Act had not been passed (s. 47 (2)). The amount of compensation under head (iii) will be such sum as may be just, being not less than twice nor more than five times the undertaking's average net annual profit as defined in Sched. IX (s. 47 (3)). The amount of compensation under head (iv) will be a sum fairly representing the burden of the unavoidable increase in overhead expenses over the first five years (s. 47 (4)). The total amount due is to be provisionally ascertained as soon as possible after the date of transfer and a payment made of at least 90 per cent. thereof, any necessary adjustment being made when the net amount has been finally ascertained (s. 48 (1), (2)). Compensation will be satisfied by the issue of British Transport Stock except that, where the amount payable does not exceed £20,000, the payee is entitled to require £2,000 (or such lesser amount as may be payable) to be paid in cash (s. 48 (3)). Pending transfer an undertaking is to be carried on in the ordinary course of business, and the transferor may not without the previous consent of the Commission (which he must apply for where necessary) engage in certain specified transactions (s. 50).

In order that the Commission may be in a position to co-ordinate the long distance carriage of goods by road with carriage by rail, the Act imposes certain restrictions on the carriage of goods for hire or reward by persons other than the Commission. The original Bill imposed restrictions also on the carriage of goods otherwise than for hire or reward (i.e., under B and C licences), but this provision, which provoked considerable opposition, was negatived on the Committee Stage. As from the appointed day (which day had not been appointed at the time of going to press) it is made a condition of every A and B licence that, except in accordance with a permit from the Commission, goods shall not be carried for hire or reward in any authorised vehicle if at any time during the journey the vehicle is more than 25 miles from its operating centre (s. 52 (1)). It should be noted that the limitations imposed by this provision are more stringent than those laid down for the determination of "ordinary long distance carriage" (vide supra), and that while the carriage of goods for a total distance not exceeding 40 miles, even though the journey takes the vehicle outside the 25 mile limit, does not constitute ordinary long distance carriage, such carriage, if undertaken for hire or reward, is restricted under this provision. The carriage of special type goods, however, which is excluded from the definition of ordinary long distance carriage, is also excluded from this provision (s. 52 (1)). A person carrying on an existing undertaking in respect of which no notice of acquisition (other than a notice subsequently withdrawn) has been served is protected by the fact that he may, within a prescribed time after the appointed day, apply for the issue of "an original permit," and that until the application has been dealt with he will be entitled, in effect, to treat the application as granted (s. 53 (1), (2)). An original permit will normally last, in the first instance, for a year, and if not revoked thereafter, for three-year periods (s. 53 (5)). If some activity which has been regularly carried on by an undertaking is substantially interfered with as a result of the refusal or revocation of an original permit, the applicant may require the Commission to serve a notice of acquisition with respect to the undertaking, which notice may, if the applicant so requires, be limited to specified A and B licence vehicles and property and contracts directly relating to the operation of those vehicles (s. 54). Where a notice is so limited there will be payable, in lieu of compensation calculated separately in respect of cessation of business and severance as above mentioned, combined compensation calculated in accordance with s. 55.

The Commission will not need a carrier's licence under the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 870 et seq.), in respect of any goods vehicle used by them (s. 59).

Part IV of the Act which deals, inter alia, with passenger road transport, provides for the making of area road transport schemes. With the exception of those undertakings (forming part of a railway or canal undertaking) which are transferred to the Commission under Part II of the Act, no passenger road transport undertaking will be affected by the Act unless and until a scheme covering its area of operation is made. Such an "area road transport scheme" is a scheme devised to promote, first, the co-ordination of passenger transport services serving the area, whether by road or rail, and secondly, the provision of passenger road transport services suitable to the needs of the area (s. 63 (1)). The Minister of Transport in moving the Second Reading of the Bill stated that it was the Government's intention that ultimately road passenger services should be brought completely into an integrated national transport service (481 H. of C. Official Report 1632).

The preparation of schemes is a function of the Commission, who must prepare a scheme where the Minister so directs, but no scheme will take effect until submitted to the Minister and embodied in an order made by him in accordance with Sched. VIII (s. 63 (1), (3)). The Commission are, as soon as may be, to review all the passenger road services in Great Britain with a view to determining the areas for which schemes are required (s. 63 (1)). Before a scheme is submitted to the Minister, every local authority (defined to mean a county council, county borough council or the Common Council of the City of London) in the area and every joint committee or other combined body all the members of which are, or are representative of, local authorities and which is providing passenger road transport services in the area, are to be consulted (s. 63 (2)). In order to allow different schemes to be made suitable to the requirements of different areas, the provisions of the Act as to the contents of schemes are drawn in wide, and, for the most part, permissive terms.

A scheme may contain provisions dealing with such matters as the body or bodies to provide services within the area, the transfer of undertakings to any such body and the incorporation, with or without modifications, of provisions of the Act relating to the issue of stock, the transfer of undertakings and other matters (s. 64 (1)). It is, however, laid down that where a scheme is to be administered by some body or bodies other than the Commission the scheme must provide that at least one member of any such body shall be a person with a minimum of six years' experience in local government in the area (s. 64 (3)). Further, a scheme which provides for the transfer of an undertaking must provide for compensating the transferor in accordance with the proviso to Sched. VIII, para. 1 (1), which compensation is, in the case of a local authority (as above defined) a county district council or any other of the bodies who (as mentioned above) are to be consulted before the submission of a scheme, to be identical, as near as may be, with the compensation provided under s. 25 in the case of transfers from local authorities under Part II of the Act. S. 25 provides, inter alia, that in cases where the authority have for the purposes of the transferred undertaking raised money by the issue of securities or have advanced money for those purposes out of funds held by them, the Commission are to take over, from the date of transfer, liability for the payment of amounts due in respect of the redemption of the loan or the repayment of the advance and the payment of interest thereon.

Where the provisions of a scheme appear to him satisfactory, the Minister is to embody the scheme in a draft order. Provision is made for notification that such a draft order has been made and for the making of objections thereto. Where objection is duly made and not withdrawn, a public local inquiry is to be held, and the Minister may, after considering the report of the person holding the inquiry, make an order either in the terms of the draft or subject to such amendments as he thinks fit (Sched. VIII, para. 3). Where an objection is not withdrawn before the order is made, the order will be subject to the special parliamentary procedure laid down by the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 439).

The Commission will not need a road service licence under s. 72 of the Road Traffic Act, 1930 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 661), with respect to any passenger road service provided by them, whether under a scheme or otherwise (s. 65 (1)).

Part V of the Act deals with the Transport Tribunal and with transport charges and facilities. The Transport Tribunal is the Railway Rates Tribunal established under the Railways Act, 1921 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 316), renamed and with enlarged jurisdiction. As from the appointed day the Transport Tribunal will also acquire, inter alia, the jurisdiction of the Appeal Tribunal constituted under the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, s. 15 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 885), to hear appeals in connection with licences for goods vehicles, and the Appeal Tribunal will then cease to exist (s. 73).

Charges schemes, dealing with the charges to be made by the Commission for their services and, where necessary, with other terms and conditions on which those services are to be provided, are to be prepared in draft by the Commission and submitted to the Transport Tribunal (s. 76). Provision is made for the confirmation (s. 78), alteration (s. 79) and review (s. 80) of schemes by that Tribunal. Local authorities, as representing the travelling public in their areas, are empowered to object to draft schemes, apply for the alteration of schemes and make representations on the review of schemes (s. 81).

The next Part of the Act, Part VI, deals with finance. The Commission's power of temporary borrowing is limited to £25,000,000, and its power to borrow by the issue of British transport stock, which may be issued both to raise money and to satisfy compensation claims, is limited to £250,000,000 (s. 88).

When issued in satisfaction of compensation, such stock is to be equal in value at the date of issue to the amount of the compensation, regard being had to the market value of government securities at that date (s. 89 (2)). While the point is not dealt with in the Act, the Chancellor of the Exchequer stated during the course of the debate on the Second Reading of the Bill that British transport stock, unlike the stock issued for compensation to colliery undertakings under the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 251), would be freely negotiable (431 H. of C. Official Report 1812). The Commission are to establish a reserve fund, one of the purposes of which is to prevent frequent fluctuations in the Commission's charges (s. 92).

Part VII of the Act relates to conditions of employment, pensions and compensation to officers and servants, while Part VIII deals with the settlement of questions arising in connection with compulsory acquisitions. A Transport Arbitration Tribunal is to be established for this purpose consisting of members appointed, so far as England and Wales are concerned, by the Lord Chancellor (s. 105). This tribunal will be a court of record and its orders will be enforceable as if they were High Court orders (s. 106 (1)). The tribunal have power to refer proceedings for hearing and determination to a person or persons appointed by them for the purpose (s. 105 (5)), and may, and where so ordered by the Court of Appeal must, state any question of law in the form of a special case for determination by that Court (s. 106 (3)). Subject thereto, the tribunal have sole jurisdiction to determine any dispute to which the Commission (and, except so far as the contrary is expressly provided, the transferee body under any scheme or order providing for a transfer to a body other than the Commission) are party as to any question required under the Act to be determined by the tribunal (s. 109).

Except where the total compensation payable does not exceed £20,000, no compensation is to be paid under Part III of the Act unless the payment is either confirmed or ordered to be made by the arbitration tribunal (s. 108 (1)).

Finally, Part IX of the Act deals with miscellaneous and general matters. Among other things, it provides for the payment to any local authority (including a council of a county district) from whom an undertaking is transferred under, inter alia, any area road transport scheme, of an "appropriate sum" out of a fund of £2,500,000 set aside as compensation to cover severance and increase of overhead expenses. The appropriate sum will be such an amount as may be specified in relation to the undertaking by regulations, and will be payable in cash (s. 114).

Where an undertaking of any such local authority as above mentioned is transferred, whether by agreement or otherwise, to the Commission, the local authority are entitled to a right of pre-emption in respect of any land previously held for the purposes of that undertaking of which, within a period of ten years, the Commission wish to dispose (s. 115). In addition, Part IX of the Act provides (s. 117) for renaming the Traffic Commissioners and the licensing authorities for Part I of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 872), and contains sections dealing with orders and regulations (ss. 119, 120), penalties (s. 121) and inquiries (s. 122).

PART I

THE BRITISH TRANSPORT COMMISSION

1. The Commission.—(1) For the purposes of this Act, there shall be a public authority to be called the British Transport Commission (in this Act referred to as “the Commission”). [1537]

(2) The Commission shall consist of a chairman and not less than four nor more than eight other members, all of whom shall be appointed by the Minister from among persons appearing to him to be persons who have had wide experience and shown capacity in transport, industrial, commercial or financial matters, in administration, or in the organisation of workers, and of whom the Chairman and not less than four other members shall be required to render whole-time service to the Commission. [1538]

(3) Every member of the Commission shall hold and vacate his office in accordance with the terms of his appointment and shall, on ceasing to be a member, be eligible for re-appointment :

Provided that any member may at any time by notice in writing to the Minister resign his office. [1539]

(4) A person shall be disqualified for being appointed or being a member of the Commission so long as he is a member of the Commons House of Parliament. [1540]

(5) Before appointing a person to be a member of the Commission, the Minister shall satisfy himself that that person will have no such financial or other interest as is likely to affect prejudicially the discharge by him of his functions as a member of the Commission and the Minister shall also satisfy himself from time to time with respect to every member of the Commission that he has no such interest ; and any person who is, or whom the Minister proposes to appoint to be, a member of the Commission shall, whenever requested by the Minister so to do, furnish to him such information as the Minister considers necessary for the performance by the Minister of his duties under this subsection. [1541]

(6) A member of the Commission who is in any way directly or indirectly interested in a contract made or proposed to be made by the Commission shall disclose the nature of his interest at a meeting of the Commission ; and the disclosure shall be recorded in the minutes of the Commission, and the member shall not take any part in any deliberation or decision of the Commission with respect to that contract. [1542]

(7) The Commission—

(a) shall pay to the members thereof such salaries or fees, and such allowances, as the Minister may, with the approval of the Treasury, determine; and

(b) on the retirement or death of any of the members as to whom the Minister may, with the approval of the Treasury, determine that such provision should be made, shall pay to or in respect of them such pensions as he may so determine. [1543]

(8) The Minister shall, as soon as may be after the first appointment of any person as a member of the Commission, lay before each House of Parliament a statement of the salary or fees and of the allowances which the Commission are required to pay to that person under the last preceding subsection. [1544]

(9) The provisions of the First Schedule to this Act shall have effect with respect to the Commission. [1545]

British Transport Commission.—The Minister of Transport has appointed the following persons to be the first members of the British Transport Commission: Sir Cyril Hurcomb, G.C.B., K.B.E. (Chairman); the Rt. Hon. Lord Ashfield; Mr. J. Benstead, C.B.E.; Lord Rusholme; Sir William Wood, K.B.E.; and Capt. Sir Ian Bolton, Bart., O.B.E. (part-time member) (see 443 H. of C. Official Report 158).

At least one member of the Commission must also be a member of the Central Transport Consultative Committee (see s. 6 (4), proviso (1), post).

Statement of salary, etc.—Parliament will receive two types of statement of the salaries, etc., of members of the Commission. First, on the first appointment of a member a statement of his salary, fees and allowances is to be laid before each House of Parliament by the Minister (sub-s. (8), supra). Secondly, a statement of the salaries or fees and of the emoluments of each of the members during the year is to be included in the Commission's annual report, a copy of which is to be similarly laid (s. 4 (7), post). Note that sub-s. (8), supra, refers to allowances, while s. 4 (7), post, refers to emoluments. Emoluments is a wider term (see the definition of the word in s. 125 (1), post).

It may be noted that neither the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 251) nor the Electricity Act, 1947 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante), imposes any obligation on the Ministers concerned with the National Coal Board and the British Electricity Authority respectively, to disclose to Parliament the salaries, etc. of members of those bodies.

Definitions.—For definitions of "emoluments," "the Minister" and "pension," see s. 125 (1), post.

2. Powers of Commission.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the Commission shall have power—

(a) to carry goods and passengers by rail, road and inland waterway, within Great Britain;

(b) to provide, within Great Britain, port facilities and facilities for traffic by inland waterway;

(c) to store goods within Great Britain, whether or not those goods have been or are to be carried by the Commission, so, however, that facilities for the storage of goods which have not been or are not to be carried by the Commission shall not be provided by the Commission except on premises where such facilities are provided for the storage of goods carried or to be carried by them;

(d) to consign goods on behalf of other persons from any place in Great Britain, or from any place to which the Commission have themselves carried the goods in question, to any other place, whether in Great Britain or elsewhere;

(e) in places within Great Britain where their passengers may require them, to provide both for their passengers and for other persons hotels, hostels, other living accommodation and places for refreshment; and

(f) to provide in Great Britain such other amenities and facilities for passengers and other persons making use of the services provided by them as it may appear to them requisite or expedient to provide:

Provided that the Commission shall not have power to carry passengers by road in a hackney carriage adapted to carry less than eight passengers and used in plying or standing for hire in a street. [1546]

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the powers conferred by subsection (1) of this section include power—

- (a) to construct, manufacture, purchase, maintain and repair anything required for the purpose of any of the activities of the Commission specified in that subsection ;
- (b) to do anything for the purpose of advancing the skill of persons employed by the Commission or the efficiency of the equipment of the Commission or of the manner in which that equipment is operated, including the provision by the Commission, and the assistance of the provision by others, of facilities for training, education and research ;
- (c) to buy land, or take land on lease or under any form of tenancy ;
- (d) to provide houses, hostels and other like accommodation for persons employed by the Commission ;
- (e) to do all other things which in the opinion of the Commission are necessary to facilitate the proper carrying on of the business of the Commission ;
- (f) to acquire by agreement (whether absolutely or for any period) the whole or any part of any undertaking of any other person, being an undertaking, or a part of an undertaking, the activities whereof are wholly or mainly such activities as are specified in the said subsection (1) ;
- (g) to enter into and carry out agreements with any person for the carrying on by that person, whether as agent for the Commission or otherwise, of any of the activities specified in the said subsection (1), or for the provision by that person, whether as agent for the Commission or otherwise, of clearing house facilities in connection with the transport of goods ;
- (h) to enter into and carry out agreements with any person carrying on business as a carrier of passengers or goods outside Great Britain providing for the carriage of passengers or goods by or on behalf of the Commission and that other person under one contract or at a through charge or in the same vehicles or containers, whether belonging to the Commission or not ;
- (i) to lend money to, or give guarantees for the benefit of, any person carrying on or about to carry on any of the activities specified in the said subsection (1), to lend money to, or give guarantees for the benefit of, any body corporate which directly or indirectly controls another body corporate which is carrying on or about to carry on any such activities, and to acquire by agreement any securities of any body corporate which is carrying on or about to carry on or which directly or indirectly controls another body corporate which is carrying on or about to carry on any such activities ;
- (j) to make housing loans to persons employed by the Commission to assist them to acquire housing accommodation :

Provided that—

- (i) the Commission shall not by virtue of this subsection engage in the building of ships, except lighters, barges or like vessels of a gross tonnage not exceeding one hundred and seventy-five tons ;
- (ii) the Commission shall not, by virtue of this subsection, construct or manufacture anything required for the purposes of any such activities of the Commission as are specified in paragraphs (e) and (f) of subsection (1) of this section unless either the construction or manufacture is such as would normally be carried on by persons carrying on a business the principal objects of which were restricted to the activities in question or the construction or manufacture of similar things is carried on by the Commission in connection with any such activities as are specified in paragraphs (a), (b), (c) or (d) of the said subsection (1) ;

- (iii) the Commission shall not, by virtue of this subsection, construct, manufacture, or otherwise produce anything which is not required for use for the purposes of their undertaking. [1547]

(3) Where, whether by agreement or otherwise, the Commission acquire the whole or any part of any undertaking of any other person, they may, subject to the provisions of this Act, carry on any activities, whether mentioned in subsection (1) of this section or not, which were theretofore carried on for the purposes of that undertaking or part of an undertaking or were authorised by any statutory provision to be carried on for the purposes thereof :

Provided that, notwithstanding anything in this subsection or in any subsequent provision of this Act, or in any scheme, order or regulations made under any such provision, the Commission shall not construct, manufacture or otherwise produce anything which is not required either for use for the purposes of their undertaking or for the fulfilment of a contract made, before the acquisition by the Commission of the undertaking or part of an undertaking, by the person theretofore carrying it on. [1548]

(4) Notwithstanding anything in the two last preceding subsections or in any subsequent provision of this Act, or in any scheme, order or regulation made under any such provision, the Commission—

- (a) shall not manufacture in any one financial year of the Commission, otherwise than for purposes of experiment or research, chassis for road vehicles substantially in excess of the total of the number manufactured in a year, in the course of carrying on all undertakings or parts of undertakings acquired by the Commission before the end of the financial year in question, by the persons theretofore carrying them on, such total being arrived at by taking, in the case of each undertaking or part of an undertaking, the highest number manufactured in any one financial year of that undertaking out of the last three such years completed before the date of the acquisition of the undertaking or part of an undertaking by the Commission ;

- (b) shall not manufacture in any one financial year of the Commission, otherwise than for purposes of experiment or research, bodies for road vehicles in numbers exceeding—

(i) in the case of bodies for passenger vehicles, one fifth of the total number of such bodies estimated to be required to be manufactured for use for the purposes of the Commission's undertaking during that year, with the addition of the number of omnibus bodies authorised to be manufactured under section twenty-one of the London Passenger Transport Act, 1933 ; or

(ii) in the case of bodies for other vehicles, one quarter of the total number of such bodies estimated to be required as aforesaid ;

- (c) shall not manufacture, otherwise than for the purposes of experiment or research, major components which are not required either—

(i) for a chassis to be manufactured by the Commission ; or

(ii) as replacements in chassis which have been manufactured either by the Commission or by the person theretofore carrying on an undertaking or part of an undertaking acquired by the Commission ;

- (d) shall not purchase any road vehicle for the purpose of sale to another person ;
- (e) shall not trade in spare parts for or accessories to road vehicles, or in petrol or oil for road vehicles, except by way of carrying on any activities mentioned in the last preceding subsection which consist of such trading, and shall cease to carry on any such activities not later than on the expiration of three years from the date of the acquisition by the Commission of the undertaking or part of an undertaking concerned ; and
- (f) shall not engage in the maintenance or repair of road vehicles or spare parts for or accessories to road vehicles (other than vehicles, spare parts or accessories used by the Commission for the purposes of their undertaking), except by way of carrying on any activities mentioned in the last preceding subsection which consist of such maintenance or repair, and shall cease to carry on any such activities not later than on the expiration of three years from the date of the acquisition by the Commission of the undertaking or part of an undertaking concerned :

Provided that, where any rights or liabilities under a contract made, before the date of the acquisition by the Commission of an undertaking or part of an undertaking, by the person theretofore carrying it on become, by virtue of the acquisition, rights or liabilities of the Commission—

- (i) any chassis or body for a road vehicle manufactured by the Commission in pursuance of the contract shall be left out of account for the purposes of paragraph (a) or paragraph (b) of this subsection ; and
- (ii) nothing in paragraphs (c), (d), (e) or (f) of this subsection shall have effect so as to prevent the fulfilment of that contract by the Commission. [1549]

(5) For the purposes of the last preceding subsection—

“ body,” in relation to a vehicle in which the framework to which the major components are attached forms an integral whole with the body-structure, includes that framework ;

“ chassis ” means—

(a) in relation to a vehicle in which the framework to which the major components are attached is distinct from the body-structure, that framework together with the complement of major components required in order to construct a road vehicle on that framework ; or

(b) in relation to a vehicle in which the framework to which the major components are attached forms an integral whole with the body-structure, the complement of major components required in order to complete that body-structure, when new, as a road vehicle ;

“ major component ” means the complete power unit, complete transmission system, complete suspension system, complete steering gear, complete braking system or complete axle of a vehicle ;

“ manufacture,” in relation to the body of a road vehicle and in relation to the chassis of a road vehicle where the framework to which the major components are attached is distinct from the body-structure, includes the assembly of the parts of the body or, as the case may be, of the parts of the chassis, for the purpose of constructing a new body or, as the case may be, a new chassis. [1550]

(6) For the purposes of subsection (4) and of the provisos to subsections (2) and (3) of this section, where a body corporate is directly or indirectly controlled by the Commission, anything done by that body shall be deemed to be done by the Commission and the undertaking of the body shall be deemed to form part of the undertaking of the Commission. [1551]

(7) The Commission may dispose, whether absolutely or for a term of years, of any part of their undertaking or any property which in their opinion is not required by them for the discharge of their duties under this Act, including, without prejudice to the generality of the preceding words, any part of their undertaking which is carried on outside Great Britain and any property situated outside Great Britain. [1552]

(8) For the avoidance of doubt, it is hereby declared that the preceding provisions of this section relate only to the capacity of the Commission as a statutory corporation, and nothing in the said provisions shall be construed as authorising the disregard by the Commission of any enactment or rule of law. [1553]

(9) The provisions of this section (except where they expressly refer to any subsequent provision of this Act) shall not be construed as limiting any power of the Commission conferred by or under any subsequent provision of this Act. [1554]

General note.—This section deals with the powers of the British Transport Commission. Sub-s. (1) sets out the principal powers conferred on the Commission, which by sub-s. (2) are deemed to include the ancillary powers set out in that subsection. The powers so conferred are subject to certain specific limitations which, inter alia, preclude the Commission from (a) providing premises intended exclusively for the storage of goods not carried by the Commission; (b) running hackney carriages; (c) building ships, other than certain small vessels; and (d) manufacturing anything not required for use by the Commission.

Sub-s. (3) extends the Commission's powers so as to include the carrying on of any activity previously carried on or authorised to be carried on by an undertaking acquired by the Commission, subject to the proviso that the Commission may not, notwithstanding anything in sub-s. (3) or in any subsequent provision of the Act, except in fulfilment of a contract made by a transferred undertaking, manufacture anything not required for the use of the Commission.

Sub-s. (4), notwithstanding anything in sub-ss. (2) and (3), prohibits the Commission from (i) manufacturing, except for purposes of experiment or research, more than a certain number of chassis, bodies and component parts for road vehicles; (ii) purchasing a road vehicle for the purpose of sale; (iii) trading in spare parts, petrol, etc. for road vehicles; and (iv) engaging in maintenance or repair work for road vehicles (other than vehicles of the Commission). It is, however, provided by sub-s. (4) that any chassis or body for a road vehicle which is manufactured by the Commission in pursuance of a contract made by a transferred undertaking is to be left out of account for the purposes of (i), and further that the Commission may, by way of carrying on the activities of a transferred undertaking, engage in the activities mentioned in (iii) and (iv) for a period not exceeding three years.

The definition of terms is dealt with in sub-s. (5) and sub-s. (6) provides that for certain purposes anything done by a body corporate which is directly or indirectly controlled by the Commission shall be deemed to be done by the Commission and the undertakings of that body shall be deemed to form part of the undertakings.

By sub-s. (7) the Commission are given power to dispose of any property not required for the discharge of their duties, power which they must exercise if the Minister so directs (see s. 4 (5), post).

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Charges for services under sub-s. (1), paras. (a) to (c).—Before August 6, 1949, or such later date as the Minister may allow, the Commission are to prepare and submit to the Minister a draft charges scheme or schemes relating to all the services and facilities provided by them under sub-s. (1), paras. (a) to (c), ante, and to such other of the services and facilities provided by them as they are of opinion should be dealt with by charges schemes (s. 76, post). As to charges schemes generally, see ss. 76–81, post.

Within Great Britain.—It will be noted that while para. (a) of sub-s. (1), ante, empowers the Commission to carry goods within Great Britain, para. (d) of that subsection empowers them to consign goods not only from any place in Great Britain but also from any other place to which the Commission have themselves carried those goods.

This apparent contradiction in the powers conferred on the Commission under sub-s. (1), ante, is resolved by sub-s. (3), ante, which in effect extends those powers, subject to certain limitations, to cover the doing of anything which an acquired undertaking previously did or was authorised to do.

S. 12 of the Act, which provides for the transfer of railway undertakings to the Commission, expressly declares that the transfer effected by that section extends to parts of undertakings which are carried on outside Great Britain or are concerned with activities other than those specified in sub-s. (1), ante, and the Commission accordingly have the same power to carry goods (and passengers) to any place outside Great Britain as the railway undertakings had. It may be noted that the power of disposal conferred on the Commission by sub-s. (7), supra, expressly includes a power to dispose of any part of their undertaking or property outside Great Britain.

Hackney carriage.—This term is not defined in this Act. There is a definition in the Customs and Inland Revenue Act, 1888, s. 4 (3) (16 Halsbury's Statutes 577), but in the context here it seems that the definition to be applied is that in the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, s. 38 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 44), as incorporated by the Public Health Act, 1875, s. 171 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 696). The notes in Lumley's Public Health, pp. 4237, 4238, should be consulted.

In the opinion of the Commission.—These words in sub-s. (2) (e), ante, appear to have the effect of excluding from the jurisdiction of the Courts the determination of any question arising as to whether anything done by the Commission is necessary to facilitate the proper carrying on of the business of the Commission, provided the Commission do not do anything which they are expressly prohibited from doing. See R. v. Comptroller General of Patents, Ex parte Bayer Products, Ltd., [1941] 2 K. B. 306; [1941] 2 All E. R. 877, per Scott, L.J., at p. 681; and Liversidge v. Anderson, [1942] A. C. 206; [1941] 3 All E. R. 338, per Lord ATKIN at pp. 353, 354, in which cases words of a similar nature are considered.

The Attorney-General, opposing an Amendment moved in Committee to omit these words, drew a distinction between ordinary limited companies, over which he said it was essential that the courts should have stringent powers of control, and statutory corporations which were operating in the public service and were under the general supervision of Ministers who were themselves directly responsible to Parliament. The Attorney-General said:—

“In the view of the Government it is more appropriate that the legislature should decide in a particular case whether a particular matter will ‘facilitate the proper carrying on of the business of the Commission’ than that a court should do so” (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., February 18, 1947, col. 238).

Power to acquire by agreement.—As to the acquisition by the Commission of undertakings by agreement, see sub-s. (2) (f), ante, and s. 7, post. The consent of the Minister is required in certain cases (see s. 4 (4), post). As to the provision to be made for the compensation of officers and servants when an undertaking is acquired by agreement, see s. 102, post.

Control by a body corporate of another body corporate.—Whether or not any body corporate directly or indirectly controls another body corporate is to be determined in accordance with Sched. XIII, post (see s. 125 (4), post).

Orders and regulations.—See s. 120, post.

London Passenger Transport Act, 1933, s. 21.—26 Halsbury's Statutes 772. This section restricts the number of omnibus bodies which the London Passenger Transport Board may manufacture in any year for use in connection with their undertaking (otherwise than for purposes of experiment or research) to a number not exceeding the average number of omnibus bodies manufactured annually by the London General Omnibus Company Limited at its Chiswick premises during the five years 1927–1931. By s. 128 (2) (b) and Sched. XV, post, the section is amended as from January 1, 1948, the day on which the Board's undertaking is transferred to the Commission.

Road.—S. 125 (2), post, provides that, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, expressions used in any provision of the Act in relation to the carriage of passengers by road have the same meanings as in the Road Traffic Act, 1930. Accordingly, the meaning of the expression “road” as defined in s. 121 of that Act (23 Halsbury's Statutes 686) would appear to be the meaning of that expression in relation to the carriage of passengers by road for the purposes of the present section:—

“‘Road’ means any highway and any other road to which the public has access, and includes bridges over which a road passes.”

Sub-s. (8).—This subsection is in similar terms to s. 49 (4) of the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 294), and s. 2 (4) of the New Towns Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 665).

Sub-s. (9).—For the references in this section to “any subsequent provision of this Act,” see the proviso to sub-s. (3) and the second line of sub-s. (4).

Definitions.—For definitions of “inland waterway,” “port facilities,” “property,” “securities,” “ship” and “statutory provisions,” see s. 125 (1), post.

3. General duty of the Commission.—(1) It shall be the general duty of the Commission so to exercise their powers under this Act as to provide, or secure or promote the provision of, an efficient, adequate, economical and properly integrated system of public inland transport and port facilities within Great Britain for passengers and goods with due regard to safety of operation; and for that purpose it shall be the duty of the Commission to take such steps as they consider necessary for extending and improving the transport and port facilities within Great Britain in such manner as to provide most efficiently and conveniently for the needs of the public, agriculture, commerce and industry:

Provided that the references in this subsection to transport do not include references to transport by air. [1555]

(2) Where the Commission are for the time being providing regular goods transport services of different kinds available between the same points, it shall be their duty to allow any person desiring transport for his goods between those points freedom to choose such of the services so provided as he considers most suitable to his needs:

Provided that nothing in this subsection shall be construed as—

(a) imposing on the Commission any obligation as to the provision or continued provision (either at all or to any particular extent) of any, or of any particular form of, goods transport service between any particular points; or

(b) preventing the Commission from making charges which differ according to the requirements made as respects the kinds of goods transport services which are to be used. [1556]

(3) Where the Commission intend to discontinue permanently the provision of any regular goods transport service by road between any particular points, they shall, before discontinuing that service, give not less than one month's notice of their intention, in such manner as appears to them best suited for bringing that intention to the notice of the persons who, in the opinion of the Commission, are likely to be directly affected by the discontinuance. [1557]

(4) All the business carried on by the Commission, whether or not arising from undertakings or parts of undertakings vested in them by or under any provision of this Act, shall form one undertaking, and the Commission shall so conduct that undertaking and, subject to the provisions of this Act, levy such fares, rates, tolls, dues and other charges, as to secure that the revenue of the Commission is not less than sufficient for making provision for the meeting of charges properly chargeable to revenue, taking one year with another. [1558]

(5) Nothing in this section shall be construed as imposing on the Commission, either directly or indirectly, any form of duty or liability enforceable by proceedings before any court or tribunal to which they would not otherwise be subject. [1559]

General note.—In addition or by way of complement to the general duties imposed by this section, the Commission have important duties in connection with the preparation of road transport schemes (see s. 63 (1), post), schemes as to harbours (s. 66 (2); see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante) and charges schemes (see s. 76, post). It is also the duty of the Commission to give effect to directions of a general character given to them by the Minister (see s. 4, infra).

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Duty of Commission.—It may be noted that although the general duty imposed on the Commission by this section is limited to the provision of services and facilities within Great Britain, the powers of the Commission, by virtue of s. 2 (3), ante (see note to that section: "Within Great Britain"), extend to activities outside Great Britain.

Transport by air.—The provision of air transport services is governed by the Civil Aviation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 791).

Differential charges.—Charges schemes are to be made for determining the Commission's charges (s. 76, post), which may contain provisions authorising or enabling authorisation to be given to the making of differential charges (s. 77 (1) (d), (e), post).

Charges properly chargeable to revenue.—As to the construction of this expression, see s. 93, post. Neither the Commission nor the Transport Tribunal are to do anything in the exercise of their powers as respects charges and charges schemes which in their opinion will prevent the Commission discharging their general duty as to revenue in accordance with sub-s. (4), supra (see s. 85, post).

Taking one year with another.—This phrase occurs in a similar context in s. 36 (1) of the Electricity Act, 1947 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante). Compare the phrase "on an average of good and bad years" which occurs in s. 1 (4) (c) of the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 257).

Definitions.—For definitions of "charges," "liability" and "port facilities," see s. 125 (1), post.

4. Powers of the Minister in relation to the Commission.—(1) The Minister may, after consultation with the Commission, give to the Commission directions of a general character as to the exercise and performance by the Commission of their functions in relation to matters which appear to him to affect the national interest, and the Commission shall give effect to any such directions. [1560]

(2) In framing programmes of reorganisation or development involving substantial outlay on capital account, the Commission shall act on lines settled from time to time with the approval of the Minister. [1561]

(3) In the exercise and performance of their functions as to training, education and research, the Commission shall act on lines settled as aforesaid. [1562]

(4) The Commission shall not, without the consent of the Minister, acquire by agreement (whether absolutely or for any period) the whole or any part of any undertaking if the activities of that undertaking or that part thereof, as the case may be, consist wholly or mainly in constructing, owning, operating or conserving any railway, harbour or inland waterway, or in operating tram-cars or trolley vehicles. [1563]

(5) Without prejudice to the preceding provisions of this section, the Minister may, after consultation with the Commission, direct the Commission to discontinue any of their activities, dispose of any part of their undertaking, dispose of any securities held by them, call in any loan made by them or exercise any power they may possess to revoke any guarantee given by them, and the Commission shall give effect to any such directions :

Provided that the Minister shall not give any such direction unless he is satisfied that the carrying on of the activities or the retention of the part of the undertaking or the securities or the continuance of the loan or guarantee, as the case may be, is unnecessary for the proper discharge of the duties of the Commission under this Act. [1564]

(6) The Commission shall furnish the Minister with such returns, accounts and other information with respect to their property and activities as he may from time to time require. [1565]

(7) Without prejudice to the provisions of the last preceding subsection, the Commission shall, as soon as possible after the end of each financial year of the Commission, make to the Minister a report on the exercise and performance by them of their functions during that year and on their policy and programme, and the Minister shall lay a copy of every such report before each House of Parliament.

The report of any year shall set out any direction given by the Minister to the Commission during that year unless the Minister has notified to the Commission his opinion that it is against the interests of national security to do so and shall include a statement of the salaries or fees and of the emoluments of each of the members of the Commission during that year. [1566]

Powers of the Minister.—The provisions of this section are similar to those made by other Acts constituting nationally-owned bodies. The following comparisons may be made :—

Sub-ss. (1) to (3).—These subsections are in identical terms with s. 3 (1) to (3) of the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 258), and very similar to s. 5 (1) to (3) of the Electricity Act, 1947 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante). Sub-s. (1), ante, is in identical terms with s. 4 of the Civil Aviation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 797).

Sub-s. (5).—This subsection is similar to s. 5 (4) of the Electricity Act, 1947 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante). Compare s. 2 (5) of the Civil Aviation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 796).

Sub-s. (6).—This subsection is similar to s. 3 (4) of the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 258) and to s. 5 (5) of the Electricity Act, 1947 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante). Compare also s. 22 (6) of the Civil Aviation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 808).

Sub-s. (7).—This subsection is similar to s. 54 of the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 296), to s. 22 (1), (2), (3) of the Civil Aviation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 807), and to s. 8 (1), (5) of the Electricity Act, 1947 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante), except that those sections do not require the annual reports of the National Coal Board, the British Airways Corporations and the British Electricity Authority respectively, to include a statement of the salaries, etc., of the members of those bodies.

Acquisition by agreement.—As to acquisition by the Commission of undertakings by agreement, see s. 2 (2) (f), ante, and s. 7, post. The Minister may not approve any agreement which requires his approval unless appropriate provision for the compensation of officers and servants is made in accordance with s. 102 (1), post.

Tramcars ; trolley vehicles.—S. 125 (2), post, provides that, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, expressions used in any provision of this Act in relation to the carriage of passengers by road have the same meanings as in the Road Traffic Act, 1930. S. 121 of that Act (23 Halsbury's Statutes 686) defines "tramcar" and "trolley vehicle" as follows :—

" 'Tramcar' includes any carriage used on any road by virtue of an order made under the Light Railways Act, 1896 " (14 Halsbury's Statutes 252).

" 'Trolley vehicle' means a mechanically-propelled vehicle adapted for use upon roads without rails and moved by power transmitted thereto from some external source."

Report of Commission.—The Commission's annual report is to include a copy of the annual statement of accounts and of any auditors' report thereon (see s. 94 (4), post).

Statement of salaries, etc.—A statement of the salaries, fees and allowances of a member of the Commission on his first appointment is to be laid before Parliament (see s. 1 (8), ante, and note thereto).

Directions.—In addition to the general power conferred by this section, the Minister is empowered to give directions to the Commission on a number of specific matters ; see ss. 6 (8), 63 (4), 66 (9), 71 (4), 92 (2) (b), 94 (3), (7), 102 (2), post. Neither the Commission nor the Transport Tribunal in the exercise of their powers as respects charges and charges schemes are to do anything which will prevent the Commission from giving effect to any direction (see s. 85, post).

Definitions.—For definitions of “emoluments,” “harbour,” “inland waterway,” “the Minister” and “securities,” see s. 125 (1), post.

5. The Executives.—(1) There shall be public authorities known as Executives to assist the Commission in the discharge of their functions in the manner specified in this section. [1567]

(2) The provisions of the Second Schedule to this Act shall have effect with respect to the membership of the Executives and otherwise in relation to them. [1568]

(3) The number and names of the Executives shall be such as may from time to time be provided by order of the Minister after consultation with the Commission, but unless and until other provision is made by such an order there shall be Executives known respectively as the Railway Executive, the Docks and Inland Waterways Executive, the Road Transport Executive and the London Transport Executive and, as from the appointed day, an Executive known as the Hotels Executive. [1569]

(4) Each Executive shall, as agents for the Commission, exercise such functions of the Commission as are for the time being delegated to them by or under a scheme made by the Commission and approved by the Minister. [1570]

(5) Every scheme made and approved as aforesaid and every instrument issued thereunder effecting or revoking or varying any delegation of functions of the Commission shall be published in the London, Edinburgh and Belfast Gazettes :

Provided that the publication in the London, Edinburgh or Belfast Gazette of a notice stating that a scheme has been made and approved or that an instrument has been issued, and specifying the place where copies thereof may be purchased, shall be sufficient compliance with the provisions of this subsection as respects the publication of that scheme or instrument in that Gazette. [1571]

(6) Any delegation effected by or under such a scheme may be expressed by the scheme or by the relevant instrument issued thereunder to be subject to conditions and limitations, and, whether or not the relevant delegation is expressed to be subject to any conditions or limitations, every Executive shall, in the exercise of their functions, give effect to any directions which may from time to time be given to them by the Commission. [1572]

(7) Any such delegation may be so framed as to empower the Executive to perform any of the functions delegated to them through agents. [1573]

(8) No such delegation shall be so framed as to empower the Executive to borrow any money unless the borrowing is temporary, is for the purpose of carrying on the current business of the Executive and is authorised, either generally or specially, by the Commission. [1574]

(9) As respects matters for the time being falling within the scope of any such delegation, the following provisions shall have effect except as between the Executive and the Commission, that is to say—

(a) any rights, powers and liabilities of the Commission shall be treated as rights, powers and liabilities of the Executive, and the Executive only ;

(b) the Executive shall, to the exclusion of the Commission, be treated as the employer of any officers or servants of the Commission so long as they are by virtue of the delegation under the control of the Executive ; and references to the Commission in this Act or in any other statutory provision or in any contract or document shall be construed accordingly, and legal proceedings shall be brought by and against the Executive accordingly, to the exclusion of the Commission :

Provided that if any sum required by any judgment or order to be paid by an Executive is not paid by the Executive within fourteen days from the date on which execution becomes leviable to enforce the judgment or order, the Commission shall be liable to pay that sum and that judgment or order shall be enforceable against the Commission accordingly. [1575]

(10) In addition to the powers exercisable by an Executive by virtue of any such delegation, every Executive shall, except so far as the Commission may otherwise direct, have power, at the request of the Commission or of any other Executive, to do, as agent for the Commission or that other Executive, anything which the Commission or that other Executive have power to do. [1576]

(11) Where the effect of an order of the Minister under subsection (3) of this section is to abolish an Executive, or the effect of a scheme under subsection (4) of this section is that functions previously directly exercisable by the Commission are exercisable by an Executive or that functions previously exercisable by an Executive are exercisable by a different Executive or directly by the Commission, the order or scheme shall include such transitional provisions as to the parties by and against whom legal proceedings are to be instituted or continued, and such other transitional provisions, if any, as appear to the Minister, or to the Commission and the Minister, as the case may be, to be expedient. [1577]

General effect of section.—See Preliminary Note, ante.

Road Passenger Executive.—Opposing an Amendment moved on the Committee Stage designed to provide that the original Executives constituted under sub-s. (3), ante, should include, in place of a single Road Transport Executive covering both passenger and goods transport, two Executives, one of each of these classes, the Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Transport said :—

“ We felt it desirable that there should be at the outset only a small number of Executives, that it would be a mistake to set up a larger number than appeared absolutely necessary ; and it must be appreciated that, while the Road Executive dealing with freight will have a great deal of work to do from the word ‘ go ’ there will be no operational work which the Road Passenger Executive can do until the schemes which the Commission have drawn up have been considered by the Minister and put into effect, may be after [special] Parliamentary procedure. We do not consider it wise to establish immediately a Road Passenger Executive which would have no operational work. . . . The honorary members can be assured that the moment it appears that the time is ripe to bring into effect a Road Passenger Executive, that will be done ” (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., February 26, 1947, col. 452).

Appointed day.—For the purposes of sub-s. (3), ante, this is April 1, 1948 (Hotels Executive (Appointed Day) Order, 1948; S.I. 1948 No. 474).

Definitions.—For definitions of “ borrow,” “ liability,” “ officer ” and “ the Minister,” see s. 125 (1), post.

6. Consultative Committees.—(1) There shall be established in accordance with the provisions of this section a Central Transport Consultative Committee for Great Britain and, for such areas in Great Britain as are mentioned in subsection (3) of this section, either—

- (a) a Transport Users Consultative Committee in respect of passenger traffic and a Transport Users Consultative Committee in respect of goods traffic ; or
- (b) a Transport Users Consultative Committee in respect of both passenger and goods traffic. [1578]

(2) The Minister may at any time, after consultation with the Central Transport Consultative Committee, abolish any Transport Users Consultative Committee. [1579]

(3) The areas for which there are to be Transport Users Consultative Committees shall be such areas in Great Britain as the Minister may from time to time direct :

Provided that—

- (a) there shall be no part of Great Britain which is not within the area of a Transport Users Consultative Committee ; and
- (b) whether or not there are a Transport Users Consultative Committee or Transport Users Consultative Committees for areas consisting of or including parts of Scotland and parts of Wales, there shall at all times be a Transport Users Consultative Committee in respect of both passenger and goods traffic for Scotland and a Transport Users Consultative Committee in respect of both passenger and goods traffic for Wales, and the powers of the Minister under this and the last preceding subsection shall be exercised accordingly. [1580]

(4) Every such Committee as aforesaid shall consist of such number of persons appointed by the Minister as the Minister may from time to time determine, being—

- (a) an independent chairman ;
- (b) members appointed, after consultation with such bodies representative of the interests concerned as the Minister thinks fit, to represent agriculture, commerce, industry, shipping, labour and local authorities ; and
- (c) members appointed from among persons nominated by the Commission :

Provided that—

- (i) in the case of the Central Transport Consultative Committee, the persons nominated by the Commission shall include at least one member of the Commission ;
- (ii) members need not be appointed under paragraph (b) of this subsection to any Transport Users Consultative Committee to represent any of the interests mentioned in paragraph (b) of this subsection which in the opinion of the Minister need not be represented on that Committee ; and
- (iii) the Minister may, if he thinks fit, appoint to any such committee not more than two additional members. [1581]

(5) A person who is appointed a member of a Committee established under this section shall not by reason of his appointment be disqualified for being elected to, or for sitting or voting as a member of, the Commons House of Parliament. [1582]

(6) The members of any Committee established under this section shall hold and vacate their office in accordance with the terms of their respective appointments and shall, on ceasing to be members of the Committee, be eligible for re-appointment :

Provided that any member may at any time by notice in writing to the Minister resign his office. [1583]

(7) Every Committee appointed under this section shall consider and, where it appears to the Committee to be necessary, make recommendations in regard to any matter (including charges) affecting the services and facilities provided by the Commission which has been the subject of representations (other than representations which appear to the Committee to be frivolous) made to the Committee by users of those services or facilities, or which appears to be a matter to which consideration ought to be given, or which the Minister or Commission may refer to them for consideration ; and every such Committee shall meet when convened by the chairman thereof, but in no case less frequently than twice a year, and, without prejudice to the discretion of the Chairman to call a meeting of the Committee whenever he thinks fit so to do, he shall call a meeting thereof when required so to do by any three members of the Committee. [1584]

(8) Minutes shall be kept of the proceedings of every such Committee and copies of the minutes and of the recommendations or conclusions of any such Committee shall—

- (a) in the case of a Transport Users Consultative Committee, be sent to the Central Transport Consultative Committee and to the Commission ;
- (b) in the case of the Central Transport Consultative Committee, be sent to the Minister and to the Commission, and where a copy of a recommendation of the Central Transport Consultative Committee is sent to the Minister, the Minister may give such directions to the Commission with respect to the matters dealt with by the recommendation as he thinks fit, and the Commission shall give effect to any such directions. [1585]

(9) The Central Transport Consultative Committee shall make an annual report to the Minister, and the Minister shall lay a copy of that report before each House of Parliament. [1586]

(10) The Commission shall provide every such Committee with such officers and servants, and such office accommodation, as appear to the Commission to be requisite for the proper discharge of the Committee's functions or as may be directed by the Minister ; and they may pay to the members of any such Committee allowances in respect of any loss of remunerative time in accordance with a scale approved by the Minister and the Treasury and such travelling allowances and such allowances in respect of their out-of-pocket expenses as the Commission may determine. [1587]

(11) The panels set up under section twenty-three of the Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, and the Transport Advisory Council set up under section forty-six of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, shall cease to exist. [1588]

General note.—This section provides for the establishment of a Central Transport Consultative Committee for the whole of Great Britain, and for every area therein either a joint Transport Users Consultative Committee in respect of both passenger traffic and goods traffic or two separate Committees in respect of each of these classes of traffic.

The areas of the Transport Users Consultative Committees will be such areas as the Minister may direct, but every part of Great Britain is to be within the area of a Committee. The members of the Committees (including the Central Committee) will be appointed by the Minister and in the case of a Transport Users Consultative Committee will, unless in any particular case the Minister considers such representation unnecessary, include members appointed to represent local authorities.

Recommendations of any Transport Users Consultative Committee are to be sent to the Central Committee, and recommendations of that Committee are to be sent both to the Commission and the Minister who may give the Commission such directions with respect thereto as he thinks fit.

Sub-s. (2).—The power of abolition conferred by this subsection is principally for the purpose of facilitating the reconstitution of a Transport Users Consultative Committee (see the proviso to sub-s. (3), ante).

Independent chairman.—In replying to a question, during the Committee Stage in the House of Lords as to the definition, for the purposes of sub-s. (4) (a), ante, of the term "independent" having regard to the fact that almost everyone is connected with one or other of the interests specified in sub-s. (4) (b), ante, the Government spokesman said :—

" It would be the Minister's endeavour to select as Chairmen persons of high standing in the localities who were not too definitely connected with one of the user interests specified in the paragraph. . . . The noble Lord raises the point : then who is left ? The answer is that this still leaves the field of professional occupations upon which to draw, and the Minister would no doubt feel free to appoint any person whose background was, for example, commerce or industry, but who might not be an active member of the local Chamber of Commerce or the Manufacturers' Association " (148 H. of L. Official Report 660).

Local authority.—This means the council of a county, the Common Council of the City of London or the council of a county borough (see s. 125 (1), post, and note thereto).

An amendment was moved to sub-s. (4), ante, during the Committee Stage in the House of Lords which, by seeking to exclude proviso (ii) to sub-s. (4), ante, from applying to members representing local authorities, would have required the Minister to appoint such members to all Transport Users Consultative Committees. In opposing this Amendment, the Government spokesman said that local authorities were clearly the proper custodians of the interests of the travelling public and as such ought to be represented on a Transport Users Consultative Committee dealing with passenger traffic, but if separate Committees were set up in respect of goods traffic it might be more appropriate to confine its members to persons selected from the other interests specified in sub-s. (4) (b) (148 H. of L. Official Report 671).

Directions.—Powers of giving directions to the Commission, in addition to those conferred by sub-s. (8), ante, are conferred on the Minister by s. 4, ante, and ss. 63 (4), 66 (9), 71 (4), 92 (2) (b), 94 (3), (7), 102 (2), post. See also s. 85, post.

Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, s. 23.—3 Halsbury's Statutes 438. This section, as slightly amended by the Ministers of the Crown (Transfer of Functions) Act, 1946, s. 6 and Sched. II (39 Halsbury's Statutes 85, 87), directed the Minister of Transport to set up panels of experts and of impartial persons to advise and assist him in connection with his powers and duties under the Act of 1919.

The section is repealed, as from the passing of the present Act, by s. 128 and Sched. XV, Part I, post.

Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, s. 46.—26 Halsbury's Statutes 910. This section provided for the constitution of the Transport Advisory Council to advise the Minister of Transport in connection with his functions in relation to means of and facilities for transport and their co-ordination, improvement and development. The section permitted the inclusion on a committee of the Council of members of the panel set up under the Ministry of Transport Act, 1919, s. 23, supra.

The said s. 46 is repealed, as from the passing of the Act, by s. 128 and Sched. XV, Part I, post.

Definitions.—For definitions of "charges," "officers" and "the Minister," see s. 125 (1), post.

7.—Acquisition by Commission of undertakings by agreement.—(1) Where the Commission have power under the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act to acquire an undertaking or part of an undertaking by agreement, the persons theretofore carrying on that undertaking may, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in any statutory provision or other instrument relating to their functions, make and carry out agreements with the Commission for the transfer to the Commission of the whole or any part of that undertaking. [1589]

(2) Where any such agreement is made, the Minister may make regulations for enabling the undertaking or part of an undertaking to be carried on by the Commission in lieu of the persons theretofore carrying it on, and any such regulations—

- (a) may include provisions for transferring rights, powers, and liabilities to the Commission, and, where the said persons are a body corporate, for winding them up ;
- (b) may, to such extent as may be necessary for the purpose of enabling the undertaking or part of an undertaking to be carried on by the Commission in lieu of the said persons or for the purpose of enabling the said persons to be wound up, adapt, modify or repeal any statutory provision ;
- (c) may, to such extent as may be necessary for the purpose of enabling the undertaking or part of an undertaking to be carried on by the Commission in lieu of the said persons, adapt or modify any contract or other instrument of or relating to the said persons or relating to the undertaking ; and
- (d) may make such transitional provision in connection with the transfer of the undertaking or part of an undertaking as the Minister may think necessary or expedient. [1590]

(3) Notwithstanding anything in subsection (2) of this section, where any statutory provision relating to the undertaking or the person theretofore carrying it on is expressed to be for the protection or for the benefit of a named person, the Minister shall not by any regulations made under the said subsection (2) repeal that statutory provision or so adapt or modify it as to lessen the protection or benefit afforded thereby unless the named person is a party to the agreement or consents to the making of the regulations, but the Minister may by order made without such consent do anything which he could do by regulations with such consent, and any such order shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure. [1591]

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1) ante).

Power to acquire an undertaking by agreement.—See ss. 2 (2) (f) and 4 (4), ante. As to compensation to officers and servants where an undertaking is acquired by agreement, see s. 102, post.

Orders and regulations.—As to orders and regulations, see s. 120, post.

Special parliamentary procedure.—The Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945, s. 1 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 441), provides that where, by any Act passed after the passing of that Act, power to make or confirm orders is conferred on any authority, and provision is made requiring that any such order shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure, the provisions of that Act are to apply in relation to any order so made or confirmed.

Definitions.—For definitions of "liabilities," "the Minister" and "statutory provision," see s. 125 (1), post.

8. Compulsory purchase of land.—The Minister may authorise the Commission to purchase compulsorily any land which they require for any purpose connected with the discharge of their functions, and the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (except section two thereof) shall apply as if the Commission were a local authority within the meaning of that Act and as if this Act had been in force immediately before the commencement of that Act. [1592]

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 52. The effect of providing that that Act is to apply as if the Commission were a local authority within the meaning of that Act and as if the present Act had been in force immediately before the commencement of that Act, is to make the uniform procedure for authorising compulsory purchase of land by local authorities provided by s. 1 (1) thereof and Sched. 1 thereto, applicable to compulsory purchases by the Commission.

This is not the first occasion on which the provisions of that Act have been extended to cover a power of compulsory purchase of land conferred since the commencement of that Act; see, for example, the National Health Service Act, 1946, s. 58 (3) (39 Halsbury's Statutes 563).

S. 2 of the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, which is excluded from applying to the Commission, provides for a limited period a speedy method of acquiring land in cases of urgency.

Definition.—For definition of "the Minister," see s. 125 (1), post.

9. Power of Commission as to promoting and opposing Bills and orders.—

(1) The Commission may, with the consent of the Minister, promote Bills in Parliament and may oppose any Bill in Parliament. [1593]

(2) The power conferred by subsection (1) of this section shall be in lieu of any power to promote or oppose Bills which the Commission might otherwise possess under any of the provisions of this Act as successors to the persons carrying on any undertaking, but nothing in this section shall be construed as prejudicing any power exercisable by the Commission as such successors as aforesaid to apply for orders, and oppose applications for orders, including orders subject to special parliamentary procedure. [1594]

General note.—This section may be compared with s. 10 of the Electricity Act, 1947 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante).

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Special parliamentary procedure.—See note to s. 7, supra.

10. Commission not to be exempted from taxation, etc.—Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to exempt the Commission from liability for any tax, duty, rate, levy or other charge whatsoever, whether general or local. [1595]

General note.—This section is in identical terms with s. 47 of the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 293), and s. 20 of the New Towns Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 680). Compare also s. 11 of the Electricity Act, 1947 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante).

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

11. Liability of Commission in actions, etc.—(1) The Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893, and section twenty-one of the Limitation Act, 1939, shall not apply to any action, prosecution or proceeding against the Commission or an Executive or for or in respect of any act, neglect or default done or committed by a servant or agent of the Commission or an Executive in his capacity as a servant or agent of theirs. [1596]

(2) In their application to any such action as aforesaid sections two and three of the Limitation Act, 1939 (which relate to the limitation of actions of contract and tort, and certain other actions) shall have effect with the substitution for references therein to six years of references to three years. [1597]

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893.—13 Halsbury's Statutes 455.

Limitation Act, 1939, ss. 2, 3, 21.—32 Halsbury's Statutes 225, 226, 235.

Effect of section.—The effect of sub-s. (1) is to exclude the Commission, Executives, etc. from the protection afforded to public authorities whereby criminal proceedings against them must be commenced within six months (see the Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893, s. 1, as amended by the Limitation Act, 1939, s. 34 (4) and Sched.).

As a result of sub-s. (2), actions against the Commission, etc. founded on simple contract or on tort and certain other actions, must be commenced within three years. It should be noted that sub-s. (2) does not alter the limitation periods of twelve years and two years respectively laid down by s. 2 (3), (4) and (5) of the Act of 1939, in respect of actions on specialties and judgments, and actions to recover penalties.

The section is in identical terms with the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946, s. 49 (1), (2) (39 Halsbury's Statutes 294); the New Towns Act, 1946, s. 17 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 679), and the Electricity Act, 1947, s. 12 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante).

(2) Only the undertaking which was under the control of the Minister under Regulation sixty-nine of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, shall vest by virtue of this Act in the Commission, and the provisions of this Part of this Act relating to the effect of the vesting of undertakings and to the disclaimer of agreements shall have effect, and have effect only, in respect of property held or used by the authority for the purposes of that undertaking and rights, liabilities, agreements, statutory provisions, documents, legal proceedings and applications of, referring to, by and against the authority which either were wholly or mainly held or were acquired or incurred for the purposes of, or relate to, that undertaking. [1599]

(3) The Commission shall not, by virtue of any of the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act, come under any liability, or have any rights or powers, in respect of any securities of the local authority or any sinking fund established for the redemption of any such securities, but the Commission shall, as consideration for the vesting in them of the undertaking and (subject to the provisions of section one hundred and fourteen of this Act) in lieu of any other compensation in respect of the vesting make to the authority the payments mentioned in the next two succeeding subsections. [1600]

(4) Where the authority have, by the issue of securities, raised money wholly or partly for the purposes of the undertaking or have advanced money for those purposes out of any consolidated loans fund or mortgage loans pool established by them or out of any other moneys held by them, and, in pursuance of the arrangements in force immediately before the date of transfer for the redemption of the loan and the payment of interest thereon or, as the case may be, for the repayment of the advance and the payment of interest thereon, any amounts would, but for the vesting of the undertaking in the Commission, have fallen, on or after the date of transfer, to be debited in the accounts of the undertaking, the Commission shall, subject to the provisions of this section, pay those amounts to the authority at the times at which, but for the vesting, those amounts would have fallen to be debited in the accounts of the undertaking. [1601]

(5) Where the authority have before the date of transfer made arrangements for the making of financial adjustments, as between the accounts of the undertaking and any other account kept by the authority, in respect of any other transaction or matter affecting both the undertaking and other activities of the authority, and in pursuance of those arrangements any amounts would, but for the vesting of the undertaking in the Commission, have fallen, on or after the date of transfer, to be debited or credited in the accounts of the undertaking and credited, or, as the case may be, debited in some other account of the authority, the Commission shall, subject to the provisions of this section, pay those amounts to the authority or be entitled to receive those amounts from the authority, as the case may be, at the times at which, but for the vesting, those amounts would have fallen to be debited or credited in the accounts of the undertaking :

Provided that this subsection shall not apply in relation to any apportionment of the establishment charges of the authority between the accounts of the undertaking and other accounts of the authority. [1602]

(6) The Commission and the authority may agree or the Minister of Health may, on the application of the Commission or the authority in default of such agreement, determine that, having regard to the circumstances in which any such arrangements were made and the circumstances arising under this Act, the last preceding subsection shall not apply to those arrangements or shall apply thereto with such modifications as to the payments to be made by the Commission or the authority as may be so agreed or determined, and the said subsection shall have effect subject to any such agreement or determination.

Any other question arising under either of the two last preceding subsections as to the payments to be made thereunder shall, in default of agreement, be determined by the Minister of Health. [1603]

(7) Any payment made by the Commission or the authority under the preceding provisions of this section which would, but for the vesting of the undertaking in the Commission, have been debited or credited as a capital payment, shall be deemed to be a capital payment, and any other such payment shall be deemed to be an annual payment. [1604]

(8) Notwithstanding anything in any statutory provision, the authority shall not be entitled to any profit or be required to bear any loss arising in the carrying on by the Commission on or after the date of transfer of the part of the Commission's undertaking corresponding to the undertaking of the authority. [1605]

(9) So much of any of the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act or of any provision of the Fifth Schedule to this Act as operates in relation to securities of a body mentioned in the Third Schedule to this Act held by another such body or in relation to any interest in any securities of any such body belonging to another such body shall not apply in relation to securities held by the authority or, as the case may be, in relation to any interest belonging to the authority, unless the securities or, as the case may be, the interest were or was acquired by the authority in connection with the undertaking which vests in the Commission. [1606]

(10) Save as aforesaid, nothing in the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act shall apply in relation to the authority or the undertaking thereof. [1607]

General note.—With the exception of this section, Part II of the Act, which deals exclusively with railways and canals, is not here printed since it falls outside the scope of this Volume.

The present section, however, in addition to applying the preceding provisions of Part II to local authorities (as to which see the succeeding note), is also relevant to the determination of compensation to be paid to local authorities under schemes made under Part IV, namely, area road transport schemes (as to which see ss. 63–65 and Sched. VIII, post), and schemes as to harbours (as to which see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante).

Sched. VIII, para. 1 (1), proviso (a), post, enacts in effect that any such scheme which provides for the transfer of an undertaking carried on by a local authority (which term is defined by s. 125 (1), post, as extended by the said para. 1 (1), to mean a county council, the Common Council of the City of London, a county borough council or a county district council) or by a joint committee, joint board, joint authority or other combined body, all the members of which are or are representative of local authorities, must contain provisions for compensating that authority or body which are identical, as near as may be, with the provisions for compensating local authorities made by the present section.

The payments to be made for compensation are laid down in sub-ss. (4) and (5) of the present section.

Sub-s. (4) provides for the making of payments to cover as from the date of transfer the liability of an authority which has, for the purposes of the transferred undertaking, raised money by the issue of securities or advanced money for those purposes out of moneys held by them; while sub-s. (5) provides for the Commission's paying to, or as the case may be receiving from, the authority the amount of any adjustments which would, but for the transfer of the undertaking, have fallen to be made on or after the date of transfer in pursuance of any arrangements the authority may have made for adjusting the accounts of the undertaking with any other account kept by the authority in respect of any transaction or matter affecting both the undertaking and the other activities of the authority.

Sub-s. (5) does not, however, apply to any apportionment of the establishment charges of the authority, and may be excluded or modified by agreement between the Commission and the authority or, in default of agreement, by determination of the Minister of Health in accordance with sub-s. (6). Any other question as to the payments to be made under sub-ss. (4) and (5) is, in default of agreement, to be determined by the Minister of Health.

It may be noted that s. 114, post, provides for the payment of additional compensation to a local authority from which an undertaking is transferred under a scheme made under Part IV of this Act. A right of pre-emption for local authorities may also arise as the result of the acquisition of an undertaking by the Commission (see s. 115, post).

Sched. III.—Sched. III specifies the bodies owning railway, canal or inland navigation undertakings which are transferred to the Commission in accordance with the preceding provisions of Part II of the Act.

Only one local authority is affected, namely, Nottingham Corporation in respect of the Trent Navigation Undertaking. Since, with the exception of this section, Part II and Sched. III are not of concern to local authorities generally, they are omitted from this Volume.

As to the reason for including the present section, see General note, ante.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Definition.—For definition of "statutory provision," see s. 125 (1), post.

PART III

TRANSPORT OF GOODS BY ROAD

Acquisition of certain undertakings by the Commission

39. Certain road transport undertakings to be acquired by Commission.—

(1) Where the Commission are of opinion with respect to an undertaking the activities of which consist wholly or partly of the operation of any vehicles authorised to be used under any A licence or B licence—

- (a) that the undertaking or any part thereof was carried on (whether by the same person or not) during the whole or any part of the year nineteen hundred and forty-six; and
- (b) that the activities of the undertaking in that year, so far as they consisted of the carriage of goods in goods vehicles (being vehicles with respect to which a licence, of whatever class, was in force), consisted to a predominant extent of ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward, it shall be the duty of the Commission to give, in accordance with the subsequent provisions of the Part of this Act, a notice of acquisition with respect to the undertaking:

Provided that if the Commission, having due regard to their duties under subsection (1) of section three of this Act, are of the opinion that, by reason of the special character of an undertaking which fulfils the aforementioned conditions, or by reason of the goods carried or the locality served by that undertaking, it is expedient to make an exception in that case, the Commission may enter into an agreement with the person carrying on that undertaking that, subject to such conditions, if any, as may be specified in the agreement, a notice of acquisition shall not be given with respect thereto or, as the case may be, that, subject to such conditions, if any, as may be specified in the agreement, a notice of acquisition duly given shall be withdrawn; and where any such agreement is concluded, the Commission shall be released from their duty under this subsection to give a notice of acquisition with respect to that undertaking, but may, if they think fit, give such a notice in the event of any breach of the conditions specified in the agreement, and any notice of acquisition so given shall have effect as if no such agreement had been entered into. [1608]

(2) In this Part of this Act, the expression "ordinary long distance carriage" means, in relation to an undertaking, the carriage of goods by the person carrying on the undertaking for a distance of forty miles or upwards in one goods vehicle or a succession of goods vehicles, in such circumstances that the vehicle, or, as the case may be, one or more of the vehicles, is, at some time during the carriage, more than twenty-five miles from its operating centre :

Provided that the carriage of liquids carried in bulk in a tank permanently fixed to the vehicle, or in a tank not so fixed of which the capacity is not less than five hundred gallons, the carriage of goods of a special character which, under any statutory provision specifically relating thereto, may only be carried in a vehicle constructed or adapted so as to comply with the requirements of that provision and which are being so carried, ordinary furniture removals, the carriage of meat, the carriage of livestock, the carriage of felled timber in a vehicle specially constructed for the purposes of such carriage, any carriage effected wholly in vehicles specially constructed to carry abnormal indivisible loads and the carriage, in a vehicle in which no other goods are being carried for hire or reward, of apparatus or equipment ancillary to the operation, for the purposes of the carriage of such loads, of such a specially constructed vehicle shall not be treated as ordinary long distance carriage. [1609]

(3) The distance of forty miles mentioned in subsection (2) of this section shall, notwithstanding anything in section thirty-four of the Interpretation Act, 1889, be measured along the route actually taken by the vehicle or vehicles in question. [1610]

General note.—This section is the first of a number of sections dealing with the acquisition of long distance road haulage undertakings by the Commission. It imposes upon the Commission the duty (subject, however, to the exercise of a discretionary power in certain cases) to give notice of acquisition with respect to all undertakings which in their opinion fall within the formula of acquisition set out in the section. See, generally, the Preliminary Note, ante.

As to the application of the formula to controlled undertakings and to undertakings whose vehicles were hired to the Minister through the Road Haulage Organisation, see s. 42, post; as to its application to mergers, see s. 43, post. The Commission may be required to serve notice of acquisition with respect to certain undertakings not falling within the formula of acquisition: see s. 54 (1), post.

In moving the Second Reading of the Bill, the Minister of Transport stated that there were approximately 86,000 A licence vehicles belonging to 19,000 licence holders and 53,000 B licence vehicles belonging to 27,000 licence holders. He estimated that between 2,000 and 2,500 undertakings involving approximately 20,000 vehicles would be transferred to the Commission under this Part of the Act. In addition, under Part II of the Act the Commission would acquire goods vehicles belonging to or controlled by the railway undertakings making an overall total, according to the Minister's estimate, of between 30,000 and 35,000 goods vehicles to be compulsorily acquired by the Commission (see 481 H. of C. Official Report 1630).

For the purpose of ascertaining whether or not notice of acquisition should be served with respect to a particular undertaking, the Commission may require information from the licensing authority for any traffic area and from any undertaking operating A or B licence vehicles (see s. 51 (1), (2), post).

As to the duty of a person, to whom a notice of acquisition has been given, to produce books and other documents and to supply information to the Commission, see s. 51 (3), post. He must preserve all such documents until they are handed over to the Commission, or, if retained by him, until six months after the date of transfer (see s. 51 (4), post). As to the Commission's duty to keep the Transport Arbitration Tribunal informed of any acquisitions, see s. 110 (3), post.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Predominant extent.—As to the determination in arbitration proceedings of the question whether or not, in any particular case, ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward predominates, see s. 41, post.

Notice of acquisition.—The time and manner of service of a notice of acquisition and the particulars to be contained therein will be prescribed by regulations made by the Minister (see ss. 40 (5) and 119, post). As to the general effect of a notice of acquisition, see s. 45, post.

Ordinary long distance carriage.—Ordinary long distance carriage as defined by sub-s. (2), supra, may be compared and contrasted with the carriage of goods for hire or reward which is restricted, as from the appointed day, by s. 52 (1), post.

The carriage of goods in a vehicle which does not go more than twenty-five miles from its operating centre is excluded both from ordinary long distance carriage and from the restrictions imposed by s. 52 (1), post. In addition, the carriage of these special classes of goods excluded, by the proviso to sub-s. (2), ante, from ordinary long distance carriage is also excluded from the said restrictions by the proviso to s. 52 (1), post. But while any journey for a distance of less than forty miles, even though going beyond the twenty-five mile limit, is excluded from ordinary long distance carriage, there is no exemption for such a journey from the restrictions imposed by s. 52 (1), post.

Goods of a special character.—For example, petroleum spirit, the conveyance of which by road is governed by the Petroleum (Consolidation) Act, 1928, s. 6 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 1173), and the regulations made thereunder.

Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 34.—18 Halsbury's Statutes 1004. This section, the application of which to the measurement of the distance of forty miles mentioned in sub-s. (2), ante, is excluded by sub-s. (3), ante, provides that, in the measurement of any distance for the purposes of any Act passed after the commencement of that Act, that distance shall unless the contrary intention appears be measured in a straight line on a horizontal plane.

Definitions.—For definitions of "A licence," "B licence," "carriage of goods" and "goods vehicle," see note to s. 41, post. For definitions of "abnormal indivisible load," "operating centre," "ordinary furniture removal" and "statutory provision," see s. 125 (1), post.

40. Notices of acquisition.—(1) A notice of acquisition given by the Commission with respect to an undertaking shall be in writing and shall be served on the person carrying on the undertaking. [1611]

(2) If a person on whom a notice of acquisition has been served by the Commission with respect to an undertaking desires to contend that the undertaking is not one with respect to which the Commission are required or entitled to give a notice of acquisition under the last preceding section, he may by notice in writing served on the Commission require the Commission to withdraw their notice. [1612]

(3) Where the Commission receives such a notice as is referred to in subsection (2) of this section, they shall, if satisfied that the contention of the person carrying on the undertaking is correct, withdraw their notice, but in any other case the question whether or not the notice given by the Commission is to have effect shall, unless the owner of the undertaking withdraws his notice, be determined by the arbitration tribunal established under Part VIII of this Act. [1613]

(4) Where a person carrying on an undertaking with respect to which no notice of acquisition has been served by the Commission desires to contend that the undertaking is one with respect to which the Commission are required to give a notice of acquisition, he may by notice in writing served on the Commission require the Commission to serve a notice of acquisition in respect thereof and, if the Commission fail or refuse to serve such a notice, the question whether or not the Commission are to serve such a notice shall, unless the owner of the undertaking withdraws his notice, be determined by the arbitration tribunal established under Part VIII of this Act. [1614]

(5) A notice of acquisition, and any other notice given under this section, shall be served in the prescribed manner and within the prescribed time, and shall embody such particulars, if any, as to the grounds on which the notice is given, as may be prescribed. [1615]

General note.—This section deals with notices of acquisition which s. 39 (1), ante (as applied by ss. 42 (1), 43, post), makes it the duty of the Commission to give in respect of undertakings coming within the formula of acquisition set out in s. 39, ante.

Provision is made for the determination by the Transport Arbitration Tribunal of the question whether or not notices of acquisition are to have effect, and, in cases where no notice has been served, of the question whether or not such notice should be given.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Notice of acquisition.—As to the Commission's duty to give a notice of acquisition, see s. 39 (1), ante (as applied by ss. 42 (1), 43, post; and see s. 54 (1), post). The time and manner of service of a notice of acquisition and the particulars to be contained therein will be prescribed by regulations made by the Minister (see sub-s. (5), supra, and s. 119, post).

As to the general effect of a notice of acquisition, see s. 45, post.

Arbitration tribunal.—The Transport Arbitration Tribunal (see s. 105 (1), post). Subject to the provisions of s. 106 (3), post, under which a question of law may be stated in the form of a special case for determination by the Court of Appeal, the Arbitration Tribunal have sole jurisdiction in proceedings under this section (see s. 109 (1), post).

It should be noted that the proviso to s. 41 (1), post, which relates to proceedings under this section, has the effect of excluding the application of the doctrine of the onus of proof in such proceedings.

An amendment was made on the Committee Stage of the Bill in the House of Lords inserting a subsection to provide that in proceedings before the Arbitration Tribunal under this section the burden of proof that an undertaking was an undertaking specified in s. 39, ante, should be upon the person contending that the undertaking was such. The House of Commons subsequently disagreed with the Lords in the Amendment and it was not insisted upon.

The Lord Chancellor, in opposing the Amendment, drew a distinction between proceedings before the Tribunal and proceedings in a court of law. He said :—

"If it is a voluntary suit by way of arbitration, or by way of being brought in the courts, then the doctrine of the onus of proof applies. That I would agree to. But my case is that it is not of that nature at all. Here certain facts are alleged. Clause 39 says to the Commission that if they believe these facts they are bound to serve a notice—there is no option. They may not want to serve it, but the law says they must serve it, and when they serve that notice of acquisition, then these various steps follow. . . . That being so, I say that to apply the doctrine of the onus of proof is entirely wrong. It is as wrong as it would be for a shepherd if he were told to separate the sheep from the goats, to try to make any use of the doctrine of proof. . . . If the tribunal has not got all the circumstances and the figures to enable it [to apply s. 39], then it must do the best it can, getting such information as it can from petrol returns, from notepaper and from the knowledge which in the vast majority of cases of these big firms is to be obtained from their customers, who are well known. The tribunal must get such evidence as it can, and draw an inference one way or the other as to which category this undertaking falls into" (148 H. of L. Official Report 925).

Required or entitled.—These alternative words are necessary since, while it is in the normal case the duty of the Commission to give a notice of acquisition with respect to all the undertakings which comply with the formula of acquisition laid down in s. 39 (1), ante, the giving of such a notice in certain exceptional cases will be at their discretion.

These exceptional cases may arise under the proviso to s. 39 (1), which provides in certain circumstances for the Commission making agreements not to give a notice in respect of a particular undertaking, such an agreement having the effect of absolving the Commission from their duty to give such a notice. The proviso to s. 39 (1) further provides, however, that the Commission shall, in the event of any breach of the agreement, be entitled, if they think fit, to give a notice of acquisition.

41. Tests as to whether ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward predominates.—(1) For the purposes of any proceedings under the last preceding section before the arbitration tribunal established under Part VIII of this Act, the activities of an undertaking in the year nineteen hundred and forty-six, so far as they consisted in the carriage of goods in goods vehicles with respect to which A licences, B licences or C licences were in force, shall be deemed to have consisted to a predominant extent of ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward if, and, save as is hereinafter provided in this subsection, only if, one or other of the following conditions was satisfied as respects the undertaking in that year, that is to say—

- (a) the total weight of the goods which were the subject of ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward in the said goods vehicles exceeded half the total weight of all the goods carried in those vehicles; or
- (b) the receipts of the undertaking from ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward exceeded half the total value to the undertaking of the services of the vehicles, and the question whether the notice of acquisition to which the proceedings relate is to have effect, or, as the case may be, the question whether a notice of acquisition shall be served, shall be determined accordingly :

Provided that if the information available in any such proceedings is insufficient to enable the tribunal to conclude either that one or other of the said conditions was satisfied as aforesaid or that neither of the conditions was so satisfied, the tribunal shall determine that the activities of the undertaking in the said year, so far as they consisted of the carriage of goods in goods vehicles in respect of which licences were in force, consisted to a predominant extent of ordinary long distance carriage for hire and reward, if it appears to the tribunal, from the information available in those proceedings, that those activities ought, in all the circumstances, properly to be regarded as having consisted to a predominant extent of such carriage.

(2) Where, in the year nineteen hundred and forty-six, goods were carried for hire or reward and the carriage thereof was charged for by weight but with a provision that, in particular circumstances, the weight thereof should be taken to be a weight calculated by reference to the volume thereof, the weight of those goods shall, in those circumstances, be taken for the purposes of paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of this section to have been a weight similarly calculated. [1617]

(3) Where in the year nineteen hundred and forty-six goods were carried for hire or reward and the carriage thereof was charged for by volume ascertained by means of calibration marks on a vehicle, stamped with a stamp of verification under section twenty-nine of the Weights and Measures Act, 1878, the weight of the goods shall be calculated for the purposes of paragraph (a) of the said subsection (1) at such ratio to the volume ascertained as aforesaid as is customary in relation to those goods in the appropriate trade or industry. [1618]

(4) Where, in the year nineteen hundred and forty-six, goods were carried for hire or reward and the carriage thereof was charged for by volume, ascertained otherwise than by means of calibration marks on the vehicle, the weight of those goods shall be taken for the purposes of paragraph (a) of the said subsection (1) to have been one ton for every eighty cubic feet of the volume of the goods, and so proportionately for volumes which are not an exact multiple of eighty cubic feet. [1619]

(5) For the purposes of paragraph (b) of the said subsection (1), the total value to the undertaking of the services of the vehicles therein referred to shall be ascertained by adding together—

(a) the receipts of the undertaking in respect of carriage for hire or reward in those vehicles; and

(b) a sum in respect of goods carried therein otherwise than for hire or reward equal to the amount which it would have been reasonable for the person carrying on the undertaking to charge for the carriage thereof if he had been lawfully carrying them for hire or reward, any carriage which could be effected without a licence being in force in respect of the vehicle being left out of account. [1620]

General note.—This section ties up with ss. 39 and 40, ante. S. 39 (1), ante, imposes upon the Commission a duty to serve a notice of acquisition with respect to certain undertakings the activities of which in 1946 in their opinion, so far as they consisted in the carriage of goods in goods vehicles, consisted to a predominant extent of ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward. Ordinary long distance carriage is defined in s. 39 (2), ante.

S. 40 (3), (4), ante, provides for referring certain questions connected with notices of acquisition to the Transport Arbitration Tribunal. The present section lays down the tests to be applied in such proceedings by the tribunal for determining whether or not ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward predominates.

It should be noted that the effect of the proviso to sub-s. (1), ante, is to exclude the general principle as to the onus of proof in proceedings to which this section applies (see note to s. 40, ante, on "Arbitration tribunal").

As to the modifications subject to which the section has effect in relation to an undertaking any of the goods vehicles of which were in 1946 under hire to the Minister through the Road Haulage Organisation, see s. 42 (2), post.

The arbitration tribunal.—The Transport Arbitration Tribunal (see s. 105 (1), post). See also note to s. 40, ante.

Ordinary long distance carriage.—As to the meaning of this expression, see s. 39 (2), ante.

Information.—As to the power of the Commission to obtain information for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not an undertaking is one they are bound to acquire, see s. 51, post.

Weights and Measures Act, 1878, s. 29.—20 Halsbury's Statutes 376.

Goods carried otherwise than for hire or reward.—This means goods carried by a B or C licence holder for or in connection with any trade or business carried on by him or by an A licence holder for or in connection with his business as a carrier of goods (see the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, s. 2; 26 Halsbury's Statutes 874).

The inclusion of a sum in respect of such goods in the calculation to be made for determining whether the carriage of goods in 1946 consisted to a predominant extent of ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward weighs in the balance against an undertaking falling within the formula of acquisition (as to which, see s. 39 (1), ante).

Carriage effected without a licence.—As to carriage which may be effected without a licence, see sub-s. (7) of s. 1 of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 873); this subsection provides that that section (which prohibits the use of a goods vehicle on a road for the carriage of goods either for hire or reward or in connection with any trade or business except under licence) is not to apply to the use of a vehicle for the purposes set out in the subsection.

Definitions.—S. 125 (2), post, provides that except in so far as the context otherwise requires, expressions used in this Part of the Act have the same meaning as in the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 870). Accordingly, subject to the exception mentioned, the following definitions contained in the 1933 Act are applicable to expressions used in this Part of the present Act :—

"Goods vehicle" means a motor vehicle constructed or adapted for use for the carriage of goods, or a trailer so constructed or adapted (s. 1 (2)).

"Carriage of goods" includes the haulage of goods (s. 36 (1)).

"Goods" includes goods or burden of any description (s. 36 (1)).

"An A licence" is a public carrier's licence. S. 2 (2) of the 1933 Act provides that an A licence shall entitle the holder thereof to use the authorised vehicles (which expression means in relation to any licence any vehicles authorised to be used thereunder; see s. 2 (5) of the Act of 1933), for the carriage of goods for hire or reward, or for the carriage of goods for or in connection with his business as a carrier of goods, whether by road transport or any other kind of transport, but that it shall be a condition of the licence that no vehicle which is for the time being an authorised vehicle shall be used for the carriage of goods for or in connection with any other trade or business carried on by him except such storage or warehousing of goods as may be incidental to his business as a carrier.

The said s. 2 (2) provides further that in relation to a licence held by a person carrying on a canal, dock or harbour undertaking, the reference in the subsection to the use of vehicles for the carriage of goods for or in connection with the business of the holder of a licence as a carrier of goods shall include a reference to the use of vehicles for the carriage of goods for, or in connection with, that undertaking.

"A B licence" is a limited carrier's licence. S. 2 (3) of the Act of 1933 provides that a B licence shall entitle the holder thereof to use the authorised vehicles, as he thinks fit from time to time, either for the carriage of goods for or in connection with any trade or business carried on by him, or, subject to any conditions which the licensing authority, in the exercise of his discretion to attach conditions to a B licence, may attach to the licence, for the carriage of goods for hire or reward.

"A C licence" is a limited carrier's licence. S. 2 (4) of the Act of 1933 provides that a C licence shall entitle the holder thereof to use the authorised vehicles for the carriage of goods for or in connection with any trade or business carried on by him, subject to the condition that no vehicle which is for the time being an authorised vehicle shall be used for the carriage of goods for hire or reward.

The said s. 2 (4) further provides that, notwithstanding anything in Part I of the Act of 1933, the licensing authority may, in a case of emergency and subject to such conditions as he thinks fit to impose, authorise the holder of a C licence to use an authorised vehicle for the carriage of goods for any person to whom he lets the vehicle, if the authority is satisfied that the needs of that person cannot conveniently be met from other sources.

"Trailer" means a vehicle drawn by a motor vehicle (s. 36 (1)).

42. Application of preceding provisions to controlled undertakings and vehicles hired by the Minister.—(1) Where, by virtue of a Road Haulage Organisation control agreement, the whole or any part of an undertaking the activities of which consist wholly or partly of the operation of any vehicles authorised to be used under any A licence or B licence was under the control of the Minister during any part of the year nineteen hundred and forty-six—

- (a) the person carrying on the undertaking may, if he thinks fit, require the Commission to serve a notice of acquisition with respect to the undertaking whether or not the conditions requisite under the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act, so far as they relate to the facts of the said year, are satisfied in relation to the undertaking, and the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act shall have effect in relation to any such requirement as if the said conditions were satisfied so far as they relate to the facts of that year; and
- (b) if he does not duly require the Commission to serve a notice of acquisition, the question whether the said conditions are satisfied shall be determined as if the undertaking had first begun to be carried on at the date when the agreement ceased to have effect. [1621]

(2) Where, at any time during the year nineteen hundred and forty-six, any of the goods vehicles used for the purposes of an undertaking were under hire to the Minister under any agreement incorporating, with or without modifications, the General Conditions of Hire of Goods Road Motor Vehicles, then, in determining whether the activities of the undertaking, so far as they consisted of the carriage of goods in goods vehicles with respect to which licences were in force, consisted to a predominant extent in ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward, the last preceding section shall have effect in relation to the undertaking subject to the following modifications, that is to say either—

- (a) the undertaking shall be taken to have first begun to be carried on at the date when the agreements ceased to have effect ; or
- (b) if the person carrying on the undertaking elects that this paragraph shall apply, paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of the last preceding section shall not apply and, for the purposes of paragraph (b) thereof, all vehicles which were at any time under hire under any such agreement shall, as respects any period for which they were under hire under the agreement, be treated as if all the goods carried therein were carried by way of ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward, and all sums paid by the Minister under any such agreement shall be treated as receipts of the undertaking from ordinary long distance carriage for hire or reward. [1622]

(3) In this section—

the expression “ a Road Haulage Organisation control agreement ” means an agreement for the control of the whole or any part of an undertaking, incorporating, with or without modifications, the memorandum of financial arrangements dated the second day of February, nineteen hundred and forty-three, which was issued on behalf of the Minister for the purposes of the Road Haulage Organisation brought into being in that year ; and the expression “ the General Conditions of Hire of Goods Road Motor Vehicles ” means the document issued on behalf of the Minister in the month of April, nineteen hundred and forty-three, in connection with the said Road Haulage Organisation, entitled “ The General Conditions of Hire of Goods Road Motor Vehicles (Long Distance Services) ”. [1623]

Road Haulage Organisation.—The Road Haulage Organisation was set up by administrative action of the Minister of War Transport in connection with war-time control of long distance road haulage. Through the Organisation there was made available for essential purposes a pool of some 34,000 goods vehicles, consisting of some 32,000 vehicles belonging to undertakings which were controlled by the Minister under Road Haulage Organisation control agreements, and some 2,000 vehicles which were hired to the Minister through the Organisation. The Organisation was wound up on August 17, 1946.

Notice of acquisition.—The time and manner of service of a notice of acquisition and the particulars to be contained therein will be prescribed by regulations made by the Minister (see s. 40 (5), ante, and s. 119, post).

As to the general effect of a notice of acquisition, see s. 45, post.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Date when the agreement ceased to have effect.—August 17, 1946.

Ordinary long distance carriage.—As to the meaning of this expression, see s. 39 (2), ante.

The Minister.—It may be noted that this expression is used in two slightly different senses in this section : in sub-ss. (1) and (2) it means either the Minister of Transport or the Minister of War Transport according to the date, and in sub-s. (3) it means the Minister of War Transport (see the definition of the expression in s. 125 (1), post). The Ministry of War Transport was dissolved and the functions of the Minister transferred to the Minister of Transport as from April 1, 1946, by S. R. & O., 1946, No. 375.

43. Application of preceding provisions to mergers, etc.—(1) Where, on or after the twenty-eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and forty-six, an undertaking becomes, as the result of an acquisition or merger, part of another undertaking, and the conditions requisite under the preceding provisions of this Part of the Act for the giving of a notice of acquisition with respect to the first-mentioned undertaking are satisfied so far as they relate to the facts of the said year, the said conditions, so far as they relate to the said facts, shall be deemed to be satisfied with respect to the whole of the second mentioned undertaking and, in the case of subsequent acquisitions or mergers, with respect also to the whole of any other undertaking which indirectly represents the first mentioned undertaking :

Provided that where the first mentioned acquisition or merger took place before the end of the year nineteen hundred and forty-six, any reference in the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act to the year nineteen hundred and forty-six shall, in relation to the first mentioned undertaking, be treated as a reference to so much of that year as preceded the acquisition or merger. [1624]

(2) Where an undertaking which was being carried on immediately before the said twenty-eighth day of November directly or indirectly represented, as the result of an acquisition or merger or a series of acquisitions or mergers, other undertakings which were carried on in the said year, any reference in the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act to an undertaking shall, so far as they relate to the facts of the said year, be construed, as respects that undertaking, as a reference to that undertaking and all the other undertakings which it represented as aforesaid, taken together. [1625]

November 28, 1946.—This is the day immediately following that on which the Bill received its First Reading.

Notice of acquisition.—As to the conditions requisite for the giving of a notice of acquisition, see s. 39 (1), ante, as applied by s. 42 (1), ante. The time and manner of service of a notice of acquisition and the particulars to be contained therein will be prescribed by regulations made by the Minister (see s. 40 (5), ante, and s. 119, post).

As to the general effect of a notice of acquisition, see s. 45, infra.

44. Date of transfer under notice of acquisition.—(1) Every notice of acquisition shall specify a date (not being earlier than the prescribed time after the service of the notice) on which, subject to the provisions of this section, the transfer to be effected in pursuance of the notice is to take effect. [1626]

(2) Where under subsection (2) of section forty of this Act the person on whom a notice of acquisition is served duly requires the Commission to withdraw the notice, the date on which the said transfer is to have effect shall be the date specified in the notice of acquisition or a date one month after the question whether the notice of acquisition is to have effect has been determined, whether by withdrawal of the owner's notice or by proceedings before the arbitration tribunal established under Part VIII of this Act, whichever of those dates is the later. [1627]

(3) The Commission and the person carrying on the undertaking may by agreement substitute another date for the date fixed under the preceding provisions of this section. [1628]

(4) The date fixed under the preceding provisions of this section is in this Part of this Act, and in the other provisions of this Act relating to transfers under this Part of this Act of undertakings or parts of undertakings, referred to as "the date of transfer". [1629]

Notice of acquisition.—As to the duty of the Commission to give a notice of acquisition, see s. 39 (1), ante, as applied by ss. 42, 43, ante; see also s. 54 (1), post.

The time and manner of service of a notice of acquisition and the particulars to be contained therein will be prescribed by regulations made by the Minister (see s. 40 (5), ante, and s. 119, post).

Arbitration tribunal.—The Transport Arbitration Tribunal (see s. 105 (1), post).

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

45. General effect of notice of acquisition.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act relating to disclaimer and subject, as respects any particular property or any particular contracts, to any agreement to the contrary made between the Commission and the person carrying on the undertaking (in this Part of this Act referred to as "the transferor"), the provisions of this section shall, where a notice of acquisition is given with respect to an undertaking and is not withdrawn or determined by arbitration to be of no effect, have effect in relation to—

- (a) property which immediately before the date of transfer was owned by the transferor and was held by him for the purposes of the undertaking; and
- (b) contracts, whether in writing or not and whether or not of such a nature that the rights or liabilities thereunder could be assigned by the transferor, being contracts to which the transferor was a party and which were made for the purposes of the carrying on of the undertaking :

Provided that where the operation of vehicles authorised to be used under A licences or B licences is only one of the activities of the undertaking, the said provisions shall have effect only in relation to property held wholly or partly for the purposes of that activity and in relation to contracts made wholly or partly for those purposes, and, without prejudice to the preceding provisions of this proviso, if the transferor gives notice to the Commission in such manner and within such time as may be prescribed that he desires that the provisions of this section shall not operate in relation to any specified property or contract, held or made partly for any purpose of the undertaking other than the purposes of that activity, the said provisions shall not have effect in relation thereto unless it is reasonably necessary for the purposes of the Commission that they should have effect.

The property and contracts in relation to which this section has effect are hereafter in this and the next succeeding section referred to respectively as "the relevant property" and "the relevant contracts". [1630]

(2) Subject to the provisions of this section, all the relevant property shall, on the date of transfer, vest in the Commission free from any mortgage or other like incumbrance. [1631]

(3) Subject to the provisions of this section, every relevant contract shall, unless its terms or subject matter make it impossible that it should have effect as modified in the manner provided by this subsection, have effect as from the date of transfer as if—

- (a) the Commission had been a party to the contract; and
- (b) for any reference (however worded and whether express or implied) to the transferor there were substituted, as respects anything falling to be done on or after the date of transfer, a reference to the Commission; and
- (c) any reference (however worded and whether express or implied) to, or to any part of, or to any sum determined by reference to, any profits or receipts of the undertaking were, as respects profits or receipts arising on or after the date of transfer, a reference to, or to the corresponding part of, or to a sum similarly determined by reference to, an estimate of what those profits or receipts would have been but for the transfer; and
- (d) any reference (however worded and whether express or implied) to the directors or any of the directors of the transferor (being a body corporate) were, as respects anything falling to be done on or after the date of transfer, a reference to such person as the Commission may appoint; and
- (e) any reference (however worded and whether express or implied) to any officer or any servant of the transferor were, as respects anything falling to be done on or after the date of transfer, a reference to such person as the Commission may appoint or, in default of appointment, to the officer or servant of the Commission who corresponds as nearly as may be to the first mentioned officer or servant; and
- (f) in the case of a contract for the rendering of personal services to the transferor, the services to which the contract relates were, on and

- after the date of transfer, any reasonably comparable services under the Commission, to be selected by the Commission ; and
- (g) save as provided by the four last preceding paragraphs, any reference (however worded and whether express or implied) to the undertaking to which the notice of acquisition relates were as respects the period beginning with the date of transfer a reference to so much of the undertaking of the Commission as corresponds to that undertaking :

Provided that any relevant contract which cannot have effect as modified in the manner provided by this subsection by reason only that, if it were so modified, no person other than the Commission would have any rights or liabilities thereunder shall cease to have effect as respects anything falling to be done on or after the date of transfer. [1632]

(4) Where at the date of transfer legal proceedings are pending by or against the transferor in connection with any of the relevant property or any of the relevant contracts, the Commission, if the circumstances so require, may be added as a party to the proceedings or substituted for the transferor as a party to the proceedings. [1633]

(5) Nothing in this section shall operate to transfer any cash to the Commission, and nothing in this section shall affect any right or liability with respect to the borrowing of money by the transferor, any right or liability with respect to the raising of money by the transferor by the issue of securities, any right or liability under any contract for the rendering by any person of personal services as a director (other than a managing director, or a director whose functions are substantially those of an employee), any right to, or liability to pay, any debt which became due before, or was in respect of a consideration wholly executed before, the date of transfer, or any right or liability to any damages which accrued before the date of transfer. [1634]

(6) Any question which arises as to whether any property is relevant property or any contract a relevant contract for the purposes of this section shall, in default of agreement, be determined by the arbitration tribunal established under Part VIII of this Act. [1635]

General note.—This section sets out the general effect of a notice of acquisition which has neither been withdrawn nor determined by the arbitration tribunal to be of no effect in accordance with s. 40 (3), ante. See, generally, Preliminary Note, ante.

Disclaimer.—As to disclaimer, see s. 46, infra.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

As to arbitration, see s. 41, ante.

(6), supra (see s. 109 (1) (e), post).

Definitions.—For definitions of "A licence" and "B licence," see notes to s. 41, ante; for "bonus," "director," "liability," "mortgage or other like encumbrance," "officer" and "property," see s. 125 (1), post.

46. Disclaimer of property and contracts.—(1) Where notice of acquisition is given with respect to an undertaking, the transferor shall, as soon as may be after the giving of the notice and in any case not later than fourteen days after the date of transfer or such later date as the Commission may allow, supply to the Commission particulars of all the relevant property acquired on or after the nineteenth day of November, nineteen hundred and forty-five, and of all the relevant contracts entered into or varied on or after that date, except such property and contracts as the Commission may exclude, either generally or in any particular case, from the operation of this subsection. [1636]

(2) Where any relevant property was acquired or any relevant contract entered into or varied on or after the said nineteenth day of November, and the acquisition of the property or the making or variation of the contract, as the case may be, was not reasonably necessary for the purposes of the undertaking, or was an act of unreasonable imprudence on the part of the person carrying on the undertaking, the Commission may, by notice in writing, in the case of property, given to the transferor before the expiration of the period hereafter mentioned, and in the case of a contract, given to the parties to the contract before the expiration of the said period, disclaim the property or the contract.

The said period is—

- (a) where particulars are given of the property or contract under subsection (1) of this section, three months from the date when the particulars are so given ;
- (b) where particulars ought to have been so given of the property or contract but have not been so given, three months from the date when the existence and full particulars of the property or the contract first become known to the Commission ; and
- (c) in any other case, three months from the date of transfer. [1637]

(3) Where notice is so given by the Commission with respect to any property, the provisions of the last preceding section shall have effect as if the property were not and had never been relevant property within the meaning thereof :

Provided that the giving of such a notice with respect to any property shall not affect any right exercised or falling to be exercised between the date of transfer and the date of the notice or any duty or liability falling to be performed or discharged during the said period [1638]

(4) Where notice is so given by the Commission with respect to any contract—

- (a) subsection (3) of the last preceding section shall be deemed never to have applied to the contract ; and
- (b) the contract shall be deemed to have been frustrated on the date of transfer and the parties thereto to have been for that reason discharged from the further performance thereof ; and
- (c) the like consequences shall follow as between the Commission and any party to the contract who, before the giving of the notice, has, in pursuance of the contract, supplied goods or rendered services to the Commission which the Commission have accepted or to whom, before the giving of the notice, the Commission have, in pursuance of the contract, supplied goods or rendered services which he has accepted, as would have followed if those goods or services had been supplied or rendered at the request of the Commission or of that party, as the case may be, apart from the contract and on terms that a reasonable payment would be made in respect thereof, and any payments by or to the Commission before the giving of the notice shall be adjusted accordingly. [1639]

(5) For the purposes of paragraph (c) of the last preceding subsection, a person who permits another to use or enjoy any property shall be deemed to render a service to him. [1640]

(6) So much of this section as relates to contracts does not apply to any lease, agreement for a lease, or other contract constituting any interest in land, and where any such interest is disclaimed by virtue of so much of this section as relates to the disclaimer of property, the provisions of the last preceding section shall have effect as if the said lease, agreement or other contract were not and had never been a relevant contract within the meaning thereof, but without prejudice to the proviso to subsection (3) of this section. [1641]

General note.—As to the general effect of this section, see Preliminary Note, ante. The section may be compared with the Electricity Act, 1947, s. 18 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante), and the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946, s. 7 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 264).

As to the adjustment of compensation following the disclaimer of property, see s. 47 (7), post.

The possibility that any property or contracts may be disclaimed after the amount of compensation payable has been provisionally ascertained is not to affect the ascertainment of that amount (see s. 48 (1), post).

Notice of acquisition.—As to the duty of the Commission to give a notice of acquisition, see s. 39 (1), ante, as applied by ss. 42 (1), 43, ante; and see s. 54 (1), post. The notice must be served on the person carrying on the undertaking (see s. 40 (1), ante).

Transferor.—Namely, the person carrying on the undertaking (see s. 45 (1), ante).

Date of transfer.—See s. 44, ante.

Relevant property; relevant contracts.—As to the meaning of these expressions, see s. 45 (1), ante.

November 19, 1945.—It was explained by the Government spokesman during the Committee Stage of the Bill in the House of Lords that the reason for specifying this date was that it was the date on which the Lord President of the Council announced the Government's intention to nationalise the transport industry. He pointed out that all contracts made by an undertaking subsequent to that date were made in the light of the knowledge of the Government's intention (see 148 H. of L. Official Report 950).

"Not reasonably necessary . . . unreasonable imprudence."—The question whether the acquisition of any property or the making or variation of a contract was not reasonably necessary for the purposes of the undertaking or was an act of unreasonable imprudence will, in the event of dispute, be determined by the Transport Arbitration Tribunal (see s. 109 (1) (c), post).

Definitions.—For definitions of "liability" and "property," see s. 125 (1), post.

47. Amount of compensation.—(1) In respect of any goods vehicle vesting in the Commission by virtue of a notice of acquisition, the Commission shall pay to the transferor compensation equal to the cost, as at the date of transfer, of replacing the vehicle by a new vehicle of a similar type, adjusted, however—

- (a) in the case of a vehicle registered under the Roads Act, 1920, by deducting, where one or more complete years have elapsed between the date when the vehicle was so registered and the date of transfer, one-fifth of the said cost in respect of the first year and, in respect of each subsequent year, one-fifth of the said cost as reduced by the total deduction falling to be made in respect of the previous years; or
- (b) in the case of a trailer (other than a superimposed trailer) by deducting, where one or more complete years have elapsed between the date on which the vehicle was first put into use and the date of transfer, one-seventh of the said cost in respect of the first year and, in respect of each subsequent year, one-seventh of the said cost as reduced by the total deduction falling to be made in respect of the previous years; and
- (c) in either case, if it is established that the physical condition of the vehicle is materially better or worse at the date of transfer than the normal physical condition at that date of a vehicle of the same type and age, by adding to or deducting from the said cost, as reduced by the deductions, if any, falling to be made under paragraph (a) or paragraph (b) of this subsection, such amount as fairly represents the difference. [1642]

(2) In respect of any property vesting in the Commission by virtue of notice of acquisition, other than a goods vehicle, the Commission shall pay to the transferor compensation equal to the amount which the property would fetch if sold in the open market, estimated as at the date of transfer and as if this Act had not passed. [1643]

(3) In respect of the total or partial cessation of business caused to the transferor by the operation of a notice of acquisition, the Commission shall pay to the transferor such sum, if any, as may be just, being a sum calculated by reference to the average net annual profit as defined in the Ninth Schedule to this Act, and being not less than twice nor more than five times the said average net annual profit.

In considering the proportion which the amount of the compensation is to bear to the average net annual profit as so defined, regard shall be had to the likelihood or otherwise that profits at the rate represented by the average net annual profit might, but for the operation of this Act, have been made after the date of transfer by carrying on the undertaking. [1644]

(4) Where—

- (a) the activities of an undertaking with respect to which a notice of acquisition is given consist, immediately before the date of transfer, partly of the operation of vehicles authorised to be used under A licences or B licences and partly of other activities; and
- (b) the undertaking, so far as it consists of those other activities or any of them, is carried on on or after the date of transfer; and
- (c) it appears that the proportion which the overhead expenses incurred in carrying on that undertaking bear to the total expenses incurred in carrying it on will be greater on or after the date of transfer than before that date by reason of the transfer to the Commission resulting from the notice of acquisition, the Commission shall pay to the transferor such compensation in respect of severance as fairly represents the burden of that increase over the five years beginning with the date of transfer:

Provided that no increase in the said proportion shall be taken into account for the purposes of this subsection except in so far as it is shown by the transferor that the increase could not reasonably be avoided by him.

(5) Where a hire purchase agreement is a relevant contract within the meaning of the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act relating to the effect of notices of acquisition and the effect of the notice of acquisition is to vest the rights of the hirer in the Commission, the Commission shall pay to the transferor the same compensation as would have fallen to be paid if the property which is the subject of the agreement had vested in the Commission, less the amount remaining to be paid under the agreement before the hirer can become the owner of the property:

Provided that in calculating the compensation payable under this subsection—

- (a) there shall be ascertained what sum out of the total amount paid or to be paid under the agreement represents the charge made by the owner of the property for the credit given under the agreement; and
- (b) the said amount remaining to be paid shall for the purposes of this subsection be deemed to be reduced by so much of the sum ascertained under paragraph (a) of this proviso as bears to the whole of that sum the same proportion that the part of the period by the expiration of which payment of the total amount due under the agreement must be completed falling after the date of transfer bears to the whole of that period. [1646]

(6) There shall be deducted from the total amount of compensation payable in respect of an undertaking under the preceding provisions of this section—

- (a) an amount equal to such part of any sums paid or payable by the Commission in or towards the discharge of any liability to which as the result of the transfer effected by the notice of acquisition they have become subject in respect of any property or under any contract as, on a just apportionment, is referable to matters occurring before the date of transfer ;

- (b) an amount equal to such part of any sums received by the transferor before the date of transfer as consideration for the supply of goods or the rendering of services as, on a just apportionment, is referable to goods to be supplied or services to be rendered by the Commission after the date of transfer, and there shall be added to the total amount of compensation payable in respect of an undertaking under the preceding provisions of this section an amount equal to such part of any sums paid by the transferor before the date of transfer as consideration for the supply of goods or the rendering of services as, on a just apportionment, is referable to goods to be supplied or services to be rendered to the Commission after the date of the transfer :

Provided that no deduction or addition shall be made under this subsection if and in so far as the matter in respect of which the deduction or addition would fall to be made has affected the compensation payable under subsection (2) of this section in respect of any property.

For the purposes of this subsection, a person who permits another to use or enjoy any property shall be deemed to render a service to him. [1647]

(7) Where the Commission have duly disclaimed any property, there shall be added to or subtracted from the total amount of the compensation payable in respect of an undertaking under this section the amount by which the value of the use or enjoyment of the property by the Commission during the period beginning with the date of transfer and ending with the date of the disclaimer exceeds or falls short of such part of the total sums paid or payable by the Commission in or towards the discharge of any liability to which they have become subject in respect of the property, as, on a just apportionment, is referable to the period beginning with the date of transfer. [1648]

(8) Save as aforesaid, and subject to any other express provision contained in this Act, no compensation shall be payable in respect of the transfer effected by a notice of acquisition. [1649]

General effect of section.—This section provides for the payment of compensation in respect of a transfer effected by a notice of acquisition under four heads : (i) goods vehicles transferred ; (ii) property other than goods vehicles transferred ; (iii) cessation of business ; and (iv) where applicable, severance.

Special provision is made to cover cases where property comprised in a notice of acquisition is subject to a hire purchase agreement, and for the making of deductions from or additions to the total amount of compensation payable in respect of an undertaking in special cases. See, generally, Preliminary Note, ante.

No sum may be paid by way of or on account of compensation under the section except in pursuance of an agreement confirmed by the Transport Arbitration Tribunal or of an order of that tribunal under s. 109, post ; exceptionally, however, confirmation by the tribunal is not required if the total amount of compensation payable under an agreement does not exceed £20,000 (see s. 108, post).

As to the settlement of disputes as to the sums is payable by way of compensation, see s. 109 (1), post. 48. Date and mode of payment of compensation.—(1) A provisional ascertainment of the total amount payable under the last preceding section with respect to an undertaking shall be made as soon as may be after the date of transfer, without regard to the possibility that the Commission may, after the date of the completion of the provisional ascertainment, disclaim any property or contract not disclaimed by them before the completion of the provisional ascertainment, and the Commission shall pay the amount provisionally ascertained to be payable, less such sum, not exceeding one-tenth of that amount, as the Commission may think fit to retain pending the final ascertainment of the total net amount payable. [1650]

(2) Where the amount paid under the preceding subsection is found to be less or more than the net amount falling to be paid under the last preceding section, the deficiency or excess shall be made good by or to the Commission. [1651]

(3) The amounts payable in accordance with the preceding provisions of this section by the Commission shall be satisfied, in the manner provided for by Part VI of this Act, by the issue of British transport stock :

Provided that where the amount payable to a person on any date does not exceed twenty thousand pounds, the person to whom it is to be paid may, by notice in writing to the Commission given within the prescribed time, require that the Commission shall satisfy the said amount or, if the said amount exceeds two thousand pounds, two thousand pounds thereof by a payment in cash, and the said amount shall, either wholly or to that extent, be satisfied accordingly. [1652]

(4) In addition to any sum payable under the last preceding section, the Commission shall be liable to pay interest on the amount ultimately found due to be paid by way of compensation, at such rates as the Treasury may determine, from the date of the transfer until—

(a) in the case of an amount satisfied by the issue of British transport stock, the date as from which interest on that stock begins to accrue ; and

(b) in any other case, the date of payment, and the Commission may from time to time make payments on account of any interest which the Commission estimate will become payable under this subsection, and where any adjustment falls to be made for any overpayment or underpayment of compensation under the preceding provisions of this section, an adjustment shall also be made in respect of interest. [1653]

General effect of section.—See Preliminary Note, ante.

Payment of compensation.—No sum may be paid by way of or on account of compensation under this section except in pursuance of an agreement confirmed by the Transport Arbitration Tribunal, or of an order of that tribunal under s. 109, post ; exceptionally, however, the confirmation of the tribunal is not required where the total amount of compensation does not exceed £20,000 (see s. 108 (1), post).

Under s. 109, post, the tribunal have sole jurisdiction for determining any question, inter alia, as to what sum (if any) (i) is payable by way of compensation or interest thereon, and (ii) is repayable to the Commission in respect of an overpayment of compensation or of interest thereon. 49. Compensation for property subject to incumbrances.—(1) Where any property in respect of which compensation falls to be paid under the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act was, immediately before the date of transfer, subject to a mortgage or other like incumbrance (other than a floating charge which will attach to the compensation), so much of any payment of, or on account of, or by way of interest on, any compensation payable in respect of the undertaking as is properly referable to that property shall be made to the incumbrancer :

Provided that—

- (a) this subsection shall not apply to any mortgage or other like incumbrance unless it is registered as a bill of sale or is registered under Part III of the Companies Act, 1929, or is registered under the Land Registration Act, 1925, or the Land Charges Act, 1925, or is a mortgage by deposit of title deeds or the Commission obtains possession of the property from the incumbrancer ;
- (b) if, at the time when the payment is made, the debt secured by a mortgage or other like incumbrance has been paid in full, the payment shall be made as if the property had not been subject to that mortgage or incumbrance ;
- (c) if the property was subject to two or more mortgages or other like incumbrances to which this subsection applies, the payment shall, subject to the provisions of the last preceding paragraph of this proviso, be made to the incumbrancer whose mortgage or other incumbrance has priority ; and
- (d) in any case this subsection shall have effect, as regards any mortgage or other like incumbrance to which this subsection applies, subject to any agreement between the incumbrancer and the person to whom apart from that mortgage or other incumbrance the payment would have fallen to be made. [1654]

(2) A payment made to an incumbrancer under subsection (1) of this section shall be treated for the purposes of subsection (3) of the last preceding section as a separate payment. [1655]

(3) Where a payment is made to an incumbrancer under subsection (1) of this section (whether satisfied by the issue of British transport stock or made in cash) the incumbrancer shall be liable to account as if the amount paid to him or the amount represented by the stock, as the case may be, had accrued to him as proceeds of sale of the property in question arising under a power of sale exercised by him immediately before the date of transfer ; and the incumbrancer shall be under the like obligation to obtain the full amount of any payment falling to be made to him under the said subsection (1) as he would have been had he been obtaining that amount by means of the exercise of such a power of sale. [1656]

(4) Any deduction from the total amount of any compensation payable in respect of an undertaking which falls to be made in respect of any sums paid by the Commission in or towards the discharge of any liability to which they have become subject or in respect of goods to be supplied or services to be rendered by the Commission or other similar matters shall, for the purpose of determining how much of any payment of, or on account of, compensation is to be treated for the purposes of this section as properly referable to any particular property, be dealt with as follows—

- (a) if the liability was incurred in respect of any property, it shall first be applied in reducing the compensation in respect of that property ;
- (b) any balance, or, if the liability was not in respect of property, the whole thereof, shall be applied first in reducing the compensation for cessation of business, the compensation for severance, and any addition to compensation in respect of goods to be supplied or services to be rendered to the Commission after the date of transfer or other similar matters, and so far as it cannot be so applied, apportioned rateably over the remainder of the compensation payable. [1657]

Date of transfer.—See s. 44, ante.

Payment of compensation properly referable to any particular property.—Where any deduction is made from compensation as a result of the transferor's failing in his duty to carry on the undertaking in accordance with s. 50 (1), infra, that deduction is, for the purpose of determining how much of any payment of or on account of compensation is to be treated for the purposes of this section as properly referable to any particular property, to be dealt with as set out in s. 50 (3), infra.

50. Duty of transferor as to carrying on undertaking until transfer.—

(1) Where notice of acquisition has been given with respect to an undertaking, the transferor shall, until the date of transfer or the date on which the notice is withdrawn or otherwise ceases to have effect, carry on the undertaking in the ordinary course of business and maintain it in as efficient condition as it was in before the giving of the notice, and shall not without the previous consent in writing of the Commission given either generally or specially (which he shall apply for if it is necessary for the purposes aforesaid)—

- (a) sell, dispose of or let or hire out for more than six months any land or vehicles held for the purposes of the undertaking; or
- (b) enter into a contract for the purposes of the undertaking extending for more than twelve months; or
- (c) undertake any new works estimated to cost more than five hundred pounds in all:

Provided that, where the activities of the undertaking in question consist partly of the operation of vehicles which are to vest in the Commission by virtue of the notice of acquisition and partly of other activities, this subsection shall not apply to transactions solely concerning such other activities.

(2) Where the Commission suffer damage by reason of any contravention by the transferor of the provisions of subsection (1) of this section, the amount of the damage shall be deducted from the compensation payable in respect of the undertaking. [1659]

(3) Any deduction made under this section shall, for the purpose of determining how much of any payment of, or on account of, compensation is to be treated for the purposes of the last preceding section as properly referable to any particular property, be dealt with as follows—

- (a) if the damage was a diminution of the value to the Commission of any property, the deduction shall first be applied in reducing the compensation in respect of that property;
- (b) any balance of the deduction not so applied, or, if the damage was not such damage as aforesaid, the whole of the deduction, shall first be applied in reducing the compensation for cessation of business, the compensation for severance, and any addition to compensation in respect of goods to be supplied or services to be rendered to the Commission after the date of transfer, or other similar matters, and, so far as it cannot be so applied, shall be apportioned rateably over the remainder of the compensation payable. [1660]

Notice of acquisition.—As to the requirements for the giving of a notice of acquisition, see s. 39 (1), ante, as applied by ss. 42 (1), 43, ante (see also s. 54 (1), post).

Transferor.—Namely, the person carrying on the undertaking (see s. 45 (1), ante).

Date of transfer.—See s. 44, ante.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Compensation payable in respect of an undertaking.—As to the amount of this compensation, see s. 47, ante. Deductions from compensation may be made in addition to those provided for by sub-s. (2), ante (see s. 47 (6), (7), ante).

Definitions.—For definitions of “contravention” and “property,” see s. 125 (1), post.

51. Information, etc.—(1) The licensing authority for any area shall, on demand by the Commission, supply to the Commission any such information, obtained by the authority or any predecessor of his in his office either as such or as a Regional Transport Commissioner acting on behalf of the Minister, with respect to the nature of the business carried on by a person carrying on any undertaking as the Commission may reasonably require for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the undertaking is one with respect to which the Commission are bound under the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act to serve a notice of acquisition.

Where any information is supplied by the licensing authority to the Commission with respect to the nature of the business carried on by any person, a statement that that information has been so supplied, together with full particulars thereof, shall be sent at the same time by that authority to that person. [1661]

(2) It shall be the duty of any persons who are carrying on or who have carried on any undertaking the activities of which consist in whole or in part of the operation of vehicles covered by A licences or B licences to produce and permit extracts to be made from and copies to be taken of such books of account, records and other documents and to provide such information as the Commission may reasonably require for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not the undertaking is one with respect to which the Commission are bound under the said provisions to serve a notice of acquisition, or for the purpose of ascertaining what compensation is payable under this Part of this Act in respect thereof. [1662]

(3) Where notice of acquisition has been given with respect to an undertaking, the person to whom it is given shall produce to the Commission and permit the Commission to make extracts from and take copies of such books of account, records and other documents, and shall supply to the Commission such information, as the Commission may reasonably require for the purpose of enabling them to take over easily and without interruption the business of the undertaking so far as it relates to the operation of the vehicles which will be affected by the notice, including, in particular, books of account, records or documents relating to, and information as to, the vehicles and other property which will be affected by the notice, the nature of the business carried on in connection with those vehicles and the persons employed in or in connection with that business :

Provided that a person shall not, by virtue of this subsection, be bound to produce or permit extracts to be made from or copies to be taken of any such books, records or documents or to give any such information until the expiration of the period prescribed for the giving by him of a notice requiring the withdrawal of the notice of acquisition, or, if within that period he has given such a notice, until it is determined that the notice of acquisition is to have effect. [1663]

(4) Where notice of acquisition is given with respect to an undertaking, the person to whom it is given shall preserve all books of account, records and other documents relating to the undertaking until they are handed over to the Commission or, if they are retained by him, until six months have elapsed after the date of transfer. [1664]

Licensing authority.—S. 125 (2), post, provides that, except in so far as the context otherwise requires, expressions used in this Part of the Act are to have the same meanings as in the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933.

S. 4 (1) of that Act (26 Halsbury's Statutes 876) defines the term "licensing authority" for the purposes of Part I of that Act as the person who is the chairman of the traffic commissioners for any traffic area within the meaning of the Road Traffic Act, 1930 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 607), including any person for the time being appointed by the Minister to act as deputy to the chairman; and sub-s. (2) of the same section provides that that section is to have effect as respects the metropolitan traffic area with the substitution of a reference to the traffic commissioner for that area for a reference to the chairman of the traffic commissioners.

The traffic commissioners for any area within the meaning of the Act of 1930 consist of a body of three persons appointed by the Minister (see the Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 63; 23 Halsbury's Statutes 656).

The licensing authority for any area is, by s. 117, post, renamed "the Licensing Authority for Goods Vehicles."

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (s. 1 (1), ante).

Regional Transport Commissioner.—By virtue of S. R. & O., 1940, Nos. 1518 and 1797, made under the Chartered and Other Bodies (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1258), the Minister of War Transport was enabled during the war to appoint for any traffic area in place of the three traffic commissioners (see preceding note), a single Regional Transport Commissioner. These orders, however, were revoked with effect, so far as the appointment of Commissioners is concerned, from January 1, 1947, by S. R. & O., 1946, No. 1750.

Notice of acquisition.—As to the undertakings with respect to which the Commission are bound under the preceding provisions of this Part to serve a notice of acquisition, see s. 39 (1), ante, as applied by ss. 42 (1), 43, ante. As to arbitration thereon, see ss. 40, 41, ante.

The Commission are also bound to serve a notice of acquisition under s. 54 (1), post, where so required by a person carrying on an undertaking to which that section applies.

Period prescribed for the giving of a notice.—The period prescribed for the giving of a notice requiring the withdrawal of a notice of acquisition will be a period prescribed under regulations made by the Minister (see s. 40 (5), ante, and s. 119, post). No such regulations had been made up to the time of going to press.

Date of transfer.—See s. 44, ante.

Definitions.—For definitions of "A licence" and "B licence," see notes to s. 41, ante; for "the Minister," see s. 125 (1), post.

Restrictions on Carriage of Goods for Hire or Reward otherwise than by Commission

52. Additional restrictions on carriage of goods for hire and reward.—

(1) On and after the appointed day, it shall be a condition of every A licence and every B licence that, except under and in accordance with a permit granted by the Commission, goods shall not be carried for hire or reward in any authorised vehicle if the vehicle, at any time while the goods are being so carried, is more than twenty-five miles from its operating centre, and the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, shall have effect as if the said condition were included among the conditions specified in subsection (1) of section eight of that Act :

Provided that the said condition shall not apply where—

- (a) the goods carried are liquids carried in bulk in a tank permanently fixed to the vehicle, or in a tank not so fixed of which the capacity is not less than five hundred gallons, or are goods of a special character which, under any statutory provision specifically relating thereto, may only be carried in a vehicle constructed or adapted so as to comply with the requirements of that provision and which are being so carried, or the carriage is an ordinary furniture removal, or the goods carried are meat or livestock ; or
- (b) the goods carried consist of felled timber which is being carried in a vehicle specially constructed for the purposes of such carriage ; or
- (c) the vehicle is a vehicle specially constructed to carry abnormal indivisible loads or the goods carried are apparatus or equipment ancillary to the operation, for the purposes of the carriage of such loads, of such a vehicle ; or
- (d) a notice of acquisition has been served with respect to the undertaking for the purposes of which the vehicle is being used and has not been withdrawn or declared to be of no effect, and, if that notice has effect, the vehicle will, by virtue of the notice, be transferred to the Commission. [1665]

(2) The Commission shall have full power in their discretion either to grant or to refuse any such permit as aforesaid, and any such permit may be granted by them for such period and subject to such conditions as they think fit, and they may at any time, by notice in writing to the holder of the permit, revoke, suspend or vary the permit :

Provided that the Commission shall, in exercising their discretion, take into consideration the needs of, and any special circumstances affecting, the locality in which is situated the operating centre of any vehicle to which the permit would relate. [1666]

(3) The provisions of this section shall have effect in relation to every A or B licence whether granted before or after the passing of this Act, and whether or not the condition provided for by this section is expressed in the licence. [1667]

(4) The preceding provisions of this section shall, in the case of a B licence, be without prejudice—

(a) to the power of the licensing authority to impose, under subsection (3) of section eight of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, conditions which provide for restrictions additional to those provided for by the condition specified in subsection (1) of this section ; and

(b) to any condition imposed under the said power before the appointed day. [1668]

(5) It shall not be necessary for any such permit as aforesaid to be so framed as to apply only in relation to a particular licence, and more than one such permit as aforesaid may be granted to the same person. [1669]

General note.—The provisions of this section are designed to place the Commission in a position to co-ordinate the long distance carriage of goods by road for hire or reward with the carriage of goods by rail.

As from the appointed day it is made a condition of every A and B licence that, except in accordance with a permit from the Commission, goods shall not be carried for hire or reward in any authorised vehicle if at any time during the journey that vehicle is more than twenty-five miles from its operating centre. This condition will not, however, apply to those special classes of goods which are excepted from "ordinary long distance carriage" (see s. 39 (2), proviso). Where it applies, the condition will have effect in relation to A and B licences whether granted before or after the passing of the Act, and will be without prejudice both to the power of the licensing authority under the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, s. 8 (3) (26 Halsbury's Statutes 880), to impose conditions providing additional restrictions and to any such conditions imposed before the appointed day.

The Commission are given full discretion as to the granting, revocation, suspension and variation of permits, but, chiefly to protect the interests of sparsely populated areas such as the crofter counties where a twenty-five mile limit could not be made an economic proposition, it is provided that in exercising that discretion they are to take into consideration the needs and special circumstances of the locality concerned.

Permits may be revoked or suspended by the licensing authority for the purposes of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, Part I (26 Halsbury's Statutes 872-901) (now the Licensing Authority for Goods Vehicles; see s. 117, post, and note to s. 51, ante), for the breach of any condition or limitation imposed thereon (see s. 60 (1), post). See, generally, Preliminary Note, ante.

The carriage which is restricted under this section may be compared and contrasted with ordinary long distance carriage as defined by s. 39 (2), ante. The carriage of goods in a vehicle which does not go more than twenty-five miles from its operating centre is excluded both from the restrictions imposed by this section and from ordinary long distance carriage. In addition, the carriage of those special classes of goods which by provisos (a) to (c) to sub-s. (1), ante, is excluded from the said restrictions is also excluded from ordinary long distance carriage (see the proviso to s. 39 (2), ante). On the other hand, while any journey for a distance of less than forty miles (even though the vehicle goes beyond the twenty-five mile limit) is excluded from ordinary long distance carriage, there is no exemption for such a journey from the restrictions imposed by this section.

Appointed day.—As to the meaning of this expression, see s. 125 (3), post. No day had been appointed for the purpose of this section up to the time of going to press.

Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, s. 8 (1), (3).—26 Halsbury's Statutes 880.

Permit.—Replying to a question as to what criteria the Commission would apply in deciding whether or not to issue a permit, the Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Transport stated on the Committee Stage of the Bill: "The criteria would be that the Commission would say that they would carry out the particular haulage service if that service fitted in with their organisation, and if they could do that service at least as well as it is being done at the moment. Only when those two conditions were fulfilled would the Commission replace the haulier." He added that a permit would normally last for the same period as the vehicle licence. In the early stages while the organisation was being built up the Commission would undoubtedly allow a very large number of permits, but these would be reduced as the organisation developed (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., March 19, 1947, cols. 947, 955). The forms to be used, the particulars to be furnished, the procedure to be adopted and other minor matters connected with application for and issue of permits will be prescribed by regulations (see s. 61, post).

Twenty-five miles.—The area within which goods may be carried for hire or reward without a permit is equivalent to approximately 1,960 square miles.

Sub-s. (1), proviso.—With the exception of para. (d), this proviso is on the same terms as the proviso to s. 39 (1), ante, which sets out the special classes of goods the carriage of which is excluded from ordinary long distance carriage.

Goods of a special character.—As to goods of a special character which under any statutory provision specifically relating thereto may only be carried in a specially constructed or adapted vehicle, take for example, petroleum spirit the conveyance of which by road is governed by the Petroleum (Consolidation) Act, 1928, s. 6 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 1173) and the regulations made thereunder.

Passing of this Act.—August 6, 1947.

Definitions.—For definitions of "goods," "A licence," "B licence," see notes to s. 41, ante; for "abnormal indivisible load," "operating centre," "ordinary furniture removal" and "statutory provision," see s. 125 (1), post.

53. Protection for certain existing undertakings with A or B licences.—

(1) The provisions of this and the two next succeeding sections shall have effect for the protection of persons (in this section referred to as "persons to whom this section applies") who, on the twenty-eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and forty-six, were carrying on undertakings the activities whereof consisted of or included the carrying of goods in goods vehicles for hire or reward and were in connection with those undertakings the holders of A licences or B licences:

Provided that where, by virtue of an agreement between the Commission and the person carrying on an undertaking, the Commission either do not give a notice of acquisition with respect to that undertaking which it would have been their duty to give but for the agreement, or withdraw a notice of acquisition given in accordance with their duty, the said provisions shall have effect subject to such modifications, if any, as may be specified in the agreement. [1670]

(2) If, before the expiration of the prescribed time after the appointed day, a person to whom this section applies duly applies to the Commission for a permit under the last preceding section, being a permit applying only to vehicles having a single specified operating centre, then, until the prescribed period has elapsed after the application has been dealt with by the Commission, the condition provided for by subsection (1) of that section shall not operate so as to prevent the doing of anything which could lawfully have been done if a permit had been granted in all respects in accordance with the application:

Provided that where before the expiration of the time prescribed as aforesaid a notice of acquisition is served with respect to the undertaking of a person to whom this section applies without any such application for a permit having previously been made by him, the said prescribed time shall, instead of beginning to run from the appointed day, begin to run from the date on which that person, in accordance with the provisions of this Part of this Act in that behalf, requires the Commission to withdraw the notice of acquisition.

More than one permit may be applied for by the same person under this subsection. [1671]

(3) Any permit granted on any such application (in this and the next succeeding section referred to as "an original permit") shall be so framed as to apply in relation to all vehicles having the same operating centre which are authorised to be used under any A licences or B licences held by the person in question on the said twenty-eighth day of November, and shall be so framed as to continue in force, unless previously revoked or suspended under the subsequent provisions of this section, so long as any of those licences continue in force.

If such a licence as aforesaid expires or ceases to have effect and a new licence is granted in substitution therefor either—

- (a) to the same person ; or
- (b) if the occasion of the substitution is such an assignment as is hereafter mentioned in this section, to the assignee, the new licence and the old licence shall be treated for the purposes of this subsection as one and the same licence, and so on as respects any similar subsequent substitution. [1672]

(4) An original permit may be revoked or suspended by the licensing authority for the area in which the operating centre in question is situate if, on an application made to him by the Commission, he is satisfied that the holder of the permit has been guilty of a serious breach of any condition attached to the permit or to any licence of which he was the holder.

In any case where a permit is revoked or suspended under this subsection, the licensing authority shall, if requested by the holder of the permit, state in writing the grounds of the revocation or suspension. [1673]

(5) An original permit may also be revoked by the Commission—

- (a) at the expiry of the period of one year from the date of the granting thereof, by notice in writing given by the Commission to the holder at least one month before that period expires ; or
- (b) if the permit is not revoked at the expiry of that period, then at the end of any triennium, by notice in writing given by the Commission to the holder at least six months before the end of that triennium.

In this subsection, the expression “ triennium ” means, in relation to a permit, a period of three years beginning one year after the date on which the permit was granted or beginning at the end of a previous triennium. [1674]

(6) Where the Commission give notice under the last preceding subsection of the revocation of an original permit, they shall state in the notice whether or not they are willing to grant in lieu of that permit another permit complying with the requirements of subsection (3) of this section, and, if so, what will be the terms thereof.

A permit granted in accordance with any such statement is hereafter in this section, and in the next succeeding section, referred to as “ a substituted permit ”, and the provisions of this subsection and of subsections (3), (4) and (5) of this section shall apply in relation to it as they apply in relation to an original permit :

Provided that paragraph (a) of the said subsection (5) shall not apply to a substituted permit and the definition in that section of the expression “ triennium ” shall, in relation to a substituted permit, have effect as if for the words “ beginning one year after the date ” there were substituted the words “ beginning with the date ”. [1675]

(7) Where a person to whom this section applies assigns the whole or any part of his undertaking to another such person who is the holder of an original permit or a substituted permit, any original or substituted permit held by the assignor for the purposes of his undertaking or that part of his undertaking, as the case may be, may be assigned by him to the said other person, and, if it is so assigned, then, as from the date on which notice in writing of the assignment is given to the Commission—

- (a) the permit shall have effect as if any reference therein to the assignor were a reference to the assignee ; and

- (b) the provisions of this and the next succeeding section shall have effect in relation to the permit as if the undertaking or the assigned part thereof, as the case may be, had at all material times been carried on by the assignee. [1676]

General note.—This section, together with ss. 54, 55, post, is designed to give protection against the effect of the restrictions imposed by s. 52, ante, to persons who were carrying on haulage undertakings on November 28, 1946.

Subject to any modifications having effect by virtue of the proviso to sub-s. (1), the section in effect provides that if such a person, in a case where either notice of acquisition has not been served, or, if served, has been required to be withdrawn, applies within a prescribed time for a permit under s. 52, ante, he may, until a prescribed time has elapsed after the application has been dealt with, treat the application as having been granted.

Any permit so granted (referred to as "an original permit") will normally last, in the first instance, for one year and thereafter, if not revoked, for successive periods of three years.

The Commission are empowered on the revocation of an original permit to grant a substituted permit which will normally last for successive periods of three years.

November 28, 1946.—This is the day immediately following the First Reading of the Bill in the House of Commons.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Agreement not to give a notice of acquisition or withdrawal of a notice.—See s. 39 (1), proviso, ante.

Definitions.—For definitions of "goods," "goods vehicles," "A licence" and "B licence," see notes to s. 41, ante; as to "operating centre," see s. 125 (1), post.

54. Right to require notice of acquisition to be given.—(1) If—

- (a) the Commission—

- (i) refuse to grant an original permit; or
- (ii) impose on an original permit limitations or conditions other than those specified in the application for the permit; or
- (iii) give notice under subsection (5) of the last preceding section of the revocation of an original permit or a substituted permit; and

- (b) the effect of the refusal, the effect of the imposition of the limitations or conditions or, due regard being had to any substituted permit which the Commission are willing to grant, the effect of the revocation, will involve substantial interference with the carrying on by the applicant for or holder of the permit of some activity which was, before the twenty-eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and forty-six, being carried on by him or by his predecessors in, or in any part of, his undertaking, and has, up to the time of the refusal, the imposition of limitations or conditions or the revocation, as the case may be, continued to be so carried on, with only such intermissions, if any, as are incidental to the nature of the activity, he may, within the prescribed time, serve on the Commission a notice requiring the Commission to serve on him notice of acquisition with respect to his undertaking, and the Commission shall serve on him such a notice accordingly and, subject to the provisions of the next succeeding subsection, the like consequences shall ensue as if it were a notice served by them under the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act. [1677]

(2) A person who serves a notice on the Commission under the preceding subsection may, if he thinks fit, by his notice require that the Commission's notice of acquisition shall be limited in terms to such goods vehicles, being vehicles authorised to be used under A licences or B licences, as may be specified in his notice, to such hire purchase agreements, being agreements relating to goods vehicles authorised to be used under A licences or B licences, as may be so specified, and to such other property and contracts, being property and contracts directly relating to the operation of vehicles authorised to be used under A licences or B licences, as may be so specified ; and where a notice of acquisition is so limited in pursuance of this subsection—

- (a) the notice of acquisition shall not affect any other property or any other contracts ; and
- (b) the compensation payable in respect of cessation of business and severance shall, instead of being calculated in accordance with the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act, be calculated in accordance with the provisions of the next succeeding section.

(3) A notice served by a person on the Commission under subsection (1) of this section requiring that a notice of acquisition shall be limited to specified vehicles, hire purchase agreements, property or contracts shall not be invalid on the ground that the vehicles, agreements, property or contracts do not fall within the descriptions set out in subsection (2) of this section or are not relevant property or relevant contracts as defined for the purposes of the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act relating to the effects of notices of acquisition, and the Commission's notice of acquisition shall embody in terms the limitations asked for, but where such a limitation is embodied in a notice of acquisition—

- (a) the notice shall be ineffective in relation to any vehicles, agreements, property or contracts which do not fall within the said descriptions or are not relevant property or relevant contracts as so defined ; and
- (b) the fact that particular vehicles, agreements, property or contracts are mentioned in the limitation shall not prejudice any right of the Commission to disclaim any of them. [1679]

(4) Where a notice of acquisition has been served by the Commission in respect of an undertaking otherwise than in pursuance of this section, subsection (2) of this section shall not apply in relation to the person carrying on that undertaking unless that notice of acquisition has been withdrawn or declared to be of no effect. [1680]

(5) Any question as to whether the conditions specified in subsection (1) of this section are or are not satisfied, or as to the extent to which a notice of acquisition is ineffective by reason of the provisions of subsection (3) of this section, shall, in default of agreement, be determined by the arbitration tribunal established under Part VIII of this Act. [1681]

General note.—This section is the second of three sections (ss. 53–55) designed to protect persons carrying on existing road haulage undertakings.

Under the present section, it is provided, inter alia, that if an activity which has been regularly carried on by such an undertaking will be substantially interfered with as a result of the refusal or revocation of an original permit (see s. 53, ante), the Commission may be required to serve a notice of acquisition with respect to the undertaking and the like consequences will ensue as if it were a notice served under s. 39, ante.

Such a notice may, if the person carrying on the undertaking requires and provided no notice of acquisition given under s. 39, ante, is outstanding in respect of the undertaking, be limited in terms to specified A and B licence vehicles and to property and contracts directly relating to their operation. Where a notice of acquisition is so limited, the compensation payable in respect of cessation of business and severance is, instead of being calculated in accordance with ss. 47 (3), (4), 49 (4) (b), ante, to be calculated in accordance with s. 55, post.

Analogous protection to that provided by this section is, in corresponding circumstances, provided under harbour schemes to persons carrying on existing port facility undertakings (s. 68 ; see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante).

Compare also the provision, which in accordance with s. 64 (4), post, is to be included in road passenger transport schemes, for compensating persons carrying on road passenger transport undertakings existing at the time of the passing of the Act.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Original permit ; substituted permit.—As to the meaning of these terms, see s. 53 (3), (6), ante.

Notice of acquisition.—As to the general effect of a notice of acquisition, see s. 45, ante.

Cessation of business ; severance.—As to the calculation of compensation for cessation of business and severance under the preceding provisions of this Part of the Act, see ss. 47 (3), (4), 49 (4) (b), ante.

Relevant property ; relevant contracts.—As to the meaning of these terms, see s. 45 (1), ante.

Right to disclaim.—As to disclaimer of property and contracts by the Commission, see s. 46, ante.

Arbitration Tribunal.—The Transport Arbitration Tribunal (see s. 105 (1), post).

Definitions.—For definitions of "goods vehicles," "A licence" and "B licence," see notes to s. 41, ante ; for "hire purchase agreements" and "property," see s. 125 (1), post.

55. Measure of compensation for cessation of business and severance in certain cases.—(1) Where a notice of acquisition served under subsection (1) of the last preceding section is limited in pursuance of subsection (2) of that section to specified goods vehicles, hire purchase agreements, property and contracts, the amount, if any, payable by way of compensation in respect of cessation of business and severance shall be ascertained in accordance with the subsequent provisions of this section. [1682]

(2) No compensation shall be payable in respect of cessation of business or severance unless the transferor satisfies the Commission, or, in case of dispute, the arbitration tribunal established under Part VIII of this Act, that one or more of the vehicles to which, or to hire purchase agreements relating to which, the notice of acquisition is limited were, during the twelve months immediately preceding the service of the notice of acquisition—

- (a) used wholly or partly for the carriage of goods in such circumstances that a permit was necessary for the carriage, or that a permit would have been necessary if the appointed day for the purposes of section fifty-two of this Act had fallen before the beginning of the said twelve months (such carriage being hereafter in this section referred to as "long distance work"); and
- (b) customarily selected for use on the occasions during the said twelve months when vehicles were required for or in connection with long distance work.

A vehicle as to which the Commission or, as the case may be, the arbitration tribunal, are satisfied as aforesaid is hereafter in this section referred to as an "approved vehicle". [1683]

(3) The subsequent provisions of this section shall have effect in respect of each severally of such of the following classes of goods vehicles as include one or more approved vehicles (hereafter in this section severally referred to as "the relevant class") that is to say—

- (a) trailers, other than superimposed trailers ; and
- (b) other goods vehicles, being in each case all goods vehicles of the relevant class, whether vehicles to which, or to hire purchase agreements relating to which, the notice of acquisition is limited or not, authorised to be used under A licences or B licences and operated by the transferor during the said twelve months. [1684]

(4) There shall be estimated to the satisfaction of the Commission or, in case of dispute, the arbitration tribunal,—

- (a) how much of the total work done by all vehicles of the relevant class during the said twelve months was, on a just apportionment, referable to long distance work ; and
- (b) the minimum total carrying capacity in tons which would have been employed on the work so found referable, if one or more vehicles of the relevant class had been used exclusively for such work during the said twelve months. [1685]

(5) The Commission shall pay to the transferor by way of combined compensation in respect of the cessation of business caused to him by the operation of the notice of acquisition and in respect of severance a sum calculated at the rate of seventy pounds for each complete ton of either—

- (a) the carrying capacity in tons or, as the case may be, the combined carrying capacity in tons of the approved vehicle or approved vehicles of the relevant class ; or
- (b) the minimum total carrying capacity in tons estimated in relation to the relevant class under paragraph (b) of the last preceding subsection, whichever is the less. [1686]

(6) For the purposes of paragraph (a) of the last preceding subsection, “carrying capacity”, in relation to an approved vehicle, means—

- (a) in the case of a trailer (other than a superimposed trailer), the gross permitted weight of the vehicle less the weight of the vehicle unladen ; or
- (b) in the case of any other vehicle, the gross permitted weight of the vehicle less the sum of the following weights, that is to say—
  - (i) the unladen weight of the vehicle, as defined in section twenty-six of the Road Traffic Act, 1930, and
  - (ii) the weight of any container which is normally carried on the vehicle but is not permanently fixed thereto, and
  - (iii) a weight of five hundred pounds :

Provided that a superimposed trailer and the vehicle that draws it shall, for the purpose of calculating the carrying capacity of approved vehicles, be deemed to be one vehicle. [1687]

(7) In the last preceding subsection, “gross permitted weight” means, in relation to any vehicle, the gross laden weight of the vehicle stated by the manufacturer as at the date when the vehicle was first sold by him :

Provided that—

- (i) where the gross laden weight stated by the manufacturer is variable according to the size of the tyres with which the vehicle may be equipped, the gross permitted weight shall be determined by reference to the size of the tyres with which the vehicle is equipped at the date of transfer, so, however, as not in any case to exceed the maximum gross laden weight of that vehicle stated by the manufacturer ;
- (ii) where, subsequent to sale by the manufacturer, alterations have been made to a vehicle, and the transferor claims that by reason of the alterations the carrying capacity of the vehicle has been increased, the gross permitted weight shall be taken as such weight as the Commission and the transferor may agree, or, in default of agreement, such weight as may be determined by a certifying officer appointed under section sixty-nine of the Road Traffic Act, 1930, or such other person as may be designated by the Minister in that behalf, after consultation with the manufacturer of the vehicle or, where for any reason the manufacturer is not available, after consultation with a person appointed for the purpose by the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders ;
- (iii) where for any reason no statement by the manufacturer as to the gross laden weight of the vehicle has been or can be obtained, the gross permitted weight shall be taken as such weight as the Commission and the transferor may agree, or, in default of agreement, such weight as may be determined by a certifying officer appointed under section sixty-nine of the Road Traffic Act,

1930, or such other person as may be designated by the Minister in that behalf, after consultation with a person appointed for the purpose by the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders. [1688]

General note.—This is the third of three sections (ss. 53–55) designed to protect persons carrying on existing haulage undertakings. The present section contains the provisions according to which compensation for cessation of business and severance is to be ascertained where a notice of acquisition given under s. 54, ante, is limited in pursuance of sub-s. (2) of that section.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Arbitration Tribunal.—The Transport Arbitration Tribunal (see s. 105 (1), post).

Transferor.—Namely, the person carrying on the undertaking (see s. 45 (1), ante).

Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 26.—23 Halsbury's Statutes 631. The unladen weight of a vehicle is defined by that section as the weight of the vehicle inclusive of the body and all parts (the heavier being taken where alternative bodies or parts are used) which are necessary to or ordinarily used with the vehicle when working on a road, but exclusive of the weight of water, fuel or accumulations used for the purpose of the supply of power for the propulsion of the vehicle, and of loose tools and loose equipment.

Date of transfer.—See s. 44, ante.

(4) In relation to any appeal brought before the day which is the appointed day for the purposes of the provisions of Part V of this Act relating to the transfer to the Transport Tribunal of jurisdiction under the said section fifteen, the preceding provisions of this section shall have effect subject to the following modifications:—

(b) subsection (3) shall not apply but the provisions of the said section fifteen and of any rules made thereunder, and the said provisions of Part V of this Act, shall apply in relation to the appeals as they apply in relation to the appeals mentioned in the said section fifteen. [1692]

Licensing authority.—As to the meaning of this term, see note to s. 51, ante.

Prescribed time and manner.—This means the time and manner prescribed under regulations made by the Minister of Transport (see s. 119, post). No such regulations had been made up to the time of going to press. See also ss. 61 and 120, post.

Transport Tribunal.—The tribunal formerly known as the Railway Rates Tribunal (see ss. 72 (1) and 125 (1), post).

57. Licensing authorities to act under general direction of Minister.—

(1) So much of subsection (1) of section sixty-three of the Road Traffic Act, 1930, as provides that licensing authorities for public service vehicles shall act under the general directions of the Minister, shall apply in relation to licensing authorities for goods vehicles as it applies in relation to the first-mentioned licensing authority. [1693]

(2) Where a direction has been given by the Minister to a licensing authority under any power of the Minister in that behalf, the Transport Tribunal shall not, on any appeal brought by virtue of the last preceding section, require the authority to do anything which would be inconsistent with the direction. [1694]

Transport Tribunal.—The tribunal formerly known as the Railway Rates Tribunal (see ss. 72 (1) and 125 (1), post).

Definitions.—For definition of "goods vehicles," see notes to s. 41, ante; for "the Minister," see s. 125 (1), post.

58. Meaning of "operating centre," in relation to vehicles covered by A or B licences.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, in this Part of this Act, the expression "operating centre" means, in relation to a vehicle authorised to be used under an A licence or a B licence, the premises specified in the application for the licence as the permanent base or centre from which it is intended that the vehicle will normally be used for the purpose of carrying goods for hire or reward. [1695]

(2) Where, in the year nineteen hundred and forty-six, a vehicle was authorised to be used under a B licence, but subject to the condition that it should be used for the carriage of goods for hire or reward only in a district limited by reference to the distance of the boundaries thereof from a specified point, any reference to the operating centre of the vehicle, being a reference in relation to the facts of that year, shall be construed as a reference to that point. [1696]

(3) On an application after the passing of this Act for an A licence or a B licence, the applicant may, if he thinks fit, request the licensing authority to whom the application is made to specify a point in the area of the authority which is to be treated as the operating centre of the authorised vehicles, and where such a request is made, the licensing authority may, if he thinks fit, specify as the operating centre for all or any of the authorised vehicles any such point in his area as he thinks fit. [1697]

(4) Where an A licence or a B licence is in force at the passing of this Act, the holder of the licence may, within the prescribed time, make such a request as is specified in subsection (3) of this section to the licensing authority by whom the licence was granted, and that subsection shall, with the necessary modifications, apply accordingly. [1698]

(5) Where an A licence or a B licence was granted before the twenty-eighth day of November, nineteen hundred and forty-six, and, immediately before that date, the premises from which any vehicle, being an authorised vehicle, was in fact normally used for the purpose of carrying goods for hire or reward were different from the premises specified in the application for the licence, the holder of the licence may, within the prescribed time, give notice in writing in the prescribed form specifying the premises from which the vehicle was normally so used immediately before that date to the licensing authority within whose area the last-mentioned premises are situate and, if those premises are not situate within the area of the licensing authority by whom the licence was granted, to that licensing authority, and if the first-mentioned licensing authority is satisfied that the vehicle was normally so used from those premises immediately before that date, that authority shall notify the holder accordingly, and those premises shall, as from the date when that authority so notifies the holder, be taken to be the operating centre of the vehicle :

Provided that a notice given by the holder of a licence under this subsection may embody such a request to the first-mentioned licensing authority as is mentioned in subsection (3) of this section, and, where such a request is made, that licensing authority may, if he thinks fit, specify as the operating centre for the vehicle any such point in his area as he thinks fit. [1699]

(6) The Minister may by regulations make provision whereby the operating centre of a vehicle may, on the application of the holder of the licence, be changed, either temporarily or otherwise, during the currency of a licence under which it is authorised to be used. [1700]

General note.—As to the meaning of “operating centre” in relation to a vehicle used without a licence in pursuance of an authority given under Defence Regulations, see s. 62, post.

Passing of this Act.—August 6, 1947.

Licensing authority.—As to the meaning of this expression, see note to s. 51, ante.

Prescribed time; prescribed form.—This means in the time and form prescribed under regulations made by the Minister of Transport (see s. 119, post). No such regulations had been made up to the time of going to press.

Regulations.—As to regulations, see ss. 61, 119, 120, post.

Definitions.—For definitions of “carriage of goods,” “goods,” “A licence” and “B licence,” see notes to s. 41, ante; for “the Minister,” see s. 125 (1), post.

59. Application of Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, to Commission.—

Section one of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (which prohibits the use of goods vehicles in certain cases without a licence) shall not apply to the Commission but, as respects the matters specified in paragraphs (a) to (d) of subsection (1) of section eight and in subsection (1) of section sixteen of that Act (which relate to the condition of vehicles, their speeds and loads, intervals for rest and the keeping of records), the Commission shall have the same duties and be subject to the same liabilities, including liabilities to penalties, as they would if the said section one applied and they were the holders of A licences or B licences with respect to all goods vehicles owned by them or in their possession, and the provisions of Part I of that Act shall have effect accordingly :

Provided that—

- (a) subsection (3) of the said section sixteen (which provides for dispensations from observance of the regulations as to records and other matters) shall not apply, but the Minister may dispense with the observance by the Commission of any requirement of the regulations made under that section and may grant such a dispensation either generally or as respects any particular vehicles or as respects the use of vehicles for any particular purpose ;
- (b) subsection (4) of the said section sixteen (which relates to the preservation and production of records) shall have effect as if any reference therein to the licensing authority were a reference to the Minister. [1701]

General note.—The principal effect of this section is to exempt the Commission from the need to obtain a public carriers' licence under the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, s. 2 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 874), in respect to any goods vehicle used by them.

The Commission are similarly exempted from the need to obtain a road service licence under the Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 72 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 661) in respect to any passenger road service provided by them (see s. 65 (1), post).

Explaining the reason for these exemptions, on consideration of the Lords' Amendments to the Bill, the Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Transport stated that in the Government's view where Parliament charged a body such as the Commission with providing an effective transport service it would be inappropriate that a scheme of operation which the Commission proposed to put into effect should be subject to the veto of an outside body (see 440 H. of C. Official Report 1519).

Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, ss. 1, 8, 16.—26 Halsbury's Statutes 872, 880, 887.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Definitions.—For definitions of "goods vehicles," "A licence," and "B licence," see notes to s. 41, ante; for "liabilities" and "the Minister," see s. 125 (1), post.

60. Other amendments of Part I of Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933.—

(1) For the avoidance of doubt, it is hereby declared that any breach of any condition or limitation imposed on any permit granted under this Part of this Act which has effect in relation to a licence is, for all the purposes of Part I of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (and in particular the provisions thereof relating to the revocation and suspension of licences and the provisions relating to penalties) to be treated as a breach of the conditions of the licence. [1702]

(2) Where a vehicle specified in a licence is transferred to the Commission by virtue of a notice of acquisition under this Part of this Act, the Commission shall as soon as may be give notice to the licensing authority by whom the licence was granted, and, notwithstanding anything in the proviso to subsection (2) of section ten of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, the licensing authority shall not be bound to grant an application for a variation of that licence where the variation consists in the specification in the licence of another vehicle in substitution for a vehicle so transferred. [1703]

(3) While the provisions of section twelve of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (which relate to holding and subsidiary companies) have effect in relation to, or in relation to any application for, a licence, they shall have effect also in relation to, and in relation to any application for, any permit granted or to be granted under this Part of this Act in so far as that permit has, or is to have, effect in relation to that licence. [1704]

(4) The provisions of sections eighteen and nineteen of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (which confer powers and duties on examiners, police constables and certifying officers), and of sections thirty-four and thirty-five of that Act (which relate to forgery of licences and other similar matters, and to prosecutions and penalties for offences) shall have effect as if any regulations made under this Part of this Act were regulations made under that Act, as if any reference to a licence included a reference to a permit under this Part of this Act and as if any reference to a document, plate or mark by which a vehicle is to be identified as being an authorised vehicle included a reference to any document, plate or mark by which a vehicle is to be identified as being authorised to be used under such a permit or by which the area within which vehicles may be used for the carriage of goods for hire or reward is to be ascertainable. [1705]

(5) Section twenty-one of the said Act (which relates to the transfer and assignment of licences) shall, subject to any provision of this Part of this Act expressly authorising an assignment of a permit, apply in relation to permits under this Part of this Act as it applies in relation to licences. [1706]

(6) Without prejudice to any rights which the Commission or any other person would have apart from this subsection, the Commission may apply to the appropriate licensing authority for the revocation, variation or suspension of a licence on any ground on which the authority is by law authorised to revoke, vary or suspend that licence, and the authority shall consider the application. [1707]

Permit.—As to the granting of permits, see ss. 52, 53, ante. A person aggrieved by the revocation or suspension of a licence by the licensing authority has a right of appeal to the Transport Tribunal (see s. 56 (1), ante).

Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, Part I.—This consists of ss. 1–36, for which see 26 Halsbury's Statutes 872–901. As to the revocation and suspension of licences, see s. 13 thereof, and as to penalties, see ss. 9 and 35 thereof.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Licensing authority.—As to the meaning of this expression, see note to s. 51, ante.

Regulations.—As to regulations, see ss. 61, 119, 120, post.

Provision authorising assignment of a permit.—See s. 53 (7), ante.

Definition.—For definition of "carriage of goods," see note to s. 41, ante.

61. Regulations.—The Minister may make regulations for the purpose of carrying this Part of this Act into effect and in particular, but without prejudice to the generality of the preceding provision, may make regulations with respect to any of the following matters :—

- (a) the forms to be used, and the particulars to be furnished, for any of the purposes of this Part of this Act ;
- (b) the procedure of application for, and the determining of questions in connection with, the grant, variation, suspension and revocation of permits under this Part of this Act ;
- (c) the issue of permits under this Part of this Act, and the issue of copies of permits under this Part of this Act in the case of permits lost or destroyed, including the fees which are to be charged in connection with the issue of such permits or copies ;
- (d) the means by which vehicles are to be identified, whether by plates, marks or otherwise, as being vehicles authorised to be used for the carriage of goods for hire or reward under any such permit and by which the area within which vehicles may be used for that purpose (whether under any such permit or not) is to be ascertainable, and
- (e) the custody of such permits, the production, return and cancellation of such permits on expiration, suspension or revocation, and the custody, production and return of plates ; and different regulations may be made as respects different classes or descriptions of vehicles and as respects the same class or description of vehicles in different circumstances. [1708]

General note.—This section empowers the making of regulations for the purpose of carrying this Part of the Act into effect. See also ss. 119, 120, post.

Definition.—For definition of “ the Minister,” see s. 125 (1), post.

62. Application of Part III to permits granted under Defence Regulations.

—Where, in pursuance of an authority given under paragraph (2) of Regulation seventy-two of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, a vehicle is used without a licence for a purpose or in circumstances which apart from the authority would render it necessary that a licence should be in force with respect to the vehicle, the provisions of this Part of this Act shall have effect as if the authority were a licence of the same class as that which would have been necessary but for the giving of the authority and, in relation to a vehicle used under such an authority, references to the operating centre of a vehicle shall be construed as references to the premises which served, at the material time, as the permanent base or centre from which the vehicle was normally used for the purpose of carrying goods for hire or reward :

Provided that where, during the whole or any part of the year nineteen hundred and forty-six, a vehicle was authorised to be used under such an authority as aforesaid, but subject to the condition that it should be used for the carriage of goods for hire or reward only in a district limited by reference to the distance of the boundaries thereof from a specified point, any reference to the operating centre of the vehicle, being a reference in relation to the facts of that year, shall as respects the whole or that part of that year be construed as a reference to that point. [1709]

Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, reg. 72 (2).—39 Halsbury's Statutes 1052. This regulation, as amended, now has effect by virtue of the Supplies and Services (Transitional Powers) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 629) and the Supplies and Services (Extended Purposes) Act, 1947 (10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 55).

Operating centre.—For the definition of this term where a vehicle is used otherwise than as stated in this section, see s. 58 (1), ante.

PART IV

OTHER FORMS OF TRANSPORT AND PORT FACILITIES

Passenger Road Transport

63. Preparation and approval of area road transport schemes.—(1) The Commission may, at any time, prepare and submit to the Minister a scheme as to the passenger road transport services serving such area as may be specified in the scheme, being a scheme devised for the purpose of promoting or facilitating the promotion of the co-ordination of the passenger transport services serving the area, whether by road or by rail, and the provision of adequate, suitable and efficient passenger road transport services to meet the needs of the area, and the Commission shall as soon as may be review the passenger road transport services operating in Great Britain with a view to determining the areas with respect to which schemes shall be prepared and submitted as aforesaid. [1710]

(2) The Commission, in considering what scheme to submit to the Minister with respect to any area, shall consider any representations which have been made to them by any local authority whose area or any part of whose area is within the area to which the scheme will relate, and, without prejudice to the preceding provisions of this subsection, before submitting a scheme to the Minister, the Commission shall consult every local authority whose area or any part of whose area is within the area to which the scheme relates, every joint committee, joint board, joint authority or other combined body which provides passenger road transport services within or partly within the area to which the scheme relates, being a committee, board, authority or body all the members of which are, or are representatives of, local authorities or the councils of county districts, and any other person providing passenger transport services who, in the opinion of the Commission, is likely to be affected by the scheme. [1711]

(3) A scheme under this section shall not take effect until embodied in an order made by the Minister in accordance with the provisions of the Eighth Schedule to this Act, and the date on which it takes effect shall be such date as may be specified in the order :

Provided that where objection is made in accordance with the said Schedule to the making of the order and is not withdrawn before the making thereof, the order shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure. [1712]

(4) The Minister may—

(a) specify an area, and

(b) direct the Commission to prepare and submit a scheme under this section with respect to the area so specified, and the Commission shall give effect to any such directions. [1713]

General note.—As to the general effect of this section, see Preliminary Note, ante, and note to Sched. VIII, post.

Dealing with the nature of the schemes to be made under this section, the Minister of Transport on the Committee Stage of the Bill said :—

“ . . . Here we have not proceeded on the plan of transferring these services on a vesting date. We have taken a longer-term method to provide an opportunity for the Commission first, before it promotes any area scheme, to take fully into consideration local circumstances. Hon. Members know the assumption running through this clause—that eventually a large measure of agreement will be reached. It is true the principle of co-ordination will have to be observed, and eventually consummated, but flexibility is left in the form of organisation and type of ownership that will emerge. It does not follow inevitably that every such scheme will reach a full attainment by reason of the absorption of the existing service into any area scheme. Possibly the best example we have at the present time is the London [Passenger] Transport Board. . . . While we do not propose in any way to have any set model, nevertheless it does represent an experience that might prove valuable later on. . . . As these area schemes of co-ordinated transport are built up, the Area Consultative Committees [see s. 6, ante] will be brought into being and we shall have this parallel type of machinery ” (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., March 20, 1947, col. 1026).

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Local authority, joint committee, etc.—The term "local authority" means the council of a county, the Common Council of the City of London or the council of a county borough (see s. 125 (1), post). As to the reason for the exclusion of non-county borough councils and metropolitan borough councils, see note to s. 125, post.

As to the provision to be made by a scheme for compensating local authorities, joint committees, etc., from whom an undertaking is transferred under the scheme, see Sched. VIII, paragraph 1 (1), proviso (a), post, and s. 25, ante.

Special parliamentary procedure.—This is the procedure for the confirmation of orders laid down in the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 439).

Directions.—Powers of giving directions to the Commission in addition to that conferred by sub-s. (4), ante, are conferred on the Minister by other sections of the Act; see ss. 4, 6 (8), ante, and ss. 66 (9), 71 (4), 92 (2) (b), 94 (3), (7) and 102 (2), post. See also s. 85, post.

Definitions.—For definitions of "the Minister," "passenger road transport service" and "passenger transport service," see s. 125 (1), post.

64. Contents of area road transport schemes.—(1) A scheme under the last preceding section may provide for all or any of the following matters, that is to say—

- (a) for constituting or specifying the body or bodies who are to provide passenger road transport services operating within or partly within the area, and the body or bodies who are to administer or take part in administering the scheme;
- (b) for the transfer on a date specified in the scheme to any such body as aforesaid of the whole or any part of any undertaking so specified, being an undertaking or part of an undertaking the activities of which consist wholly or partly of operating passenger road transport services within or partly within the area;
- (c) for regulating the relations of the persons providing passenger transport services under the scheme (whether by road or by rail) within or partly within the area, and in particular for the pooling of receipts or expenses;
- (d) for specifying the passenger road transport services which are to be provided within or partly within the area and for prohibiting or restricting the provision within or partly within the area of passenger road transport services otherwise than under the scheme;
- (e) for incorporating, with or without modifications, in relation to any such body as is mentioned in paragraph (a) of this subsection, all or any of the provisions of this Act relating to borrowing or the issue of stock, including the provisions thereof relating to guarantees by the Treasury;
- (f) for incorporating, with or without modifications, in relation to any such body as is mentioned in paragraph (a) of this subsection, being a body who are to provide passenger road transport services operating wholly or partly within the area—
  - (i) any of the provisions of Part V of this Act or of any scheme or regulations made thereunder; or
  - (ii) any other statutory provisions relating to or affecting the charges to be made by the Commission or the terms and conditions applicable to the Commission, whether for or in relation to the provision of passenger road transport facilities or not; or
  - (iii) any of the provisions of the next succeeding section;
- (g) for incorporating, with or without modifications, in relation to any such transfer as is mentioned in paragraph (b) of this subsection, any of the provisions of this Act relating to the transfer of undertakings or parts of undertakings to the Commission, including (subject to the provisions of Part II of the Eighth Schedule to this Act) provisions relating to compensation;
- (h) for repealing or amending any previous scheme in force with respect to the area or any other area the whole or any part of which falls within the area; and

- (i) for making such other consequential or incidental provision as appears necessary or expedient for the purposes of the scheme, including provision for repealing or amending any statutory provision of local application affecting any part of the area :

Provided that a scheme shall not provide for the transfer otherwise than by agreement of part only of an undertaking unless the part to be transferred includes the whole of so much of the undertaking as relates to the operation of passenger road transport services. [1714]

(2) The Commission may be the body specified, or one of the bodies specified, in a provision included in a scheme by virtue of paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of this section, and a part of the undertaking of the Commission may be the subject of a transfer under a provision included in a scheme by virtue of paragraph (b) of the said subsection (1). [1715]

(3) Where a provision included in a scheme by virtue of paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of this section constitutes or specifies some body or bodies other than the Commission to administer or take part in administering the scheme, provision shall also be made in the scheme to secure that at least one member of any such body shall be a person who has had not less than six years experience in local government within the area to which the scheme relates. [1716]

(4) The Minister shall not regard as satisfactory for the purposes of subparagraph (1) of paragraph 1 of the Eighth Schedule to this Act any scheme made under the last preceding section which includes provision for prohibiting or restricting the provision within or partly within the area to which the scheme relates of passenger road transport services otherwise than under the scheme, unless it includes also provision to secure—

(a) that compensation is payable where—

(i) any person was, at the date of the passing of this Act, carrying on an undertaking the activities of which consisted wholly or partly of operating passenger road transport services within or partly within the area to which the scheme relates ; and

(ii) neither the whole nor any part of that undertaking is transferred to a body under the scheme ; and

(iii) a prohibition or restriction contained in or imposed under the scheme will involve a substantial interference with the carrying on by that person of some transport activity which he, or his predecessor in, or in any part of, his undertaking, was carrying on before the said date and which he has, up to the time when the scheme takes effect or, as the case may be, up to the time when the prohibition or restriction is imposed, continued to carry on with only such intermission, if any, as are incidental to the nature of the activity ; and

(b) that the question whether any, and if so what, compensation is so payable is to be determined, in case of dispute by the arbitration tribunal established under Part VIII of this Act. [1717]

General note.—This section, with s. 102 and Sched. VIII, paragraph 1, post, deals with the contents of area road schemes which in accordance with s. 63, ante, the Commission is empowered, and where the Minister so directs, required, to prepare. The provisions of the section may be compared with the provisions of ss. 66–68 (see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante), dealing with the contents of harbour schemes.

In order that there may be flexibility to permit the making of different schemes suitable to the local requirements of the various areas, the provisions of the section are drawn in wide and, for the most part, permissive terms. In five instances, however, this section and Sched. VIII, post, lay down rules as to the contents of schemes (see note to that Schedule, post).

Sub-s. (1).—Compare this subsection, setting out the matters for which an area road transport scheme may provide, with s. 66 (3) (see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante), setting out the matters for which a harbour scheme may provide.

Body to provide services and administer scheme.—The Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Transport on the Committee Stage of the Bill stated that schemes would operate under some form of public ownership (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., March 20, 1947, col. 1055). Note that by sub-s. (2), ante, the Commission itself may be the body to provide the services or to administer the scheme.

The area.—This is the area specified in the scheme (see s. 63 (1), ante).

Provisions relating to borrowing, etc.—As to borrowing, see s. 88, post; as to the issue of stock, see s. 89, post; as to guarantees by the Treasury, see s. 90, post.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Compensation.—As to the provisions for the compensation of officers and servants to be included in any scheme which provides for transferring undertakings, see s. 102, post.

Sub-s. (2).—This subsection is identical, mutatis mutandis, with s. 66 (4) (see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante) dealing with harbour schemes.

Sub-s. (3).—The provisions of this subsection under which an area road transport scheme, except when it is to be administered solely by the Commission, must secure that at least one member of the administrative body or bodies has had at least six years' local government experience in the area, may be compared and contrasted with the provision made by s. 66 (5) (a) (see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante), under which in preparing a harbour scheme the Commission are to have regard to the desirability of including on any administrative body (other than the Commission) persons or representatives of persons who are payers of dues for the services or facilities afforded or who are otherwise interested in the trade or activities of the harbour or group of harbours.

Sub-s. (4).—The provisions of this subsection which afford protection in certain circumstances to existing passenger road transport undertakings, may be compared and contrasted with the provisions, first, of ss. 54, 55, ante, which afford protection in comparable circumstances to existing road haulage undertakings, and secondly, s. 68 (see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante), which in comparable circumstances protects existing undertakings providing port facilities.

In the case of passenger road transport undertakings the protection afforded takes the form of a right to compensation, while in the case of road haulage undertakings and undertakings providing port facilities it takes the form of a right to require the acquisition of the undertaking.

In all cases the basis of entitlement to protection is substantial interference with the carrying on of some activity which was being carried on before a specified date (August 6, 1947, in the case of area road transport undertakings, and November 28, 1946, in other cases), and which has continued to be carried on up to the time specified in the respective sections with only such intermissions, if any, as are incidental to the nature of the activity.

Date of the passing of the Act.—August 6, 1947.

Arbitration tribunal.—The Transport Arbitration Tribunal (see s. 100 (1), post). Subject to the provisions of s. 106 (3), post, under which a question of law may, and if it is so ordered by the Court of Appeal must, be stated in the form of a special case for determination by the Court of Appeal, the arbitration tribunal have sole jurisdiction in proceedings under sub-s. (4) (b), ante (see s. 109 (1), post).

As to the powers of the arbitration tribunal where there is delay in settlement of compensation, see ss. 110, 112, post.

Definitions.—For definitions of "charges," "passenger road transport service," "passenger transport service" and "statutory provision," see s. 125 (1), post.

65. Passenger road transport services of the Commission.—(1) Sections seventy-two to seventy-six of the Road Traffic Act, 1930 (which relate to road service licences) shall not apply to any passenger road transport service provided, whether under a scheme under the preceding provisions of this Part of this Act or otherwise, by the Commission or by any person acting as agent for the Commission, but neither the Commission nor any such person as aforesaid shall use any public service vehicle for the conveyance of passengers for hire or reward at separate fares except—

(a) on a route approved, as respects so much thereof as falls within any traffic area, by the licensing authority for public service vehicles for that area; and

(b) in accordance with such restrictions as may be imposed by that authority as to the class or description of vehicles which may be used on the route and as to the portions of the route on which, and the points at which, passengers may be taken up or set down:

Provided that the Commission may appeal to the Minister against the refusal of any such authority to give their approval or against any restrictions imposed by them as to the matters aforesaid, and the decision of the Minister shall be final. [1718]

(2) The Commission shall, in respect of services of public service vehicles provided by them, perform such services with regard to the conveyance of mails as are prescribed by the Conveyance of Mails Act, 1893, in respect of a tramway to which that Act applies. [1719]

(3) Regulations made by the Minister may require copies of the timetable and faretable of any service provided by the Commission or by a person acting as agent for the Commission to be carried and to be available for inspection in accordance with the regulations on public service vehicles used on that service. [1720]

(4) The Commission may, if the highway authority consent, construct and maintain on any highway shelters or other buildings for the use of, and barriers for controlling the movements of, persons using the passenger road transport services provided by them, being shelters, buildings or barriers at stopping places of the vehicles of the Commission. [1721]

General note.—The provision made by sub-s. (1) of this section, which has the effect of exempting the Commission from the need to apply for a road service licence under the Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 72 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 661), in respect of any passenger road transport service provided by them, is analogous to the provision made by s. 59, ante, exempting the Commission from the need to apply for a carrier's licence under the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, s. 2 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 874), in respect of any goods vehicle used by them.

As to the reason for these exemptions, see note to s. 59, ante.

Any of the provisions of this section may be incorporated, with or without modification, in an area road transport scheme in relation to the body who is to provide the services under the scheme (see s. 64 (1) (f) (iii), ante).

Road Traffic Act, 1930, ss. 72-76.—23 Halsbury's Statutes 661-664.

Or otherwise.—This refers to passenger road transport services provided by the Commission as a result of the acquisition of a passenger road transport undertaking forming part of or belonging to a railway undertaking under Part II of the Act.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Licensing authority for public service vehicles.—This means the Traffic Commissioners appointed under Part IV of the Road Traffic Act, 1930 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 654-678) for any traffic area (see s. 117, post).

Conveyance of Mails Act, 1893.—13 Halsbury's Statutes 36. The expression "tramway," as defined in s. 5 of that Act, means a tramway authorised by an Act to be constructed wholly along public roads or streets without any deviation therefrom.

Definitions.—S. 125 (2), post, provides, inter alia, that except in so far as the context otherwise requires expressions used in any provision of the Act in relation to the carriage of passengers by road have the same meanings as in the Road Traffic Act, 1930. Accordingly, subject to the exception noted, the following definitions contained in the Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 121 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 686), are applicable to the expressions used in this section:—

"Public service vehicle" means a motor vehicle used for carrying passengers for hire or reward other than a vehicle which is a contract carriage within the meaning of s. 61 (1) (c) of the Act of 1930, adapted to carry less than eight passengers or a tramcar or a trolley vehicle.

"Highway authority" in relation to any road, means the authority (being the council of a county, the council of a county borough, the council of an urban district, the Common Council of the City of London, or the council of a metropolitan borough) which is responsible for the maintenance of the road.

For definition of "the Minister," see s. 125 (1), post.

PART V

THE TRANSPORT TRIBUNAL AND TRANSPORT CHARGES AND FACILITIES

The Transport Tribunal

72. Renaming of, and other provisions as to, Railway Rates Tribunal.—

(1) The Railway Rates Tribunal established under the Railways Act, 1921, shall be known as the Transport Tribunal. [1722]

(2) The following amendments shall be made in the Railways Act, 1921—

- (a) in subsection (4) of section twenty (which relates to the qualifications of the permanent members of the Transport Tribunal) for the words "a person of experience in railway business" there shall be substituted the words "a person of experience in transport business";
- (b) in subsection (1) of section twenty-one (which authorises the tribunal to appoint officers or servants) the words "and not exceeding ten" shall be omitted;

- (c) in subsection (1) of section twenty-four (which relates to the panels of additional members of the tribunal) the words "upon the railways" shall be omitted and for the words from "and the other (hereinafter referred to as the railway panel)" to the end of the subsection there shall be substituted the words "and the other (hereinafter referred to as the transport panel) consisting of twelve persons nominated by the Minister from among persons who provide transport services, represent persons who provide transport services, or have had experience in the provision of transport services";
- (d) in subsections (3) and (4) of the said section twenty-four for the words "the railway panel" there shall be substituted the words "the transport panel";
- (e) in subsection (4) of the said section twenty-four for the words "In selecting a member from the general panel" there shall be substituted the words "In selecting a member from either panel".

[1723]

(3) The provisions of the Tenth Schedule to this Act shall have effect with respect to the powers and procedure of the Transport Tribunal. [1724]

General note.—This section renames the Railway Rates Tribunal, established under the Railways Act, 1921 (14 Halsbury's Statutes 316), the Transport Tribunal, and makes amendments to sections of that Act relating thereto consequential upon the enlargement of the Tribunal's jurisdiction under ss. 73, 74, 75, infra. The provisions of Sched. X, post, apply to the powers and procedure of the Tribunal.

Railways Act, 1921, ss. 20, 21, 24.—14 Halsbury's Statutes 332–334.

73. Transfer to Transport Tribunal of jurisdiction under Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, s. 15.—(1) As from the appointed day, the jurisdiction conferred by section fifteen of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, on the Appeal Tribunal constituted thereunder shall be transferred to and exercised by the Transport Tribunal, and the said Appeal Tribunal shall cease to exist, and any proceedings pending before the said Appeal Tribunal at the appointed day shall be continued before the Transport Tribunal, and the Transport Tribunal may give any necessary directions as to the manner in which any such proceedings are to be so continued. [1725]

(2) As from the appointed day, subsections (2) to (9) of the said section fifteen, subsection (12) thereof, and in subsection (13) thereof the words from the beginning of the subsection to the word "but" shall be repealed, and references in that section, so far as not repealed as aforesaid, to the said Appeal Tribunal shall be construed as references to the Transport Tribunal when exercising its jurisdiction as to appeals under that section and appeals under Part III of this Act to which that section is applied. [1726]

General note.—The Appeal Tribunal under the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, was established by s. 15 of that Act (26 Halsbury's Statutes 885) for the purpose of hearing appeals from persons aggrieved by a decision of the licensing authority for goods vehicles under Part I of that Act. As from the appointed day, the present section transfers the jurisdiction of the Appeal Tribunal (which thereupon ceases to exist) to the Transport Tribunal and makes consequential amendments to the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, s. 15.

Appointed day.—As to the meaning of this expression, see s. 125 (3), post. No day had been appointed for the purposes of this section up to the time of going to press.

Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, s. 15.—26 Halsbury's Statutes 885. See the General note, supra. The enactments repealed, as from the appointed day, by sub-s. (2), supra, are similarly repealed by s. 128 (2) (c) and Sched. XV, post.

Transport Tribunal.—The tribunal formerly known as the Railway Rates Tribunal (see s. 72 (1), ante).

Appeals under Part III.—As to appeals under Part III of the Act to which the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, s. 15, supra, is applied, see s. 56, ante.

74. Transfer of jurisdiction of High Court, etc. [1727]

75. Transfer of jurisdiction of Railway and Canal Commission. [1728]

Charges Schemes

76. Charges schemes.—The Commission shall from time to time prepare, and submit to the Transport Tribunal for confirmation, drafts of schemes

(hereafter in this Act referred to as "charges schemes") for determining, as respects the services and facilities provided by the Commission to which the schemes respectively relate—

- (a) the charges which are to be made by the Commission ; and
- (b) where it is necessary or expedient so to do, the other terms and conditions which are to be applicable to the provision of those services and facilities, including, in particular, terms and conditions as to the liability of the Commission for loss or damage, and it shall be the duty of the Commission, within two years from the passing of this Act or such longer period as the Minister may allow, to prepare and submit the draft of a scheme or, as the case may be, drafts of a series of schemes, relating or together relating to all the services and facilities provided by the Commission under paragraphs (a) to (c) of subsection (1) of section two of this Act and such other of the services and facilities provided by the Commission as the Commission are of opinion should be dealt with by charges schemes. [1729]

General note.—This is the first of six sections dealing with charges schemes. The present section directs the Commission from time to time to prepare draft schemes for confirmation by the Transport Tribunal, the first of which is to be submitted within two years from August 5, 1947, or such longer period as the Minister may allow.

It is the general duty of the Commission to levy such charges as will secure that its revenue is not less than sufficient to meet charges properly chargeable to revenue taking one year with another (see s. 3 (4), ante).

As to the overriding provisions governing the exercise by the Commission and the Transport Tribunal of their powers as to charges and charges schemes, see s. 85, post. As to the duty of the Consultative Committees to make recommendations with regard to charges, see s. 6 (7), ante.

Any of the provisions of this Part of the Act or of any scheme or regulations made under it may be incorporated, with or without modifications, in an area road transport scheme (s. 64 (1) (f) (i), ante) or in a trade harbour scheme (s. 66 (3) (h) (i) ; see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante).

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Transport Tribunal.—The tribunal formerly known as the Railway Rates Tribunal (see s. 72 (1), ante, and s. 125 (1), post).

Passing of this Act.—August 6, 1947.

Definitions.—For definitions of "charges" and "the Minister," see s. 125 (1), post.

77. Contents of charges schemes.—(1) A charges scheme may, as respects any of the services and facilities to which it relates, adopt such system for the determination of the charges, or, as the case may be, the charges and other terms and conditions, which are to be applicable as may appear desirable, and in particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing words, and such scheme may, as respects any of the services and facilities to which it relates—

- (a) provide, with or without exceptions, for fixed charges, maximum charges, or standard charges, that is to say, charges which are to be adhered to save as otherwise provided by any provision of the scheme, and, in particular, by any provision of the scheme relating to the making of exceptional charges, special charges or agreed charges ;
- (b) provide in any such case for minimum charges ;
- (c) provide for alternative sets of terms and conditions ;
- (d) enable the Transport Tribunal to make orders authorising or requiring the Commission to afford special treatment, either as respects charges or as respects terms and conditions, or as respects both charges and terms and conditions, in specified cases or classes of cases, and specify the persons who are to be entitled to make or oppose applications to the tribunal for such orders ;
- (e) in all or any cases, leave to the Commission the determination of the charges which are to be made or the terms and conditions which are to be applicable, subject to such conditions and such limitations, if any, as may be provided for in the scheme (including, if the scheme so provides, conditions as to the approval of the charges, terms and conditions by the Transport Tribunal or conditions otherwise reserving powers to the Transport Tribunal as to the determination of the charges, terms and conditions);

- (f) make provision as to the publication of charges and of the terms and conditions which are to be applicable; and
- (g) make such provision as may be appropriate in relation to through charges, and different provision may be made for different cases or classes of cases determined by or in accordance with the provisions of the scheme. [1730]

(2) A charges scheme may revoke or amend any previous charges scheme. [1731]

General note.—This is the second of six sections relating to charges schemes. The present section deals with the contents of schemes, drafts of which it is the duty of the Commission under s. 76, ante, from time to time to prepare and submit to the Transport Tribunal.

As to the general duty of the Commission in regard to charges, see s. 3 (4), ante. As to the overriding provisions governing the exercise by the Commission and the Transport Tribunal of their powers as to charges and charges schemes, see s. 85, post, and as to the duty of the Consultative Committees to make recommendations with regard to charges, see s. 6 (7), ante.

Any of the provisions of this Part of the Act or of any scheme or regulations made hereunder may be incorporated, with or without modification, in an area road transport scheme (s. 64 (1) (f) (i), ante) or in a trade harbour scheme (s. 66 (3) (h) (i); see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante).

Charges scheme.—As to the meaning of this expression, see s. 76, ante.

Transport Tribunal.—The tribunal formerly known as the Railway Rates Tribunal (see s. 72 (1), ante, and s. 125 (1), post).

Definition.—For definition of "charges," see s. 125 (1), post.

78. Confirmation of charges schemes.—(1) When the Commission have submitted a draft of a charges scheme to the Transport Tribunal, the Commission shall publish it in such manner as the tribunal may direct, together with a notice specifying the time and the manner (which shall be determined by the tribunal) in which objections to the draft scheme and other representations with respect thereto may be lodged with the tribunal. [1732]

(2) An objection to a draft scheme or any other representation with respect thereto may be lodged by any of the following bodies, that is to say—

- (a) any body representative of any class of persons using the services or facilities to which the scheme will relate;
- (b) any body constituted for the purposes of any scheme for the carrying on, under national ownership or control, of any industry or part of an industry or of any undertaking, being a body using the said services or facilities. [1733]

(3) Any body representative of any class of persons providing for hire or reward services or facilities similar to or comparable with the services or facilities to which the scheme will relate who desire to contend that the charges provided for in the draft scheme are unduly low may lodge a representation to that effect with the tribunal under this section, and the tribunal may, if they think fit, agree to hear the body with respect to that representation. [1734]

(4) As soon as may be after the time for lodging objections and representations has elapsed, the tribunal shall hold a public inquiry into the draft scheme and shall at that inquiry hear the Commission and any such bodies as are mentioned in subsection (2) of this section who desire to be heard, and any such body as is mentioned in the last preceding subsection whom the tribunal may have agreed to hear, and may then either refuse to confirm the scheme or may confirm it with such alterations, if any, as they think fit:

Provided that the tribunal shall not be bound to hear any of the bodies specified in the said subsection (2) unless that body has duly lodged with the tribunal an objection or other representation with respect to the draft scheme, and shall not hear any such body as is mentioned in the said last preceding subsection except with respect to a representation made by them under that subsection. [1735]

(5) Any scheme confirmed by the tribunal shall be published in such manner as may be specified by the tribunal in confirming the scheme and shall come into force on such date or dates as may be so specified; and the scheme shall have effect notwithstanding anything in any statutory provision relating to the subject matter of the scheme. [1736]

(6) It shall be the duty of the Commission to give to the tribunal all such assistance as is necessary or as the tribunal may require for the purpose of deciding whether or not to confirm the scheme with or without alterations. [1737]

General note.—This is the third of six consecutive sections dealing with charges schemes. The present section lays down the procedure to be adopted by the Transport Tribunal with regard to the confirmation of draft schemes submitted by the Commission in accordance with s. 76, ante. The section specifies the bodies who may make objections or other representations with regard to a draft scheme.

No locus standi with regard to the making of such objections or representations is given to individual persons, since, as the Government spokesman explained during the Report Stage of the Bill in the House of Lords, the Railway Rates Tribunal had been overburdened with applications and it was necessary to avoid that happening in the case of the Transport Tribunal (see 149 H. of L. Official Report 21). Individual persons have the right to make representations to the Consultative Committees, who may make recommendations to the Minister and the Commission (see s. 6 (7), (8), ante).

As to the overriding provisions governing the exercise by the Commission and the Transport Tribunal of their powers as to charges, see s. 85, post.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Charges scheme.—As to the meaning of this expression, see s. 76, ante.

Transport Tribunal.—The tribunal formerly known as the Railway Rates Tribunal (see s. 72 (1), ante, and s. 125 (1), post).

Body representative of any class of persons using the services.—This expression, in relation to passenger transport services provided by the Commission, includes any local authority within whose area any persons using those services are resident (see s. 81, post).

Body for carrying on an industry under national ownership or control.—For example, the National Coal Board established under the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 251).

Sub-s. (3).—This subsection, together with ss. 79 (3) and 80 (4) (a), post, was inserted by Amendment during the Report Stage of the Bill in the House of Lords in order to protect independent road haulage and passenger road transport undertakings against the possibility of unduly low charges being made by the Commission or by a body constituted or specified under an area road transport scheme (see s. 64 (1) (f), ante) for services or facilities competing with those independently provided.

The Government spokesman pointed out that the undertakings were only liable to be prejudiced when the charges were too low; when they were too high the undertakings would be able, since their own charges were not limited by the terms of any charges scheme, to attract additional traffic by themselves charging less (see 149 H. of L. Official Report 29).

Definitions.—For definitions of "charges" and "statutory provision," see s. 125 (1), post.

79. Alteration of charges scheme.—(1) An application for the alteration of a charges scheme may be made to the Transport Tribunal either—

- (a) by the Commission; or
- (b) by any body representative of any class of persons using any services or facilities to which the scheme relates, being persons whose interests will be affected by the alteration; or
- (c) by any body constituted for the purposes of any scheme for the carrying on, under national ownership or control, of any industry or part of an industry or of any undertaking, being a body using any services or facilities to which the scheme relates and whose interests will be affected by the alteration; or
- (d) if and in so far as, in relation to particular matters, the scheme so provides, by any other person using any services or facilities to which the scheme relates, being a person whose interests will be affected by the alteration:

Provided that the tribunal shall not entertain any application under this section for the alteration of any scheme if—

- (i) less than twelve months have elapsed since the coming into force of the scheme ; or
- (ii) in their opinion the application relates to a matter which has been the subject of consideration by the tribunal within the twelve months immediately preceding the making of the application ; or
- (iii) in their opinion the alteration is one which owing to its magnitude ought not to be made except by an amending scheme or as the result of such a review as is provided for by the next succeeding section. [1738]

(2) Where an application is made to the Transport Tribunal under this section (not being an application which the tribunal refuse to entertain) the person making the application shall publish it in such manner as the tribunal may direct together with a notice specifying the time and manner (which shall be determined by the tribunal) in which objections to the application and other representations with respect thereto may be lodged with the tribunal by the Commission or any such body or other person as are specified in subsection (1) of this section. [1739]

(3) Any body representative of any class of persons providing for hire or reward services or facilities similar to or comparable with the services or facilities to which the scheme relates who desire to contend that the alteration sought for in the application would cause the charges made under the scheme to be unduly low may lodge a representation to that effect with the tribunal within the time and in the manner specified for objections and representations under the last preceding subsection, and the tribunal may, if they think fit, agree to hear the body with respect to that representation. [1740]

(4) As soon as may be after the time for lodging objections and representations has elapsed, the tribunal shall hold a public inquiry into the application and shall at that inquiry hear the Commission, the applicant and any such body or other person as are specified in subsection (1) of this section who desire to be heard, and any such body as is mentioned in the last preceding subsection whom the tribunal may have agreed to hear, and may then make such order, if any, with respect to the matter of the application as they think fit :

Provided that the tribunal shall not be bound to hear any body or other person, other than the Commission and the applicant, who have not duly lodged with the tribunal an objection or other representation with respect to the application and shall not hear any such body as is mentioned in the said last preceding subsection except with respect to a representation made by them under that subsection. [1741]

(5) Where an order is made under the last preceding subsection altering a charges scheme, particulars of the alteration shall, unless the tribunal determine that in all the circumstances publication is unnecessary, be published in such manner as the tribunal may specify at the time of the making of the order. [1742]

(6) It shall be the duty of the Commission to give to the tribunal all such assistance as is necessary or as the tribunal may require for the purpose of deciding whether any, and if so what, order should be made with respect to the matter of the application. [1743]

General note.—This is the fourth of six consecutive sections dealing with charges schemes. Schemes are to be prepared by the Commission in accordance with s. 76, ante, and may be confirmed by the Tribunal in accordance with s. 78, ante. The present section, which provides for the alteration of schemes, specifies the bodies and persons who may apply for the alteration of a scheme, states certain circumstances in which the tribunal are not to entertain an application, and lays down the procedure to be followed in connection with the alteration of a scheme.

As to the general duty of the Commission in regard to the levying of charges, see s. 3 (4), ante. As to the overriding provisions governing the exercise by the Commission and the Transport Tribunal of their powers as to charges and charges schemes, see s. 85, post.

Any of the provisions of this Part of the Act or of any scheme or regulations made hereunder may be incorporated, with or without modification, in an area road transport scheme (see s. 64 (1) (f) (i), ante) or in a trade harbour scheme (s. 66 (3) (h) (i) ; see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante).

Charges scheme.—As to the meaning of this expression, see s. 76, ante.

Transport Tribunal.—The tribunal formerly known as the Railway Rates Tribunal (see s. 72 (1), ante).

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Body representative of any class of persons using the services.—This expression, in relation to passenger transport services provided by the Commission, includes any local authority within whose area any persons using those services are resident (see s. 81, post).

Body for carrying on any industry under national ownership or control.—For example, the National Coal Board established under the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 251).

Sub-s. (3).—As to the effect of this subsection, see note to sub-s. (3) of s. 78, ante.

Definitions.—For definitions of "alteration" and "charges," see s. 125 (1), post.

80. Review of charges schemes.—(1) The Minister may at any time require the Transport Tribunal to review the operation of any charges scheme. [1744]

(2) Where the tribunal have been required by the Minister to review the operation of any charges scheme, they shall give notice of the requirement to the Commission and shall require the Commission to publish notice thereof in such manner as the tribunal may specify, together with a notice specifying the time and manner (which shall be determined by the tribunal) in which representations with respect to the scheme may be lodged with the tribunal. [1745]

(3) Representations may be lodged with the tribunal under this section by the following bodies, that is to say—

- (a) any body representative of any class of persons making use of the services or facilities to which the scheme relates ; or
- (b) any body constituted for the purposes of any scheme for the carrying on, under national ownership or control, of any industry or part of an industry or any undertaking, being a body using the said services or facilities. [1746]

(4) Where—

- (a) any body representative of any class of persons providing for hire or reward services or facilities similar to or comparable with the services or facilities to which the scheme relates desire to contend that the charges made under the scheme are unduly low ; or
- (b) any body representative of any class of persons making use of services or facilities provided by the Commission other than the services or facilities to which the scheme relates desire to contend that the charges made under the scheme are unduly low and that by reason thereof the charges made for those other services or facilities are unduly high, the body may lodge a representation to that effect with the tribunal under this section, and the tribunal may, if they think fit, agree to hear the body with respect to that representation. [1747]

(5) As soon as may be after the time for lodging representations has elapsed, the tribunal shall hold a public inquiry into the scheme and shall at that inquiry hear the Commission and any of the bodies mentioned in subsection (3) of this section who desire to be heard and such, if any, of the bodies mentioned in the last preceding subsection as the tribunal may have agreed to hear and may then alter the scheme in such manner as they think fit or may determine that no alteration is necessary, and any alteration made by the tribunal shall be published in such manner, and shall come into force on such date, as the tribunal may specify :

Provided that the tribunal shall not be bound to hear any of the bodies specified in the said subsection (3) unless that body has duly lodged with the tribunal a representation with respect to the scheme, and shall not hear any of the bodies mentioned in the said last preceding subsection except with respect to a representation made by the body in question under that subsection. [1748]

(6) It shall be the duty of the Commission to give to the tribunal all such assistance as is necessary or as the tribunal may require for the purposes of any review under this section. [1749]

General note.—This is the fifth of six consecutive sections dealing with charges schemes. Under the present section the Minister may at any time require the Transport Tribunal to review the operation of a scheme.

As to the general duty of the Commission in regard to the levying of charges, see s. 3 (4), ante. As to the overriding provisions governing the exercise by the Commission and the Transport Tribunal of their powers as to charges and charges schemes, see s. 85, post.

Any of the provisions of this Part of the Act or of any scheme or regulations made hereunder may be incorporated, with or without modification, in an area road transport scheme (s. 64 (1) (f) (i), ante), or in a trade harbour scheme (s. 66 (3) (h) (i); see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante).

Transport Tribunal.—The tribunal formerly known as the Railway Rates Tribunal (see s. 72 (1), ante, and s. 125 (1), post).

Charges scheme.—As to the meaning of this expression, see s. 78, ante.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Body representative of any class of persons using the services.—This expression, in relation to passenger transport services provided by the Commission, includes any local authority within whose area any persons using those services are resident (see s. 81, post).

Body for carrying on any industry under national ownership or control.—For example, the National Coal Board established under the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 251).

Sub-s. (4) (a).—As to the effect of this subsection see note to sub-s. (3) of s. 78, ante.

Definitions.—For definitions of "alteration," "charges" and "the Minister," see s. 125 (1), post.

81. Locus standi of local authorities as regards charges schemes.—Any reference in this Part of this Act to any body representative of any class of persons using services or facilities shall, in relation to passenger transport services provided by the Commission, include a reference to any local authority within whose area any persons using those services are resident. [1750]

General note.—This is the last of six consecutive sections dealing with charges schemes. It has the effect, so far as passenger transport services provided by the Commission are concerned, of enabling a local authority within whose area any persons using these services are resident: (i) to lodge objections to a draft scheme or make other representations thereon (see s. 78 (2) (a), ante); (ii) to apply for the alteration of a scheme (see s. 79 (1) (b), ante); and (iii) to lodge representations on the review of a scheme (see s. 80 (3) (a), ante).

In any such case, the local authority will be entitled, if they so desire, to be heard at the ensuing public inquiry (see ss. 78 (4), 79 (4), 80 (5), ante).

The Minister of Transport stated during the Committee Stage of the Bill that it was a local authority's function to represent the population in its area (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., March 4, 1947, col. 530).

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Local authority.—This means the council of a county, the Common Council of the City of London, or the council of a county borough (see s. 125 (1), post).

Transitional provisions

82. Transitional provisions as to charges. [1751]

83. Transitional provisions as to exceptional rates and fares of the Commission.—(1) The provisions of this section shall have effect as respects charges made otherwise than under a charges scheme. [1752]

(2) Where, in the opinion of the Commission, any exceptional rate which under the provisions of Part III of the Railways Act, 1921, is in operation on the date of transfer in respect of any traffic is unduly low by reason of the competition of road haulage undertakers, canal carriers or persons engaged in coastal shipping, the Commission may at any time increase that rate up to not more than sixty per cent of the standard rate for the time being in operation under the said Act, and section thirty-eight of the said Act

(which prescribes the procedure to be followed as to alterations of exceptional rates) shall not have effect in relation to such an increase :

Provided that, if any trader is aggrieved by the raising of any exceptional rate under this subsection, he may appeal to the Transport Tribunal, and if the tribunal are satisfied that the Commission were not justified in raising the rate under this subsection, they may order the lower rate to be restored from such date as they may determine and the Commission shall give effect to that order. [1753]

(3) So much of sections thirty-seven, thirty-eight and forty-one of the said Act as requires the granting or reduction of exceptional rates or the charging of exceptional fares to be reported to the Minister or enables the Minister to refer any such matter to the Transport Tribunal shall not apply to rates and fares of the Commission, and accordingly, in relation to the Commission—

- (a) the said section thirty-seven shall have effect as if in subsection (1) thereof, the words from “which rates” to “reported to the Minister”, and the whole of subsection (2), were omitted ;
- (b) subsection (2) of the said section thirty-eight shall have effect as if the words from “but any such reduction” to the end of the subsection were omitted ; and
- (c) the said section forty-one shall have effect as if the words from “but the circumstances” to the end of the section were omitted. [1754]

(4) In its application to the Commission, subsection (11) of section thirty-seven of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (which relates to agreed charges for the carriage of merchandise) shall have effect as if the words from “where the Tribunal” where those words first occur to the words “the Minister may allow, and” were omitted. [1755]

(5) In its application to the Commission, section thirty-nine of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933 (which relates to agreed charges and exceptional rates competing with coastal shipping) shall have effect as if—

- (a) in subsection (2) for the words “If at any time a representation is made to the Minister” there were substituted the words “A representation may at any time be made to the tribunal”, and the words from “the Minister shall consult” to the end of the subsection were omitted ;
- (b) in subsections (3) and (5), for the word “reference” there were substituted the word “representation”. [1756]

84. Temporary additional jurisdiction of Transport Tribunal as to classification of merchandise. [1757]

Overriding and miscellaneous provisions

85. Overriding provisions as to exercise by Commission and Transport Tribunal of their powers as to charges.—Neither the Commission nor the Transport Tribunal shall do anything in the exercise of their respective powers as respects charges and the submission, confirmation and alteration of charges schemes which in their opinion will prevent the Commission from discharging the Commission's general duty to secure that their revenue is not less than sufficient for making provision for the meeting of charges properly chargeable to revenue taking one year with another, or which in their opinion will prevent the Commission from giving effect to any direction of the Minister under any provision of this Act; and it is hereby declared that the duty of the Commission to give effect to such directions as aforesaid includes a duty to make such applications and to do such other things in relation to the making or alteration of charges schemes as are required in order to give effect to any such direction. [1758]

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante). As to the Commission's general duty to secure that their revenue is not less than sufficient to meet charges properly chargeable to revenue, see s. 3 (4), ante.

87. Provisions as to railway freight rebates. [1760]

PART VI

FINANCE

88. Borrowing powers of the Commission.—(1) The Commission may, with the consent of the Minister, or in accordance with the terms of any general authority given by him, borrow temporarily, by way of overdraft or otherwise, such sums as the Commission may require for meeting their obligations or discharging their functions under this Act:

Provided that the aggregate of the amounts outstanding in respect of any temporary loans raised by the Commission under this subsection shall not at any time exceed twenty-five million pounds. [1761]

(2) The Commission may, with the consent of the Minister and the approval of the Treasury, borrow money by the issue of British transport stock for all or any of the following purposes, that is to say—

- (a) the provision of money for meeting any expenses incurred in connection with any permanent work the cost of which is properly chargeable to capital;
- (b) the redemption of any British transport stock;
- (c) the provision of working capital;
- (d) the provision of money required to satisfy any right to compensation in respect of the transfer to the Commission of the whole or any part of an undertaking which, under any provision of this Act, is to be defrayed in cash, not being money required to pay compensation to officers or servants or to make to a local authority periodical payments in respect of any of their securities;
- (e) the purchase, otherwise than simply by way of investment, of any securities of any body corporate which is carrying on or about to carry on or which directly or indirectly controls another body corporate which is carrying on or about to carry on, any such activities as are specified in subsection (1) of section two of this Act;
- (f) the provision of any money, not being money properly chargeable to revenue, which is required for lending to, or is required to be paid under any guarantee given for the benefit of, any such body corporate as is mentioned in the last preceding paragraph or any other person who is carrying on or about to carry on any such activities as are therein mentioned ;

- (g) any other purpose for which capital moneys are properly applicable, including the repayment of any money temporarily borrowed under subsection (1) of this section for any of the purposes mentioned in the preceding paragraphs of this subsection :

Provided that the total amount borrowed under this subsection, otherwise than for the purposes specified in paragraphs (b) and (d) thereof, shall not exceed two hundred and fifty million pounds.

The reference in paragraph (d) of this subsection to any provision of this Act includes a reference to any provision thereof applied, with or without modifications, by any scheme or order under this Act. [1762]

(3) Save as aforesaid, the Commission shall not borrow any money. [1763]

General note.—This section is in similar terms to s. 39 of the Electricity Act, 1947 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante), except that that section places no limit on the amount of temporary loans corresponding to the limit laid down by the proviso to sub-s. (1), ante.

Sub-s. (1), ante, is similar to s. 27 of the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 283), but since that Act does not empower the National Coal Board to borrow permanently except from the Minister of Fuel and Power it contains no provision corresponding to sub-s. (2), ante.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Consent of the Minister.—The Government spokesman on the Committee Stage of the Bill in the House of Lords stated that it was not the intention of the Minister to use his powers under sub-s. (1), ante, so as to exercise any close or day-to-day control over the operations of the Commission, and that a general authority covering borrowing by the Commission would be given as occasion might arise. He pointed out that the Minister, through the Treasury, might be placed in the position of a guarantor (see s. 90, post) and must accordingly have the power to supervise temporary borrowing by the Commission (see 149 H. of L. Official Report 61).

British transport stock.—See s. 89, post.

Compensation defrayed in cash.—Compensation will be defrayed in cash up to the amount specified in the proviso to s. 48 (3), ante, in connection with the transfer of a road haulage undertaking under Part III of the Act or of a passenger road transport undertaking or harbour undertaking under a scheme or order incorporating similar compensation provisions (see ss. 48 (3), proviso, and 64 (1) (g), ante; and ss. 66 (3) (i) and 68 (3), in title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante).

The additional compensation payable to local authorities under s. 114, post, will be payable wholly in cash.

Periodical payments to a local authority.—S. 25 (4), ante, provides for the making of periodical payments with respect to certain securities of local authorities by way of compensation when an undertaking belonging to a local authority is acquired by the Commission under Part II of the Act.

Any schemes made under Part IV of the Act which provide for the transfer of a local authority's undertaking must contain like provision for compensating that authority (see s. 63 (3), ante (road passenger transport undertakings), and s. 66 (8), in title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante (harbour undertakings) and Sched. VIII, Part I, post).

Body which directly or indirectly controls another body.—As to the determination of the question whether or not any body corporate directly or indirectly controls any other body corporate, see s. 125 (4) and Sched. XIII, post.

Money properly chargeable to revenue.—See s. 93, post.

Definitions.—For definitions of "borrow," "local authority," "the Minister," "officer" and "securities," see s. 125 (1), post.

89. British transport stock.—(1) The Commission—

- (a) may create and issue any stock required for the purpose of exercising their powers under the last preceding section ;
- (b) shall create and issue such stock as is required for the purpose of satisfying any right to compensation which under any provision of this Act is to be satisfied by the issue of British transport stock ; and
- (c) may, with the consent of the Minister and the approval of the Treasury, create and issue stock in order to satisfy the whole or any part of the amount payable by them on the acquisition of the whole or part of any other undertaking acquired by them by agreement ; and the stock so created and issued is in this Act referred to as "British transport stock";

Provided that the creation and issue of stock under paragraph (c) of this subsection shall be deemed for the purposes of the proviso to subsection (2) of the last preceding section to be a borrowing by the Commission of the amount satisfied by the creation and issue of the stock.

The reference in paragraph (b) of this subsection to compensation which under any provision of this Act is to be satisfied by the issue of British transport stock includes a reference to compensation which is to be so satisfied under any provision of this Act as applied by any scheme or order made under this Act. [1764]

(2) The British transport stock which is to be created and issued under paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of this section in satisfaction of a claim to compensation of any amount shall subject to the provisions of the Fifth Schedule to this Act be such stock as is, in the opinion of the Treasury, equal in value at the date of the issue to that amount, regard being had to the market value of government securities at that date. [1765]

(3) Subject to the provisions of this section and of the said Fifth Schedule, British transport stock shall be issued, transferred, dealt with and redeemed upon such terms and in accordance with such provisions as may be prescribed by regulations made by the Minister, with the approval of the Treasury, and any such regulations may, in relation to any British transport stock, apply with or without modifications any provision of the Local Loans Act, 1875, or of any enactments relating to stock issued by a local authority. [1766]

(4) Notwithstanding anything in the two last preceding subsections, so much of any British transport stock created and issued in satisfaction of compensation in the case of any of the bodies specified in the Third Schedule to this Act as represents securities specified in Part III of the Fourth Schedule to this Act, shall be of the same nominal amount, shall carry interest at the same rates and payable at the same dates, and shall be redeemed at the same dates and on the same notice and by payment of the same amounts, as in the case of the securities. [1767]

(5) Any British transport stock in which no person is interested except the Commission shall be cancelled. [1768]

General note.—British transport stock so far issued in satisfaction of compensation is a dated stock and, unlike the stock issued by way of compensation to colliery concerns under the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (see ss. 23 et seq. thereof; 39 Halsbury's Statutes 279 et seq.), is freely negotiable.

This section may be compared with s. 40 of the Electricity Act, 1947 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante).

Compensation to be satisfied by the issue of stock.—See s. 48, ante. The provisions of that section may be incorporated in an area road transport scheme (see s. 64 (1) (g), ante), a harbour scheme (s. 66 (3) (i), see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante) and an order of the Minister made under s. 68, ante (s. 68 (3), see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante).

Regulations.—Under sub-s. (3), supra, the Minister of Transport with Treasury approval has made the British Transport Stock Regulations, 1947, dated December 11, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2686).

Local Loans Act, 1875.—12 Halsbury's Statutes 242.

90. Treasury guarantees.—(1) The principal of and the interest on any British transport stock created and issued under paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of the last preceding section or created and issued for borrowing money for the purposes specified in paragraph (d) of subsection (2) of the last but one preceding section, shall be guaranteed by the Treasury, and the Treasury may guarantee, in such manner and on such conditions as they think fit, the redemption or repayment of, and the payment of any interest on, any other British transport stock or any temporary loan raised by the Commission. [1769]

(2) Any sums required by the Treasury for fulfilling any such guarantee as is provided for by subsection (1) of this section shall be charged on and issued out of the Consolidated Fund of the United Kingdom or the growing produce thereof (hereinafter referred to as "the Consolidated Fund"), and any such sums shall be repaid, together with interest thereon at such rate as the Treasury may determine, by the Commission to the Treasury in such manner and over such period as the Treasury may, after consultation with the Minister, determine. [1770]

(3) Immediately after a guarantee is given under this section, the Treasury shall lay a statement of the guarantee before each House of Parliament. [1771]

(4) Where any sum is issued out of the Consolidated Fund under this section, the Treasury shall forthwith lay before each House of Parliament a statement that that sum has been so issued. [1772]

General note.—This section provides that the Treasury must guarantee any British transport stock issued by the Commission for the purpose either of satisfying any right to compensation required to be satisfied in stock (as to which see notes to s. 89, ante) or of providing money to satisfy any right to compensation (for which the Commission are empowered to borrow) required to be defrayed in cash (see notes to s. 88, ante).

The section further provides that the Treasury may guarantee any British transport stock issued for any other purpose or any temporary loan raised by the Commission.

This section is in similar terms to s. 42 of the Electricity Act, 1947 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante).

Definition.—For definition of "the Minister," see s. 125 (1), post.

91. Ordinary powers of investment.—Any sums in the hands of the Commission which are not immediately required by them for the purposes of their business may be invested by them in such manner as they think proper. [1773]

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

92. General reserve.—(1) Without prejudice to the power of the Commission to establish appropriate reserves for replacements or other purposes, the Commission shall establish and maintain a general reserve. [1774]

(2) The management of the general reserve, the sums to be carried from time to time to the credit thereof, and the application of the moneys comprised therein shall be as the Commission may determine :

Provided that—

(a) no part of the moneys comprised in the general reserve shall be applied otherwise than for the purposes of the Commission ; and

(b) the Minister may, with the approval of the Treasury, give to the Commission directions as to any matter relating to the establishment or management of the general reserve or the carrying of sums to the credit thereof, or the application thereof, and the Commission shall give effect to any such directions. [1775]

(3) It is hereby declared that one of the purposes of the general reserve is the prevention of frequent fluctuations in the charges made by the Commission, and the powers of the Commission in relation to the general reserve shall be exercised accordingly. [1776]

General note.—This section may be compared with s. 43 of the Electricity Act, 1947 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante). Note that both sub-s. (6) of the said s. 43 and sub-s. (3), supra, make provision for the prevention of frequent fluctuations in charges. Compare also s. 29 of the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 283).

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Directions.—Powers of giving directions to the Commission in addition to that conferred by sub-s. (2) (b), supra, are conferred on the Minister by ss. 4, 6 (8), 63 (4), 66 (9), 71 (4), ante, and ss. 94 (3), (5) and 102 (2), post. See also s. 85, ante.

Definition.—For definition of "the Minister," see s. 125 (1), post.

93. Sums which are to be chargeable to revenue.—The Commission shall charge to revenue in every year all charges which are proper to be made to revenue, including, in particular, proper allocations to general reserve, proper provision for depreciation or renewal of assets and proper provision for redemption of capital, and all payments (including the payments which are by the relevant provisions of this Act, or by any other relevant statutory provision, to be deemed to be capital payments) which fall to be made, in lieu of any other form of compensation, to any local authority in that year in respect of any undertaking transferred to the Commission, and references in this Act to charges properly chargeable to revenue shall be construed accordingly. [1777]

General note.—This section is in very similar terms with s. 45 of the Electricity Act, 1947 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante).

94. Accounts and statistics.—(1) The Commission—

- (a) shall cause proper accounts and other records in relation thereto to be kept; and
- (b) shall prepare an annual statement of accounts in such form and containing such particulars, compiled in such manner, as the Minister may from time to time direct with the approval of the Treasury. [1778]

(2) The said annual statement shall be so framed as to provide, as far as may be, separate information as respects the principal activities of the Commission, and, in combination with the periodical statistics and returns rendered by the Commission, to show, as far as may be, the financial and operating results of each such activity, and the Minister and the Treasury shall exercise their powers under this section accordingly. [1779]

(3) The accounts of the Commission shall be audited by an auditor or auditors to be appointed annually by the Minister and in accordance with a scheme of audit approved by him and, if the Minister so directs, the accounts of the Commission as respects any part of their undertaking specified in the direction shall be separately audited by an auditor or auditors so appointed as aforesaid. [1780]

(4) So soon as the accounts of the Commission have been audited as aforesaid, they shall send a copy of the statement of accounts referred to in paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of this section to the Minister, together with a copy of the report made by the auditor or auditors on that statement, and a copy of that statement and of any such report shall be included in the report which is under Part I of this Act to be laid by the Minister annually before each House of Parliament. [1781]

(5) The Commission shall compile and render to the Minister such periodical statistics and returns relating to each of their principal activities in such forms and at such times as the Minister may direct, and the Minister shall lay a copy of any such statistics and returns before each House of Parliament:

Provided that, in giving any directions under this subsection, the Minister shall have regard to the desirability of requiring the Commission to compile and render statistics and returns on a basis which, in his opinion, is reasonably comparable with that of the statistics and returns required at the date of the passing of this Act to be rendered by railway and canal companies by or under the enactments mentioned in the next succeeding subsection. [1782]

(6) Sections nine and ten of the Regulation of Railways Act, 1871, sections thirty-two and thirty-nine of the Railway and Canal Traffic Act, 1888, the Railway Companies (Accounts and Returns) Act, 1911, and section seventy-seven of the Railways Act, 1921 (which relate to the keeping of and audit of accounts of railway companies, and the making of returns and the keeping of statistics by railway and canal companies) and, except in so far as the Minister may by order otherwise provide, so much of any other statutory provision as relates to the accounts, statistics and returns to be kept or made by the owners of undertakings transferred to the Commission (whether in whole or in part and whether by agreement or otherwise), or as relates to the audit or publication of any such accounts, shall not apply to the Commission. ## PART VII

CONDITIONS OF EMPLOYMENT, PENSIONS AND COMPENSATION TO OFFICERS AND SERVANTS

Conditions of Employment

95. General provisions as to terms and conditions of employment of staff, etc.—(1) It shall be the duty of the Commission, except so far as the Commission are satisfied that adequate machinery exists for achieving the purposes of this subsection, to seek consultation with any organisation appearing to the Commission to be appropriate, with a view to the conclusion between the Commission and that organisation of such agreements as appear to the parties to be desirable with respect to the establishment and maintenance of machinery for—

- (a) the settlement by negotiation of terms and conditions of employment of persons employed by the Commission, with provision for reference to arbitration in default of such settlement in such cases as may be determined by or under the agreements; and
- (b) the promotion and encouragement of measures affecting the safety, health and welfare of persons employed by the Commission, and the discussion of other matters of mutual interest to the Commission and such persons, including efficiency in the operation of the Commission's services. [1784]

(2) Where the Commission conclude such an agreement as is mentioned in the last preceding subsection or any variation is made in such an agreement, the Commission shall forthwith transmit particulars of the agreement or the variation to the Minister and the Minister of Labour and National Service. [1785]

(3) Without prejudice to the generality of the provisions of this Act relating to the effect of a delegation of powers of the Commission to an Executive, it is hereby declared that the preceding provisions of this section require to be satisfied separately as respects the persons under the control of each Executive or under the direct control of the Commission itself, and references in the preceding provisions of this section to the Commission shall be construed accordingly:

Provided that where such an agreement as is mentioned in subsection (1) of this section is concluded by an Executive, or any variation is made in such an agreement by an Executive, the Executive concerned shall forthwith transmit particulars of the agreement or the variation to the Commission and the Commission shall then transmit those particulars to the Minister and the Minister of Labour and National Service. [1786]

(4) Nothing in this section shall be construed as prohibiting the Commission or any Executive from taking part together with other employers in the establishment and maintenance of machinery for the settlement of terms and conditions of employment and the promotion and encouragement of measures affecting the safety, health and welfare of their workers and the discussion of other matters of mutual interest to them and their workers. [1787]

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Executive.—As to the delegation of the Commission's powers to an Executive, see s. 5, ante.

96. Provisions as to Part IV of Railways Act, 1921, and Part VI of London Passenger Transport Act, 1933. [1788]

97. Police force conference. [1789]

Pensions

98. Provisions as to pension rights.—(1) The Minister may make regulations for all or any of the following purposes, that is to say—

(a) for providing pensions to or in respect of—

(i) persons who are or have been in the employment of the Commission or any body in whom there vests or to whom there is transferred any undertaking or part of an undertaking under any of the provisions of a scheme or order made under this Act ;

(ii) persons who have been employed in any undertaking the whole of which under or by virtue of any of the provisions of this Act or of a scheme or order made thereunder or under any agreement vests in or is transferred to the Commission or any other body but who have not been taken into the service of the Commission or that body ;

(iii) persons who are or have been employed in any undertaking part of which under or by virtue of any of the provisions of this Act or of a scheme or order made thereunder or under any agreement vests in or is transferred to the Commission or any other body, being persons who have been employed in connection with any activities of that undertaking which are transferred to the Commission or that body but who have not been taken into the service of the Commission or that body ;

(iv) persons who are or have been employed in connection with the Caledonian and Crinan Canals or Holyhead Harbour, or by or in connection with the Railway Clearing House ;

(b) for the establishment and administration of pension schemes and pension funds for any of the purposes of the preceding paragraph, for the continuance, amendment, repeal or revocation of existing pension schemes relating in whole or in part to any of the like purposes and of statutory provisions relating thereto and trust deeds, rules or other instruments made for the purposes thereof, for the transfer in whole or in part, or for the extinguishment, of liabilities under any such existing pension schemes, and for the transfer in whole or in part, or winding up, of pension funds held for the purposes of any such existing pension schemes, so, however, that nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as authorising the diversion of any such funds to purposes other than those of the preceding paragraph.

- (c) for making any provision consequential on any such provision as aforesaid, including provision for the dissolution or winding up of bodies, whether incorporated or not, the continued existence whereof is unnecessary having regard to the regulations. [1790]

(2) Where provision is made by any such regulations for the amendment, repeal or revocation of any existing pension scheme or of any statutory provisions relating thereto or any trust deed, rules or other instrument made for the purposes thereof, or for the transfer or extinguishment of any liability under any pension scheme or for the transfer or winding up of any pension fund held for the purposes of any such scheme, the regulations shall be so framed as to secure that persons having pension rights under the scheme, whether such persons as are mentioned in paragraph (a) of the last preceding subsection or not, are not placed in any worse position by reason of the amendment, repeal, revocation, transfer, extinguishment or winding up :

Provided that this subsection shall have effect subject to such limitations as may be prescribed for meeting cases in which, in connection with any provision made by this Act or in anticipation of the making of any such provision, pension rights have been created otherwise than in the ordinary course. [1791]

(3) Regulations made under this section shall not be invalid by reason that in fact they do not secure that persons having pension rights are not placed in any worse position by reason of any such amendment, repeal, revocation, transfer, extinguishment or winding up as is mentioned in the last preceding subsection, but if the Minister is satisfied or it is determined as hereinafter mentioned that any such regulations have failed to secure that result, the Minister shall as soon as may be make the necessary amending regulations.

Any dispute arising between the Minister and any person as to whether or not the said result has been secured by any regulations made under this section shall be referred to a referee or board of referees appointed by the Minister of Labour and National Service after consultation with the Lord Chancellor or, where the proceedings are to be held in Scotland, after consultation with the Secretary of State, for his or their determination thereon. [1792]

(4) Without prejudice to the generality of the preceding provisions of this section, regulations made under this section may contain provisions authorising any person who, being a participant in any pension scheme to which the regulations relate, becomes a member of the Commission or of an Executive being treated as if his service as a member of the Commission or of an Executive, as the case may be, were service in the employment of the Commission, and the pension rights of any such persons resulting from the operation of any such provision shall not be affected by any provision of this Act which requires that the pensions, if any, which are to be paid in the case of members of the Commission or an Executive are to be determined by the Minister with the approval of the Treasury or by the Commission with the approval of the Minister and the Treasury. [1793]

(5) Nothing in this section shall authorise the making of regulations relating to an existing pension scheme which provide for the payment by any person carrying on an undertaking or part of an undertaking in which persons to whom that scheme relates are employed, being an undertaking which, or such part of an undertaking as, has not vested in or been transferred to the Commission or any body by or under this Act or any scheme or order made thereunder—

- (a) of contributions in respect of the services of persons who are no longer employed in that undertaking or part of an undertaking rendered after they cease to be so employed ; or

(b) of contributions in respect of persons who are employed in that undertaking or part of an undertaking in excess of the contributions provided for by the existing pension scheme. [1794]

(6) Nothing in this section, and in particular nothing in subsection (2) thereof, shall be taken to derogate from the power conferred by subsection (4) of section sixty-nine of the National Insurance Act, 1946, to make regulations providing for the modifying or winding up of pension schemes in connection with the passing of that Act. [1795]

(7) Regulations made under this section may contain such supplementary and consequential provisions as the Minister thinks necessary, including provisions as to the manner in which questions arising under the regulations are to be determined and provisions adapting, modifying or repealing statutory provisions. [1796]

(8) Regulations made for the purposes of this section may be made so as to have effect from a date prior to the making thereof, so, however, that so much of any regulations as provides that any provision thereof is to have effect from a date prior to the making thereof shall not place any person other than the Commission in a worse position than he would have been in if the regulations had been made to have effect only as from the date of the making thereof. [1797]

General note.—This section is necessarily lengthy and intricate since it has to make provision not only for the establishment of a comprehensive pension scheme or schemes by the Commission, but also for dealing with the great variety of pension schemes both of road haulage undertakings transferred under Part III of the Act and of undertakings to be transferred under schemes or orders made under Part IV.

It is necessary to provide for the continuance, amendment, repeal and revocation of such schemes and the transfer of liabilities thereunder. The section empowers the Minister to make the necessary regulations for these and other purposes. Persons having existing pension rights are protected by the provision that no regulation for amending, repealing or revoking an existing scheme is to place them in a worse position.

Regulations.—No regulations under this section had been made up to the time of going to press, but the Minister of Transport stated on the Committee Stage of the Bill that he intended to make such regulations as soon as he had had time to consult with the Commission (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.B., April 1, 1947, col. 1276).

As to regulations generally, see s. 120, post.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Undertakings transferred under a scheme or order.—Area road transport undertakings and harbour undertakings may be transferred under the provisions of a scheme (see, respectively, s. 64 (1) (b), ante, and in title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, s. 66 (1) (b), ante).

An undertaking providing port facilities may, following a declaration of the Transport Tribunal that it is to be transferred, be transferred by order of the Minister (see s. 68 (2) in title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante).

Undertakings transferred under an agreement.—As to the transfer to the Commission of undertakings by agreement, see ss. 2 (2) (f), 4 (4), 7, ante. As to the provision to be made for the compensation of officers and servants in such cases, see s. 102, post.

99. Special provisions as to railway and canal pension funds, etc. [1798]

100. Superannuation rights of certain officers transferred to the Ministry of Transport. [1799]

Compensation

101. Compensation to officers and servants in connection with transfers.—

(1) The Minister shall by regulations require the Commission to pay, in such cases and to such extent as may be specified in the regulations, compensation—

(a) to officers or servants of any person whose undertaking is transferred to the Commission by Part II of this Act; or

(b) to officers or servants of any person whose undertaking or part of whose undertaking is transferred to the Commission by notice of acquisition given under Part III of this Act; or

- (c) to officers or servants employed in connection with the Caledonian and Crinan Canals or Holyhead Harbour ; or
- (d) to officers or servants employed by a body which, immediately before the date of transfer under Part II of this Act, was completely controlled by one or more of the bodies specified in the Third Schedule to this Act ; or
- (e) to officers or servants employed by or in connection with the Railway Clearing House, being officers or servants who suffer loss of employment or loss or diminution of emoluments or pension rights or whose position is worsened in consequence—

- (i) in the cases mentioned in paragraphs (a) to (c) of this subsection, of the transfer effected by Part II of this Act, the transfer effected in pursuance of the notice, or the transfer effected by the provisions of this Act relating to the said Caledonian and Crinan Canals and Holyhead Harbour, as the case may be ;
- (ii) in the cases mentioned in paragraph (d) of this subsection, of the transfer effected by Part II of this Act ; and
- (iii) in the cases mentioned in paragraph (e) of this subsection, of the transfer effected by the said Part II or the coming into operation of any provision of a scheme under this Act relating to the Railway Clearing House. [1800]

(2) Different regulations may be made under this section in relation to different classes of persons and different classes of transfers, and any such regulations may be so framed as to have effect as from a date prior to the making thereof, so, however, that so much of any regulations as provides that any provision thereof is to have effect as from a date earlier than the making thereof shall not place any person other than the Commission in a worse position than he would have been in if the regulations had been made to have effect only as from the date of the making thereof. [1801]

(3) Regulations made under subsection (1) of this section—

- (a) may prescribe the procedure to be followed in making claims for compensation, and the manner in which and the persons by whom the question whether any or what compensation is payable is to be determined ; and
- (b) may in particular contain provisions enabling appeals from any determination as to whether any or what compensation is payable to be brought, in such cases and subject to such conditions as may be prescribed by the regulations, to a referee or board of referees appointed by the Minister of Labour and National Service, after consultation with the Lord Chancellor or, where the proceedings are to be held in Scotland, after consultation with the Secretary of State, and where any such provision is made as is specified in paragraph (b) of this subsection, the decision of the referee or board of referees shall be final. [1802]

(4) No regulations shall be made under this section unless a draft thereof has been laid before Parliament and has been approved by resolution of each House of Parliament. [1803]

(5) Nothing in this section shall be construed as enabling regulations to be made prejudicing the rights of any person under the Third Schedule to the Railways Act, 1921, or Part VII of the London Passenger Transport Act, 1933. [1804]

(6) For the purposes of this section, a body shall be deemed to be completely controlled by one or more other bodies if and only if it is a body with a share capital and no person other than one or more of the following persons, that is to say—

- (a) the other bodies aforesaid ;
- (b) bodies themselves completely controlled by one or more of those other bodies ; and
- (c) persons holding not more than one share each as subscribers to the Memorandum of Association of the body in question, has any beneficial interest in any of that share capital which carries voting rights, not being voting rights exercisable only in the event of a default in the payment of dividend, or in any other special circumstances defined in the Articles of Association of the body in question. [1805]

General note.—This section imposes on the Minister an obligation to make regulations requiring the Commission to pay compensation to officers and servants of, inter alia, a road haulage undertaking transferred under Part III of the Act if they suffer loss of employment or loss or diminution of emoluments or pension rights or if their position is worsened in consequence of the transfer.

As to the provision to be made in like circumstances for compensating officers and servants of undertakings transferred under a scheme or an agreement or under an order of the Minister under s. 68 (3), see s. 102, infra.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Regulations.—No regulations under this section had been made up to the time of going to press. Regulations under this section, unlike regulations made under other sections of the Act, require to be laid before Parliament in draft and approved by resolution of each House (see sub-s. (4), ante, and s. 120, post).

This is an example of the affirmative procedure to which the provisions of ss. 4 to 7 of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 785 et seq.), do not apply.

Holyhead Harbour.—See s. 69, ante.

Referee or board of referees.—The Arbitration Acts, 1889 to 1934 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 453, 469 ; 23 Halsbury's Statutes 4 ; 27 Halsbury's Statutes 27), do not apply to proceedings before a referee or board of referees under this section, see s. 104, post. As to the payment of fees and allowances to a referee or member of a board of referees, see s. 103, post.

Railways Act, 1921, Sched. III.—14 Halsbury's Statutes 374.

London Passenger Transport Act, 1933, Part VII.—26 Halsbury's Statutes 807-818.

Definitions.—For definitions of "dividend," "emoluments," "the Minister," "officer" and "pension rights," see s. 125 (1), post.

102. Compensation to officers and servants in other cases.—(1) The Minister shall not regard as satisfactory for the purposes of sub-paragraph (1) of paragraph 1 of the Eighth Schedule to this Act any scheme which provides for the transfer of the whole or any part of any undertaking, and shall not give his approval to any agreement providing for the transfer of the whole or any part of an undertaking which, under any provision of this Act, requires his approval, unless he is satisfied that appropriate provision has been or will be made by the scheme or agreement for the payment by the transferee in the appropriate cases and to the appropriate extent of compensation to officers and servants who suffer loss of employment or loss or diminution of emoluments or pension rights or whose position is worsened in consequence of the transfer in question. [1806]

(2) Where under any provision of this Act an agreement for the transfer of an undertaking or part of an undertaking to the Commission can be made without the approval of the Minister, the agreement shall contain such provisions in relation to the matters specified in subsection (1) of this section as the Minister may by general direction to the Commission require. [1807]

(3) Any order by the Minister giving effect to the transfer to the Commission or any other body of the whole or part of a canal carrier undertaking, or an undertaking providing port facilities, with respect to which a declaration has been made under the provisions of this Act by the Transport Tribunal, shall, notwithstanding any power of the Minister to except provisions of this Act from application to such a transfer, include such provision as appears to him appropriate in relation to the matters specified in subsection (1) of this section. [1808]

Satisfactory for the purposes of Sched. VIII, paragraph 1 (1).—Apart from Railway Clearing House schemes, which are outside the scope of this volume, schemes under the Act are of two sorts :

- (i) area road transport schemes ; and
- (ii) schemes as to harbours, neither of which have effect until embodied in an order made by the Minister in accordance with Sched. VIII, post (s. 63 (3), ante, and s. 66 (8), in title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante).

Paragraph 1 (1) of Sched. VIII provides that where a scheme submitted to the Minister appears to him to make satisfactory provision with respect to the matters dealt with in the scheme, he is to prepare a draft order embodying the scheme. Accordingly, sub-s. (1), ante, by providing that the Minister is not to regard as satisfactory for the purposes of the said paragraph 1 (1), inter alia, any scheme which provides for the transfer of an undertaking unless he is satisfied that appropriate provision has been or will be made for compensating officers and servants as set out in the subsection, has the effect of making it obligatory to include such provision in any such scheme.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Agreements requiring Minister's approval.—See s. 4 (4), ante. As to the acquisition of undertakings by the Commission by agreement, see ss. 2 (2) (f) and 7, ante.

Directions.—In addition to the power of giving a general direction to the Commission conferred on the Minister by sub-s. (2), ante, powers of giving directions are also conferred by ss. 4, 6 (8), 63 (4), 66 (9), 71 (4), 92 (2) (b), 94 (3), (5), ante. See also s. 85, ante.

Declaration made by the Transport Tribunal.—As to an order of the Minister giving effect to the transfer of an undertaking providing port facilities with respect to which a declaration has been made by the Transport Tribunal, see s. 68 in title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante.

Definitions.—For definitions of “canal carrier undertaking,” “emoluments,” “the Minister,” “officer,” “pension rights” and “port facilities,” see s. 125 (1), post.

103. Fees and allowances on references under Part VII to referees.—The Minister of Labour and National Service may, with the consent of the Treasury, pay, out of moneys provided by Parliament,—

- (a) to any referee or to the members of any board of referees appointed by him under any provision of this Part of this Act or under any such provision of a scheme or agreement as is referred to in subsection (1) of the last preceding section or under any such provision of an order as is mentioned in subsection (3) of the last preceding section such fees and allowances as he may with the consent of the Treasury determine ; and
- (b) to persons giving evidence before any such referees or board such allowances as he may with the consent of the Treasury determine.

Appointed under any provision of this Part of this Act.—See s. 101 (3) (b), ante.

104. Arbitration Acts do not apply to proceedings before referees or boards of referees.—Nothing in the Arbitration Acts, 1889 to 1934, shall be construed as applying to any proceedings before a referee or board of referees appointed under this Part of this Act by the Minister of Labour and National Service. [1810]

Arbitration Acts, 1889 to 1934.—The Arbitration Acts, 1889 to 1934, are the Arbitration Act, 1889 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 453) ; the Arbitration Clauses (Protocol) Act, 1924 (1 Halsbury's Statutes 469) ; the Arbitration (Foreign Awards) Act, 1930 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 4) ; and the Arbitration Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 27).

Appointed under this Part of the Act.—See s. 101 (3) (b), ante.

PART VIII

SETTLEMENT OF QUESTIONS ARISING IN CONNECTION WITH COMPULSORY ACQUISITIONS

105. Establishment of Transport Arbitration Tribunal.—(1) For the purpose of performing the functions specified in this Part of this Act, there shall be established a tribunal to be called “The Transport Arbitration Tribunal” (in this Act referred to as the arbitration tribunal). [1811]

(2) The arbitration tribunal shall consist of—

- (a) one member, to be appointed by the Lord Chancellor, who shall be a person of legal experience and shall, subject to the provisions of this subsection, be the president of the tribunal ;

- (b) one member, to be appointed by the Lord President of the Court of Session, who shall be a person of legal experience in Scotland ; and
- (c) two members, to be appointed by the Lord Chancellor, of whom one shall be a person of experience in business and one shall be a person of experience in finance :

Provided that the person appointed under paragraph (a) of this subsection shall not act in relation to any proceedings which, under the provisions of this Part of this Act, are to be treated as Scottish proceedings ; and the person appointed under paragraph (b) of this subsection shall only act in relation to such proceedings and, in relation thereto, shall act as president of the tribunal. [1812]

(3) The members of the arbitration tribunal shall hold office for such period as may be determined at the time of their respective appointments and shall be eligible for reappointment :

Provided that—

- (a) a member may at any time by notice in writing to the Lord Chancellor, or the Lord President of the Court of Session, as the case may be, resign his office ;
- (b) the Lord Chancellor, or the Lord President of the Court of Session, as the case may be, may declare the office of any member vacant on the ground of incapacity to perform the duties of the office or misbehaviour ;
- (c) if any member becomes bankrupt or makes an arrangement with his creditors, his office shall thereupon become vacant. [1813]
- (4) If any member of the arbitration tribunal becomes, by reason of illness or other infirmity, temporarily incapable of performing the duties of his office, the Lord Chancellor, or the Lord President of the Court of Session, as the case may be, shall appoint some other fit person to discharge his duties for any period not exceeding six months at one time, and the person so appointed shall, during that period, have the same powers as the person in whose place he is appointed. [1814]
- (5) The arbitration tribunal may, at any stage in any proceedings before them, refer the proceedings for hearing and determination to a person or persons appointed by them for the purpose, and where any proceedings are so referred, the person or persons to whom the proceedings are referred shall be deemed to constitute the tribunal for the purposes of those proceedings and shall have all the powers and duties of the tribunal in relation to the hearing and determination thereof. [1815]

General note.—The Lord Chancellor has appointed under this section the following persons as the first members of the Transport Arbitration Tribunal : Mr. C. Montgomery White, K.C. (president), Mr. B. G. Catterns and Sir Russell Kettle.

106. Procedure and enforcement of orders of arbitration tribunal.—

(1) The arbitration tribunal shall be a court of record and have an official seal, which shall be judicially noticed, and any order of the tribunal shall be enforceable as if it were an order of the High Court. [1816]

(2) The provisions of the Arbitration Acts, 1889 to 1934, with respect to—

- (a) the administration of oaths and the taking of affirmations ; and
- (b) the correction in awards of mistakes and errors ; and
- (c) the summoning, attendance and examination of witnesses and the production of documents ; and
- (d) the costs of the reference and award, shall, with any necessary modifications, apply in respect of any proceedings before the arbitration tribunal, but save as aforesaid the said Acts shall not apply to any such proceedings. [1817]

(3) The arbitration tribunal may, and if so ordered by the Court of Appeal, shall, state in the form of a special case for determination by the Court of Appeal any question of law which may arise before them. [1818]

(4) The Minister shall have a right to be heard in all proceedings before the arbitration tribunal. [1819]

(6) In relation to proceedings which, under this Part of this Act, are to be treated as Scottish proceedings, this section shall have effect subject to the following modifications—

(a) for subsections (2) and (3), there shall be respectively substituted the following subsections—

“(2) The arbitration tribunal shall have the like powers for securing the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents, and with regard to the examination of witnesses on oath and the awarding of expenses as if the arbitration tribunal were an arbiter under a submission.

(3) The arbitration tribunal may, and if so directed by the Court of Session shall, state a case for the opinion of that Court on any question of law arising in the proceedings, and the decision of that Court thereon shall be final unless the Court of Session or the House of Lords give leave to appeal to the House of Lords, which leave may be given on such terms as to expenses or otherwise as the Court of Session or the House of Lords may determine.

(b) in subsection (5), for the reference to the Lord Chancellor there shall be substituted a reference to the Secretary of State, and, in the case of any such proceedings, the tribunal shall, except in so far as for special reasons they think fit not to do so, sit in Scotland. [1821]

Provided that the confirmation of the tribunal shall not be required in the case of an agreement for the payment of compensation to any person if the total amount of the compensation payable to him thereunder does not exceed twenty thousand pounds. [1826]

(2) The arbitration tribunal shall not confirm any agreement which requires their confirmation unless they are satisfied either—

- (a) that the relevant facts have been fully investigated and the amount agreed to be paid is believed by the parties to the agreement to represent, with as much accuracy as is possible, the amount required to be paid on a strict application of the relevant provisions of this Act ; or
- (b) that the amount agreed to be paid represents a reasonable estimate of the amount which would ultimately be found to be payable if the relevant facts were fully ascertained and the relevant provisions of this Act strictly applied thereto, and that further investigation of the facts would cause undue delay or expense ; or
- (c) that the amount to be paid represents a reasonable compromise of a disputed claim :

Provided that where the arbitration tribunal are not so satisfied as aforesaid but would have been so satisfied if a different sum had been fixed by the agreement, they may direct that the agreement shall have effect as if such sum as the tribunal may specify were substituted in the agreement for the sum therein mentioned, and where such a direction is given the like consequences shall follow as would have followed if the agreement had originally been made with that substitution and the agreement had then been confirmed by the tribunal. [1827]

(3) Where the compensation to which any such agreement as aforesaid relates arises out of or in connection with the transfer of an undertaking having its principal place of business in Scotland, the proceedings shall, subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act, be treated as Scottish proceedings. - (d) whether any such notice of disclaimer is in any other respect invalid ; or
- (e) any other question required by any provision of this Act to be determined by the arbitration tribunal. [1829]

(2) Where any question is submitted under this section to the arbitration tribunal, the tribunal may determine the amount of compensation which is to be payable to any person, and for that purpose may require the Commission or any other person affected to give to the tribunal such information as the tribunal may require, and the tribunal may, if they think fit and are satisfied that further investigation of the facts would cause undue delay or expense, fix, as the amount to be paid, a sum estimated by them to be reasonably equivalent to the amount which would ultimately be found to be payable if the relevant facts were fully ascertained and the relevant provisions of this Act strictly applied thereto. [1832]

[1835]

(2) If, at any stage in any proceedings before the arbitration tribunal which would otherwise be treated as Scottish proceedings, the tribunal are satisfied that, by reason of the fact that questions of English law arise or for any other reason, the proceedings ought no longer to be treated as Scottish proceedings, they may make an order that the proceedings shall thereafter not be treated as Scottish proceedings and the provisions of this Part of this Act shall have effect accordingly. ## PART IX

MISCELLANEOUS AND GENERAL

114. Additional compensation to local authorities.—(1) Where, under Part II of this Act or under any scheme made under Part IV of this Act, any undertaking to which this section applies is transferred from a local authority to the Commission or to a body constituted or specified under such a scheme, the Commission or that body, as the case may be, shall pay to the authority whose undertaking is transferred the appropriate sum as compensation under this section. [1839]

(2) The undertakings to which this section applies are—

- (a) any undertaking of a local authority which falls to be transferred under Part II of this Act ;
- (b) any undertaking which, at the passing of this Act, is being carried on by a local authority, being an undertaking which could be transferred to the Commission or to some other body as aforesaid under a scheme under Part IV of this Act ; and the expression “ the appropriate sum ” means, in relation to any undertaking to which this section applies, such sum as may be specified in relation to that undertaking by regulations made by the Minister, so, however, that the total of all the appropriate sums for undertakings the activities whereof consist wholly or partly of operating passenger road transport services does not exceed two and a half million pounds and the total of all the appropriate sums for other undertakings does not exceed two hundred thousand pounds. [1840]

(3) This section shall apply in relation to a transfer of a part of an undertaking to which this section applies as it applies in relation to the whole of that undertaking, except that the sum payable by way of compensation under this section shall be such part of the appropriate sum as may be determined by the Minister ; and the total of the sums so determined by the Minister in relation to parts of an undertaking shall not exceed the appropriate sum for the whole of that undertaking. [1841]

(4) The compensation payable under this section shall be payable in cash and shall be in addition to any compensation payable under any provision of this Act, or under any other provision of this Act as applied by a scheme ; and the references in Part IV of this Act to provisions of this Act relating to compensation shall be deemed not to include references to this section. [1842]

(5) In this section, the expression “ local authority ” includes the council of a county district. [1843]

General note.—The only provision made in the original Bill for the payment of compensation to a local authority in respect to the transfer of an undertaking belonging to it, was that made by s. 25, ante. The present section, however, together with s. 23 of the Electricity Act, 1947 (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante), which passed through Parliament contemporaneously with the present Act, were inserted by Amendments moved by the Government in order to provide additional compensation to local authorities in respect of severance and increase of overhead expenses resulting from the acquisition of their transport and electricity undertakings respectively.

The amount of this additional compensation, under the Electricity Act, 1947, s. 23, is £5,000,000, and under the present section £2,500,000 in respect of road passenger transport undertakings and £200,000 in respect of harbour undertakings.

Speaking on the Committee Stage of the Bill with regard to these amounts, the Minister of Transport said :

“ The problem that has confronted me has been a little more difficult [than that confronting the Minister of Fuel and Power, the Minister in charge of the Electricity Bill], because the question of the transfer or treatment of the transport undertakings of local authorities would not arise [subject to one exception, however ; see notes to s. 25, ante] until area schemes were initiated by the Commission and ultimately considered and determined by ministerial order. Nevertheless, as a result of discussions with those who represent the local authorities, we have reached . . . agreement upon a transport sum. As we calculate the capital expenditure, the gross receipts of the transport undertakings of local authorities as compared with electricity undertakings are only about half, or half the capital expenditure represented. . . .

“ This sum of £2,500,000 has been arrived at on the basis of five or six years' purchase of one per cent. of the gross receipts of the local authorities' passenger transport premises. The sum of £200,000 is for municipal dock compensation. . . . It has been arrived at on a similar principle. It is considered that it will be sufficient to taper off and to enable the local authorities to make the necessary adjustments.”

The Minister of Transport pointed out that these amounts were global amounts covering payments to all local authorities, and that it would not be possible to determine the "appropriate sum" to be paid to a particular authority or the method of payment until the scheme affecting that authority had been made (436 H. of C. Official Report 1635, 1766).

Local authority.—This means the council of a county, the Common Council of the City of London, the council of a county borough or the council of a county district (see s. 125 (1), post, and sub-s. (5), ante).

Passing of the Act.—August 6, 1947.

115. Right of pre-emption for local authorities in certain cases.—(1) Where, on the occasion of the acquisition by the Commission, whether by agreement or otherwise, of the whole or any part of any undertaking of any local authority, the Commission acquire any land theretofore held by the local authority for the purposes of that undertaking, the local authority shall, for a period of ten years from the date of the acquisition of the land, have the right of pre-emption conferred by the subsequent provisions of this section.

(2) If the Commission, within the said period of ten years, desire to dispose, whether absolutely or for a term of years, of any of that land as being land not required by them for the discharge of their duties under this Act, they shall before disposing of it give to the local authority at least three months' notice, stating whether they desire to dispose of it absolutely and, if not, stating the term of years for which they desire to dispose of it. [1845]

(3) Where the local authority receive a notice under subsection (2) of this section and notify the Commission, before the expiration of the period of three months from the date of the Commission's notice, that they desire to acquire the land either absolutely or for the term of years specified in the Commission's notice, as the case may be, they shall have the right and be under an obligation to acquire that land, on such terms as may be agreed between the Commission and the authority or, in default of agreement, as may be determined by arbitration to be fair and reasonable having regard to all the circumstances of the case. [1846]

(4) The right of pre-emption conferred upon the local authority by this section shall be deemed to be an estate contract within the meaning of section ten of the Land Charges Act, 1925, and that Act and the Land Registration Act, 1925, shall have effect accordingly. [1847]

(5) In this section, the expression "local authority" includes the council of a county district. [1848]

General note.—This section, like the preceding section, was inserted by Government Amendment during the Committee Stage of the Bill. It gives local authorities a right of pre-emption in regard to any land acquired from the authorities by the British Transport Commission of which within a period of ten years from acquisition the Commission wish to dispose.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (s. 1 (1), ante).

Local authority.—This means the council of a county, the Common Council of the City of London, the council of a county borough, or the council of a county district (see s. 125 (1), post, and sub-s. (5), supra).

Land Charges Act, 1925, s. 10.—15 Halsbury's Statutes 531. That section defines an "estate contract" as any contract by an estate owner or by a person entitled at the date of the contract to have a legal estate conveyed to him to convey or create a legal estate, including a contract conferring either expressly or by statutory implication a valid option of purchase, a right of pre-emption or any other like right.

The effect of providing that the right of pre-emption conferred by the present section shall be deemed to be an estate contract, and that the Land Registration Act, 1925 (15 Halsbury's Statutes 434), is to have effect accordingly, is that in the case of unregistered land the right becomes registrable as a land charge in the register of land charges under the said s. 10, and in the case of registered land, becomes capable of being protected by the registration of an entry under s. 59 of the Land Registration Act, 1925 (15 Halsbury's Statutes 469).

116. Treatment of Travel Agencies. [1849]

117. Renaming of Traffic Commissioners and licensing authorities.—The Traffic Commissioners appointed under Part IV of the Road Traffic Act, 1930, for any area shall be known as "The Licensing Authority for Public Service Vehicles", and the licensing authority for the purposes of Part I of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, for any area shall be known as "The Licensing Authority for Goods Vehicles", and references in this Act or in any other statutory provision shall be construed accordingly. [1850]

General note.—The purpose of this section is to avoid confusion arising from the similarity in the titles of the Traffic Commissioners and the Commission.

Traffic Commissioners under Part IV of the Road Traffic Act, 1930.—23 Halsbury's Statutes 654 et seq. The Traffic Commission consist of a body of three commissioners appointed by the Minister of Transport under s. 63 of the Road Traffic Act, 1930 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 656), for each of the traffic areas specified in Sched. III to that Act. They have the duty of issuing licences under Part IV of that Act and of exercising such other powers and performing such other duties as are conferred or imposed on them by or in pursuance of that Act, and subject as aforesaid act under the general directions of the Minister (see the Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 63 (1), supra).

Licensing authority for purposes of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, Part I.—26 Halsbury's Statutes 872 et seq. The licensing authority for the purposes of Part I of the Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933, for any area, is in accordance with s. 4 (1) of that Act (26 Halsbury's Statutes 876), the person who is the chairman of the traffic commissioners for any traffic area within the meaning of the Road Traffic Act, 1930 (see preceding note), including any person for the time being appointed by the Minister of Transport to act as deputy to the chairman.

By s. 4 (2) of the Act of 1933 that section is to have effect as respects the Metropolitan traffic area with the substitution of a reference to the traffic commissioner for that area for the reference to the chairman of the commissioners.

Definition.—For definition of "statutory provision," see s. 125 (1), post.

118. Special provisions as to River Lee. [1851]

119. Miscellaneous regulation-making powers.—Without prejudice to any other provision of this Act providing for the making of regulations, the Minister may make regulations—

- (a) prescribing anything which under this Act is to be prescribed;
- (b) specifying the manner in which any documents required or authorised by this Act to be served on any person are to be so served;
- (c) making provision for the safe custody and redelivery or disposal of any property found on or in any premises, vessels or vehicles belonging to the Commission and fixing the charges to be made by the Commission in respect thereof;
- (d) providing for the registration of the title of the Commission to property vesting in them under or by virtue of any provision of this Act, being property of a kind subject to provision for the registration of title thereto;
- (e) authorising the Commission or any person the whole or any part of whose undertaking has been or is to be the subject of a transfer under this Act to the Commission to inspect property or inspect or make extracts from or take copies of documents in the custody or under the control of that person or of the Commission, as the case may be.

General note.—As to the procedure for making regulations, see s. 120, infra. See also s. 61, ante.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Definitions.—For definitions of "the Minister" and "property," see s. 125 (1), post.

120. Other provisions as to orders and regulations.—(1) Any order made under this Act by the Minister may be revoked or varied by a subsequent order made in the like manner and subject to the like conditions. [1853]

(2) Any regulations made under this Act by the Minister or by any other Minister of the Crown or government department, other than those made under section one hundred and one of this Act, shall be laid before Parliament immediately after they are made, and, if either House, within a period of forty days after the regulations are so laid before it, resolves that the regulations be annulled, the regulations shall thereupon cease to have effect, but without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done thereunder or to the making of new regulations. [1854]

(3) In reckoning for the purposes of the last preceding subsection any such period of forty days, no account shall be taken of any time during which Parliament is dissolved or prorogued or during which both Houses are adjourned for more than four days. [1855]

(4) Notwithstanding anything in subsection (4) of section one of the Rules Publication Act, 1893, regulations and orders made under this Act shall be deemed not to be, or to contain, statutory rules to which that section applies. [1856]

General note.—As to regulations see also ss. 61, 119, ante.

Regulations.—The Statutory Instruments Act, 1946, s. 1 (2) (39 Halsbury's Statutes 784) provides that where by any Act passed before the commencement of that Act power to make statutory rules within the meaning of the Rules Publication Act, 1893 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1016), was conferred on any rule-making authority, any document by which that power is exercised after the commencement of the Act of 1946 shall, save as is otherwise provided by regulations made under that Act, be known as a "statutory instrument" and the provisions of that Act shall apply thereto accordingly. Statutory rules within the meaning of the Rules Publication Act, 1893, include, in accordance with s. 4 of that Act, regulations made under any Act of Parliament by a government department.

Accordingly, regulations under this section made after the Act of 1946 was brought fully into force on January 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 3), require to be laid before Parliament in accordance with s. 4 of that Act in substitution for the corresponding provisions of this section and the provision of s. 5 of that Act for annulment in pursuance of resolution of either House will be substituted for the corresponding provisions of the present section.

Rules Publication Act, 1893, s. 1 (4).—18 Halsbury's Statutes 1016. The effect of providing that regulations and orders made under the Act are to be deemed not to be, or to contain, statutory rules within the meaning of the Rules Publication Act, 1893, s. 1 (4), supra, is that notice of a proposal to make any such regulations or orders will not need to be published in the London Gazette in accordance with sub-s. (1) of that section.

121. Penalties.—(1) If any person, in giving any information, making any claim or giving any notice for the purposes of any provision of this Act, or any regulation or order made thereunder, makes any statement which he knows to be false in a material particular, or recklessly makes any statement which is false in a material particular, he shall be liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months or to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds or to both such imprisonment and such fine, or on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine not exceeding five hundred pounds, or to both such imprisonment and such fine. [1857]

(2) If any person contravenes any provision of this Act or any regulation or order made thereunder and no other penalty is provided in relation to the contravention, he shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds and, if the contravention in respect of which he is so convicted is continued after the conviction, he shall be guilty of a further offence and liable in respect thereof on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding five pounds for each day on which the contravention is so continued. [1858]

(3) Where any offence against this Act or any regulation or order made thereunder has been committed by a body corporate, every person who at the time of the commission of the offence was a director, general manager, secretary or other similar officer of the body corporate, or was purporting to act in any such capacity, shall be deemed to be guilty of that offence unless he proves that the offence was committed without his consent or connivance, and that he exercised all such diligence to prevent the commission of the offence as he ought to have exercised having regard to the nature of his functions in that capacity and in all the circumstances. [1859]

Sub-s. (3).—Sub-s. (3), supra, which deals with offences committed by bodies corporate is common form in many recent Acts; see, for example, the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946, s. 59 (2) (39 Halsbury's Statutes 297), the Civil Aviation Act, 1946, s. 47 (2) (39 Halsbury's Statutes 827), and the Electricity Act, 1947, s. 62 (2) (see title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante).

It may be noted, however, that, unlike all the above-mentioned Acts, the present Act does not make the consent of the Minister or the Director of Public Prosecutions necessary to the institution of proceedings for an offence.

The effect of the subsection is that in prosecutions of directors and certain other officers of a body corporate for offences committed by the body corporate against this Act or any regulation or order made thereunder the onus of proof is on the director or other officer. In order to establish his innocence he must prove not only that the offence was committed without his consent or connivance but also that he exercised all such diligence to prevent the commission of the offence as he ought to have exercised, having regard to the nature of his functions as a director and in all the circumstances.

The burden of proof under this subsection may be contrasted with the burden of proof placed on directors for offences against certain provisions of the Companies Acts, 1929 and 1947 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 775; 10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 47), by s. 20 of the 1947 Act under which, to escape liability for fine or imprisonment, it is necessary for a director to show that he had reasonable ground to believe and did believe that a competent and reliable person was charged with the duty of seeing that the provision was complied with and was in a position to discharge that duty.

An Amendment was moved on the Committee Stage of the Bill in the House of Lords to bring the provisions of sub-s. (3) into line with s. 20 of the Companies Act, 1947, it being argued that it was necessary to protect the director who had been appointed for his technical qualifications and who, acting on the advice of a competent accountant, consented to some act of a financial nature about which he knew very little.

The Lord Chancellor, in opposing the Amendment (which was eventually withdrawn), said:

"If a director is appointed for some particular purpose which has no relation to the offence having regard to his functions and in all the circumstances he would, without the slightest difficulty, prove that he was not to blame. . . . The judges would say that a man in that capacity was quite blameless and would discharge the onus. There are unfortunately some directors of bodies corporate who are not very anxious to prevent offences and are sometimes anxious to shelter behind the body corporate.

"In these circumstances I suggest to your Lordships that this clause hallowed now by long usage . . . is the right way of dealing with this matter and it will prevent a body corporate from being able to drive a coach-and-four through the Act" (149 H. of L. Official Report 371).

Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 3 (1) (b).—23 Halsbury's Statutes 610.

Railways Act, 1921.—14 Halsbury's Statutes 316.

Hire Purchase Act, 1938.—31 Halsbury's Statutes 660. S. 21 of that Act contains the following definitions :

“ Hire-purchase agreement ” means an agreement for the bailment of goods under which the bailee may buy the goods or under which the property in the goods will or may pass to the bailee, and where by virtue of two or more agreements, none of which by itself constitutes a hire-purchase agreement, there is a bailment of goods and either the bailee may buy the goods, or the property therein will or may pass to the bailee, the agreements shall be treated for the purposes of this Act as a single agreement made at the time when the last of the agreements was made.

"Hirer" means the person who takes or has taken goods from an owner under a hire-purchase agreement and includes a person to whom the hirer's rights or liabilities under the agreement have passed by assignment or by operation of law.

Local authority.—In the original Bill the term "local authority" was defined to include, in addition to the above-mentioned authorities, non-county borough councils and metropolitan borough councils. These authorities were excluded from the definition by an Amendment moved by the Government on the Report Stage of the Bill. The reason for this was subsequently explained by the Government spokesman during the Committee Stage in the House of Lords as follows:—

"The reason why the Government decided to amend the definition was because the urban districts then asked, owing to the inclusion of non-county boroughs, that urban districts should be included, and it came to the knowledge of the Government that the rural districts were preparing to make a similar request. The effect of that would have been to extend the field of consultation [consultation between the British Transport Commission and local authorities is obligatory before the submission of an area road transport scheme to the Minister; see s. 63 (2), ante] over an unreasonably wide area, and accordingly the Government reached the conclusion that the definition should be amended so as to embrace only county boroughs, county councils and the Common Council of the City of London, leaving the views of inhabitants of non-county boroughs and county districts to be ascertained through the county council, and not both through that channel and also directly. . . .

"The Government have gone a long way, in requiring the Commission to consult with local authorities, to ensure that local wishes and views are fully placed before the Commission, but a point is reached at which excessive consultation can stultify effective action. If the field of consultation is extended beyond the county and county borough limits, it is the Government's view that stultification will begin to arise" (149 H. of L. Official Report 378).

It may be noted that an enlargement of the definition of local authority would, in addition to enlarging the field of consultation, automatically enlarge the number of authorities entitled to make objections and other representations with regard to charges schemes (see ss. 78 (2) (a), 79 (1) (b), 80 (3) (a) and 81, ante).

In certain provisions of the Act the term local authority is enlarged to include a county district council (see ss. 114 (5), 115 (5), ante, Sched. VIII, paragraph 1 (1), post).

The Minister.—It is necessary to give this expression the alternative meaning of the Minister of War Transport in order to cover references to that Minister in ss. 42, 51, ante. The Ministry of War Transport, which was created by S. R. & O., 1941, No. 654, made under the Ministers of the Crown (Emergency Appointments) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1031), was dissolved by S. R. & O., 1946, No. 375, made under the Ministers of the Crown (Transfer of Functions) Act, 1946, s. 1 (2) (39 Halsbury's Statutes 82), the functions of the Minister of War Transport being transferred to the Minister of Transport.

Express carriages, stage carriages, tramcars, trolley vehicles.—"Express carriages" are motor vehicles carrying passengers for hire or reward at separate fares (none of which is less than one shilling for a single journey or such greater sum as may be prescribed) and for a journey or journeys from one or more points specified in advance to one or more common destinations so specified, and not stopping to take up or set down passengers other than those paying the appropriate fares for the journey or journeys in question.

"Stage carriages" are motor vehicles carrying passengers for hire or reward at separate fares (all or any of which are less than one shilling for a single journey or such greater sum as may be prescribed), stage by stage, and stopping to pick up or set down passengers along the line of route, and any other motor vehicles carrying passengers for hire or reward at separate fares and not being express carriages as above defined (see sub-s. (2), ante, and the Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 61; 23 Halsbury's Statutes 654).

"Tramcar" includes any carriage used on any road by virtue of an order made under the Light Railways Act, 1896.

"Trolley vehicle" means a mechanically-propelled vehicle adapted for use upon roads without rails and moved by power transmitted thereto from some external source (see sub-s. (2), ante, and the Road Traffic Act, 1930, s. 121; 23 Halsbury's Statutes 686).

Local Government Act, 1933, Part IX.—26 Halsbury's Statutes 412-424.

Road and Rail Traffic Act, 1933.—26 Halsbury's Statutes 370. For the meanings of expressions in that Act which are used in Part III of the present Act, see notes to the relevant sections, ante.

Road Traffic Act, 1930.—23 Halsbury's Statutes 607. For the meanings of expressions in that Act which are used in relation to the carriage of passengers by road in this Act, see notes to s. 41, ante, and note "Express carriages, etc.," supra.

ORDERS GIVING EFFECT TO SCHEMES

PART I

1.—(1) Where it appears to the Minister that the scheme submitted to him makes satisfactory provision with respect to the matters dealt with in the scheme, he shall prepare the draft of an order embodying the scheme and give notice of the preparation of the draft and that he proposes to proceed with the making of the order:

Provided that, in the case of a scheme under Part IV of this Act which provides for the transfer of the whole or any part of any undertaking, the Minister shall not regard the scheme as making satisfactory provision unless—

- (a) where the person theretofore carrying on the undertaking is a local authority or is a joint committee, joint board, joint authority or other combined body, being a committee, board, authority or body all the members of which are, or are representatives of, local authorities, it makes provision for compensation to that local authority, joint committee, joint board, joint authority or combined body, which is, in the opinion of the Minister, identical, as near as may be, with the provision made in the case of transfers under Part II of this Act from local authorities ;
- (b) in the case of an undertaking or part of an undertaking (not being an undertaking theretofore carried on by such a person as is referred to in subhead (a) of this proviso), the activities of which before the transfer by or under the scheme consist wholly or partly of operating passenger road transport services, and the activities, if any, of which after that transfer will not include the operation of such services, it complies with the provisions of Part II of this Schedule ;
- (c) in any other case, being a case in which the transfer is, in the opinion of the Minister, comparable in the material respects to any form of transfer of the whole or part of an undertaking effected under Part II or Part III of this Act, it provides compensation on a basis reasonably comparable in his opinion to that of the compensation provided under this Act in the case of that form of transfer ; and
- (d) in any other case, it provides, in the opinion of the Minister, proper compensation in respect of the transfer.

References in this sub-paragraph to local authorities (other than the last reference in sub-head (a) of the proviso thereto) include references to councils of county districts.

(2) Where it appears to the Minister in the case of any scheme submitted to him that it would not be expedient to give effect to the scheme in the form in which it was submitted to him, he may refer the scheme with his observations thereon to the Commission for their further consideration and thereupon they shall re-consider the scheme in the light of the Minister's observations and may again submit the scheme to the Minister with such amendments as they think fit

2.—(1) A notice under paragraph 1 of this Schedule shall be published—

- (a) in the London Gazette, the Edinburgh Gazette, or both, according as the scheme affects England, Scotland, or both ; and
- (b) in such local newspapers, and in such other ways, if any, as appear to the Minister best suited for bringing the notice to the attention of persons concerned, and shall specify a place where the draft of the order may be inspected, and copies thereof obtained at all reasonable hours, and the time (not being less than forty days from the publication of the notice) within which, and the manner in which, any objections to the draft may be made to the Minister, and the Minister shall consider any objections made within the time and in the manner specified in the notice :

Provided that the Minister shall not be required to consider any objection unless it comprises or there is submitted therewith a statement in writing setting out the specific grounds for any amendments, additions or modifications asked for, or any objection which in his opinion is frivolous.

(2) Any such objection as aforesaid may ask for amendments, additions or modifications to or of the order which amount to amendments, additions or modifications to or of the scheme.

3.—(1) If there are no objections which the Minister is required to consider, or if all such objections are withdrawn, the Minister may make the order either in the terms of the draft or subject to such amendments, additions or modifications, if any, as he thinks fit, being amendments, additions or modifications which in his opinion do not effect important alterations in the draft as published.

(2) Where any such objection is made and is not withdrawn, the Minister shall cause in the case of a scheme under Part IV of this Act, a public local inquiry, or, in any other case, an inquiry, to be held with respect thereto, and the Minister may, after considering the report of the person by whom the inquiry was held make the order either in the terms of the draft or subject to such amendments, additions or modifications as the Minister thinks fit.

(3) The amendments, additions or modifications referred to in this paragraph may amount to amendments, additions or modifications to or of the scheme.

4. The Minister may, with the consent of the Treasury, pay out of moneys provided by Parliament to any person appointed to hold an inquiry for the purposes of this Schedule such fees and allowances, and to persons giving evidence such allowances, as he may with the consent of the Treasury determine. [1881]

6. The following references shall throughout the said section forty-seven and the said Ninth Schedule be construed as follows—

- (c) references to a notice of acquisition, and to the giving of such a notice, and to the transfer resulting from or effected by such a notice shall be construed as references to a transfer by or under a scheme.

7. At the end of subsection (1) of the said section forty-seven there shall be inserted the following proviso—

“ Provided that, where the vehicle is a trolley vehicle or a tramcar, paragraph (a) of this subsection shall have effect as if, in the case of a trolley vehicle, the words ‘ one-seventh ’ or, in the case of a tramcar, the words ‘ one-fourteenth ’ were substituted for the words ‘ one-fifth ’, wherever those words occur.”

8. In subsection (3) of the said section forty-seven for the word “ five ” there shall be substituted the word “ seven ”.

9. In paragraph (a) of subsection (4) of the said section forty-seven for the words “ vehicles authorised to be used under A licences or B licences ” there shall be substituted the words “ public service vehicles, trolley vehicles or tramcars ”.

10. The provisions of subsection (5) of the said section forty-seven shall apply where the rights of the hirer under a hire purchase agreement vest in the said body by reason of a transfer by or under the scheme.

11. The reference in subsection (8) of the said section forty-seven to any other express provision contained in this Act shall be construed as a reference to any other express provision for the payment of additional compensation contained in the scheme.

- (a) where the undertaking has been carried on for not less than three years ending with the date in the year nineteen hundred and forty-eight to which the accounts of the undertaking for a period of twelve months were made up in the ordinary course, the three years ending with that date ; or
- (b) in any other case, the three years ending with the date in the twelve months immediately preceding the transfer to which the accounts of the undertaking for a period of twelve months were made up in the ordinary course ; ”

(b) paragraph 6 of that Schedule were omitted. [1882]

General effect of Schedule.—This Schedule sets out the provisions in accordance with which the Minister is to make an order giving effect to an area road transport scheme (see s. 63 (3), ante) or a harbour scheme (s. 66 (8); see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante).

Preparation and making of area road transport schemes.—Apart from Railway Clearing House schemes made under Part II of the Act, which are outside the scope of this Volume, the Act provides for the making of two sorts of schemes, namely, area road transport schemes and schemes as to harbours. As to harbour schemes, see title HARBOURS, DOCKS AND WHARVES, ante.

The provisions of the Act relating to the preparation and making of area road transport schemes may be summarised as follows. The body which is empowered, and where the Minister so directs, required to prepare a scheme, is the Commission, but no scheme will take effect until submitted to the Minister and embodied in an order made by him in accordance with the provisions of the present Schedule (s. 63 (3), ante).

It is the duty of the Commission to review as soon as may be the passenger road transport services in Great Britain with a view to determining the areas with respect to which schemes are to be prepared (s. 63 (1), ante). Before a scheme is submitted to the Minister certain specified bodies and persons likely to be affected are to be consulted. These bodies include every local authority within or partly within the area (which by s. 125, ante, means a county council, county borough council or the Common Council of the City of London) and every joint committee or other combined body all the members of which are, or are representative of, local authorities and which is providing road passenger transport services in the area.

The provisions of the Act relating to the contents of schemes are drawn in wide and, for the most part, permissive terms in order that there may be flexibility to make different schemes to meet the local requirements of different areas. In five cases, however, the Act lays down rules as to the contents of schemes.

First, a scheme may not provide for the compulsory acquisition of part only of an undertaking unless that part includes the whole of the passenger road transport side of the undertaking (s. 64 (1), proviso). Secondly, where a scheme is to be administered by some body or bodies other than the British Transport Commission, the scheme must provide that at least one member of any such body shall be a person with a minimum of six years' experience in local government in the area (s. 64 (3), ante).

Next, where a scheme prohibits or restricts the provision of services within the area otherwise than under the scheme, the scheme must provide compensation for any person who was operating a road passenger transport undertaking on August 6, 1947, which is not transferred under the scheme, where that person will suffer substantial interference with some transport activity carried on by him before and since that date as a result of such prohibition or restriction, the amount of such compensation to be determinable in case of dispute by the Transport Arbitration Tribunal (s. 64 (4), ante). Fourthly, a scheme which provides for the transfer of an undertaking must make appropriate provision for compensating officers and servants in accordance with s. 102 (1), ante. Fifthly, a scheme which provides for the transfer of an undertaking must provide for compensating the transferor in accordance with the proviso to paragraph 1 (1), ante.

In the case of a local authority (as above defined) a county district council or any other of the bodies above-mentioned who are to be consulted before the submission of a scheme, such compensation is to be identical as near as may be with the compensation provided by s. 25, ante, in the case of transfers under Part II of the Act (paragraph 1 (1), proviso (a), ante).

The Minister is to embody in draft orders schemes which appear to him satisfactory, and provision is made for the publication of notices of the making of a draft order and for the making of objections thereto (paragraphs 1 (1), 2, ante).

Where objection is duly made and not withdrawn, the Minister is to hold a public local inquiry and may, after considering the report of the person holding the inquiry, make the order in the terms of the draft with or without amendments (paragraph 3, ante).

Where objection having been duly made is not withdrawn before the order is made, the order will be subject to the special parliamentary procedure provided by the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 439).

Satisfactory provision.—As to other cases where the Minister is not to consider that a scheme makes satisfactory provision for the purposes of paragraph 1 (1), ante, see ss. 64 (4), 102 (1), ante.

Local authority, joint committee, joint board, etc.—Before an area road transport scheme is submitted to the Minister the Commission are to consult every local authority within or partly within the area and every joint committee, joint board, etc., which is providing passenger road transport services therein (see s. 63 (2), ante).

"Local authority" means the council of a county, the Common Council of the City of London, the council of a county borough or the council of a county district (see s. 125, ante, and the last sentence of paragraph 1 (1), ante).

Compensation to local authorities.—The transfer under a scheme of an undertaking belonging to a local authority, as above defined, automatically attracts the additional compensation provided for local authorities by s. 114, ante.

Such a transfer if made to the Commission will also automatically attract the right of pre-emption provided by s. 115, ante. It is not necessary for a scheme to make provision in regard to either of these matters.

Inquiry.—As to inquiries, see s. 122, ante.

Part II of the Schedule.—Part II of the Schedule relates to paragraph 1 (1) (b) of Part I. S. 47, ante, and Sched. IX, post, deal with the amount of compensation payable in respect of road haulage undertakings acquired by the British Transport Commission under Part III of the Act.

Part II of the Schedule modifies and adapts these provisions consequent upon their application to the determination of compensation in respect of passenger road transport undertakings by paragraph 1 (1) (b), ante.

Section 47 and Sch. 8

NINTH SCHEDULE

MEANING OF "AVERAGE NET ANNUAL PROFIT" IN RELATION TO ROAD TRANSPORT UNDERTAKINGS

1. Where a notice of acquisition is given under Part III of this Act with respect to an undertaking, the average net annual profit of the undertaking shall, for the purpose of compensation for cessation of business, be ascertained in accordance with the subsequent provisions of this Schedule.

2.—(1) There shall be ascertained, in relation to each of the last three financial years of the undertaking, what profit or loss was made in the carrying on of the undertaking.

(2) In this Schedule, the expression "the last three financial years" means, in relation to an undertaking,—

(a) where accounts of the undertaking were made up in the ordinary course for a period of twelve months ending with a date within the twelve months immediately preceding the date of transfer, the three years ending with the first mentioned date ;

(b) in any other case the three years ending with such date within the twelve months immediately preceding the date of transfer as may be agreed between the Commission and the transferor, or, in default of agreement, the three years ending immediately before the date of transfer.

3. In ascertaining the said profits or losses, such deductions shall be made in respect of wear and tear and provision for replacement of property held for the purposes of the undertaking as may be just.

4. When the amount of the profit or loss for any of the said three years has been ascertained, such adjustment, if any, of the amount thereof shall be made as may be just, having regard to the extent and nature of the property held in the year for the purposes of the undertaking as compared with the extent and nature of the property which vests in the Commission by virtue of the notice of acquisition, not being property duly disclaimed by the Commission.

5.—(1) The amount of the profits made in the said three years, ascertained and adjusted as aforesaid, shall then be aggregated, and the amount of the losses made in the said three years, ascertained and adjusted as aforesaid, shall also be aggregated.

(2) If there are no profits to be aggregated, or the aggregate of the profits does not exceed the aggregate of the losses, the average net annual profit shall be taken to be nil.

(3) If the aggregate of the profits exceeds the aggregate of the losses—

(a) the excess shall be divided by three ; and

(b) there shall then be ascertained the sum which is equal to one year's interest, at such rate as the Treasury may determine, on the net amount of compensation payable in respect of the property vested in the Commission by virtue of the notice of acquisition ; and

(c) if the amount ascertained under sub-head (b) of this sub-paragraph is equal to or exceeds the amount ascertained under sub-head (a) thereof, the net annual profit of the undertaking shall be taken to be nil ; and

(d) if the amount ascertained under the said sub-head (b) is less than the amount ascertained under the said sub-head (a) the difference shall be taken to be the average net annual profit of the undertaking ;

Provided that where, by the end of the last three financial years, less than three years have elapsed since the undertaking began to be carried on, sub-head (a) of this sub-paragraph shall have effect as if, instead of requiring the excess to be divided by three, it required the sum to be ascertained which bears to the excess the same proportion that one year bears to the period which has elapsed as aforesaid.

6. Where, by the end of the last three financial years, not less than three years have elapsed since the undertaking began to be carried on, and the transferor satisfies the Commission, or, in case of dispute, the arbitration tribunal established under Part VIII of this Act, that in any one of the last three financial years, by reason of the abnormality of the circumstances of that particular year as compared with the circumstances of the other two years, the profit made was to a substantial extent less than, or the loss made showed a substantial fall from, the average profit made in the other two years, then only those other two years shall be taken into account for the purposes of the last preceding paragraph, and accordingly for the word "three," wherever that word occurs in the last preceding paragraph, except in the proviso thereto, there shall be substituted the word "two."

7.—(1) Where the undertaking was formed wholly or partly by the acquisition or merger of other undertakings—

- (a) the profit or loss made in any of the last three financial years in carrying on each of those other undertakings shall be taken into account as if it were a profit or loss made in carrying on the undertaking itself; and
- (b) where any of those other undertakings began to be carried on before the undertaking itself, the earliest date on which any of those undertakings began to be carried on shall be taken, for the purposes of this Schedule, to be the date when the undertaking itself began to be carried on.

(2) Where any such other undertaking as is mentioned in sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph was itself formed wholly or partly by the acquisition or merger of other undertakings, the reference in the said sub-paragraph to the first mentioned other undertaking shall be taken to include references to the last mentioned other undertakings, and so on in the case of a series of acquisitions or mergers.

8. For the purposes of this Schedule, any rights under a hire purchase agreement which vest in the Commission shall be treated as if they were property vested in the Commission, and references in this Schedule to property duly disclaimed by the Commission shall be taken to include references to any rights under any such agreement which is so disclaimed by the Commission. [1883]

General note.—This Schedule sets out the provisions in accordance with which the average net annual profit of a road haulage undertaking acquired by the British Transport Commission under Part III of the Act is to be ascertained for the purpose of calculating the compensation to be paid in respect of cessation of business under s. 47 (3), ante.

By Sched. VIII, Part II, ante, the provisions of s. 47, ante, and the present Schedule are modified and applied to the acquisition of a passenger road transport undertaking under an area road transport scheme.

The Commission.—The British Transport Commission (see s. 1 (1), ante).

Property disclaimed.—As to the power of the Commission to disclaim property, see s. 46, ante.

(5) The President of the Transport Tribunal may, if he thinks fit so to do in relation to any class of proceedings, select one or more persons from the said special panel and appoint them with or without a permanent member or permanent members of the tribunal to hear and determine all proceedings of that class, not being proceedings in relation to which other provisions may have been or may thereafter be made under sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph; and where such an appointment is made, then, until it is revoked by the President of the tribunal, the preceding provisions of this paragraph shall have effect in relation to any proceedings of that class, not being such proceedings as aforesaid, as if the said person or persons had been selected and appointed under the said sub-paragraph (1) to hear and determine those proceedings.

7.—(1) A person appointed from the special panel or from any other panel of the tribunal constituted under any Act other than this Act, and any additional member of the tribunal appointed under the Ninth Schedule to the London Passenger Transport Act, 1933, shall be paid such remuneration and expenses as the Minister may with the approval of the Treasury determine.

(2) Any such remuneration or expenses shall be defrayed by the Minister out of moneys provided by Parliament, but, so far as not met out of the amount recovered by way of fees, they shall, on demand, be paid to the Minister by the Commission as part of their working expenses. [1884]

9. Every motor vehicle shall be equipped with a braking system (which may be one of the braking systems hereinafter prescribed) so designed and constructed that it can at all times be set so as effectually to prevent two at least, or in the case of a vehicle with only three wheels one, of the wheels from revolving when the vehicle is not being driven or is left unattended.

Provided that in the case of a vehicle registered on or before 1st July, 1932, this width may be exceeded by 6 inches in cases where the excess width has been necessarily caused by the conversion of the vehicle from use with solid tyres to use with pneumatic tyres.

Provided also that in the case of a vehicle propelled by steam, using solid fuel and registered before 1st January, 1939, the aforesaid width of 7 feet 6 inches may be exceeded by 3 inches in cases where the excess width is due solely to projection of the wheels or tyres beyond the sides of the vehicle.

Provided that this Regulation shall not apply to a trailer constructed and normally used for the conveyance of indivisible loads of exceptional length, to a land implement, to a trailer forming part of an articulated vehicle, to any broken down vehicle which is being drawn by a motor vehicle in consequence of the breakdown or to a trailer which is a trolley vehicle in course of construction or delivery, or to any trailer being a drying or mixing plant for the production of asphalt or of bituminous or tar macadam, used mainly for the construction, repair or maintenance of roads, or to any road planing machine so used, provided that the total overall length of such trailer and any drawing vehicle when coupled thereto shall not exceed 60 feet inclusive of the draw bar. [1943]

49. The overall width of a trailer (other than a land implement) shall not exceed 7 feet 6 inches.

Provided that the overall width of a trailer which is in use by a travelling showman in connection with his business and was in such use before 15th January, 1931, may equal but shall not exceed 8 feet 9 inches.

Provided also that in the case of a trailer constructed before 1st January, 1933, which has been converted from use with solid tyres to use with pneumatic tyres the overall width may equal but shall not exceed 8 feet if the width

Provided also that this Regulation shall not apply to any broken down vehicle which is being drawn by a motor vehicle in consequence of the breakdown. [1944]

50.—(1) Save as hereinafter provided in paragraph (2) hereof, every trailer exceeding 2 cwts. in weight unladen shall have an efficient braking system the brakes of which are capable of being applied when it is being drawn—

- (i) to at least two wheels in the case of a trailer having not more than four wheels;
- (ii) to at least four wheels in the case of a trailer having more than four wheels, and
- (iii) in the case of trailers constructed after 1st April, 1938, to at least half the number of wheels of the trailer, so constructed that—

- (a) the brakes can be applied either by the driver of the drawing vehicle or by some other person on such vehicle or the trailer.

Provided that this sub-paragraph shall not apply in the case of a trailer not exceeding 1 ton in weight unladen or in the case of a trailer not constructed or adapted to carry any load, other than plant or other special appliance or apparatus which is a permanent or essentially permanent fixture, and not exceeding 45 cwts. in total weight, if in either case the brakes of the trailer automatically come into operation on the overrun of the trailer; and

- (b) in the case of a trailer forming part of an articulated vehicle and being permanently attached to the drawing vehicle, the brakes are capable of being set so as effectively to prevent two at least of the wheels from revolving when the trailer is not being drawn; and
- (c) in the case of any other trailer the brakes are capable of being set so as effectively to prevent two at least of the wheels from revolving when the trailer whether it is attached to the drawing vehicle or not, is not being drawn.

In this paragraph the expression “permanently attached” means that the trailer can only be detached from the drawing vehicle by an operation involving the use of facilities which are normally found only in a workshop.

(2) Paragraph (1) hereof shall not apply—

66A. No person shall use or permit to be used any vehicle the overall width of which exceeds 7 feet 6 inches by virtue of the third proviso to Regulation 32 hereof or the proviso to Regulation 37 hereof on any road unless :—

- (a) the road is for the time being approved in writing by the Chairman of the Traffic Commissioners for any traffic area or his duly appointed deputy or, in the case of the Metropolitan traffic area, the Commissioner for that area or his duly appointed deputy as being a road suitable for use by such vehicles ; or
- (b) the vehicle is not being used as a public service vehicle and is proceeding on a journey
  - (i) in connection with the construction, testing, delivery, or repair of the vehicle,
  - (ii) for the purpose of making trial of the suitability of a road for the use of such vehicles,
  - (iii) to or from any point on a route operated by public service vehicles on a road approved as aforesaid, or

69.—(1) No person shall use or cause or permit to be used on a road any vehicle propelled by an internal combustion engine so that the exhaust gases from the engine escape into the atmosphere without first passing through the silencer, expansion chamber or other contrivance required by these Regulations to be fitted,

(2) Every such silencer, expansion chamber or other contrivance shall at all times while the vehicle is used on a road be maintained in good and efficient working order, and shall not have been altered in such a way that the noise caused by the escape of the exhaust gases is made greater by the alteration. [1966]

- (a) at all material times be maintained in good working order, and
- (b) be kept free from any obstruction which might prevent its being easily read (or the appropriate indication given thereby being easily seen or heard),

Provided that it shall be a good defence to proceedings taken in respect of a contravention of paragraph (a) of this Regulation to prove that

- (i) the defect occurred in the course of the journey during which the contravention was detected, or
- (ii) at the time when the contravention was detected steps had already been taken to have the defect remedied with all reasonable expedition. [1967]

71. All the tyres of a motor vehicle or trailer shall at all times, while the vehicle or trailer is used on a road be maintained in such condition as to be free from any defect which might in any way cause damage to the surface of the road or danger to persons on or in the vehicle or to other persons using the road. 73. Every motor vehicle shall be maintained in such condition, and shall be so driven and used on a road, that there shall not be emitted therefrom any smoke, visible vapour, grit, sparks, ashes, cinders or oily substance, the emission of which could be prevented or avoided by the taking of any reasonable steps or the exercise of reasonable care, or the emission of which might cause damage to other persons or property or endanger the safety of any other users of the road in consequence of any harmful content therein. [1970]

74. No part of the contents of any closet, urinal, lavatory basin or sink carried by a motor vehicle or trailer, or of any tank into which such closet, urinal, lavatory basin or sink drains shall be discharged or allowed to leak on to a road. [1971]

75. No person shall use or cause or permit to be used on a road any motor vehicle or trailer which causes any excessive noise either directly or indirectly as a result of :—

- (a) any defect (including a defect in design or construction), lack of repair or faulty adjustment in the motor vehicle or trailer or any part or accessory of such motor vehicle or trailer, or
- (b) the faulty packing or adjustment of the load of such motor vehicle or trailer.

Provided that it shall be a good defence to proceedings taken under this Regulation :—

- (i) to prove that the noise or continuance of the noise in respect of which the proceedings are taken, was due to some temporary or accidental cause and could not have been prevented by the exercise of due diligence and care on the part of the owner or driver of the motor vehicle ; or
- (ii) in the case of proceedings against the driver or person in charge of the motor vehicle who is not the owner thereof, to prove that the noise arose through a defect in design or construction of the motor vehicle or trailer or through the negligence or fault of some other person, whose duty it was to keep the motor vehicle or trailer in proper condition or in a proper state of repair or adjustment or properly to pack or adjust the load of such motor vehicle or trailer as the case may be, and could not have been prevented by the exercise of reasonable diligence and care on the part of such driver or other person in charge of the motor vehicle. [1972]

76. No motor vehicle shall be used on a road in such manner as to cause any excessive noise which could have been avoided by the exercise of reasonable care on the part of the driver. [1973]

77. The driver of every motor vehicle shall, when the vehicle is stationary otherwise than through enforced stoppage owing to the necessities of traffic, stop the action of any machinery attached to, or forming part of, such vehicle, so far as may be necessary for the prevention of noise.

Provided that this Regulation shall not apply so as to prevent the examination or working of the machinery attached to, or forming part of, a motor vehicle where any such examination or working is rendered necessary by any failure or derangement of the said machinery or where the machinery attached to or forming part of the vehicle is required to be worked for some ancillary purpose.

Provided also that this Regulation shall not apply in the case of a motor vehicle which is propelled by gas produced in a plant carried on the vehicle or on a trailer drawn by the vehicle. [1974]

78. No person shall sound any instrument fitted to any motor vehicle for signalling its approach between the hours of 11.30 p.m. and 7 a.m. on any road on which there is provided a system of street lighting furnished by means of lamps placed not more than 200 yards apart or where a direction that the road shall be deemed to be a road in a built-up area is in force under the Road Traffic Act, 1934.

Provided that this Regulation shall not apply to any vehicle on an occasion when it is being used for fire brigade, salvage corps, ambulance or police purposes if the observance thereof would be likely to hinder the use of the vehicle for the purpose for which it is being used on that occasion. [1975]

79. When a motor vehicle is stationary on a road no person shall use or permit to be used any audible warning instrument with which it is fitted. [1976]

80. No person shall except in the case of a road roller or other road plant while actually engaged in the construction, maintenance or repair of roads, cause a motor vehicle to travel backwards for a greater distance or time than may be requisite for the safety or reasonable convenience of the occupants of that vehicle or of other traffic on the road. [1977]

81. No person in charge of a motor vehicle or trailer shall cause or permit the motor vehicle or trailer to stand on a road so as to cause any unnecessary obstruction thereof. [1978]

82.—(1) No person in charge of a motor vehicle or trailer drawn thereby shall cause or permit such trailer to stand when detached from the drawing vehicle unless one at least of the wheels of the trailer is prevented from revolving by the setting of the brake or the use of a chain.

(2) No person while actually driving a motor vehicle shall be in such a position that he cannot have proper control over the vehicle or that he cannot retain a full view of the road and traffic ahead.

(3) No person in charge of a motor vehicle shall quit the vehicle without having stopped the engine and, where the vehicle is fitted with a brake capable of being set, having set the brake so as effectually to prevent two at least or in the case of a vehicle with only three wheels one of the wheels from revolving.

Provided that this paragraph shall not apply to prevent the working of the engine of a fire brigade vehicle for any fire fighting purpose.

Provided further that this paragraph shall not apply to the quitting of a motor vehicle without having stopped the engine in any case where the vehicle is propelled by gas produced in plant carried on the vehicle or on a trailer drawn by the vehicle. [1979]

83. The driver of every vehicle propelled by steam (other than a motor car) shall, unless two persons are carried upon it for the purpose of driving or attending to the vehicle, stop the vehicle whenever it is necessary to attend to the furnace. [1980]

84. Where a trailer is drawn by a motor vehicle whether wheeled or track laying the driver (or in the case of a locomotive one of the persons employed in driving or tending the locomotive) shall be in a position readily to operate any brakes required by these Regulations to be fitted to the trailer as well as the brakes of the motor vehicle, unless a person other than the driver is in a position and competent efficiently to apply the brakes of the trailer.

Provided that this Regulation shall not apply in the case of trailers which, in compliance with these Regulations, are fitted with brakes which automatically come into operation on the overrun of the trailer. [1981]

85. The requirements of Section 17 of the Road Traffic Act, 1930, with regard to the employment of drivers and attendants shall not apply in the following cases, that is to say :—

86. No motor vehicle shall tow any other vehicle unless the tow rope or chain be so adjusted that the distance separating the nearest points of the two vehicles shall not exceed 15 feet, and steps shall be taken to render the tow rope or chain easily distinguishable by other users of the road. [1983]

87.—(1) The total overall length of a heavy motor car or a motor car and a trailer drawn thereby shall not exceed 60 feet.

(2) The definition of "overall length" in Regulation 3 hereof shall apply for the purpose of this Regulation, except that the parallel planes therein specified shall pass respectively through the extreme projecting point at the front of the drawing vehicle and the extreme projecting point at the rear of the trailer when the connection between the two vehicles is fully extended and the longitudinal axes of the two vehicles are in the same straight line. 89. As from 1st January, 1947, a motor cycle with not more than two wheels and without a side-car shall not draw a trailer.

These Regulations consolidate without amendment the Regulations specified in the Eighth Schedule.

MOTOR VEHICLES (AUTHORISATION OF SPECIAL TYPES) (AMENDMENT) ORDER, 1947

June 24, 1947

Whereas by section 3 of the Road Traffic Act, 1930, the Minister of Transport (hereinafter referred to as "the Minister") may by Order authorise, subject to such restrictions and conditions as may be specified in the Order, the use on roads of special motor vehicles or trailers or special types of motor vehicles or trailers which are constructed either for special purposes or for tests or trials ;

And whereas by virtue of divers Orders so made the use on roads of certain motor vehicles and trailers has been authorised subject to certain restrictions and conditions notwithstanding that the motor vehicles or trailers do not in all or certain respects comply with the requirements of (inter alia) the Motor Vehicles (Construction and Use) Regulations, 1941 (hereinafter referred to as "the 1941 Regulations") ;

And whereas it is provided by the said section 3 that the Minister may at any time revoke, vary or amend an order made thereunder ;

And whereas the 1941 Regulations have been revoked and superseded by the Motor Vehicles (Construction and Use) Regulations, 1947 (hereinafter referred to as "the 1947 Regulations") and it is expedient that the use on roads of the said motor vehicles and trailers should likewise be authorised, subject to the like restrictions and conditions, notwithstanding that the motor vehicles or trailers do not in all respects comply with the requirements of the 1947 Regulations ;

Now, therefore, the Minister in exercise of the powers conferred upon him as aforesaid and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf hereby makes the following Order :—

1. This Order shall come into force forthwith and may be cited as "The Motor Vehicles (Authorisation of Special Types) (Amendment) Order, 1947." [2026]

2. Every order made in pursuance of the powers conferred by section 3 of the Road Traffic Act, 1930, and in force immediately before the coming into force of the 1947 Regulations shall have effect as though for references therein to the 1941 Regulations there were substituted references to the 1947 Regulations and as though for references to any particular provision of the

1941 Regulations there were substituted references to the corresponding provision of the 1947 Regulations. [2027]

3. The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of this Order as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [2028]

MOTOR VEHICLES (AUTHORISATION OF SPECIAL TYPES) (REVOCATION) ORDER, 1947

June 25, 1947

Whereas by section 3 of the Road Traffic Act, 1930, the Minister of Transport (hereinafter referred to as "the Minister") may by Order authorise, subject to such restrictions and conditions as may be specified in the Order, the use on roads of special motor vehicles or trailers or special types of motor vehicles or trailers which are constructed either for special purposes or for tests or trials;

And whereas the Minister of War Transport in exercise of the said powers, which were for the time being vested in him, made the Motor Vehicles (Authorisation of Special Types) General Order, 1941 (hereinafter referred to as "the Principal Order") with regard to certain special motor vehicles and trailers;

And whereas the Principal Order was amended by the Motor Vehicles Authorisation of Special Types (Amendment) Order, 1943 (hereinafter referred to as "the amending Order"), so as to extend to dumpers actually engaged in engineering operations when used on roads at the site of such operations;

And whereas it is provided by the said section 3 that the Minister may at any time revoke, vary or amend an order made thereunder;

And whereas it is expedient that the Principal Order should cease to have effect with respect to the use on roads of dumpers;

Now, therefore, the Minister in exercise of the powers conferred upon him as aforesaid and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following Order :—

1. This Order shall come into force on the 1st day of January, 1948, and may be cited as "The Motor Vehicles (Authorisation of Special Types) (Revocation) Order, 1947." [2029]

2. The amending Order is hereby revoked and the Principal Order shall henceforth have effect as though the amending Order had not been made, without prejudice however to the validity of anything done thereunder or to any liability incurred in respect of any act or omission before the date of the coming into force of this Order. [2030]

3. The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of this Order as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [2031]

MOTOR VEHICLES (AUTHORISATION OF SPECIAL TYPES) (AMENDMENT) (NO. 2) ORDER, 1947

June 25, 1947

Whereas by section 3 of the Road Traffic Act, 1930, the Minister of Transport (hereinafter referred to as "the Minister") may by Order authorise, subject to such restrictions and conditions as may be specified in the Order, the use on roads of special motor vehicles or trailers or special types of motor vehicles or trailers which are constructed either for special purposes or for tests or trials ;

And whereas in pursuance of the said powers, the Motor Vehicles (Authorisation of Special Types) Order, 1944, and the Motor Vehicles (Authorisation of Special Types) (Amendment) Order, 1947 (which authorise the use on roads of land tractors constructed for the combined purpose of reaping and threshing notwithstanding that they do not comply in all respects with the requirements of the Motor Vehicles (Construction and Use) Regulations, 1947, provided, inter alia, that the overall width of any such vehicle does not exceed 10 ft., that it does not travel at a speed exceeding 10 miles per hour and that two clear days' notice in advance is given to the police), were made ;

And whereas it is provided by the said section 3 that the Minister may at any time revoke, vary or amend an order made thereunder ;

And whereas it is expedient that the operation of the said Orders should, until the 30th day of November, 1947, be modified so as to include any land tractor constructed for the purpose aforesaid the overall width of which exceeds 10 ft. but does not exceed 14 ft. subject to compliance with the like conditions except that any such vehicles shall not travel at a speed exceeding 5 miles per hour, and so as to reduce from two clear days to 24 hours the notice to be given in advance to the police ;

Now, therefore, the Minister in exercise of the powers so conferred upon him and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following Order :—

1. This Order shall come into force on the 1st day of July, 1947, and may be cited as "The Motor Vehicles (Authorisation of Special Types) (Amendment) (No. 2) Order, 1947." [2032]

2. The Motor Vehicles (Authorisation of Special Types) Order, 1944, and the Motor Vehicles (Authorisation of Special Types) (Amendment) Order, 1947, shall have effect as though in Article 3 of the first mentioned Order the following paragraphs were substituted for paragraphs (c), (e) and (f) respectively :—

"(c) the overall width of such vehicles shall not exceed 14 ft."

"(e) before any such vehicle, the overall width of which exceeds 8 ft., is required to travel on roads for any distance exceeding 5 miles, 24 hours notice of the intended journey shall be given to the Chief Officer of Police of every district through which it is intended that the vehicle shall pass, provided that with the concurrence of each such Chief Officer concerned less than 24 hours' notice may be given."

"(f) no such vehicle the overall width of which exceeds 10 ft. shall travel at a speed exceeding 5 miles per hour, and no other such vehicle shall travel at a speed exceeding 10 miles per hour." [2033]

3. This Order shall cease to have effect on the 30th November, 1947, without prejudice however to the validity of anything previously done thereunder. [2034]

4. The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of this Order as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [2035]

MOTOR VEHICLES (CONSTRUCTION AND USE) (AMENDMENT) REGULATIONS, 1947

June 25, 1947

Whereas in exercise of the powers conferred upon him by section 30 of the Road Traffic Act, 1930, the Minister of Transport (hereinafter referred to as "the Minister") made the Motor Vehicles (Construction and Use) Regulations, 1947 (hereinafter referred to as "the Principal Regulations");

And whereas Regulation 8 of the Principal Regulations makes provision for the equipment of motor vehicles and trailers with suitable and sufficient springs between each wheel and the frame of the vehicle except in certain cases;

And whereas it is expedient that the said Regulation should be amended by the addition of a further exception;

Now, therefore, the Minister in exercise of the powers conferred upon him as aforesaid and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following Regulations:—

1. These Regulations shall come into force forthwith and may be cited as "The Motor Vehicles (Construction and Use) (Amendment) Regulations, 1947". [2036]

2. Regulation 8 of the Principal Regulations shall have effect as though the following were added after paragraph (viii) of the proviso:—

"(ix) any vehicle, all the wheels of which are equipped with pneumatic tyres, controlled by a pedestrian and not constructed or adapted for use or used for the carriage of a driver or passenger." [2037]

3. The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [2038]

* * * * *

MOTOR VEHICLES (CONSTRUCTION AND USE) (AMENDMENT) (NO. 2) REGULATIONS, 1947

July 23, 1947

Whereas in exercise of the powers conferred upon him by section 30 of the Road Traffic Act, 1930, the Minister of Transport (hereinafter referred to as "the Minister") made the Motor Vehicles (Construction and Use) Regulations, 1947 (hereinafter referred to as "the Principal Regulations");

And whereas it is expedient that until the 1st day of June, 1948, Regulation 31 of the Principal Regulations (which provides that every wheel of a motor tractor shall be equipped with pneumatic tyres or tyres of soft or elastic material except in the case of land tractors which comply with, amongst other requirements, the requirement that the tyre of every steering wheel should be smooth-soled and where the tyre touches the surface of the road should be not less than 2½ inches in width) should cease to apply to land tractors registered on or before the 1st day of June 1947, whether or not they comply with that requirement;

Now, therefore, the Minister in exercise of the powers conferred upon him as aforesaid and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf hereby makes the following Regulations:—

1. These Regulations shall come into force on the 29th day of July, 1947, and may be cited as "The Motor Vehicles (Construction and Use) (Amendment) (No. 2) Regulations, 1947". [2039]

2. Regulation 31 of the Principal Regulations shall have effect in relation to land tractors registered on or before the 1st day of June, 1947, as though until the 1st day of June, 1948, the following words were omitted therefrom:—

(ii)". [2040]

3. The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [2041]

The Road Vehicles Lighting (County Borough of Bootle) Exemption Regulations, 1936.

The Road Vehicles Lighting (County Borough of Birkenhead) Exemption Regulations, 1936. [2045]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

The Road Transport Lighting Act, 1927, renders it obligatory for every vehicle on any road during the hours of darkness to carry lamps in accordance with the requirements of the Act and of any Regulations made thereunder, but the Minister of Transport is empowered by section 1 (2) (a), inter alia, to exempt horsedrawn vehicles from any of those requirements whilst carrying inflammable goods or whilst in places where inflammable material is handled or stored, provided that an application for such exemption is made by any body which is, in the Minister's opinion, a proper body so to apply.

The Regulations now revoked were made upon the application of bodies considered by the Minister to be proper bodies to apply, and these bodies have now applied for their revocation. They exempted horsedrawn vehicles from the requirements of the Act subject to certain conditions (a) when carrying cotton in the City of Liverpool, the County Borough of Wallasey and the County Borough of Bootle, and (b) whether carrying cotton or not, while within the Mersey Dock Estate and certain areas in Liverpool, Bootle and Birkenhead, being places where cotton is handled or stored.

ROAD VEHICLES (REGISTRATION AND LICENSING) (AMENDMENT) REGULATIONS, 1947

September 10, 1947

Whereas in exercise of the powers for the time being vested in him under (inter alia) Section 12 of the Roads Act, 1920, the Minister of War Transport made the Road Vehicles (Registration and Licensing) Regulations, 1941 (hereinafter referred to as "the Principal Regulations") ;

And whereas paragraph (2) of Regulation 26 of the Principal Regulations prescribes that certain requirements as to the exhibition and illumination of identification marks should be complied with by every mechanically-propelled vehicle registered for the first time on or after the first day of October, 1938, and that these requirements should be complied with by every mechanically-propelled vehicle as from the first day of October, 1942 ;

And whereas the last mentioned date has from time to time been postponed by divers Regulations, the last such postponement being until the first day of October, 1947 ;

And whereas it is expedient that mechanically-propelled vehicles other than those registered for the first time on or after the first day of October, 1938, should be wholly exempted from compliance with the said requirements ;

Now, therefore, the Minister of Transport in exercise of the powers conferred upon him by Section 12 of the Roads Act, 1920, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following Regulations :—

1. These Regulations shall come into force on the first day of October, 1947, and may be cited as "The Road Vehicles (Registration and Licensing) (Amendment) Regulations, 1947". [2046]

2. Paragraph (2) of Regulation 26 of the Principal Regulations amended as aforesaid shall have effect as though the words "and as from the first day of October, 1947, every mechanically-propelled vehicle" were omitted. [2047]

3. The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [2048]

CASES

Street and aerial traffic—Hackney carriage—Licence—Change of ownership of licensed hackney carriage—New owner's right to amendment of licence and register—Town Police Clauses Act, 1847 (c. 89), s. 37.

The licence in respect of a hackney carriage granted under the Town Police Clauses Act, 1847, s. 37, is granted to the carriage and not to the owner of the carriage, and, therefore, if a change of ownership takes place during the time for which the licence is valid, the new owner is entitled to have his name entered on the licence and the register of licences in place of that of the former owner.—*R. v. Regulation (3) of the Pedestrian Crossing Places (Traffic) Regulations, 1941, provides: "The driver of every vehicle approaching a crossing shall, unless he can see that there is no foot passenger thereon, proceed at such a speed as to be able if necessary to stop before reaching such crossing."

A pedestrian was knocked down by an omnibus while on a pedestrian crossing controlled by traffic lights. The lights were in favour of the driver, but his view of the crossing was masked by a stationary vehicle which was drawn up at the kerb on the crossing. When the omnibus became stationary, its front wheels were on the crossing:—

Held: (LORD GREENE, M.R., dissenting) the presence of the vehicle, which prevented the omnibus driver's having an uninterrupted view of the whole of the crossing, made it impossible for him to see that there was no foot passenger thereon; it was, therefore, his duty under regulation 3 to proceed at such a speed as to be able, if necessary, to stop before reaching the crossing; having failed to do so, he was in breach of the regulation; and that breach was a contributory cause of the accident.—*UPSON v. ### SPECIAL ENACTMENTS (EXTENSION OF TIME) ACT (EXPIRY) ORDER, 1947

July 3, 1947

Whereas by subsection (2) of section six of the Special Enactments (Extension of Time) Act, 1940 (which Act provides for extensions of time in relation to the discharge of duties imposed, or the exercise of powers conferred, by statutory provisions of a local or private nature, and in relation to the exercise of powers to purchase, or powers of re-entry exercisable in relation to, public utility undertakings), it is provided that in that Act the expression "the period of the present emergency" during which applications for such extensions are required to be made means a period ending with such day as His Majesty may by Order in Council declare to be the day on which the emergency that was the occasion of the passing of that Act came to an end :

Now, therefore, His Majesty, in pursuance of the subsection aforesaid, is pleased, by and with the advice of His Privy Council, to order, and it is hereby ordered, as follows :—

1. The thirtieth day of June nineteen hundred and forty-seven is hereby declared to be the day on which the emergency that was the occasion of the passing of the Special Enactments (Extension of Time) Act, 1940, came to an end. [2051]

2. This Order may be cited as the Special Enactments (Extension of Time) Act (Expiry) Order, 1947. [2052]

Statutes—Operation—Temporary statute—Expiry—Effect of expiry on operation "as respects things previously done."

The appellant was convicted on an indictment which charged him with doing acts likely to assist the enemy with intent to assist the enemy, contrary to the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, reg. 2A, made under the Emergency Powers (Defence) Act, 1939, s. 1 (1). The acts with which the indictment charged the appellant were all committed between April, 1943, and January, 1944, and the trial took place on May 27 and 28, 1946. The Emergency Powers (Defence) Act, 1939, after numerous extensions, expired on February 24, 1946. S. 11 (3) of the Act provided : "The expiry of this Act shall not affect the operation thereof as respects things previously done or omitted to be done." The question for decision, which turned entirely on the construction which ought to be placed on that subsection, was whether the subsection authorised the conviction of the appellant notwithstanding the previous expiry of the Act :—

Held : giving the words of s. 11 (3) their natural meaning, it was clear that Parliament did not intend the subsection to expire with the rest of the Act and that its presence in the Act preserved the right to prosecute after the date of expiry.

Per cur. : when a statute enables an authority to make regulations, a regulation which is validly made under the Act, i.e., which is intra vires of the regulation-making authority, should be regarded as though it were itself an enactment : Willingale v. Norris, [1909] 1 K. B. 57, approved.

STATUTES

PENSIONS (INCREASE) ACT, 1947

(10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 7)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

The main purpose of this Act, which received the Royal Assent on February 18, 1947, is to amend the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 521), the principal Act, so as to raise the income-limits governing entitlement to pension increases, to increase the rates of increase, and to continue that Act (as amended) permanently in force. In addition, the present Act makes a number of minor amendments to the principal Act in order to remove certain anomalies, enables its provisions to be extended to cover pensions not falling within it, and authorises further increases under the Pensions (Increase) Acts, 1920 and 1924 (16 Halsbury's Statutes 864, 932).

The Pensions Increase Act, 1944, which was designed to mitigate the rising cost of living, provided for increasing certain pensions granted in respect of service to the State or to a local authority. Before the amendment effected by the present Act, s. 1 of that Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 522) provided that, subject to the detailed provisions of the section, a pension specified in Sched. I to that Act might be increased by an amount calculated in accordance with the provisions of Sched. II thereto, provided, however, that the pensioner's income did not, in the case of a pensioner who was married or had a dependant, exceed £300 a year, or, in any other case, £225 a year. The said Sched. II contained a scale of authorised increases, rising in the maximum case to a rate of 30 per cent. of the amount of the pension. S. 2 of that Act made special and alternative provision in regard to pensions payable to civil servants and their dependants under the Superannuation Acts, 1834 to 1943. Where such a pension was less than £645 a year, that section authorised an increase in accordance with the scale set out in the section, irrespective of the other means of the pensioner.

The Act, which was a temporary measure, was due, in accordance with s. 10 (2) thereof, to expire on December 31, 1945, but was continued in force until March 31, 1947, by the Expiring Laws Continuance Act, 1945, s. 1 (2) and Sched., Part II (38 Halsbury's Statutes 437, 438).

S. 1 of the present Act provides for raising all the income limits and rates of increase of pensions mentioned above. Sub-s. (1) of the section raises the income limit governing increases to pensions under s. 1 of the principal Act, in the case of a pensioner who is married or has a dependent, from £300 to £450 a year, and in any other case, from £225 to £350 a year. Sub-s. (2) of s. 1 of the present Act raises the scale of authorised increases so that the amount of the increase in the maximum case is now at the rate of 40 per cent. Sub-s. (3) raises the amount of pension governing the entitlement to an increase to a pension, to which the provisions of s. 2 of the principal Act apply, from £645 a year to £787 10s. a year; while sub-s. (4) provides that these increases are to apply to any instalment of an increase of pension payable in respect of any period beginning on or after December 1, 1946, and for adjusting accordingly any instalment made before the passing of the Act on February 18, 1947.

A number of minor amendments to the principal Act are made by s. 2 of the present Act in order to remove anomalies which experience has shown to exist. The most important of these amendments, which is dealt with by sub-s. (1) of that section, deals with the position of a pensioner whose pension is increased under the principal Act and who is also in receipt of a non-contributory pension under the Old Age Pensions Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 1051). Such a pensioner might in certain circumstances be unfairly penalised by a strict adherence to the provisions of the Act, and the said sub-s. (1) is designed to allow flexibility in administration so as to secure to the pensioner the greatest possible amount in respect of the two pensions taken together.

S. 3 continues the Act of 1944 (as amended) in force as a permanent measure. It is, however, provided that no increase of pension is to be payable thereunder where the amount is determined by reference either to a rate of emoluments received on or after April 1, 1947, or to an average rate received over a period beginning on or after April 1, 1946. S. 4 deals with the position of pensioners whose pensions were increased under the provisions of the Pensions (Increase) Acts, 1920 and 1924 (16 Halsbury's Statutes 864, 932), which made provision for increasing pensions as a result of the 1914-1918 war corresponding to that made by the principal Act as a result of the last war. The section raises the income limits governing entitlement to an increase of pension under those Acts in order to prevent the reduction of any such increase in cases where the pensioner's income is increased as a result of the recent raising of the pension rates payable under the Widows', Orphans' and Old Age Contributory Pensions Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 1198).

Lastly, s. 5 applies to pension authorities paying pensions which do not fall within the provisions of the principal Act and yet cannot be increased because they are governed by statute: the section enables the Treasury to make regulations empowering any persons paying such pensions to pay the like increases as would be payable if they were pensions specified in Sched. I to the principal Act.

The annual cost of the increases provided for by the Act is estimated at approximately £9,600,000, of which about £2,500,000 will fall upon the rates and the balance upon the Exchequer. [2054]

[18th February 1947.]

1. Raising of limits for, and rates of, pensions increases under principal Act.—(1) The limit specified in the proviso to subsection (1) of section one of the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944 (hereafter in this Act referred to as “the principal Act”), under which an increase of pension is not to be made under that section where the income of the pensioner exceeds the said limit, and in paragraph 4 of the Second Schedule to the principal Act, which restricts any such increase to the amount required to raise the income of the pensioner to the said limit, shall be increased as follows, that is to say,—

- (a) in the case of a pensioner who is married or has at least one dependant, from three hundred pounds a year to four hundred and fifty pounds a year;
- (b) in the case of any other pensioner, from two hundred and twenty-five pounds a year to three hundred and fifty pounds a year. [2056]

(2) For paragraphs 2 and 3 of the said Second Schedule (which specify the amounts of the increases in pensions authorised under the said section one) there shall be substituted the following paragraphs :—

“2. Where a pensioner is married or has at least one dependant, then, subject to the provisions of this Schedule :—

(a) if the pension does not exceed one hundred pounds a year, the authorised increase shall be forty per cent. of the amount of the pension :

(b) if the pension exceeds one hundred pounds a year but does not exceed one hundred and thirty-three pounds six shillings and eightpence a year, the authorised increase shall be the amount of forty pounds a year :

(c) if the pension exceeds one hundred and thirty-three pounds six shillings and eightpence a year but does not exceed two hundred pounds a year, the authorised increase shall be thirty per cent. of the amount of the pension :

(d) if the pension exceeds two hundred pounds a year but does not exceed three hundred and ninety pounds a year, the authorised increase shall be the amount of sixty pounds a year :

(e) if the pension exceeds three hundred and ninety pounds a year, the authorised increase shall be the amount which is necessary to increase the pension to four hundred and fifty pounds a year.

3. Where a pensioner is unmarried and has no dependants then, subject to the provisions of this Schedule :—

(a) if the pension does not exceed seventy-five pounds a year, the authorised increase shall be forty per cent. of the amount of the pension :

(b) if the pension exceeds seventy-five pounds a year but does not exceed one hundred pounds a year, the authorised increase shall be the amount of thirty pounds a year :

(c) if the pension exceeds one hundred pounds a year but does not exceed one hundred and fifty pounds a year, the authorised increase shall be thirty per cent. of the amount of the pension :

(d) if the pension exceeds one hundred and fifty pounds a year but does not exceed three hundred and five pounds a year, the authorised increase shall be the amount of forty-five pounds a year :

(e) if the pension exceeds three hundred and five pounds a year, the authorised increase shall be the amount which is necessary to increase the pension to three hundred and fifty pounds a year." [2057]

(3) For paragraph (c) of subsection (1) of section two of the principal Act (which provides that where a pension payable under the Superannuation Acts exceeds six hundred pounds a year but is less than six hundred and forty-five pounds a year the pension may be increased to six hundred and forty-five pounds a year) there shall be substituted the following paragraphs :

"(c) where the pension exceeds six hundred pounds a year but does not exceed seven hundred and fifty pounds a year, by five per cent. :

(d) where the pension exceeds seven hundred and fifty pounds a year but is less than seven hundred and eighty-seven pounds ten shillings a year, to seven hundred and eighty-seven pounds ten shillings a year." [2058]

(4) The foregoing provisions of this section shall apply to any instalment of an increase of pension payable under the principal Act in respect of any period beginning on or after the first day of December, nineteen hundred and forty-six, irrespective of the date at which an increase of the pension was first granted under the principal Act ; and any payment of such an instalment made before the passing of this Act shall be adjusted accordingly. [2059]

Principal Act.—The Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944 (see sub-s. (1), ante). For s. 1 (1), and s. 2 (1) (c) thereof, and Sched. II thereto, see 37 Halsbury's Statutes 522, 524, 529.

Income of the pensioner.—As to the calculation of a pensioner's income, see s. 3 of the principal Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 524), as amended by s. 2 (2), post, and the Increase of Pensions (Calculation of Income) Regulations, 1944, S. R. & O., 1944, No. 695, made thereunder. The first £52 of a pensioner's income, apart from his pension and from any service pension he may have, is to be disregarded in making such calculation. Any addition to a pension by way of war bonus is to be set off against any increase payable under the principal Act.

Pensions to which s. 1 of the principal Act applies.—The pensions to which s. 1 of the principal Act applies are specified in Sched. I to the Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 528) as extended by the Pensions (Increase) Act (Extension) Order, 1944, S. R. & O., 1944, No. 934, made under s. 4 of that Act. They cover pensions payable to the lower range of civil servants, to teachers, police and firemen, the Royal Irish Constabulary, local government officers, certain other school employees, collectors of taxes who were granted compensation allowances under the Finance Act, 1932, s. 29 (25 Halsbury's Statutes 206), on the abolition of their employment, midwives, registration officers, justices' clerks and their assistants, probation officers, servants of insurance committees and employees of the Standing Joint Committee for the County of London. The Treasury are empowered to make regulations authorising the payment of like increases in other cases (see s. 8, post).

Scale of authorised increases to pensions to which s. 1 of the principal Act applies.—As a result of the provision made by sub-s. (2) the scale of authorised increases in pensions to which s. 1 of and Sched. I to the principal Act apply is now as follows :—

	Amount of pension per annum	Authorised Increase
Married pensioner or pensioner with a dependant	not exceeding £100	40 per cent.
" "	£100—£133 6s. 8d.	£40 a year
" "	£133 6s. 8d.—£200	30 per cent.
" "	£200—£390	£60 a year
" "	exceeding £390	The amount required to bring the pension up to £450 a year
Unmarried pensioner with no dependants	not exceeding £75	40 per cent.
" "	£75—£100	£30 a year
" "	£100—£150	30 per cent.
" "	£150—£305	£45 a year
" "	exceeding £305	The amount required to bring the pension up to £350 a year

No increase of pension is payable where the income of a married pensioner or a pensioner with a dependant exceeds £450 or the income of an unmarried pensioner exceeds £350 (see the proviso to s. 1 (1) of the principal Act, as amended by sub-s. (1), ante).

It may be noted that the new scale of authorised increases includes lump sum increases; the increases previously authorised were all calculated on a percentage basis.

Scale of authorised increases to pensions payable under Superannuation Acts.—As a result of the amendment made by sub-s. (3), ante, to s. 2 of the principal Act, the scale of authorised increases to pensions payable under the Superannuation Acts is now as follows:—

Amount of pension per annum	Authorised increase
not exceeding £400	10 per cent.
£400–£600	7½ per cent.
£600–£750	5 per cent.
exceeding £750	The amount required to bring the pension up to £787 10s. a year

These increases are payable without regard being had to any other income of the pensioner, but, as in the case of increases to pensions under s. 1 of the principal Act, any addition to a pension by way of war bonus is to be set off against any increase of pension under the Act (see s. 3 (2) of the principal Act and the Increase of Pensions (Calculation of Income) Regulations, 1944, ante).

Superannuation Acts.—The Superannuation Acts referred to in s. 2 of the principal Act are the Superannuation Acts, 1834 to 1943. These comprise the Superannuation Acts, 1834, 1859, 1860, 1866, 1876, 1884, 1887, 1892, 1909, 1914 (16 Halsbury's Statutes 122, 179, 186, 238, 379, 551, 566, 686, 741, 772); the Superannuation (Prison Officers) Act, 1919 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 374); the Superannuation Act, 1935 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 295), and the Foreign Service Act, 1943, Part I (36 Halsbury's Statutes 45). See now also the Superannuation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 721); s. 10 (1) of that Act provides that the Act, except s. 6 (1) thereof, shall be construed as one with the 1834 to 1943 Acts.

Granting of increase.—See the Increase of Pensions (General) Regulations, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 547, post, consolidating and amending S. R. & O., 1944, No. 694, and S. R. & O., 1945, Nos. 449 and 1554.

2. Minor amendments of principal Act.—(1) Nothing in subsection (7) of section one of the principal Act (which requires a pensions authority to make increases of certain pensions) shall prevent a pensions authority making such reduction in the amount of any increase payable under the said section one to a pensioner as may be necessary to secure, where the pensioner is in receipt of a non-contributory pension under the Old Age Pensions Act, 1936, that he shall receive the greatest possible amount in respect of the increase and the non-contributory pension taken together. [2060]

(2) In calculating the income of a pensioner for the purposes of section one of the principal Act and the Second Schedule thereto the amount of any service pension (as defined in that Schedule) shall be taken into account, and accordingly in paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of section three of the principal Act (which provides for disregarding the first fifty-two pounds a year of income otherwise than in respect of a pension specified in the First Schedule to the principal Act) after the word "Act" there shall be inserted the words "or a service pension as defined in the Second Schedule thereto". [2061]

(3) Nothing in subsection (1) of section five of the principal Act (which provides that expenditure in respect of certain increases shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament) shall affect the operation, in relation to increases of pensions under the principal Act, of the provisions of section fourteen of the Police Act, 1890, and section ten of the Police Pensions Act, 1921, as to the payment of pensions partly out of the police fund and partly out of moneys provided by Parliament. [2062]

(4) Where a person is in receipt of any pension not specified in the First Schedule to the principal Act, and an increase of the pension is payable under any scheme (wherever in force and whether or not authorised by or under any enactment), being a scheme determined by the Treasury for the purposes of this subsection to be similar to the provisions of the principal Act, then for the purposes of any increase of a pension specified in the First Schedule to the principal Act authorised by section one of that Act the provisions of that Act shall apply in relation to the said person as if the first-mentioned pension were a pension specified in that Schedule of an amount equal to so much thereof as does not consist of any increase made under the said scheme, and as if that increase were an increase thereof authorised as aforesaid. [2063]

Sub-s. (1).—See Preliminary Note, ante. The effect of sub-s. (7) of s. 1 of the principal Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 523) is to make the granting of the increases to pensions provided by that section, which in all other cases is at the discretion of the pension-paying authority, obligatory in the case of pensions payable by local authorities, police and fire authorities and by certain other bodies. The non-contributory pension payable under the Old Age Pensions Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 1051), is calculated in multiples of two shillings, and a small addition to a pensioner's means, as calculated under that Act for determining the rate of such pension, may have the effect of reducing the rate of such pension by two shillings a week. Accordingly, it is to a pensioner's advantage, in such cases, to receive such a slightly reduced rate of increase of pension under the principal Act as will serve to avoid a two-shilling reduction in the rate of his non-contributory pension. In cases where the payment of the increase of pension was discretionary, this adjustment could be, and was, effected by administrative action. The purpose of the present subsection is to enable it to be done also in cases where payment of increases is mandatory.

Principal Act.—The Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944 (see s. 1 (1), ante). For s. 1 thereof, see 37 Halsbury's Statutes 522.

Old Age Pensions Act, 1936.—29 Halsbury's Statutes 1051.

Sub-s. (2).—S. 3 (1) of the principal Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 524) provides, inter alia, that a pensioner's income shall, for the purposes of s. 1 of, and Sched. II to, that Act be calculated in accordance with regulations made by the Treasury, which regulations are in particular to provide for disregarding the first £52 of a pensioner's income accruing otherwise than in respect of a pension to which s. 1 of that Act applies. The effect of inserting the words "or a service pension as defined in the Second Schedule thereto", as provided by the present subsection, is to bring such a pension within the income of a pensioner which is to be taken into account in calculating income for the purposes aforesaid. See the Increase of Pensions (Calculation of Income) Regulations, 1944 and 1947 (S. R. & O., 1944, No. 695; and S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1929, post).

Police Act, 1890, s. 14.—This section was repealed by the Police Pensions Act, 1921, s. 35 (3) and Sched. III (12 Halsbury's Statutes 890, 894), but regulations made under it unless and until revoked or varied continue in force.

Definitions.—For definitions of "pension" and "pension authority," see s. 8 of the principal Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 527).

Sub-s. (3).—It is provided by sub-s. (1) of s. 5 of the principal Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 526) that any additional expenditure incurred as a result of the increases made by s. 1 thereof to pensions specified in Sched. I, Part I, to that Act are to be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. However, s. 10 of the Police Pensions Act, 1921, supra, which deals with pensionable service in two or more of the following capacities—as a civil servant within the meaning of the Superannuation Act, 1887, as an officer on the staff of the Metropolitan Police, as a member of a police force with salary paid out of the police fund or wholly or partly out of moneys provided by Parliament—provides for payment of pensions in such cases partly out of the police fund and partly out of moneys provided by Parliament. In these circumstances, the present subsection provides that s. 5 (1) of the principal Act is not to affect the operation of s. 10 of the Police Pensions Act, 1921, in relation to increases of pensions under the principal Act.

3. Continuance in force of principal Act.—(1) The principal Act, as amended by the foregoing provisions of this Act, shall subject to the provisions of this section continue in force notwithstanding anything in subsection (5) of section eight or subsection (2) of section ten of the principal Act as to the expiry thereof; and accordingly the said subsections are hereby repealed. [2064]

(2) Where the amount of a pension is determined by reference to a rate of emoluments received on or after the first day of April, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, or by reference to an average rate of emoluments received over a period of service beginning on or after the first day of April, nineteen hundred and forty-six, no increase of the pension shall be payable under the principal Act. [2065]

(3) Where the amount of a pension is determined by reference to an average rate of emoluments received over a period of service (in this subsection referred to as "the relevant service") part of which was served before the last mentioned date—

(a) for the purposes of calculating the amount of any increase under the principal Act the pension shall be deemed to be of the like amount as the pension which could have been granted if it had

- fallen to be determined by reference to the average rate of emoluments received over so many years of the relevant service as were begun before the first day of April, nineteen hundred and forty-six ;
- (b) the amount of the increase which could be granted apart from this paragraph shall be reduced in the proportion which the relevant service less the years begun as aforesaid bears to the whole of the relevant service. [2066]

Effect of section.—See Preliminary Note, ante.

Principal Act.—The Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944 (see s. 1 (1), ante). For ss. 8 (5) and 10 (2) thereof, see 37 Halsbury's Statutes 528. S. 10 (2) provided that the Act should expire on December 31, 1945, and s. 8 (5) provided that nothing in the Act should authorise the increase of any pension in respect of any period after its expiry. The life of the Act was extended by the Expiring Laws Continuance Act, 1945, s. 1 and Sched., Part II (38 Halsbury's Statutes 437, 438).

Definition.—For definition of "pension," see s. 10 of the principal Act, supra.

4. Increase of limits of income under Act of 1920.—(1) The limits of one hundred and fifty pounds and two hundred pounds specified in paragraph (3) of section two of the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1920 (which makes it a condition for the increase of a pension under that Act that the means of the pensioner are less than one hundred and fifty pounds a year if unmarried, or two hundred pounds a year if married) and in proviso (ii) to paragraph 1 of the Schedule to that Act (under which no pension may be increased by an amount greater than is sufficient to bring the means of the pensioner up to the said limits) shall be increased to two hundred pounds and two hundred and seventy-five pounds respectively. [2067]

(2) In proviso (i) to paragraph 1 of the First Schedule to the said Act of 1920 (which provides that if the amount to which a pension may be increased under the scale set out in that paragraph is less than the amount to which a smaller pension might be increased, it may be increased to the latter amount) after the words "might be increased" there shall be inserted the words "or if a pension greater than such as may be increased under the said scale is less than the amount to which a smaller pension might be increased". [2068]

(3) The foregoing provisions of this section shall apply to any instalment of an increase of pension payable under the Pensions (Increase) Acts, 1920 and 1924, in respect of any period beginning on or after the first day of December, nineteen hundred and forty-six, irrespective of the date at which an increase of the pension was first granted ; and any payment of such an instalment made before the passing of this Act shall be adjusted accordingly. [2069]

(4) This section shall be construed as one with the Pensions (Increase) Acts, 1920 and 1924. [2070]

Effect of section.—See Preliminary Note, ante. This section was added to the Bill at the Committee Stage. The Financial Secretary to the Treasury, in moving the Second Reading of the clause, said :

"It was brought to our notice during the Recess that certain pensioners who got their pension by retirement twenty-five or even thirty years ago, and who received a pension increase after the last war under the Pensions (Increase) Act of 1920, and the further Act of 1924, might as a result of the recent increase given in the old age pension lose part or the whole of their increase under the 1920 Act. That was due to the fact that the income limits set in the Acts of 1920 and 1924 were too low. They were £150 in the case of a single man and £200 in the case of a married man. The new contributory pension of 26s. for a single individual and 42s. for a married couple mean an increase in the rates of £41 12s. and £57 4s. a year and we are now taking power in this clause to raise the income limits under the Acts of 1920 and 1924 to £200 and £275 respectively. That will permit this very small body of pensioners—there cannot be many of them left—to take advantage of and qualify for the increases in the new old-age pension which came into force on 1st October last" (432 H. of C. Official Report 412).

The increase in the rates of contributory pension under the Widows', Orphans' and Old Age Contributory Pensions Act, 1936, referred to by the Financial Secretary, were made by the National Insurance (Increase of Contributory Pensions) Regulations, 1946, S. R. & O., 1946, No. 1508.

Pensions (Increase) Act, 1920, s. 2, para. 3, and Sched., para. 1, provisos (i), (ii).—16 Halsbury's Statutes 864, 867.

Pensions (Increase) Act, 1924.—16 Halsbury's Statutes 932.

5. Payment of increases under schemes not falling within principal Act.—

(1) The Treasury may make regulations empowering any person or body of persons specified in the regulations to pay the like increases, of pensions payable by them or in respect of pensions otherwise payable by reference to service with them or to such service and other service, as would be payable if those pensions were pensions specified in the First Schedule to the principal Act. [2071]

(2) Regulations under this section may provide for increases thereby authorised taking effect as from such date after the passing of this Act, but whether before or after the coming into operation of the regulations, as may be specified therein. [2072]

(3) Any regulations under this section shall be laid before Parliament immediately after being made, and if either House of Parliament within the period of forty days beginning with the day on which the regulations were laid before it resolves that an Address be presented to His Majesty praying that the regulations be annulled, no further proceedings shall be taken thereunder after the date of the resolution, and His Majesty may by Order in Council revoke the regulations, so, however, that any such resolution and revocation shall be without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done under the regulations or to the making of new regulations.

In reckoning any such period of forty days as aforesaid, no account shall be taken of any time during which Parliament is dissolved or prorogued, or during which both Houses are adjourned for more than four days. [2073]

(4) Notwithstanding anything in subsection (4) of section one of the Rules Publication Act, 1893, regulations made under subsection (1) of this section shall not be deemed to be statutory rules to which that section applies. [2074]

Effect of section.—See Preliminary Note, ante.

Principal Act.—The Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944 (see s. 1 (1), ante). For Sched. I thereto, see 37 Halsbury's Statutes 528.

Extension of increases to other pensions.—A power of extending the provisions of s. 1 of the principal Act, providing for increases to pensions specified in Sched. I to the Act, supra, is provided by s. 4 thereof (37 Halsbury's Statutes 526). That power is, however, restricted in its application to certain classes of pensioners analogous to local government pensioners, and to probation officers or employees of insurance committees. Under that section the Pensions (Increase) Act (Extension) Order, 1944, S. R. & O., 1944, No. 934, was made. The provision made by the present section, under which the Treasury may make regulations empowering the payment of like increases to pensions as are provided by s. 1 of the principal Act, is in no way circumscribed. Moreover, the provision is more flexible. Increases to pensions which are made under the provisions of s. 4 are payable as if those pensions were specified in Part II of Sched. I to the Act, the effect of which, in accordance with s. 1 (7) of the Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 523), is to make the payment of the increases obligatory on the paying authority. Increases to pensions under the present section, however, are to be payable as if the pensions were specified in Sched. I, tout court, and are payable at the discretion of the paying authority.

Regulations and the effect of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946.—See the Increase of Pensions (Extension) Regulations, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 1930, post. The effect of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 784), which came into full operation on January 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 3), is that documents made after its commencement in exercise of a power to make statutory rules within the meaning of the Rules Publication Act, 1893 (which by s. 4 thereof (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1018) includes regulations) are "statutory instruments" (see the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946, s. 1 (2); 39 Halsbury's Statutes 784).

Accordingly, regulations made under the present section after the commencement of the Act of 1946 are required to be laid before Parliament in accordance with the provisions of s. 4 of that Act in substitution for the corresponding provisions of the present section, and the provisions of s. 5 of that Act for annulment in pursuance of resolution of either House of Parliament are substituted for the corresponding provisions of this section.

Rules Publication Act, 1893, s. 1 (4).—18 Halsbury's Statutes 1016. That section requires that any "statutory rules," which, as defined in s. 4 thereof, includes "regulations," shall be published in the London Gazette at least forty days before they are made. The effect of sub-s. (4), supra, is to make this procedure unnecessary in the case of regulations made under the present section. The Act of 1893 is repealed by the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946, s. 12 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 789), which Act is discussed in the preceding note.

Definition.—For definition of "pension," see s. 8 of the principal Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 527).

6. Short title, construction, citation and interpretation.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1947, and, except in so far as it is directed to be construed with the Pensions (Increase) Acts, 1920 and 1924, shall be construed as one with the principal Act; and that Act and this Act, except as aforesaid, may be cited as the Pensions (Increase) Acts, 1944 and 1947. [2075]

(2) References in this Act to any enactment shall be construed, except where the context otherwise requires, as references to that enactment as amended by any other enactment, including this Act. [2076]

FINANCE ACT, 1947

(10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 35)

GENERAL NOTE

Under the heading "Retirement and other benefits for directors and employees", ss. 19–23 of this Act make special provision to prevent retirement benefit schemes from being used, particularly by the directors of limited companies, as a means of tax avoidance.

Where bodies corporate and certain unincorporated bodies make contributions under schemes for retirement or other benefits for their directors or employees, the sums so paid are for purposes of income tax to be deemed income of those directors or employees and chargeable to tax under Sched. E accordingly, subject to insurance relief where appropriate (ss. 19 (1) and 23 (6)). In addition, where agreements are in force between such parties for the provision of retirement or other benefits but no amounts are actually paid, the benefits when due being met out of the funds of such bodies, a notional figure is to be taken as taxable income of the directors or employees concerned during the years of their employment (s. 19 (2)).

There are, however, a number of exemptions from these provisions, including exemption for payments under statutory superannuation schemes (s. 20 (1)) and for schemes approved by the Commissioners of Inland Revenue (s. 21 (1)). As local government superannuation schemes will presumably be exempted as having statutory authority, it has not been thought necessary to include the text of the sections in this volume. [2077]

PROBATION OFFICERS (SUPERANNUATION) ACT, 1947

PRELIMINARY NOTE

The main purpose of the Probation Officers (Superannuation) Act, 1947, which came into force on July 31, 1947, the date of the Royal Assent, is to provide for winding up the existing superannuation arrangements for probation officers and for placing them under the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937 (30 Halsbury's Statutes 385), in the same way as local government officers. For the first time probation officers' clerks are to be superannuable as such.

Part I of the Criminal Justice Act, 1925 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 395 et seq.), provided for the appointment for every probation area of one or more probation officers to undertake the supervision of persons under probation orders, for the selection of probation officers, payment of salaries and expenses and other incidental matters. Among these was the superannuation of probation officers: S. 1 (3) of the Act empowered the Secretary of State by scheme to make such arrangements as he thought fit with a view to the provision of superannuation allowances or gratuities for probation officers or their legal personal representatives and it was under this power that the Secretary of State made the Probation Officers' Superannuation Rules, 1926 (S. R. & O., 1926, No. 1354/L.36), by which detailed provision for such superannuation was made. However, the Act of 1925 contained no power to vary the scheme so made, and accordingly various defects which from time to time appeared could be set right only by Act of Parliament.

The Home Secretary, in introducing the Bill for Second Reading in the House of Commons on June 18, 1947, told of four such defects (438 H. of C. Official Report 2148 et seq.). First, the contributions paid by serving probation officers were fixed according to their age at entry, the pensions being at the rate of £6 for each completed year of service for a man and £4 for a woman, instead of being related in some way to the salary received at the end of service as in most modern pension schemes (Probation Officers' Superannuation Rules, 1926, supra, rr. 5 and 10 and Sched. I). Secondly, the existing scheme was limited to probation officers under the age of forty on appointment to full-time employment, which meant that an officer appointed for part-time duties who later became a full-time officer was not entitled to a pension if appointed after the age of forty (Probation Officers' Superannuation Rules, 1926, supra, r. 10 and Sched. I). Thirdly, the scheme applied only to full-time to the exclusion of part-time officers (Probation Officers' Superannuation Rules, 1926, supra, rr. 1 and 3). Fourthly, no provision was made for the superannuation of probation officers' clerks as such.

These superannuation provisions were brought into force before local government superannuation became compulsory throughout the country and in view of the comprehensive nature of the local government provisions it was decided that instead of modifying the existing arrangements, it would be more satisfactory to bring probation officers under the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937 (30 Halsbury's Statutes 385), which would not only correct the defects but make much more effective provision for superannuation allowances and gratuities.

Accordingly, s. 1 (1) of the Act empowers the Secretary of State by order to apply the provisions of the Act of 1937 or of any local superannuation enactment (as defined in sub-s. (5) of the same section) having effect in lieu thereof in a particular district, to probation officers and their clerks subject to any necessary adaptations, and to transfer the liabilities of the existing superannuation fund for probation officers to the new funds under which such officers will come. Wide incidental powers are given by s. 1 (3), but probation officers in the City of London are excepted from transfer (s. 1 (1) (a)).

Various safeguards have been included in the Act in relation to orders of the Secretary of State thereunder. Before any such order is made the Secretary of State is to give notice to the associations of local authorities concerned and is to take into consideration any representations submitted as a result (s. 3 (1)). Again, orders are to be laid before Parliament and can be avoided by resolution of either House. Different provision may be made for different classes of probation officers and clerks (s. 1 (3)), and care has been taken on this occasion to include power to vary or revoke orders made (s. 3 (2)).

Of the minor provisions, s. 1 (6) provides that the Act is not to affect the operation of the Local Government Staffs (War Service) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1118), and the increase of probation officers' pensions permitted under the Pensions (Increase) Acts, 1944 and 1947 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 521; 10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 7), is extended to their clerks. Various consequential amendments and repeals in relation to the Criminal Justice Act, 1925, are provided for by s. 2 of and the Schedule to the Act. [2078]

An Act to make fresh provision with respect to the payment of superannuation allowances and gratuities to or in respect of probation officers and certain former probation officers and to make provision with respect to the payment of such allowances and gratuities to or in respect of clerks appointed to assist probation officers in the performance of their duties. [2079] [31st July 1947.]

1. Superannuation of probation officers and clerks to probation officers.—

(1) The Secretary of State may by order apply to—

- (a) probation officers appointed under Part I of the Criminal Justice Act, 1925 (hereinafter referred to as “probation officers”) other than probation officers in the City of London, or any class of probation officers other than as aforesaid; and
- (b) clerks appointed to assist probation officers in the performance of their duties either by probation committees or the Secretary of State or before the first day of July, nineteen hundred and forty-four, by probation officers, or any class of clerks so appointed;

the provisions of the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, or of a local superannuation enactment, subject in any case to such adaptations, modifications and exceptions as he thinks fit, and transfer, to such superannuation funds maintained under the said Act of 1937 or a local superannuation enactment as may be specified in the order, the liabilities of the superannuation fund established under the arrangements made by the Secretary of State under subsection (3) of section one of the Criminal Justice Act, 1925 (hereinafter referred to as the “existing superannuation arrangements”) in respect of the payment of superannuation allowances under those arrangements to persons who, immediately before the coming into operation of the order, are entitled to receive such allowances under those arrangements. [2080]

(2) The provisions applied by any such order as aforesaid shall, in relation to probation officers to whom the existing superannuation arrangements apply, have effect in lieu of those arrangements. [2081]

(3) An order under this section may, so far as relating to probation officers and clerks, make different provision with respect to different classes thereof, and may contain such incidental, consequential and supplemental provisions as appear to the Secretary of State to be requisite or expedient for the purposes of the order, and (without prejudice to the generality of this subsection) may provide—

- (a) for the winding up of the superannuation fund established under the existing superannuation arrangements and the distribution of the assets thereof remaining after the payment of the expenses of the winding up amongst superannuation funds maintained under the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, or a local superannuation enactment; and
- (b) for the payment by probation committees to superannuation funds so maintained of sums requisite to prevent the arising therein of deficiencies that would otherwise arise by reason of provisions of the order requiring the reckoning of service before the date of the coming into operation of the order. [2082]

(4) Section four of the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944 (which, subject to the limitations imposed by the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1947, enables pensions payable in respect of service as a probation officer to be increased) shall have effect as if the reference to such service included a reference to service as such a clerk as is mentioned in paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of this section. [2083]

(5) In this section the expression “local superannuation enactment” means a local Act as defined by the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, whereunder a superannuation fund is maintained by a local Act authority as so defined, any instrument having effect under such an Act and any other enactment (whether contained in a public general or local Act) relating to the payment by such an authority to or in respect of an employee of theirs of gratuities or compensation for death or injury. [2084]

(6) Nothing in this section shall affect the operation of the Local Government Staffs (War Service) Act, 1939. [2085]

Criminal Justice Act, 1925, Part I.—11 Halsbury's Statutes 395 et seq. As to the effect of this Part of the Act, see the Preliminary Note, ante.

S. 1 (1) (a) and (b).—Note the power to apply orders either to probation officers in general or to specific classes of such officers, similar provision being made in the case of clerks. In addition, sub-s. (3) of the present section, ante, expressly provides that different provision may be made by the Secretary of State with respect to different classes of probation officers and clerks.

Superannuation of probation officers' clerks.—Whilst the Act makes the first provision for superannuation of these clerks as such, it was the practice of some local authorities to appoint a clerk to their service and then second him to the probation service, retaining him in their own superannuation scheme for pension purposes. To some extent, therefore, it depended upon local arrangements whether or not clerks were entitled to pensions (see 438 H. of C. Official Report 2149).

July 1, 1944.—The date when the Probation Rules, 1944, S. R. & O., 1944, No. 700/L.30, came into operation. Rule 9 thereof inserted a new rule 74A in the Probation Rules, 1926, S. R. & O., 1926, No. 577/L.17, whereby Probation Committees and, in London, the Secretary of State, were empowered to appoint one or more clerks for assisting probation officers in the performance of their duties and to pay them reasonable remuneration.

Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937.—30 Halsbury's Statutes 385. The principal Act governing the superannuation of local government officers. The Local Government and Other Officers' Superannuation Act, 1922 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 863), which it repealed was an adoptive Act, but the Act of 1937, with minor exceptions, required all local authorities to maintain a superannuation fund, or to make provision, by combining with another authority in maintaining a joint superannuation fund or otherwise, for the superannuation of their officers and of such other employees as were brought within the scheme.

Local superannuation enactment.—E.g. the Manchester Corporation Acts, 1920 and 1946. For the definition of this term, see sub-s. (5) of this section, ante.

Under s. 1 (2) of the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937 (30 Halsbury's Statutes 387), there were excepted from the obligation to maintain a superannuation scheme under that Act local authorities who "not having adopted the Act of 1922, maintain a superannuation fund under a local Act," and Part II of that Act (30 Halsbury's Statutes 407 et seq.) made detailed provision for the modification of local Act schemes so as to bring them more closely into alignment with the general principles of the Act of 1937.

It is therefore appropriate that the provisions to be applied to probation officers should be those either of the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, or the local superannuation enactment, whichever is operative in the individual circumstances, though adaptations, modifications and exceptions may be made as the Secretary of State thinks fit.

Existing superannuation arrangements.—See the Preliminary Note, ante.

Pensions (Increase) Acts.—For the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944, s. 4, see 37 Halsbury's Statutes 526, and for the application of the Act to probation officers, see para. 8 of the Sched. to the Pensions (Increase) Act (Extension) Order, 1944, S. R. & O., 1944, No. 934. For the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1947, see ante.

As defined by the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937.—By s. 40 (1) of this Act (30 Halsbury's Statutes 416) the term "local Act" is to include a provisional order confirmed by Parliament. S. 1 (3) of the same Act provides that "a council mentioned in Part I of the First Schedule to this Act who, not having adopted the Act of 1922, maintains a superannuation fund under a local Act" is referred to as a "local Act authority" and the said Part I comprises a list of the types of local authorities whose whole-time officers are to be compulsorily superannuable. The Act of 1922, referred to supra, is the earlier adoptive Local Government and Other Officers' Superannuation Act, 1922 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 863).

Local Government Staffs (War Service) Act, 1939.—32 Halsbury's Statutes 1118. By s. 3 of and the First Schedule to this Act probation officers who undertake war service, as defined, are to have the period of their war service, for superannuation purposes, aggregated with their earlier service and accordingly reckoned as probation service as regards "any rules or scheme relating to the superannuation of probation officers made under the Criminal Justice Act, 1925" (Local Government Staffs (War Service) Act, 1939, s. 14). As to the limiting date under this Act, see title OFFICERS OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES, ante.

Note the provisions of s. 4 (4) of the last-mentioned Act whereby the probation authority are to pay to the appropriate Superannuation Fund for Probation Officers at the normal times for payment (a) any sums the officer would have contributed if he had continued to serve in his civil capacity, together with (b) any contributions the authority would itself have paid in that event.

Note also s. 6 (3) of the same Act under which any questions arising are to be determined in accordance with the rules or scheme relating to the superannuation of probation officers (see supra).

2. Consequential amendments and repeals.—As from the coming into operation of the order first made under this Act—

(a) the provisions of the Criminal Justice Act, 1925, specified in the first column of Part I of the Schedule to this Act shall have effect subject to the amendments specified in relation to those provisions respectively in the second column of that Part of that Schedule; and

- (b) the provisions of that Act specified in the first column of Part II of the Schedule to this Act shall be repealed to the extent specified in the second column of that Part of that Schedule. [2086]

Order first made under this Act.—This wording is necessitated by s. 3 (2), infra, whereby any order under the Act may be varied or revoked by a subsequent order so that, in theory at least, any number of orders may be made under the Act.

Criminal Justice Act, 1925.—11 Halsbury's Statutes 395.

3. Provisions as to orders.—(1) Before making an order under this Act the Secretary of State shall cause notice thereof to be given in such manner as he thinks fit to any association of local authorities who may be affected thereby, and shall take into consideration any representations with respect thereto which may be submitted to him by any such association. [2087]

(2) An order under this Act may be varied or revoked by a subsequent order made by the Secretary of State subject to the like conditions as the original order. [2088]

(3) An order under this Act shall be laid before Parliament immediately after it is made, and if either House of Parliament within the period of forty days beginning with the day on which the order is laid before it resolves that it be annulled, it shall thereupon become void, but without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done thereunder or to the making of a new order.

In reckoning any such period of forty days as aforesaid, no account shall be taken of any time during which Parliament is dissolved or prorogued, or during which both Houses are adjourned for more than four days. [2089]

(4) Section one of the Rules Publication Act, 1893, shall not apply to an order under this Act. [2090]

Notice to be given.—This provision is inserted because of the financial arrangements between the Home Office and local authorities incidental to any such orders. Note that the Secretary of State is only required to "take into consideration" any representations submitted.

An amendment to include the National Association of Probation Officers, at the Committee Stage in the House of Commons on June 27, 1947, was withdrawn on an assurance by the Under-Secretary of State for the Home Department that, so far as that Department was concerned, whenever the interests of probation officers were under discussion the probation officers would be taken into consultation (439 H. of C. Official Report 881).

Effect of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946.—This Act came into full operation on January 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 3). The effect of the Act is that documents made after its commencement in exercise of certain statutory powers conferred by Acts passed before its commencement are "statutory instruments" (s. 1 (2); 39 Halsbury's Statutes 784); accordingly such documents are required to be laid before Parliament in accordance with the provisions of s. 4 of that Act in substitution for the corresponding provisions of the present section, and the provisions of s. 5 of that Act for annulment in pursuance of resolution of either House of Parliament are substituted for the corresponding provisions of the present section.

Only such documents, however, as are made in exercise of certain statutory powers are "statutory instruments"; these powers are identified by reference to the Rules Publication Act, 1893 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1016), and are powers conferred on a "rule-making authority" to make "statutory rules," both of which are defined in s. 4 of that Act. A statutory rule means a "rule, regulation or bye-law made under any Act" by, among others, any government department; prima facie, therefore, a departmental order or scheme is not a "statutory rule" and would not, if made after the commencement of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946, under a power conferred by an earlier Act, be a "statutory instrument" in the absence of express provision to the contrary. But the meaning of "statutory rule" in s. 1 (2) of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 784), has been extended by the Statutory Instruments Regulations, 1947 (S.I. 1948 No. 1) with the result that orders referred to in the present section become "statutory instruments" if made on or after January 1, 1948.

4. Expenses.—Any increase in the sums payable under subsection (3) of section five of the Criminal Justice Act, 1925, out of moneys provided by Parliament which is attributable to the passing of this Act shall be defrayed out of moneys so provided. [2091]

Criminal Justice Act, 1925, s. 5 (3).—11 Halsbury's Statutes 398. This subsection provides that there shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament, towards the expenditure of local authorities under Part I of that Act and towards the expense of maintaining persons released on probation, such sums as the Secretary of State with the approval of the Treasury may with the like approval determine.

5. Short title and extent.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Probation Officers (Superannuation) Act, 1947. [2092]

(2) This Act shall not extend to Scotland or Northern Ireland. [2093]

INCREASE OF PENSIONS (GENERAL) REGULATIONS,
1947

March 26, 1947

The Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury, in pursuance of Their powers under sub-section (5) of Section 3 of the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944 (which Act, as amended by the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1947, is hereinafter referred to as "the Act") and of all other powers enabling Them in that behalf, hereby make the following Regulations :—

1. These Regulations may be cited as the Increase of Pensions (General) Regulations, 1947. [2113]

2.—(1) In these Regulations :

- (a) the expression "dependant" has the meaning assigned to it in Section 1 (5) of the Act ;
- (b) the expression "income", in relation to any person, means income of that person calculated in accordance with Regulations made by the Treasury under Section 3 (1) of the Act ;
- (c) the expression "the prescribed conditions" means the conditions prescribed in Section 1 of the Act and the Second Schedule thereto ;
- (d) other expressions which are defined in the Act or in Regulations made by the Treasury under Section 3 (1) of the Act have the same meanings as in the Act or in those Regulations, as the case may be ;
- (e) references to an increase of pension under Section 1 of the Act include references to an increase under that Section of any pensions specified in an Order in Council made under Section 4 of the Act ; and
- (f) references to a pensioner who is unmarried include references to a pensioner who in accordance with these Regulations is treated as unmarried for the purposes of the Act.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [2114]

3.—(1) The first application for the grant of an increase of pension under Section 1 of the Act shall be made by the pensioner to the Authority from whom payment of the pension is received not more than three months before, or as soon as may be after, the prescribed conditions are fulfilled in his case.

(2) An application for the continuation and reassessment of an increase in pension shall be made to the Pension Authority not more than 3 months or less than 2 months before the expiration of the current grant of increase.

Provided that where the increase has been granted for a period beginning before 1st April, 1946, the application for continuation and reassessment shall be made as soon as practicable after the date of these Regulations.

(3) An application by a pensioner under the age of seventeen years shall be made on his behalf by the person who appears to the Pension Authority to have control over the pensioner. [2115]

4.—(1) Every such application as aforesaid shall, unless this requirement is dispensed with under Regulation 6 hereof, be accompanied by a Declaration by the pensioner in the form of Declaration X set out in the First Schedule hereto or in a form substantially to the like effect.

Provided that in the case of a second or subsequent application where none of the events mentioned in Regulation 11 has occurred since the pensioner last made a Declaration, the Pension Authority may, at its discretion, accept a Declaration in the form of Declaration Y set out in the First Schedule hereto or in a form substantially to the like effect.

(2) Every application by a pensioner who is unmarried but claims to have a dependant shall also be accompanied by a Declaration by the person claimed as the dependant in the form of Declaration Z set out in the First Schedule hereto or in a form substantially to the like effect. [2116]

5.—(1) Where a pensioner who has fulfilled the prescribed conditions for any period after the 31st day of December, 1943, dies (whether before or after the date of these Regulations) and at the time of his death a grant or renewal of the increase of pension for which he was eligible under the Act had not been made to him or an adjustment of increase already granted or renewed was outstanding the Pension Authority shall, for the purposes of the grant or renewal of an increase or an adjustment thereof up to the time of his death, accept, in place of the application declaration and evidence which was, or might have been, required from the deceased pensioner under these Regulations, an application or declaration made or evidence produced on the deceased pensioner's behalf by his personal representative or by any person from whom the Pension Authority may obtain a discharge for payment of the increase.

(2) Where any person who is, or is claimed to be a dependant of a pensioner dies (whether before or after the date of these Regulations) without having made the declaration or produced the evidence required of him under these Regulations, the Pension Authority shall, for the purposes of the grant of an increase to the pensioner or an adjustment thereof, accept, in place of such declaration or evidence, a declaration made or evidence produced by that person's personal representative or by any other person who appears to the Authority a proper person to represent the deceased. [2117]

6. The Pension Authority may in its discretion dispense with the requirement of a Declaration under Regulation 4, in the case of any application for the increase of an annual allowance awarded by the Treasury under an Injury Warrant framed under Section 1 of the Superannuation Act, 1887 (as amended by Section 11 of the Superannuation Act, 1935) and under Section 5 of the Superannuation Act, 1909, if

  - (ii) that the income of the pensioner does not exceed the limits prescribed in sub-section (1) of Section 1 of the Act. [2118]

7.—(1) The statements in any Declaration as to the amounts of income shall be made with reference to the income of the basic period.

(2) The basic period shall be

(b) in the case of the second and any subsequent application, the period of twelve months preceding the date of the application.

(3) Other statements in any such Declaration shall be made by reference to the circumstances existing at the date of the Declaration in question except in the case of a Declaration made on behalf of a deceased pensioner or dependant where such other statements shall be made by reference to the circumstances existing at the date of death.

(4) A pensioner shall submit to the Pension Authority with the Declaration required to be made by him as aforesaid particulars of any events of the kinds mentioned in Regulation 11 which occurred between the end of the basic period and the date of his Declaration. [2119]

(i) that the separation has continued for not less than twelve months and is likely to be permanent, and

(ii) that the pensioner's wife or husband either is not in receipt of a pension which may be increased under the Act or, if in receipt of such a pension, is willing as regards the increase of her or his pension to be treated in accordance with this Regulation as unmarried for the purposes of the Act they shall, subject to the provisions of these Regulations, be treated as unmarried persons for the purposes of the Act as from the beginning of the period falling after the expiration of the twelve months mentioned in (i) of this sub-paragraph for which an increase is or has been payable under the Act or the date (not being after the date on which the notice of election is given) specified in the pensioner's notice of election whichever is the later.

(2) A pensioner may give notice of election under this paragraph notwithstanding that he has been granted an increase of pension under the Act as a married person.

Provided that, where an increase has been granted for a period starting before 1st April, 1946, the Pension Authority shall have discretion to extend the grant for such period beyond the 31st March, 1947, as may be necessary to enable the pensioner to make an application for the continuance of the increase. And Provided also that, as from the appropriate date, the increase shall cease or shall be subject to such adjustment, if any, as the case may require if in the meantime

- (a) the pensioner dies, or

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of these Regulations but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

The grant of increase of pensions under the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944, was governed by Regulations made by the Treasury under Section 3 (5) of that Act (S. R. & O., 1944, No. 694 ; 1945, Nos. 449 and 1554).

The 1944 Act (as extended by the Expiring Laws Continuance Act, 1945), was due to expire on 31st March, 1947, but provision has now been made by the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1947, for its indefinite continuance. The present Regulations consolidate the Regulations already made under the 1944 Act, with minor amendments, of which the chief are :—

- (i) Now that the 1944 Act has been extended indefinitely, provision has been made for obtaining periodical declarations from pensioners at two-yearly intervals, following the practice under the Pensions (Increase) Acts of 1920 and 1924 (Regulation 10 (2)).
- (ii) The forms of declaration prescribed in the First Schedule to the Regulations have been somewhat simplified and modified in the light of experience.

SUPERANNUATION (PUBLIC OFFICES) RULES AMENDMENT RULE, 1947

Note.—This Rule was made by the Treasury under s. 7 (1) of the Superannuation Act, 1909 (16 Halsbury's Statutes 743), and the Superannuation Act, 1946, Sched. II, paragraph 1 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 729), to give effect to the provisions of the latter.

Rule 1 of the Rules, dated 31st July, 1911, made by the Treasury under Section 7 (1) of the Superannuation Act, 1909, adapting the provisions of the Superannuation Act, 1892, to those of the Superannuation Act, 1909, shall be amended by substituting for the full stop at the end thereof, a comma, and by adding thereto the following proviso :—

“ Provided that, where any person has served in two or more public offices, as so defined, he shall, notwithstanding any intervals between his service in such offices during which he has been transferred to approved employment, as defined in Section 4 of the Superannuation Act, 1914, be treated as having served continuously and successively in those offices.” [2132]

* * * * *

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Rule, but is intended to indicate its purport.)

Section 1 of the Superannuation Act, 1892, and Section 7 of the Superannuation Act, 1909, authorised the Treasury to frame Rules for the grant of superannuation allowances to those who had served continuously and successively in two or more public offices.

Paragraph 1 of the Second Schedule to the Superannuation Act, 1946, provides that these Rules may enable anyone who has served in two or more public offices to be treated as having served continuously and successively in those offices (thus preserving his entitlement to superannuation) notwithstanding that there was in fact an interval between two of the periods of service in public offices during which the individual was in employment which was recognised as “ approved employment ” under Section 4 of the Superannuation Act, 1914.

The present Rule provides for the amendment of the existing Rules accordingly.

6. Subject to the provisions of Regulation 9 of these Regulations an application for the continuance or reassessment of an increase of pension shall be made after 1st January and before 1st February in the year in which the said increase, if not renewed, ceases to be payable.

7.—(i) Every application shall be accompanied by a Declaration by the pensioner in the form of Declaration X set out in the First Schedule to the Increase of Pensions (General) Regulations, 1947, or in a form substantially to the like effect.

Provided that in the case of a second or subsequent application where none of the events mentioned in Regulation 10 hereof has occurred since the pensioner last made a Declaration, the Pension Authority may, at its discretion, accept a Declaration in the form of Declaration Y set out in the First Schedule to the said Regulations of 1947.

(ii) Every Declaration made under these Regulations shall be subscribed before and attested by one of the persons, not being the husband or wife of the person making the Declaration, described in the Second Schedule to the said Regulations of 1947.

9. Subject to the provisions of the Acts, the first grant of any increase of pension shall be payable as from the date when the statutory conditions were fulfilled, and any subsequent grant shall be payable as from 1st April; and the grant shall continue until 31st March next but one following, unless in the meantime the pensioner dies or ceases to fulfil the statutory conditions. Provided that where the Pension Authority are satisfied that there has been a material reduction in the income of a pensioner during the currency of a grant and that such reduction is likely to be permanent, they shall re-assess the grant accordingly. Before re-assessing the grant the Pension Authority may require the pensioner to make a fresh application on the prescribed form.

10. The pensioner shall notify the Pension Authority immediately on the occurrence of any of the following events, quoting his Pension Number :—

- (a) the marriage or re-marriage of the pensioner ;
- (b) the death of the wife or husband of the pensioner ;
- (c) the death or the attainment of the age of 16 years of any dependent child under 16 years of age of a widower or widow ;
- (d) any decrease in the income of the pensioner or of the pensioner's wife or husband ;
- (e) any increase in the income of the pensioner or the pensioner's wife or husband from any source, including earnings from paid employment of a regular character, by which
  - (i) if the pensioner is unmarried, his total means are increased to a rate in excess of £200 a year, or
  - (ii) if the pensioner is married, the total means of both husband and wife are increased to a rate in excess of £275 a year, the means to be reckoned in each case as including any increase of pension granted under the Pensions (Increase) Acts, 1920 and 1924."

4. After Regulation 15 of the Principal Regulations the following Regulation shall be added

" 16. References in these Regulations to children or to a child shall be construed as including step-children or a step-child and adopted children or an adopted child within the meaning of the Adoption of Children Act, 1926, the Adoption of Children (Northern Ireland) Act, 1929, and the Adoption of Children (Scotland) Act, 1930." June 19, 1947

Whereas the Treasury has determined under subsection (4) of section 69 of the National Insurance Act, 1946, that the Minister of Health is the appro-

Now therefore the Minister of Health, in exercise of the powers conferred on him by the said subsection, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following regulations :—

1.—(1) These regulations may be cited as the National Insurance (Modification of Local Government Superannuation Schemes) Regulations, 1947, and shall come into operation on the first day of September, 1947.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

“ war service ” has the same meaning as in the Local Government Staffs (War Service) Act, 1939. [2151]

2. As from the first day of September, 1947, the modifications contained in any existing scheme modifying the Act of 1937 shall cease to be operative. [2152]

3. Subject to the provisions of these regulations, the Act of 1937, any local Act scheme and the Act of 1909 shall as from the material date have effect subject to the modifications contained in regulation 4 in relation to an insured person who is a contributory employee, local Act contributor or established officer or servant, and subject to the modifications contained in regulation 5 in relation to a person who, having been such a person as aforesaid becomes entitled to a superannuation allowance under the Act of 1937, a local Act scheme or the Act of 1909 on or after the material date. [2153]

4. The amount of the contributions payable under the relevant enactment or scheme by a person to whom this regulation applies shall be reduced, in the case of an established officer or servant of the first class, at the rate of one pound, one shilling and eightpence per annum if such officer or servant is a man and at the rate of one pound and six shillings per annum if such officer or servant is a woman, and in any other case, at the rate of three pounds and eightpence per annum if the person is a man or a female nurse, midwife or health visitor and at the rate of three pounds and five shillings per annum if the person is a female other than a female nurse, midwife or health visitor, and the amount of the contributions payable in respect of any such person who is a contributory employee or local Act contributor by the employing authority or local Act authority, as the case may be, shall be reduced at the like rate. [2154]

5. As from the date on which a person to whom this regulation applies becomes entitled to a superannuation allowance under the relevant enactment or scheme, or if on becoming entitled to such an allowance as aforesaid he has not reached pensionable age within the meaning of the Act, as from the date on which he reaches that age, the allowance shall be reduced—

(i) in the case of a person who was a contributory employee, local Act contributor or established officer or servant immediately before the material date, and remained a contributory employee, local Act contributor or established officer or servant until becoming entitled to the superannuation allowance without any break of more than twelve months—

(i) by the annual sum shown in the relative Table set out in the first schedule to these regulations, in relation to an age which corresponds with that of the person on the material date, for each year of contributing service or service reckonable for the purposes of the local Act scheme or the Act of 1909, as the case may be, on and after the material date and, if immediately before the material date he was subject to an existing scheme, by the like sum for each year of contributing service or service reckonable as aforesaid, in respect of which he paid reduced contributions in pursuance of that scheme; and

(ii) by one-half of the said annual sum for each year of non-contributing service on and after the material date;

(ii) in the case of an established officer or servant of the first class to whom the last preceding paragraph does not apply, by the sum of two pounds and sixpence per annum for each year of service reckonable for the purposes of the Act of 1909 on and after the material date;

(iii) in any other case—

- (i) by the sum of one pound and fourteen shillings per annum for each year of contributing service or service reckonable for the purposes of the local Act scheme or the Act of 1909, as the case may be, on and after the material date and, if immediately before the material date he was subject to an existing scheme, by the like sum for each year of contributing service or service reckonable as aforesaid, in respect of which he paid reduced contributions in pursuance of that scheme ; and
- (ii) by the sum of seventeen shillings per annum for each year of non-contributing service on and after the material date :

Provided that—

- (a) for the purposes of items (i) of sub-paragraphs* (i) and (iii) of this paragraph respectively, if the service of a local Act contributor after the material date, after the deduction of all completed years of such service, includes a fraction of a year, and if in the calculation of superannuation allowances under the local Act scheme account is taken of fractions of a year, the superannuation allowance of such local Act contributor shall also be reduced by a proportionate sum in respect of that fraction of a year ;
- (b) such a person as is mentioned in sub-paragraph (i) of this regulation shall not be treated as having had such a break as is mentioned in that sub-paragraph, if at any time he ceased to be a contributory employee, local Act contributor or established officer or servant in order to undertake war service, but re-entered employment in one of those capacities within twelve months after the termination of that service ;
- (c) where a contributory employee, in consequence of a resolution passed by his employing authority under proviso (i) to section 8 (2) (b) of the Act of 1937 or by virtue of having made payments under proviso (ii) to section 8 (2) (b) of that Act, is entitled to a superannuation allowance in respect of any year of non-contributing service after the material date on a higher scale than that mentioned in sub-paragraph (b) of section 8 (2) of that Act, whether as originally enacted or as modified by any local Act, the annual sum by which his superannuation allowance is to be reduced in respect of that year shall be increased proportionately ;
- (d) if a person, having paid reduced contributions for any period in pursuance of a scheme made under section 28 (3) of the Widows', Orphans' and Old Age Contributory Pensions Act, 1936, or the corresponding provisions of any Act repealed by that Act, had, in pursuance of that scheme, paid a sum representing the difference between those contributions and the sum he would have contributed had those contributions not been reduced, his service during that period shall not be treated as service in respect of which reduced contributions were paid ; and
- (e) the total amount of the reduction shall in no case exceed sixty-seven pounds and fifteen shillings per annum. [2155]

6. If a person to whom regulation 3 applies would, if he ceased to be employed, be entitled to a superannuation allowance, and if, being a contributory employee, local Act contributor or established officer or servant of the second class, he has completed forty years contributing service or forty years contributing service and non-contributing service, the non-contributing service being reckoned at half its actual length, or forty years service, as the case may be, or, being an established officer or servant of the first class, has completed thirty-four years service, any further service shall be disregarded for the purposes of regulation 5. [2156]

7. Regulation 3 shall not apply in the case of any person who in pursuance of the provisions of section 71 (3) (a) of the Act is deemed to attain pensionable age on the expiration of ten years from the appointed day for the purposes of those provisions. [2157]

8.—(1) Where an insured person in the part-time employment of two or more local authorities is a contributory employee or local Act contributor in each employment, regulation 3 shall only apply in relation to him in his employment under the local authority which is treated as his employer for the purposes of the Act.

(2) Where a person to whom regulation 3 applies as a contributory employee or local Act contributor in the part-time employment of one or more local authorities is also employed in other employment in which he is not a contributory employee or local Act contributor, and his employer in that other employment is treated as his employer for the purposes of the Act, regulation 3 shall not apply, and in the event of his subsequently becoming a person to whom that regulation applies, no account shall be taken for the purposes of regulation 5 of his service during the period in which this paragraph applied to him. [2158]

9. Where a person becomes a contributory employee or local Act contributor within twelve months after leaving employment in relation to which he was entitled to participate in superannuation benefits provided by regulations made by the Minister of Health under section 67 (1) of the National Health Service Act, 1946, having left that employment on or after the appointed day for the purposes of section 1 of the Act, or if he left that employment on or after that date in order to undertake national service, within six months after the termination of that service, then, so long as he is a contributory employee or local Act contributor without any break of more than twelve months, regulation 3 shall not apply, and the Act of 1937 or the local Act scheme shall apply in relation to him, subject, as nearly as may be, to the like modifications (if any) as, by virtue of his having been an insured person, were applicable in relation to him as a person entitled to participate in superannuation benefits provided by the said regulations, excluding any modifications that were applicable to him solely by virtue of his having been a person of a special class, unless he is a person of that class on becoming a contributory employee, or local Act contributor as aforesaid :

Provided that a person to whom this regulation applies shall not be treated as having had such a break as aforesaid, if at any time he ceases to be a contributory employee or local Act contributor in order to undertake war service, but re-enters employment in one of those capacities within twelve months after the termination of that service. [2159]

10. Regulation 3 shall not apply to a person who is a contributory employee, local Act contributor or established officer or servant on the first day of September, 1947, or who becomes such a person on or before the appointed day for the purposes of section 1 of the Act, so long as he remains a contributory employee, local Act contributor or established officer or servant without any break of more than twelve months, unless he gives notice in writing to his employer within three months after the material date, or if he is not a contributory employee, local Act contributor or established officer or servant on that date, within three months after the date on which he again becomes a person employed in any of those capacities, that he wishes those provisions to apply in his case, and in the event of his giving such notice as aforesaid, those provisions shall apply in relation to him as from the first day of the month or, in the case of a person in receipt of weekly remuneration, the first day of the week, next following the month or week, as the case may be, in which the notice is given, as if that date were the material date :

Provided that a person shall not be treated as having had such a break as aforesaid if at any time he ceases to be a contributory employee, local Act contributor or established officer or servant in order to undertake war service, but re-enters employment in one of those capacities within twelve months after the termination of that service. [2160]

11. If a contributory employee in relation to whom an existing scheme was in force immediately before the first day of September, 1947, does not give notice to his employing authority under the last preceding regulation, the Act of 1937 shall, so long as he remains a contributory employee in the employment of that authority, continue to apply in his case, subject to the like modifications as were applicable in relation to him by virtue of the existing scheme. [2161]

12. For the purposes of sub-paragraph (i) of regulation 5, and of regulation 10, a person engaged in war service immediately before the material date shall be deemed to have been a contributory employee, local Act contributor or established officer or servant immediately before that date if he undertook that service on ceasing to be employed in any of those capacities and re-entered employment in one of those capacities within twelve months after the termination of that service, and, if any existing scheme was in force in relation to him immediately before his undertaking war service on ceasing to be employed as aforesaid, then, for the purposes of regulation 11 that scheme shall be deemed to have been in force in relation to him immediately before the first day of September, 1947. [2162]

14.—(1) Any sum payable in accordance with regulations made by the Minister of Health under proviso (ii) to section 8 (2) (b) of the Act of 1937 by a contributory employee to whom regulation 4 applies, in respect of a period of non-contributing service of which account may be taken under regulation 5 in calculating the amount of the reduction of any superannuation allowance to which that employee may become entitled under the Act of 1937, shall be reduced by the sum shown in the appropriate column of the Table set out in the Second Schedule to these regulations, in relation to an age which corresponds with that of the employee on the date on which those regulations first became applicable in relation to him, in respect of each one pound of the amount of the reduction of the superannuation allowance as aforesaid in respect of that period of service, and by a proportionate sum in respect of any fraction of a pound included in the said amount.

(2) If a local Act contributor to whom regulation 3 applies becomes liable in accordance with the provisions of the local Act scheme to pay a sum to the superannuation fund maintained by the local Act authority as a condition of being entitled to reckon any period of previous employment as a period of service for any of the purposes of the local Act scheme, and under regulation 5 account may be taken of any service included in that period in calculating the amount of the reduction of any superannuation allowance to which that contributor may become entitled under the local Act scheme, such sum shall be reduced in manner provided by paragraph (1) of this regulation in relation to a sum payable by a contributory employee.

(3) If a local Act contributor to whom regulation 4 applies becomes subject to a liability to make payments by way of a contribution of a percentage of his emoluments additional to the percentage payable in respect of current service as a condition of being entitled to reckon any period of previous employment as a period of service for any of the purposes of the local Act scheme, and under regulation 5 account may be taken of any service included in that period in the manner referred to in the last preceding paragraph, such payments shall be reduced in such manner as an actuary shall certify to be necessary in order to secure, as nearly as may be, a similar proportionate reduction in the amount of these payments to that provided for by the last preceding paragraph in relation to a sum payable by a person to whom that paragraph applies. [2164]

15. If a person, being a contributory employee or local Act contributor to whom regulation 3 applies ceases to be employed as such, but again becomes a contributory employee or local Act contributor in such circumstances that a transfer value becomes payable in respect of him under any provision of the Act of 1937, the amount of the transfer value shall be reduced by the sum shown in the appropriate column of the Table set out in the second schedule to these regulations in relation to an age which corresponds with that of the person at the date on which he ceased to be employed as aforesaid in respect to these regulations in relation to an age which corresponds with that of the person at the date on which he ceased to be employed as aforesaid in respect of each one pound of the amount by which any superannuation allowance to which he may become entitled under the Act of 1937 or the local Act scheme may be reduced under regulation 5 in respect of any service of which account is taken in the calculation of the transfer value, and by a proportionate sum in respect of any fraction of a pound included in the said amount. ## EXPLANATORY NOTE

These regulations modify the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, the Asylums Officers' Superannuation Act, 1909, as amended by the Asylums and Certified Institutions (Officers' Pensions) Act, 1918, and superannuation schemes administered by local authorities under local Acts, by providing, subject to specified conditions, limitations and exceptions, for the reduction of the contributions payable thereunder by employees of local authorities who are insured persons, and for the reduction of superannuation allowances becoming payable thereunder to such employees by specified amounts according to the circumstances, not in any case exceeding £67 15s. 0d. per annum.

NATIONAL INSURANCE (MODIFICATION OF LOCAL GOVERNMENT SUPERANNUATION SCHEMES) AMENDMENT REGULATIONS, 1947

August 4, 1947

The Minister of Health, in exercise of his powers under subsection (4) of section 69 of the National Insurance Act, 1946, and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby makes the following regulations :—

1.—(1) These regulations may be cited as the National Insurance (Modification of Local Government Superannuation Schemes) Amendment Regulations, 1947, and these regulations and the National Insurance (Modification of Local Government Superannuation Schemes) Regulations, 1947 (hereinafter called “ the principal regulations ”), shall be construed together.

(2) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament.

(3) These regulations shall come into operation on the first day of September, 1947. [2168]

2. The principal regulations shall be amended in manner following, that is to say :—

(a) In regulation 1, for the definition of “ the material date ” there shall be substituted the following definition :—“ the material date ”, in relation to an insured person who is a contributory employee, local Act contributor or established officer or servant on the first day of September, 1947, means that day, and in relation to a person who on that day is a contributory employee, local Act contributor or established officer or servant but not an insured person, or who becomes a contributory employee, local Act contributor or established officer or servant after that day, means the date on which he is first an insured person in one of those capacities ;”

(b) In the second line of sub-paragraph (i) of regulation 5, the words “ within twelve months ” shall be substituted for the word “ immediately ” ;

(c) In items (i) and (ii) of sub-paragraphs (i) and (iii) of regulation 5 and in proviso (c) to regulation 5 there shall be inserted after the words “ after the material date ”, wherever those words occur, the words “ or the appointed day for the purposes of section 1 of the Act, whichever is the earlier,” ;

(d) In regulation 10, the words “ or who, having ceased to be such a person before the first day of September, 1947, again becomes such a person within twelve months after having so ceased ” shall be inserted after the words “ section 1 of the Act ” and the words “ or if he is not a contributory employee ” down to and including the words “ in any of those capacities ” shall be deleted ;

(e) The following regulation shall be substituted for regulation 12—

“ 12.—(1) For the purposes of sub-paragraph (i) of regulation 5, a person engaged in war service within twelve months before the material date shall be deemed to have been a contributory employee, local Act contributor or established officer or servant within twelve months before that date if he undertook that service on ceasing to be employed in any of those capacities.

(2) For the purposes of regulation 10, a person engaged in war service on the first day of September, 1947, shall be deemed to have been a contributory employee, local Act contributor or established officer or servant during the period of that service if he undertook that service on ceasing to be employed in any of those capacities and re-entered employment in one of those capacities within twelve months after the termination of that service :

Provided that nothing in this paragraph shall affect the construction of the term " material date " as used in regulation 10 in relation to such a person as aforesaid.

(3) For the purposes of regulation 11, where a person engaged in war service immediately before the first day of September, 1947, was a contributory employee in relation to whom an existing scheme was in force immediately before his undertaking that service, then, if he again becomes a contributory employee in the employment of the same employing authority on the termination of that service, the existing scheme shall be deemed to have been in force in relation to him immediately before the first day of September, 1947, and he shall be deemed to have remained a contributory employee in the employment of that authority during the period of his war service " ;

- (f) In regulation 14 (2) there shall be inserted after the words " the purposes of the local Act scheme," the words " not being a sum payable in respect of contributions returned to him on his ceasing to hold such previous employment " ; and
- (g) In the First Schedule, the headings to Table I and Table II and the headings to column 3 in Table I and column 4 in Table II shall be read as including references to servants as well as officers. [2169]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These regulations amend the National Insurance (Modification of Local Government Superannuation Schemes) Regulations, 1947. A new definition of the term " material date " is substituted in the original regulations and consequential amendments are made in regulations 5 and 10. It was doubtful whether all the insured persons who might become superannuable employees of local authorities between 1st September, 1947, and 6th July, 1948, would have been able under the original regulations to obtain the benefit of the modifications made by the regulations in the enactments or schemes to which they so became subject. It was intended that they should enjoy this benefit if they so desired, and the amendments now made are designed to that end. A new provision is substituted for regulation 12 to safeguard the position of superannuable employees of local authorities who are on war service in the light of the amendments made in relation to employees not on war service.

Officer's pension and retiring allowance

5. An officer of an employing authority shall be entitled, on ceasing to be employed by them, to receive the Minister—

(a) an annual pension, if either—

(i) he has completed ten years service and is incapable of discharging efficiently the duties of his employment by reason of permanent ill-health or infirmity of mind or body ; or

(ii) he has attained the age of sixty years and completed ten years service ; and

(b) a lump sum retiring allowance, if he satisfies sub-paragraph (i) of paragraph (a) of this regulation, or has attained the age of sixty years and completed five years service. [2171]

Scales of pension and retiring allowance

6.—(1) The pension to be paid to an officer shall, subject to the provisions of these regulations, be on the following scale, that is to say—

- (a) in respect of each year of contributing service, one-eightieth of his average remuneration ; and
- (b) in respect of each year of non-contributing service, one one-hundred-and-sixtieth of his average remuneration :

Provided that the pension, apart from any reduction thereof under regulation 80, shall not exceed forty-eightieths of the officer's average remuneration, and shall not in the case of a pension payable under regulation 5 (a) (i) be less than twenty-eightieths of such remuneration, or one-eightieth of such remuneration in respect of each year of contributing service which he could have completed before attaining pensionable age, had he continued to be an officer, and one one-hundred-and-sixtieth of such remuneration in respect of each year of non-contributing service, whichever is the less.

(2) The retiring allowance to be paid to an officer shall, subject to the provisions of these regulations, be a sum equal to the aggregate of the following amounts, namely, three-eightieths of his average remuneration in respect of each year of contributing service, and three one-hundred-and-sixtieths of such remuneration in respect of each year of non-contributing service :

Provided that—

- (a) in the case of a married male officer in respect of whose service a widow's pension may become payable under these regulations, the amount of the allowance shall be a sum equal to the aggregate of the following amounts, namely, one-eightieth of his average remuneration in respect of each year of contributing service and one one-hundred-and-sixtieth of such remuneration in respect of each year of non-contributing service ;
- (b) in the case of an officer who is a widower or who is divorced or judicially separated from his wife, the wife's death or the divorce or separation having taken place on or after the date on which he became subject to these regulations, the amount of the allowance shall be a sum equal to the aggregate of the following amounts, namely—
  - (i) three-eightieths of his average remuneration in respect of each year of contributing service since the date of his wife's death or the divorce or separation, as the case may be ;

- (c) if the contributing service of an officer who becomes entitled to a retiring allowance, together with his non-contributing service (if any) reckoned at half its actual length, exceeds forty years, the sum to be calculated under the foregoing provisions of this paragraph by reference to contributing service and non-contributing service shall be calculated by reference to the last forty years actual service, any non-contributing service within that period being reckoned at double its actual length ; and

- (d) in the case of an officer to whom no pension is payable, if the amount of the allowance, calculated as aforesaid, is less than the amount of his contributions, together with compound interest thereon, the allowance shall be increased by the amount of the deficiency.

(i) in the case of an officer whose contributing service, together with his non-contributing service (if any) reckoned at half its actual length, exceeds forty years, the pension shall be an amount obtained by multiplying the amount of the pension which would have been payable apart from this proviso by forty, and dividing the product by the number of years of actual service, any non-contributing service being reckoned as aforesaid ; and

(ii) in the case of an officer who is entitled to a pension under regulation 5 (a) (i), and whose service is less than twenty years, any non-contributing service being reckoned at half its actual length, the pension shall be an amount obtained by multiplying the amount of the pension which would have been payable apart from this proviso by such number of years service, not exceeding twenty, as he could have completed before attaining pensionable age, any non-contributing service being reckoned as aforesaid, and dividing the product by the number of years of actual service, any non-contributing service being reckoned as aforesaid.

(4) The retiring allowance to be paid to an officer whose service includes service as a practitioner shall be a sum equal to the aggregate of the following amounts, namely—

- (a) in respect of each year of contributing service otherwise than as a practitioner, three-eightieths of his average remuneration ;

(ii) in the case of an officer who is a widower or who is divorced or judicially separated from his wife, the wife's death or the divorce or separation having taken place on or after the date on which he first became subject to these regulations, whether by virtue of this part or part II, one-eightieth shall be substituted for three-eightieths in sub-paragraph (a) of this paragraph in relation to each year of contributing service otherwise than as a practitioner before the date of his wife's death or the divorce or separation, as the case may be, one one-hundred-and-sixtieth shall be substituted for three one-hundred-and-sixtieths in sub-paragraph (b) in relation to each year of non-contributing service, and one and one-half per cent. shall be substituted for four and one-half per cent. in sub-paragraph (c) in relation to each year of contributing service as a practitioner before the said date ;

(iii) in the case of an officer whose contributing service, together with his non-contributing service (if any) reckoned at half its actual length, exceeds forty years, the amount of the allowance shall be an amount obtained by multiplying the amount of the allowance which would have been payable apart from this proviso by forty, and dividing the product by the number of years of actual service, any non-contributing service being reckoned as aforesaid ; and

(iv) in the case of an officer to whom no pension is payable, if the amount of the allowance, calculated as aforesaid, is less than the amount of his contributions, together with compound interest thereon, the allowance shall be increased by the amount of the deficiency. [2172]

Injury allowance

7.—(1) Where an officer ceases to be employed in consequence of his being permanently incapacitated by an injury sustained by him in the actual discharge of his duty and without his own default, and specifically attributable to the nature of his duty, he shall be entitled to receive from the Minister an annual injury allowance of such amount, not exceeding two-thirds of his average remuneration, as the Minister considers reasonable, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, including any right to any benefit under the National Insurance (Industrial Injuries) Act, 1946, or any other statutory right to benefit or compensation or any right to a pension, retiring allowance or gratuity, whether under these regulations or otherwise.

(2) An injury sustained while the officer is, with the express or implied permission of the employing authority, travelling as a passenger by any vehicle to or from his place of employment shall, notwithstanding that he is under no obligation to the employing authority to travel by that vehicle, be deemed to have been sustained in the actual discharge of his duty, if—

(a) the injury would have been deemed so to have been sustained had he been under such an obligation ; and

(b) at the time of the injury, the vehicle—

(i) was being operated by or on behalf of the employing authority by some other person by whom it was provided in pursuance of arrangements made with the employing authority ; and

(ii) was not being operated in the ordinary course of a public transport service. [2173]

Short service gratuity

8. An officer who has completed more than five but less than ten years service, and who ceases to be employed through incapacity to discharge efficiently the duties of his employment by reason of permanent ill-health or infirmity of mind or body shall, unless he is entitled to a retiring allowance, be entitled to receive from the Minister a short service gratuity of a sum equal to the amount of his average remuneration. [2174]

Allocation of part of pension or injury allowance to spouse or dependant

9.—(1) An officer, other than a married male officer in respect of whose service a widow's pension may become payable under these regulations, who becomes entitled to a pension or injury allowance may thereupon notify his desire, subject to and in accordance with the provisions of the first schedule, to surrender part of the pension or allowance in consideration of the grant of a pension to the spouse or any dependant of the officer on his death of such value as, according to Tables to be prepared from time to time by the Government Actuary, is actuarially equivalent at the date on which he ceased to be employed to the value of that part of the pension or allowance which is surrendered.

(2) If an officer, other than such a married male officer as aforesaid, not having reached pensionable age, would, if he ceased to be employed, be entitled to a pension, and has completed forty years contributing service or forty years contributing service and non-contributing service, the non-contributing service being reckoned at half its actual length, or if an officer, other than such a male married officer as aforesaid, having reached pensionable age, would, if he ceased to be employed, be entitled to a pension, he may, at any time before ceasing to be employed, notify his desire to surrender part of the pension in accordance with the provisions of the preceding paragraph, and if he dies before having become entitled to the pension but after having so notified his desire to surrender a part of the pension, he shall be deemed to have become entitled to the pension to which he would have become entitled had he retired on the day preceding the date of his death. [2175]

Death gratuity

10. If—

- (a) an officer dies, and at the date of his death he had completed five years service ;
- (b) a person who has ceased to be an officer after completing five years service dies within twelve months after so ceasing to be an officer, or, if he ceased to be an officer in order to undertake national service, within six months after the termination of that service, without having received a return of contributions or become entitled to any other benefit under these regulations, and without having again become entitled to participate in superannuation benefits ; or
- (c) a person dies after having become entitled to a pension or retiring or injury allowance or short service gratuity ;

then the Minister shall pay to his legal personal representatives a death gratuity of a sum equal to three-eightieths of his average remuneration in respect of each year of his contributing service and three one-hundred-and-sixtieths thereof in respect of each year of his non-contributing service, or the amount of his contributions, together with compound interest on such amount, or, except in the case mentioned in paragraph (b) of this regulation, his average remuneration, whichever is the greatest :

Provided that—

- (i) in the case of a person in respect of whose death a widow's pension is payable under these regulations, the amount of the death gratuity shall be a sum equal to one-eightieth of his average remuneration in respect of each year of his contributing service and one one-hundred-and-sixtieth thereof in respect of each year of his non-contributing service ;
- (ii) in the case of such a person as is mentioned in regulation 6 (3), for the references in the foregoing provisions of this regulation to a sum to be calculated by reference to a fraction of his average remuneration in respect of each year of service there shall, subject to the provisions of the next succeeding proviso, be substituted a reference to a sum obtained by the addition of the following amounts, namely :—

- (i) in respect of each year of contributing service otherwise than as a practitioner, three-eightieths of his average remuneration, or if a widow's pension is payable under these regulations in respect of his death, one-eightieth thereof ;
- (ii) in respect of each year of non-contributing service, three one-hundred-and-sixtieths of his average remuneration, or if a widow's pension is payable as aforesaid, one one-hundred-and-sixtieth thereof ; and
- (iii) in respect of each year of contributing service as a practitioner, four and one-half per cent. of his remuneration as such for that year, or if a widow's pension is payable as aforesaid, one and one-half per cent. thereof ;
- (iii) if in the case of a person to whom the last preceding proviso applies the contributing service, together with the non-contributing service (if any) reckoned at half its actual length, exceeds forty years, the sum obtained under the last preceding proviso shall be multiplied by forty, and the product divided by the number of years of actual service, any non-contributing service being reckoned as aforesaid ;
- (iv) if in the case of any person, other than a person to whom proviso (ii) applies, the contributing service, together with the non-contributing service (if any) reckoned at half its actual length, exceeds forty years, the sum to be calculated by reference to contributing service and non-contributing service shall be calculated by reference to the last forty years actual service, any non-contributing service within that period being reckoned at double its actual length ; and
- (v) in the case of a person who dies after having become entitled to a pension or retiring or injury allowance or short service gratuity, there shall be deducted from the death gratuity a sum equal to the aggregate amount of any payments made on account of that pension, allowance or short service gratuity, and in addition, if the person was entitled to a pension or injury allowance and had surrendered a part thereof, any sum which would have been paid on account thereof but for the surrender. [2176]

Widow's pension

11.—(1) The widow of a person who was entitled to a pension or injury allowance, or the widow of an officer who had completed not less than ten years service, shall be entitled to receive from the Minister an annual widow's pension :

Provided that the foregoing provision shall not apply, in the former case, if the marriage took place on or after the date on which the husband became entitled to the pension or allowance, or, in either case, if the husband, before ceasing to be employed or, if he died while still an officer, before dying, had reached pensionable age or, not having reached pensionable age, would have been entitled to a pension on ceasing to be employed and had completed forty years contributing service, or forty years contributing service and non-contributing service, the non-contributing service being reckoned at half its actual length, and the marriage took place on or after the date on which he reached pensionable age or would have been so entitled to a pension as aforesaid, as the case may be, or if the wife was herself entitled to a pension under these regulations or became so entitled on the death of her husband, or if the husband and wife were judicially separated.

(2) The widow of such a person as is mentioned in regulation 10 (b) shall be entitled to the like benefit (if any) by way of widow's pension as would have been granted if her husband had died immediately before ceasing to be an officer.

(3) The amount of the widow's pension shall be as follows—

- (a) in the case of the widow of an officer, one-third of the pension which would have been payable to the officer had he become entitled to a pension under regulation 5 (a) (i) on the day preceding his death; and
- (b) in the case of the widow of a person who was entitled to a pension or injury allowance, one-third of such pension or allowance :

Provided that—

- (i) if in either case the age of the widow was less than that of her husband and she has no children or ceases to have any children included in her family within the meaning of the Family Allowances Act, 1945, or her age was greater than that of her husband, the widow's pension shall be reduced or increased, as the case may require, where the case falls within Table A or Table B set out in the second schedule, by an amount calculated in accordance with that Table, and in any other case, by such an amount as shall be certified to be just by the Government Actuary; and
- (ii) if any such pension as is mentioned in sub-paragraph (a) of this paragraph would have been reduced under the provisions of regulation 30, no account shall be taken of the reduction, and any such pension as is mentioned in sub-paragraph (b) shall be deemed to be the pension that would have been payable but for any reduction under those provisions.

(4) A widow's pension shall cease to be payable to a widow if she remarries, or in respect of any period during which she is cohabiting with a man as his wife.

(5) If on the re-marriage or death of a widow to whom a widow's pension has been payable, the aggregate amount of the payments made to her, her husband or her husband's legal personal representatives by way of pension, retiring or injury allowance or death gratuity, is less than the amount of the death gratuity which would have been payable in respect of the death of her husband had no widow's pension been payable in respect thereof, there shall be paid to her or to her legal personal representatives, as the case may require, a sum equal to the deficiency. ### Meaning of service

13.—(1) For the purposes of these regulations the term "service" in relation to an officer of an employing authority means continuous employment under that authority as an officer, after attaining the age of eighteen years and before attaining pensionable age, and any other employment or any war service or national service which by or in pursuance of these regulations is reckonable as service in relation to his employment as such officer, but does not include, in the case of an officer who enters employment after having become entitled to receive superannuation benefits, whether under these regulations or otherwise, employment in respect of which he became entitled to those benefits.

(2) Where a person, before entering the employment in which he is an officer, had been entitled by virtue of any such employment as is mentioned in the next succeeding paragraph to participate in superannuation benefits, and on leaving that other employment any period of employment or any war service or national service would have been reckonable for the purpose of determining whether he was entitled to receive a superannuation benefit, that period of employment, war service or national service shall be reckonable as service in relation to the employment in which he is an officer, if he entered that employment within twelve months after leaving that other employment, or if he left that other employment in order to undertake war service or, being an officer of an employing authority, in order to undertake national service, within six months after the termination of that service :

Provided that—

(a) the foregoing provision shall not apply to any officer who does not, within three months after entering their employment, give notice in writing to the employing authority of his previous period of employment and war service or national service (if any), and pay or repay to that authority an amount equal to any sum paid to him by way of return of contributions on or after his ceasing to hold that other employment, together with an amount equal to any income tax or equivalent sum which was deducted from his contributions in respect of such payment ;

(b) in the case of a person who, before entering the employment in relation to which he is an officer, was employed in such employment as is mentioned in sub-paragraph (c) of the next succeeding paragraph—

(i) for the purposes of the foregoing provisions of this paragraph, the term “period of employment” shall include any period treated as a period of employment in contributory service or as a period of contributory service under the Teachers Acts ;

(ii) any period of approved external service within the meaning of the Teachers Acts, and any period of contributory service under any scheme made under section 21 (1) (a) of the Act of 1925 shall not be reckonable as service under these regulations, except for the sole purpose of determining whether he is entitled to any benefit thereunder ; and

(iii) any period of employment which was qualifying service within the meaning of the Act of 1925, and any period of employment which under section 12 (2) of that Act, would, by reason of the repayment of contributions, have been excluded in reckoning periods of contributory or recognised service for the purposes of Part II of the said Act shall be disregarded.

(c) in the case of such a person as is mentioned in the last preceding proviso who, before the first day of April, 1926, had been employed in full-time service as an organiser within the meaning of section 14 (1) of the Act of 1925, such period of employment as an organiser, and any period of employment before the said date as a teacher in recognised service shall, except for the purpose of determining whether any benefit is payable under these regulations, be reckonable in whichever of the following ways is more advantageous to him, that is to say—

(i) his period of employment (if any) as a teacher in recognised service shall be reckonable in full, and his period of employment as an organiser shall be disregarded ; or

(ii) the period for which he was so employed in either of those capacities shall be reckonable at half its actual length ;

(d) in the case of a person who, before entering the employment in relation to which he is an officer, was an established civil servant, any part of his established service which is attributable to service which previously to his becoming an established civil servant had been non-contributing service under these regulations shall for the purpose of determining whether any benefit is payable to or in respect of him but not for the purpose of calculating any benefit to which he may become entitled be treated as being double its actual length ; and

(e) any period of employment which on a person's leaving such employment as is mentioned in sub-paragraph (a), (b) or (d) of the next succeeding paragraph would have been reckonable solely for the purpose of determining whether he was entitled to receive a superannuation benefit shall not be reckonable as service under these regulations except for the sole purpose of determining whether he is entitled to any benefit thereunder.

(3) The other employment referred to in the last preceding paragraph is—

(a) employment as an officer of an employing authority ;

(b) employment as an established civil servant ;

(c) employment as a person in contributory service under the Teachers Acts, otherwise than under any scheme made under section 21 (1) (a) of the Act of 1925, or otherwise than by virtue of section 13 (2) (g) of that Act ;

(d) employment subject to—

(i) the Act of 1909 ;

(ii) the Act of 1937 ;

(iii) a local Act scheme ;

(iv) the Insurance Committee Officers' Superannuation Scheme ; or

(v) any other scheme which the Minister, with the consent of the body administering the scheme, may approve.

(4) If under the last two preceding paragraphs there is reckonable any previous employment in the case of a person who becomes an officer of an employing authority after having been engaged in war service, and that war service would have been reckonable as service under the enactment or scheme to which he was subject before he ceased to be employed in order to undertake that war service, had he again become subject to that enactment or scheme on the termination thereof, the period of war service shall be reckonable as a period of service under these regulations.

(5) If an officer of an employing authority ceases to be employed in order to undertake national service and, on the termination of that service or within six months thereafter returns to the employment of any employing authority, the period of that service shall be reckonable as a period of service under these regulations :

Provided that if on or after so ceasing to be employed as aforesaid he received a return of contributions—

(a) no part of such period after the date of the return shall be reckonable as service ; and

(b) the part of such period before the date of the return shall only be reckonable if he pays or repays to the employing authority whose employment he has entered, within three months after entering their employment, an amount equal to the sum returned to him, together with an amount equal to any income tax which was deducted from his contributions in respect of such return.

(6) Where an officer to whom the last preceding paragraph applies—

- (a) dies during his period of national service ; or
- (b) is prevented, in consequence of being permanently incapacitated by injury or disease received or contracted during that period, from resuming employment under any employing authority ;

he shall be deemed to have returned to the employment of an employing authority immediately before his death or on the termination of that period of service, as the case may be.

(7) If a person becomes an officer of an employing authority by virtue of sub-paragraph (e) or (h) of paragraph (1) of regulation 2, or if such a person as is mentioned in either of those sub-paragraphs, before completing the period of two years therein mentioned, becomes an officer by virtue of sub-paragraph (a) or (f) of paragraph (1) of regulation 2 then, any previous periods of employment under any employing authorities which are included in the said period of two years, and any period of national service undertaken by the person on his ceasing to hold employment under any employing authority which is included in that period of two years by virtue of proviso (ii) (iii) to paragraph (1) of regulation 2, shall be reckonable as service.

(8) In the case of a person who is transferred under the Act to the employment of an employing authority or who enters the employment of an employment authority in consequence of the acquisition by the Minister under section 58 of the Act of a hospital at or for the purposes of which he was employed at the date of acquisition, and who thereupon becomes an officer of that employing authority, there shall be reckonable as service, for the purpose of determining whether any benefit is payable to or in respect of him but not for the purpose of calculating any benefit to which he may become entitled, all periods of employment, not otherwise reckonable as service, after he attained the age of eighteen years, under any authority or body from which functions are transferred by the Act, or under an officer of such an authority or body or at or for the purposes of any hospital which has been transferred to or acquired by the Minister under the Act, and, if he left any such employment as aforesaid in order to undertake war service or, if that employment was at or for the purposes of a hospital acquired by the Minister under the Act, in order to undertake national service, and within six months after the termination of that service returned to any such employment as aforesaid, or entered the employment of an employing authority in circumstances in which regulation 50 applied, there shall also be reckonable as service for the purpose aforesaid the period of that war service or national service.

(9) If a person after ceasing to be an officer of an employing authority (other than a person in respect of whom a transfer value was paid by the Minister or a payment was made under regulation 46 (1), which transfer value or payment has not been refunded) enters the employment of that authority or any other employing authority in circumstances in which none of the preceding paragraphs of this regulation applies in his case, he shall be entitled, if he gives notice in writing to the employing authority within three months after entering their employment that he intends so to do, to make payments in accordance with the provisions of the fourth schedule, as if any employment, war service or national service which was reckonable as service at the date on which he ceased to be an officer, not being employment reckonable solely for the purpose of determining whether any benefit was payable under these regulations, was non-contributing service, and any period of such employment, war service or national service in respect of which such payments are made or are in the course of being made shall be reckonable as service.

(10) If an officer to whom the last preceding paragraph applies previously ceased to be an officer of an employing authority in order to undertake national service, the last preceding paragraph shall also apply in respect of the period of that service other than any part thereof after the date on which contributions may have been returned to him. [2178]

Conditions attaching to grant of pension or injury allowance

20.—(1) Where a person who has not attained the age of sixty years is in receipt of a pension under regulation 5 (a) (i) or an injury allowance, and the Minister is satisfied that he has become capable of resuming the duties of his employment, he may require him to enter the employment of any employing authority in any capacity for which his previous experience may render him suitable, and if he declines to enter that employment, or declines or neglects satisfactorily to discharge the duties thereof, he shall not be entitled to any payment on account of the pension or allowance in respect of any period before he attains the age of sixty years :

Provided that the Minister shall not require a person to whom this paragraph applies to enter the employment of an employing authority if that person has entered or enters any other employment approved by the Minister, so long as he continues in employment so approved.

(2) The Minister may require a person to whom paragraph (1) of this regulation applies to submit himself to a medical examination by a registered medical practitioner selected by the Minister, and, if he does so, he shall also offer the person an opportunity of submitting a report from the person's own medical adviser as a result of an examination made by him, and the Minister shall take that report into consideration, together with the report of the medical practitioner selected by the Minister.

(3) If a person fails to comply with a requirement made under the last preceding paragraph he shall be treated as if the Minister were satisfied that he had become capable of resuming the duties of his employment.

(4) Where the Minister is satisfied that a person to whom paragraph (1) of this regulation applies is capable of resuming the duties of his employment but the person is unwilling to accept employment under an employing authority which has been offered to him, and the Minister has not approved any other employment he may have entered or proposes to enter, the Minister, before requiring him to enter the employment which has been offered to him or any other employment, shall refer the matter to a referee or board of referees appointed for the purpose by the Minister of Labour and National Service, and shall consider the advice they tender, after having interviewed the person and afforded him an opportunity of stating his case, as to whether, regard being had to his previous experience and all the circumstances of the case, it being assumed that he is capable of resuming the duties of his employment, it would be reasonable to require him to enter the employment which has been offered to him or any other employment specified by the referee or board of referees. [2179]

Pensioner accepting further employment

21.—(1) Where a person entitled to a pension or injury allowance enters employment, whether pursuant to the provisions of the last preceding regulation or otherwise, the remuneration of which is payable out of public funds, he shall not, so long as he holds that employment, be entitled to receive any greater amount of the pension or allowance than would make up the amount, if any, by which the annual emoluments of that employment fall short of the annual remuneration or average remuneration of the employment in relation to which he became entitled to the pension or allowance, whichever is the greater.

(2) Where such a person as aforesaid (other than a person to whom regulation 20 applies) proposes to accept further employment the remuneration of which will be payable out of public funds, he shall inform his prospective employer that he is so entitled, and, if he enters that employment, shall forthwith give notice in writing to the Minister that he is so employed. [2180]

Option to transferred officers to retain rights corresponding with those enjoyed prior to transfer

22.—(1) Where a person, on being transferred under the Act, becomes an officer in the employment of any employing authority, having immediately before becoming such officer been subject to the provisions of—

- (a) the Superannuation Acts ;
- (b) the Act of 1909 ;
- (c) the Act of 1937 ;
- (d) a local Act scheme ;
- (e) the Insurance Committee Officers' Superannuation Scheme ; or
- (f) any scheme approved by the Minister under regulation 13 (3) (d) (v) ;

then, if he notifies the employing authority in writing within three months after becoming such officer that he does not wish to avail himself of the benefits provided by these regulations, the provisions of this part shall apply to and in respect of him, as if, in relation to his employment as such officer, they required him to make the like contributions (if any) as he would have been liable to make and conferred upon him rights corresponding with those which he would have enjoyed if he had remained subject to the enactment or scheme previously applicable in his case, and those provisions shall continue so to apply to and in respect of him so long as he is an officer of any employing authority without a break in employment of more than twelve months, and without his having during any break in employment become entitled to participate in superannuation benefits by virtue of employment otherwise than under an employing authority :

Provided that—

- (a) where a person to whom this paragraph applies at any time ceases to be an officer of an employing authority in order to undertake national service, but again becomes an officer of an employing authority within six months after the termination of that service, the period of that service shall not be treated as such a break in employment as aforesaid ;
- (b) if a person who has exercised the option conferred by the foregoing provision to retain rights corresponding with those enjoyed under the Act of 1909 or the Superannuation Acts was immediately before being transferred under the Act an established officer or servant of the first class under the Act of 1909 or a person to whom the Superannuation (Prison Officers) Act, 1919, applied, and is at any time employed otherwise than for the purposes of a hospital or part of a hospital used for the treatment of mental patients or an institution or part of an institution used for the treatment of defectives, the option shall cease to have effect ; and
- (c) if a person (other than a mental health officer) who has exercised the said option to retain rights corresponding with those enjoyed under any enactment or scheme at any time becomes a mental health officer, he may, if he notifies the employing authority in writing within one month after becoming such an officer that he so desires, avail himself of the benefits provided by these regulations in lieu of the rights to which he was previously entitled, and, if he does so, the option shall cease to have effect.

(2) The provisions of the preceding paragraph shall apply to an officer who, having been subject to the Act of 1937 or a local Act scheme, had before being transferred under the Act attained the age of compulsory retirement applicable in his case, or who attains pensionable age on, or within three months after, being so transferred, as if on becoming an officer he had exercised the option thereby conferred to retain rights corresponding with those enjoyed under the Act of 1937 or the local Act scheme, as the case may be.

(3) Where a person who, pursuant to the preceding provisions of this regulation is required to make the like contributions as he would have been liable to make and becomes entitled to enjoy rights corresponding with those he would have enjoyed if he had remained subject to the enactment or scheme previously applicable in his case, was immediately before being transferred under the Act a contributor to a thrift fund, a widows' and orphans' pensions fund or any other fund established under express statutory authority for the purpose of providing benefits which are supplementary to or in augmentation of the superannuation benefits provided under the said enactment or scheme, he shall make additional contributions under these regulations of the like amount as those he would have been liable to make to the said fund if he had remained subject to the said enactment or scheme, and shall in consideration thereof be entitled to the like rights under these regulations as he would have enjoyed had those contributions been contributions to the said fund. [2181]

23.—(1) The provisions of this regulation shall apply in the case of any officer to whom the last preceding regulation applies (other than an officer who was subject immediately before becoming an officer to an enactment or scheme which included a title to a death gratuity among its benefits), and who does not exercise the option thereby conferred, or in whose case any option exercised thereunder has ceased to have effect.

(2) The amount of any retiring allowance payable to any such officer shall be increased by one-half per cent. in respect of each year of contributing service, and one-quarter per cent. in respect of each year of non-contributing service, reckonable, in the case of an officer who did not exercise the said option, in respect of any period prior to his becoming an officer, or, in the case of an officer who exercised the said option but in whose case the option has ceased to have effect, in respect of any period prior to the date on which the option ceased to have effect:

Provided that where the whole or any part of the retiring allowance payable to the officer in respect of any such period as is mentioned in this paragraph falls to be calculated, in the case of any year of contributing service by reference to one-eightieth of the officer's average remuneration, and in the case of any year of non-contributing service by reference to one one-hundred-and-sixtieth of such remuneration, one and one-half per cent. shall be substituted for one-half per cent. in respect of each such year of contributing service, and three-quarters per cent. shall be substituted for one-quarter per cent. in respect of each such year of non-contributing service. [2182]

Persons subject to non-statutory superannuation schemes and arrangements

24.—(1) Where any person (not being a person to whom regulation 22 applies), on being transferred under the Act or in consequence of the acquisition by the Minister under section 58 of the Act of a hospital at or for the purposes of which he was employed at the date of acquisition, becomes an officer of an employing authority, then, if on the nineteenth day of March, 1946 (or such later date as the Minister may determine in the case of a person who had been employed at or for the purposes of a hospital so acquired by the Minister as aforesaid) and immediately before becoming such officer he was participating in the superannuation scheme operated under the Federated Superannuation System for Universities or the Federated Superannuation Scheme for Nurses and Hospital Officers, and if the officer so requests the employing authority in writing within three months after becoming such officer, and if the body administering the scheme consents, and enters into the necessary arrangements with the Minister for the purpose, the Minister shall, so long as the person remains without a break of more than one month at any one time an officer in the employment of any employing authority, pay the contributions authorised or required by the scheme to be paid by the employer, other than contributions in respect of any policy of insurance taken out under the scheme between the eighteenth day of March, 1946, and the appointed day (or in the case of a person who had been employed at or for the purposes of a hospital so acquired by the Minister as aforesaid between such later date as the Minister may determine and the date of acquisition), and in that event the officer shall not as such officer be subject to any provisions of these regulations except those contained in this and the next succeeding regulation, and the Minister may, if he thinks fit, with the consent of the body administering the scheme, and subject to such arrangements as he may make with that body, also pay the contributions authorised or required by the scheme to be paid by the employer in respect of any policy of insurance taken out under the scheme after the eighteenth day of March, 1946, or such later date as aforesaid, as the case may require.

(2) Where any such person as is mentioned in the last preceding paragraph, immediately before becoming an officer of an employing authority, was participating in any superannuation scheme of a similar character to the schemes therein mentioned, or was participating or had reasonable expectations of participating in any other scheme or arrangements for the provision of superannuation benefits, then, if the officer so requests the employing authority in writing within three months after becoming such officer, the Minister shall consider all the circumstances of the case, including any change which may have occurred on the person becoming an officer in the emoluments previously enjoyed by him, and if he is satisfied that undue hardship would result if the provisions of this paragraph were not applied to the officer, the Minister shall, if any relevant scheme continues to be administered by a body, with the consent of and subject to such arrangements as he may make with that body, pay the contributions authorised or required by that scheme to be paid by the employer, and in any other case the Minister may carry out the relevant scheme or arrangements, and in that event the officer shall not as such officer be subject to any provisions of these regulations except those contained in this and the next succeeding regulation :

Provided that this paragraph shall apply only so long as the person remains without a break of more than one month at any one time an officer in the employment of any employing authority.

(3) Subject to the provisions of the two preceding paragraphs, where a person becomes an officer of an employing authority, having immediately before becoming such officer been participating in either of the superannuation schemes mentioned in paragraph (1) of this regulation or any other scheme approved by the Minister for the purposes of this paragraph, then, if the officer so requests the employing authority in writing within three months after becoming such officer, the Minister may, with the consent of the body administering the scheme, and subject to such arrangements as he may make with that body, pay the contributions authorised or required by the scheme to be paid by the employer, and in that event the officer shall not as such officer be subject to any provisions of these regulations except those contained in this regulation :

Provided that this paragraph shall apply only so long as the person remains without a break of more than a month at any one time an officer in the employment of any employing authority.

(4) Where contributions are paid by the Minister under the foregoing provisions of this regulation in respect of any person, the employing authority shall deduct from that person's remuneration the amount of the contributions required by the scheme to be paid by the employee, and shall pay the same to the Minister, together with the like contributions which they would have paid in respect of that person under regulation 4 but for the provisions of this regulation. #### OFFICERS OF LOCAL HEALTH AUTHORITIES

Application

39.—(1) As from the appointed day, this part of these regulations shall apply to any employee of a local health authority who is—

- (a) a contributory employee or local Act contributor on the medical or nursing staff of the authority ;
- (b) a contributory employee or local Act contributor falling within such class or description of persons as the Minister may designate, after consultation with such associations of local authorities as appear to him to be concerned ; or
- (c) a person transferred under the Act to their employment, and who immediately before being so transferred was a contributory employee or local Act contributor :

Provided that—

- (i) this part shall not apply in the case of an officer in the employment of a local health authority on the appointed day who immediately before that day was a contributory employee or local Act contributor, if within three months after the appointed day he gives notice in writing to the local health authority that he does not wish this part of these regulations to apply to him ; and
- (ii) the provisions of sub-paragraph (c) of this paragraph shall apply to such an officer as is therein mentioned only so long as he remains in the employment of the local health authority to which he was transferred under the Act, whether in the same post or in any other post.

(2) If such an officer as is mentioned in sub-paragraph (c) of the preceding paragraph is transferred under the Act before the appointed day, this regulation shall have effect in relation to him as if the date of transfer were the appointed day.

(3) A person who by virtue of a single appointment under any authority which is a local health authority is engaged in services in respect of which he is an officer to whom this part applies and also in other services shall not be treated as an officer to whom this part applies unless in such appointment he is mainly engaged in such services as are first hereinbefore mentioned. [2185]

40.—(1) The Act of 1937 and any local Act scheme shall extend and apply in relation to any officer to whom this part applies as if, in consideration of the contributions required thereby, there were substituted for any title accruing in respect of service reckonable thereunder to a superannuation allowance, lump sum retiring allowance, injury allowance or death gratuity a title to such benefits as are conferred by regulations 5 to 7 inclusive, as modified by regulation 28, and regulation 10, and there were conferred by the Act or scheme in addition, or in substitution for any similar benefits to which an officer might become entitled thereunder, in respect of service reckonable under the Act or scheme, the benefits conferred by regulations 8, 9 and 11, and the Act of 1937 and any local Act scheme shall have effect accordingly, with any necessary modifications, including the modification in relation to a local Act scheme that references to contributing service in any of the said regulations shall be read as references to service, and references to non-contributing service shall be disregarded.

(2) The amount of any retiring allowance to which an officer to whom proviso (i) to paragraph (1) of the last preceding regulation applies, and who does not exercise the option thereby conferred, may become entitled shall be increased, as nearly as may be, in accordance with the provisions of regulation 23 (2).

(3) The Act of 1937, in its application to any such officer as aforesaid, shall be further modified to confer a right on him by making payments similar to those provided for by the fourth schedule to reckon any period of non-contributing service as a period of contributing service, and shall have effect as if the provisions of the fourth schedule were incorporated therein with any necessary modifications.

(4) Any pension or injury allowance to which any such officer as aforesaid becomes entitled in consequence of this regulation shall be granted subject to the conditions contained in regulations 20 and 21, with any necessary modifications, in lieu of any similar conditions in corresponding provisions of the Act of 1937 or any local Act scheme. Application to voluntary organisations of the Act of 1937 and local Act schemes

41.—(1) If application for the purpose is made to a local health authority by a voluntary organisation engaged in the provision in the area of the authority of services under Part III of the Act or under the Mental Deficiency Acts, 1913 to 1938, the authority, or, in the case of an authority who are not an administering authority or local Act authority, the administering authority, shall admit any members of such classes of employee of the organisation and on such terms and conditions as may be approved by the Minister, to participate in the benefits of the superannuation fund maintained by them, and in that event the Act of 1937, as modified by these regulations in any case in which that Act as so modified is applicable, shall have effect in relation to the organisation and any employee so admitted as if the organisation were a local authority and the employee were a contributory employee, and any local Act scheme, as modified by these regulations in any case in which that scheme as so modified is applicable, shall have effect as if the employee were a local Act contributor, and the organisation shall in either case have all such powers as may be necessary for the purposes of giving effect to the terms and conditions approved by the Minister.

(2) An admission agreement made under subsection (5) of section 5 of the Act of 1937 and in force immediately before the appointed day shall, notwithstanding the repeal of that subsection by these regulations, continue in force as if made under this regulation, subject, however, to such modifications and adaptations as the parties concerned may, with the approval of the Minister, determine to be necessary for bringing it into accordance with the provisions of this regulation. [2187]

PART IV

OFFICERS OF LOCAL EDUCATION AUTHORITIES

Application of part III

42. As from the appointed day, part III of these regulations shall also apply, with the necessary modifications, to any contributory employee or local Act contributor employed by a local education authority for the purposes of the school health service who is an officer falling within the class mentioned in regulation 39 (1) (a) or who is an officer falling within such class or description as the Minister may designate, after consultation with such associations of local authorities as appear to him to be concerned :

Provided that this part shall not apply in the case of an officer in the employment of a local education authority on the appointed day who immediately before that day was a contributory employee or local Act contributor, if within three months after the appointed day he gives notice in writing to the local education authority that he does not wish this part of these regulations to apply to him. [2188]

PART V

MISCELLANEOUS

Officers holding other employment

43.—(1) If an officer in the employment of an employing authority, being an officer to whom part I applies (other than an officer who has exercised an option under regulation 22 which has not ceased to have effect), is simultaneously employed in any other employment in which, but for the provisions of this regulation, he would be a contributory employee or local Act contributor, then, if the total time spent by him in those employments is wholly or mainly devoted to health services (including the school health service), the provisions of part I of these regulations shall also apply to him in relation to such other employment as aforesaid in lieu of the provisions of the Act of 1937 or the local Act scheme, as the case may be, as if the authority or body by whom he is employed were an employing authority.

(2) Where a person becomes subject to the provisions of part I of these regulations by virtue of the preceding paragraph in any employment in which he was a contributory employee or local Act contributor immediately before becoming so subject, then, for the purposes of these regulations, if he becomes so subject on being transferred under the Act to the employment of an employing authority, he shall also be treated as having been transferred under the Act to such first mentioned employment, and, if he becomes so subject otherwise than on being transferred under the Act, he shall be treated as having entered such employment at the date on which he becomes so subject, and in either case a transfer value shall be payable to the Minister in accordance with the provisions of regulation 47.

(3) Where a person ceases to be subject to the provisions of part I of these regulations in relation to any such other employment as is mentioned in paragraph (1) of this regulation by virtue of that paragraph having ceased to apply, and he becomes in that employment a contributory employee or local Act contributor, as the case may be, he shall be treated for the purposes of these regulations as having become a contributory employee or local Act contributor in that employment immediately after ceasing to be employed by an employing authority, and a transfer value shall be payable by the Minister in accordance with the provisions of regulation 49. [2189]

Reckoning of service on transfer to other employment

44.—(1) Where a person, within twelve months after leaving employment as an officer of an employing authority or, in the case of a person who left such employment in order to undertake national service, within six months after the termination of that service, and without having become entitled to any benefit under these regulations other than a return of contributions, becomes a contributory employee, local Act contributor, established civil servant or a person in contributory service under the Teachers Acts otherwise than under any scheme made under section 21 (1) (a) of the act of 1925, and otherwise than by virtue of section 13 (2) (g) of that Act, he shall be entitled :—

- (a) if he becomes a contributory employee, to reckon as service, contributing service and non-contributing service respectively, all periods of employment, war service or national service which he was so entitled to reckon for the purposes of these regulations in relation to his employment under the employing authority immediately before he ceased to be employed by them, and as contributing service any period of national service after so ceasing to be employed, excluding, in the event of his having received a return of contributions on or after so ceasing to be employed, any part of that period after the date of the return ;
- (b) if he becomes a local Act contributor, to reckon his previous service and any period of national service after so ceasing to be employed in such manner as the Minister may approve with a view to securing, so far as is reasonably practicable, that he shall enjoy rights under the local Act scheme applicable to him substantially similar to those which he would have enjoyed under the last preceding subparagraph had he become a contributory employee ; and
- (c) if he becomes an established civil servant or a person in such contributory service under the Teachers Acts as aforesaid, to reckon as established service or contributory service, as the case may be, all periods of employment, war service or national service which for the purposes of these regulations he was entitled to reckon as contributing service or non-contributing service in relation to his employment under the employing authority immediately before he ceased to be employed by them, and any period of national service after so ceasing to be employed, excluding, in the event of his having received a return of contributions on or after so ceasing to be employed, any part of that period after the date of the return, and to reckon as established service for the purpose of determining whether he has served for the minimum period prescribed under the Superannuation Acts for the payment of a superannuation allowance or additional allowance or gratuity to his personal representatives on his death, or as qualifying service for the purposes of the Teachers Acts, any service which he was entitled to reckon in relation to his former employment solely for the purpose of determining whether he was entitled to any benefit under these regulations :

Provided that—

- (i) the foregoing provisions of this paragraph shall not apply to any person who does not, within three months after entering his new employment, give notice in writing to his employer of his previous period of employment and war service or national service (if any), and pay to his employer, or, if he becomes an established civil servant, repay to the Minister, or, if he becomes a person in such contributory service under the Teachers Acts as aforesaid, pay to the Minister of Education, an amount equal to any sum paid to him by way of return of contributions on or after his ceasing to hold his former employment, together with an amount equal to any income tax which was deducted from his contributions in respect of such payment; and

- (ii) for all the purposes of sub-paragraph (c) of this paragraph, except the calculation of any qualifying period of service, any period of non-contributing service shall be treated as being half its actual length, and any period of part-time service shall be treated as though it were whole-time service for a proportionately reduced period.

(2) Where an established civil servant to whom sub-paragraph (c) of the last preceding paragraph applies ceases to be employed as such in circumstances which under these regulations would have entitled him to a return of contributions had he then ceased to be employed by an employing authority, he shall be entitled to receive from the Minister a sum equal to the amount to which he would have been so entitled as aforesaid.

(3) Where an officer of an employing authority becomes a person in contributory service under the Teachers Acts, and the provisions of paragraph (1) of this regulation do not apply to him, then, without prejudice to the proviso to section 12 (2) of the Act of 1925, as amended by these regulations, any period of employment, war service or national service which would have been reckonable under sub-paragraph (c) of that paragraph had that paragraph applied to him shall be treated as qualifying service for the purposes of the Teachers Acts. [2190]

Persons subject to non-statutory superannuation schemes

45.—(1) Where an employee of a local authority, being a person to whom part III or IV of these regulations applies, was within twelve months before entering their employment a person to whom the provisions of paragraph (1) or (2) of regulation 24 applied as a participant in any such scheme as is mentioned in paragraph (1) of that regulation, or in any other scheme of a similar character, that authority shall, if the employee so requests in writing within three months after entering their employment, and if the body administering the scheme consents, and makes the necessary arrangements for the purpose, pay the contributions authorised or required by the scheme to be paid by the employer, and in that event the employee shall not be subject to the Act of 1937 or any local Act scheme.

(2) Where contributions are paid by a local authority under paragraph (1) of this regulation in respect of any employee, that authority shall deduct from the remuneration payable to the employee the amount of any contributions required by the scheme to be paid by the employee. [2191]

Rights on transfer to non-statutory superannuation schemes and approved employment

46.—(1) Where a person within twelve months after ceasing to be employed as an officer by an employing authority and without having received a return of contributions or become entitled to any other benefit under these regulations becomes a participant in the superannuation scheme operated under the Federated Superannuation System for Universities or the Federated

Superannuation Scheme for Nurses and Hospital Officers or any other superannuation scheme approved by the Minister, he may within three months thereafter notify the Minister that he desires the provisions of this paragraph to apply to him, and, in that event, the Minister may, if the body administering the scheme undertakes to invest or secure the investment of such sum for his benefit under the scheme, and to comply with the provisions of the next succeeding paragraph, pay to that body a sum not exceeding the amount of the transfer value which would have been payable under regulation 49 had he become a contributory employee in circumstances to which that regulation applies.

(2) If a person to whom the preceding paragraph has been applied ceases to participate in the scheme in circumstances in which the only benefit to which he becomes entitled is a sum by way of the return of any of his contributions thereunder, the body administering the scheme shall also pay to him a sum equal to the amount which would have been paid to him by way of a return of his contributions under these regulations on his ceasing to be employed as an officer of an employing authority, and shall refund to the Minister an amount equal to the sum paid by the Minister under the preceding paragraph in respect of him, after the deduction therefrom of a sum equal to the amount paid to him by way of a return of his contributions under these regulations, and the addition thereto of an amount equal to interest on the sum so paid by the Minister, as from the date of payment, at the rate which would have been payable under the scheme on contributions returned thereunder at the date on which the sum was paid by the Minister.

(3) If such a person as is mentioned in the last preceding paragraph, within twelve months after ceasing so to participate in the scheme and within five years after ceasing to be employed as an officer by an employing authority, again becomes an officer of an employing authority to whom part I of these regulations applies, he shall be entitled, if he pays or repays to the employing authority any contributions under these regulations returned to him by the body administering the scheme, to reckon as service, contributing service and non-contributing service respectively, all periods of employment, war service or national service which he was so entitled to reckon in relation to his employment under the former employing authority immediately before the date on which he ceased to be employed by them.

(4) Where a person within twelve months after ceasing to be employed as an officer by an employing authority, and without having received a return of contributions or become entitled to any other benefit under these regulations, enters employment in which he does not become entitled to reckon his service under these regulations for the purpose of participating in any superannuation benefits, otherwise than for the sole purpose of determining whether any such benefits are payable, he may, unless he is a person to whom paragraph (1) of this regulation has been applied, within three months after entering that employment, apply to the Minister to approve the employment for the purposes of this paragraph, and if the employment is so approved and—

- (a) if he ceases to hold that employment, or any other employment approved by the Minister for the purposes of this paragraph, in such circumstances, including that of his age, as, had they obtained when he ceased to hold his employment under the employing authority, would have entitled him to any benefit under these regulations, the Minister may grant him that benefit, as from the date on which he ceases to hold the approved employment, calculated as if he had become entitled to that benefit at the date on which he ceased to be an officer of the employing authority ;
- (b) if he dies while in approved employment, the Minister may grant the like benefits (if any) by way of widow's pension and death

- gratuity as would have been granted if he had died immediately before he ceased to be employed by the employing authority ; or
- (c) if within twelve months after ceasing to hold approved employment he again becomes an officer of an employing authority to whom part I of these regulations applies, he shall be entitled to reckon as service, contributing service and non-contributing service respectively all periods of employment, war service or national service which he was so entitled to reckon in relation to his employment under the former employing authority immediately before the date on which he ceased to be employed by them :

Provided that in the application of regulation 10 for the purpose of subparagraph (b) of this paragraph the reference to a sum equal to his average remuneration shall be disregarded. [2192]

Transfer values payable to the Minister

47.—(1) Where a person becomes an officer of an employing authority within twelve months after ceasing to be a contributory employee or local Act contributor, or, in the case of a person who so ceased in order to undertake war service, within six months after the termination of his war service, and without having become entitled to any benefit under the Act of 1937 or local Act scheme other than a return of contributions, the like transfer value shall be payable to the Minister out of the fund in relation to which the person was a contributor by the authority maintaining that fund as would have been payable under the regulations for the time being in force by virtue of section 29 of the Act of 1937 had the person as such officer become a contributory employee, less an amount equal to any sum which the trustees of the fund may become liable to pay by way of income tax in respect of the amount transferred by way of transfer value :

Provided that—

- (a) in the case of a person to whom regulation 22 (3) applies, the transfer value shall be increased by such amount as the Minister shall determine to be actuarially equivalent to the liability of which the fund therein referred to is relieved as a result of that person ceasing to be a contributor thereto, and such amount as aforesaid shall be paid out of that fund ; and
- (b) where an authority maintaining a superannuation fund under the Act of 1937 has been dissolved, any transfer value which under the provisions of this paragraph would otherwise have been payable out of that fund shall be paid by the local authorities who appointed the first mentioned authority.
- (2) Where on the appointed day more than one transfer value becomes payable out of a superannuation fund by any authority under paragraph (1) of this regulation, then—
- (a) any transfer value payable may, with the Minister's consent, be paid by instalments of equal amounts spread over a period of not more than ten years after the appointed day, the first instalment to become payable on the appointed day, together with compound interest on the amount for the time being unpaid at the rate of three per cent. per annum, with half yearly rests ;
- (b) if the Minister so directs, or the authority so requests, the actuary making the next actuarial investigation of the fund after the appointed day shall certify in accordance with the provisions of the fifth schedule the liability of which the fund was relieved on the appointed day in consequence of persons who had been contributors thereto having become on that day officers of any employing authority ;

- (c) if the amount of the liability so certified is less than the amount already paid on account of transfer values, the Minister shall repay the excess to the superannuation fund, together with compound interest, calculated at the rate of three per cent. per annum, on any sum overpaid, as from the date of payment ;
  - (d) if the amount of the liability so certified exceeds the amount of the transfer values, and—
    - (i) if such transfer values were paid in a lump sum or, having been payable by instalments, have been fully paid, the authority shall pay to the Minister out of the fund the amount of the deficiency, together with compound interest thereon, calculated as aforesaid, as from the appointed day ; or
    - (ii) if such transfer values were being paid by instalments, the liability in respect of any instalments remaining unpaid shall be adjusted in such manner as the actuary shall certify to be appropriate ; and
  - (e) if nothing has been paid on account of transfer values, the amount of the liability so certified shall be paid to the Minister, either in a lump sum, together with compound interest thereon, calculated as aforesaid, as from the appointed day, or by such instalments as are mentioned in sub-paragraph (a) of this paragraph.
- (3) Where any such person as is mentioned in paragraph (1) of this regulation, had, before becoming a contributory employee or local Act contributor, been subject to the Act of 1909, and the body by whom he was last employed while subject to that Act would, if he had become entitled to a superannuation allowance as such contributory employee or local Act contributor, have been liable to contribute to that allowance, that body, or if that body has been dissolved or has ceased to exercise functions as such, the appropriate authority in relation to that body, shall pay a transfer value to the Minister in accordance with the provisions of part I of the sixth schedule.
- (4) Where the body mentioned in the last preceding paragraph would in the circumstances therein mentioned have had, in respect of any such contribution to a superannuation allowance as is therein mentioned, a right of contribution from any other body, that other body, or if that other body has been dissolved or has ceased to exercise functions as such, the appropriate authority in relation to that other body, shall also pay a transfer value to the Minister in accordance with the provisions of part II of the sixth schedule.
- (5) Where a person becomes an officer of an employing authority within twelve months after ceasing to be subject to the Act of 1909, or, in the case of a person who so ceased in order to undertake war service, within six months after the termination of that service, and without having become entitled to any benefit under the Act of 1909, other than a return of contributions, and without having become a contributory employee or local Act contributor, the body by whom he was last employed under the Act of 1909, and any other body who would have been liable to contribute towards a superannuation allowance in respect of such officer under the Act of 1909 had he become entitled to such an allowance on ceasing to be subject to the Act of 1909, or if any such body has been dissolved or has ceased to exercise functions as such, the appropriate authority in relation to such body, shall pay a transfer value to the Minister in accordance with the provisions of part III of the sixth schedule.
- (6) A transfer value payable under proviso (b) to paragraph (1) of this regulation or under the last preceding paragraph may, with the Minister's consent, be paid by instalments of equal amounts spread over a period of not more than ten years in the former case and forty years in the latter case, after the date on which the person in respect of whom it is payable became an officer, the first instalment to become payable on that date.

(7) Where any such person as is mentioned in paragraph (1) or (5) of this regulation received a return of contributions on or after ceasing to be a contributory employee, local Act contributor or subject to the Act of 1909, as the case may be, and he does not make a payment to the employing authority in accordance with proviso (a) to regulation 13 (2), the Minister shall refund any transfer value or any payment on account of a transfer value received in respect of him under this regulation.

(8) Where a transfer value under proviso (b) to paragraph (1) or under paragraph (3), (4) or (5) of this regulation becomes payable by two or more local authorities jointly, the sum payable shall be apportioned amongst those authorities in such manner as they may agree or, in default of agreement, as may be determined by the Minister.

(9) In this regulation the term "appropriate authority" in relation to a body means—

- (a) in the case of a visiting committee appointed by a local authority other than a joint mental hospitals board, the local authority ;
- (b) in the case of a visiting committee appointed by a joint mental hospitals board, the local authorities who appointed the board ;
- (c) in the case of the managers of a certified institution, the local authority who were the managers ; and
- (d) in the case of a joint mental hospitals board or any other joint board or a joint committee, the local authorities who appointed the joint board or joint committee. [2193]

48.—(1) Where before the appointed day a superannuation fund is being maintained under any superannuation scheme by or on behalf of the governing body of a voluntary hospital which by virtue of the Act will be dissolved on the appointed day, then, if the employees of that body who by virtue of contributions to that fund are participants in the benefits of that scheme, or some of those employees, will, if they remain in the employment of that body, be transferred under the Act and become officers of an employing authority, and if that scheme has been approved by the Minister under regulation 13 (3) (d) (v), that body or the persons who on their behalf are maintaining the fund shall transfer the fund to the Minister immediately before the appointed day, and the Minister shall become liable for any payment by way of return of contributions to which any participant in the benefits of the scheme becomes entitled on the appointed day.

(2) Subject to the provisions of paragraph (1) of this regulation, where a person becomes an officer of an employing authority within twelve months after ceasing to be a contributor to a scheme approved by the Minister under regulation 13 (3) (d) (v), not being a scheme for providing superannuation benefits by means of contracts or policies of insurance made or effected with any of the Life Assurance Companies, and without having become entitled to any benefit under the scheme other than a return of contributions, the body administering the scheme or any persons maintaining any fund for the purposes of the scheme or the successors in title of either that body or those persons shall, if the Minister so requires, pay to the Minister a transfer value of such amount as the Minister may determine to be actuarially equivalent to the liability of which the body administering the scheme or any such fund as aforesaid is relieved as a result of that person ceasing to be subject to the scheme and becoming an officer of an employing authority. [2194]

Transfer values payable by the Minister

49. Where a person, within twelve months after leaving employment as an officer of an employing authority or, in the case of a person who left such employment in order to undertake national service, within six months after the termination of that service, and without having become entitled to any benefit under these regulations other than a return of contributions, becomes a contributory employee or local Act contributor, a transfer value calculated in accordance with the provisions of the seventh schedule shall be payable by the Minister to the authority maintaining the fund in relation to which the officer so becomes a contributory employee or local Act contributor, and that authority shall pay the transfer value received into that fund :

Provided that if a person, who, on or after leaving the employment of an employing authority, received a return of contributions, does not make a payment to his employer in accordance with proviso (i) to regulation 44 (1), any transfer value received in respect of him shall be refunded. [2195]

Persons engaged on war service

50.—(1) Where a person, but for any war service on which he was engaged, would have been transferred under the Act to the employment of an employing authority, he shall be deemed for the purposes of these regulations to have been so transferred if he enters the employment of that authority within six months after the termination of that service.

(2) If any such person, immediately before becoming engaged on war service, was subject to the provisions of any such enactment or scheme as is mentioned in regulation 22 (1), he shall be deemed for the purposes of these regulations to have been so subject immediately before becoming an officer of an employing authority.

(3) Where a person is engaged on war service or national service at the date of the acquisition by the Minister under section 58 of the Act of a hospital at or for the purposes of which he was employed immediately before undertaking that service, and becomes an officer of an employing authority within six months after the termination of that service, he shall be deemed for the purposes of these regulations to have been employed in such hospital at the date of its acquisition by the Minister. [2196]

King Edward VII Welsh National Memorial Association Superannuation Fund

51. The King Edward VII Welsh National Memorial Association shall, in lieu of the payment of transfer value under these regulations, transfer to the Minister immediately before the appointed day the superannuation fund maintained by them under the Act of 1937, and the Minister shall become liable as from the appointed day for any payment accruing due on or after that day on account of a superannuation allowance or gratuity payable to a person who ceased to be employed by the Association before that day, or on account of a pension payable to the spouse of any such person. [2197]

Insurance Committee Officers' Superannuation Fund

52.—(1) The trustees of the Insurance Committee Officers' Superannuation Fund shall, in lieu of the payment of transfer value under these regulations, transfer to the Minister such part of the fund as at the day appointed by His Majesty by Order in Council under section 79 (1) of the Act for the purposes of section 68 (1) (d) thereof is attributable to the provision of superannuation benefits for officers employed in England and Wales immediately before that day and to the payment of superannuation allowances to persons who have ceased to be so employed before that day or of annuities to dependants of such persons, after deducting any deficiency in the fund, other than such proportionate part thereof as may be properly attributable to any continuing liabilities of the fund.

(2) For the purpose of determining what part of the fund is to be transferred to the Minister under this regulation, a valuation shall be made by the actuary to the fund, and the cost of the valuation shall be borne by the fund.

(3) The Minister shall become liable as from the appointed day aforesaid for any payment accruing due on or after that day on account of a superannuation allowance payable out of the fund to a person who ceased to be employed in England or Wales before that day, or on account of an annuity to any of his dependants. [2198]

Determination of questions

53. Any question arising under these regulations as to the rights or liabilities of an officer of an employing authority or of a person claiming to be treated as such shall be determined by the Minister. [2199]

Amendment of the Act of 1937 and Local Act schemes

57. The provisions of section 10 of the Act of 1937, and the corresponding provisions of any local Act scheme, shall have effect in relation to a contributory employee or local Act contributor who has been an officer of an employing authority as if references therein to contributions which may be returned thereunder on such an employee or contributor ceasing to be employed or dying included references to contributions and additional contributory payments made by him under or in pursuance of these regulations, in so far as any such contributions or payments have not been returned to and retained by him, and are attributable to service which might have been reckoned under the Act of 1937 or the local Act scheme, as the case may be, for the purposes of superannuation allowance in respect of the employment which he has ceased to hold or in which he has died, as the case may be. [2203]

Amendment of the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944

58.—(1) The Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944, shall have effect as if a pension or injury allowance payable under these regulations were specified in Part I of the First Schedule to that Act.

(2) The said Act shall continue to have effect in relation to pensions payable under the King Edward VII Welsh National Memorial Association Acts, 1939 and 1940, or in respect of service under any insurance committee appointed under the National Health Insurance Act, 1936, (including a committee formed by a combination of insurance committees under section 94 of that Act), in respect of which the Minister becomes liable to make payments under regulation 51 or 52 (3). [2204]

Amendment of the Superannuation Act, 1946

59. The following words shall be added at the end of paragraph 6 of the Second Schedule to the Superannuation Act, 1946, namely, "and as if, in paragraph (b) of subsection (3) thereof, for the words "on his retirement from the service of such a local authority as aforesaid" there were substituted the words "if he retires from the service of such a local authority as aforesaid, or from employment as an officer entitled to participate in superannuation benefits provided by regulations made by the Minister of Health under subsection (1) of section 67 of the National Health Service Act, 1946," after the words "that local authority" there were inserted the words "or the Minister of Health, as the case may be," and after the words "annual superannuation allowance" there were inserted the words "or pension"." [2205]

Repeals and Savings

60.—(1) As from the appointed day, the enactments specified in the ninth schedule shall be repealed to the extent therein specified.

(2) Nothing in the repeal by this regulation of the Act of 1909 shall affect the rights or liabilities under that Act or the Local Government Staffs (War Service) Act, 1939, of any person who is on war service on the appointed day or of any body by whom that person had been employed under the Act of 1909, and in relation to any such person or body the provisions of the Act of 1909 and of the said Act of 1939 shall continue to have effect on and after the appointed day as if the Act of 1909 had not been repealed :

Provided that if any body by whom any such person was employed under the Act of 1909 has been dissolved or has ceased to exercise functions as such, any rights or liabilities conferred or imposed on that body by the Act of 1909 or the said Act of 1939 and preserved by this paragraph shall be deemed to have been conferred or imposed on the appropriate authority in relation to that body.

(3) Nothing in the repeal by this regulation of the provisions of the Act of 1909 and of section 11 (9) of the Mental Treatment Act, 1930, shall affect the right of any person or the legal personal representatives of any person who is or has been a commissioner of the Board of Control, and who prior to his appointment as such was a person in respect of whom contributions were paid under the Act of 1909, to receive any benefit to which he or they would have been entitled had those provisions not been repealed :

Provided that any superannuation allowance payable by any body under the foregoing provision shall, if that body has been dissolved or has ceased to exercise functions as such, be payable by the appropriate authority in relation to that body, and the body paying the superannuation allowance shall have the like right of contribution (if any) under the proviso to section 12 of the Act of 1909 as if that proviso had not been repealed, and as if references in that proviso to a visiting committee or committees were references to the appropriate authority in relation to any such committee.

(4) As from the appointed day, paragraph 2 (1) (b) of Part V of the Second Schedule to the Act of 1937 shall have effect with respect to persons who ceased to be established officers or servants under the Act of 1909 before that day, as if any obligation to contribute imposed or any right of contribution conferred by that paragraph upon a body which has been dissolved, or has ceased to exercise functions as such, were imposed or conferred upon the appropriate authority in relation to that body; and as if the proviso to section 12 of the Act of 1909 had not been repealed.

(5) Any sum payable or due under this regulation by or to two or more local authorities jointly shall be apportioned amongst those authorities in such manner as they may agree or, in default of agreement, as may be determined by the Minister.

(6) In this regulation the term "appropriate authority" in relation to a body has the same meaning as in regulation 47 (9). [2206]

Regulations 13 (9), (10),      FOURTH SCHEDULE
14 (4), (5), 40 (3)

ADDITIONAL CONTRIBUTORY PAYMENTS

1. The sum payable by an officer who desires to reckon any period of non-contributing service as contributing service shall be calculated in accordance with the provisions of paragraph 6 of this schedule, and may be paid upon the officer's notifying the employing authority in writing within three months after his becoming an officer that he intends to make a payment under this paragraph (the date of such notification being hereinafter referred to as "the material date") :—

(a) in a lump sum accompanying such notification ;

(b) partly in a lump sum, of not less than one-tenth of the sum payable, accompanying such notification, and as to the remainder, and subject as hereinafter provided, by such instalments as within three months after the material date may be agreed between the officer and the employing authority ; or

(c) wholly, subject as hereinafter provided, by such instalments as aforesaid.

2. The instalments of any sum payable under the preceding paragraph shall be of equal amounts spread over a period of not more than ten years after the material date, the first instalment to be paid within four months after the material date :

Provided that the whole of the instalments shall be payable before the date on which the officer will attain the age at which he may become eligible for a pension under these regulations on ceasing to be employed.

3. While any instalment of any sum payable under this schedule remains to be paid, the following provisions shall have effect—

(a) compound interest shall be payable as from the material date upon the amount for the time being unpaid, and shall be calculated at the rate of two-and-one-half per cent. per annum, with half-yearly rests ;

(b) if the officer becomes entitled to a pension or retiring allowance under these regulations, or if a widow's pension becomes payable thereunder on his death to his widow or if a death gratuity becomes payable in respect of him, a deduction in respect of any amount due may be made from any payments on account thereof ;

(c) if the officer becomes entitled to an injury allowance or dies without having become entitled to a pension or retiring allowance and without leaving a widow entitled to a widow's pension under these regulations, and no death gratuity is payable in respect of him, all liability in respect of the balance of the debt shall cease ;

(d) if the officer ceases to hold his employment without having become entitled to a pension or retiring allowance, then, at the expiration of twelve months, or, if the officer ceases to hold his employment in order to undertake national service, at the expiration of six months after the termination of that service, the officer shall cease to be entitled to any rights in respect of payments made by him on account of the debt, except any right to a return of the amount of such payments, and his liability in respect of the balance of the debt shall cease, unless within that period the officer, without in the meantime having become a local Act contributor in the whole-time employment of a local Act authority—

(i) enters employment in which he is an officer of an employing authority or an established civil servant, in which event, subject as hereinafter provided, his liability in respect of the balance of the debt shall continue, and the officer shall pay or repay an amount equal to any sum which may have been returned to him in respect of payments made by him on account of the debt, together with an amount equal to any income tax which was deducted from such payments in respect of such return ; or

(ii) enters employment in which he is in contributory service under the Teachers Acts, otherwise than under a scheme made under section 21

(1) (a) of the Act of 1925, or otherwise than by virtue of section 13

(2) (g) of that Act, or enters employment under a local authority in which he is a contributory employee, in which event, subject as hereinafter provided, the right to receive the balance of the debt shall be deemed to be transferred to the Minister of Education or the local authority, as the case may be, and the officer shall pay to that Minister or authority an amount equal to any sum which may have been returned to him in respect of payments made by him on account of the debt, together with an amount equal to any income tax which was deducted from such payments in respect of such return ;

(e) if the officer ceases to hold any employment by virtue of his entry into which his liability in respect of the balance of the debt has been continued in accordance with the provisions of the last preceding sub-paragraph, the provisions of that sub-paragraph shall apply, with any necessary modifications, and shall continue so to apply, whenever the officer ceases to hold employment during which he has been making, but has not completed making, payments on account of the debt ; and

- (f) the provisions of sub-paragraphs (b) and (c) of this paragraph shall apply, with any necessary modifications, whenever the officer is employed in circumstances in which his liability in respect of the balance of the debt is continued under the provisions of sub-paragraph (d) or (e) of this paragraph.

4. Where the last preceding paragraph applies in relation to a person who at any time enters two or more employments, or who simultaneously becomes a part-time officer under the authority in whose employment he is and enters the employment of another authority, the right to receive the balance of the debt shall be apportioned between the authorities concerned in such manner as the Minister shall direct.

5. Any sum payable under this schedule by an officer of an employing authority, or by a person who has ceased to be such and has become an established civil servant, shall be paid to the employing authority for transmission to the Minister.

6.—(1) For the purpose of calculating the sum to be paid by an officer under this schedule the relative Table set out below shall be used in accordance with the provisions of this paragraph.

(2) The age and remuneration of an officer means his age at the material date and the annual remuneration on which he is paying contributions on that date :

Provided that—

- (a) if for the purposes of the foregoing provision account is required to be taken of any fees payable to an officer, other than a practitioner, in respect of any service, the amount thereof shall be taken to be the annual average of the fees payable to him in respect of that service during the three years immediately preceding the material date or, if that service was of shorter duration, such shorter period ;
- (b) references to contributions payable by any person shall include references to contributions which would have been payable by him but for any reduction in or suspension of his remuneration by reason of his absence from duty owing to ill-health or injury ;
- (c) the sum payable, whether by a practitioner or an officer other than a practitioner, in respect of any period of service as a practitioner shall be calculated by reference to the annual average of the remuneration during that period ; and
- (d) in the case of a practitioner, the sum payable in respect of any period of service in any other capacity shall be calculated by reference to the annual remuneration on which he was paying contributions at the date on which he last ceased to be employed in such capacity, or, if in that employment he was not an officer of an employing authority, the annual emoluments of that employment.

(3) The amount shown in Table I (a), I (b), II, III or IV, as the case may require, in relation to an age which corresponds with that of the officer is an amount appropriate in respect of one hundred pounds of remuneration. A total amount is to be calculated proportionately by reference to the remuneration of the officer. Such total amount is the sum payable by the officer in order to reckon as contributing service one year of the non-contributing service which he is entitled to reckon on the material date.

(4) The sum payable by an officer in order to reckon as contributing service more than one year of the non-contributing service which he is entitled to reckon at the material date is the amount calculated in accordance with sub-paragraph (3) of this paragraph, multiplied by the number of years of the said service which the officer desires so to reckon.

(5) Any sum payable by a person to whom paragraph (1) of regulation 30 applies, in respect of any period of non-contributing service of which account would be taken under paragraph (3) of regulation 30 in calculating the amount of the reduction of any pension to which the person might become entitled under these regulations, shall be reduced by the sum shown in the appropriate column of Table V in relation to an age which corresponds with that of the person at the material date, in respect of each one pound of the amount of the reduction of the pension as aforesaid in respect of that period of service, and by a proportionate sum in respect of any fraction of a pound included in the said amount.

Regulation 49

SEVENTH SCHEDULE

PROVISIONS FOR THE CALCULATION OF TRANSFER VALUES PAYABLE BY THE MINISTER, AND DIRECTIONS FOR THE USE OF THE SUBJOINED TABLES IN CONNEXION THEREWITH.

1. In this schedule, the following expressions, unless the context otherwise requires, have the meanings hereby assigned to them—

“the material date” in relation to any person in respect of whom a transfer value is being calculated means the date upon which he ceased to hold his employment under the employing authority ;

“remuneration” in relation to any person, other than a practitioner, means the annual remuneration of his employment under the employing authority on which contributions were payable by him on the material date, and in relation to a practitioner means the annual average of his remuneration in respect of all periods of service as a practitioner :

Provided that—

- (a) if, for the purposes of the foregoing definition, account is required to be taken of any fees payable to a person, other than a practitioner, in respect of any employment, the amount thereof shall be taken to be the annual average of the fees payable to him in respect of that employment during the three years immediately preceding the material date or, if that employment was of shorter duration, such shorter period ;
- (b) references in the foregoing definition to contributions payable by any person shall include references to contributions which would have been payable by him but for any reduction in or suspension of his remuneration by reason of his absence from duty owing to ill-health or injury ;
- (c) in the case of a person who has ceased to hold a single employment under an employing authority and has entered two or more part-time employments in which he is an officer of the same or any other employing authority, a contributory employee or local Act contributor, the expression “remuneration” shall, in relation to each part-time employment, be construed as meaning such proportion of the person’s remuneration on the material date as the annual remuneration or emoluments of that part-time employment bears to the aggregate amount of the annual remuneration or emoluments of the part-time employments ;

“service” in relation to a person who in the employment he has ceased to hold was in the whole-time employment of a single employing authority means, in respect of any period of previous part-time employment, whole-time service for a proportionately reduced period ; and

“contributing service” in relation to any period of service in respect of which a person was in the course of making but had not completed making additional contributory payments shall, if that person in the employment he has entered is a local Act contributor, be construed as meaning service of one-half the actual length of that period of service.

2. The transfer value payable in respect of any person shall be the aggregate of the sums respectively calculated in accordance with the provisions of paragraphs 4, 5 and 6 of this schedule :

Provided that—

- (a) in the case of a person, not being a practitioner, whose service includes service in that capacity, separate transfer values shall be calculated in respect of his service in the two capacities, by reference to his remuneration as such person and his remuneration as a practitioner respectively ;
- (b) in the case of a practitioner whose service includes service otherwise than in that capacity, separate transfer values shall be calculated in respect of his service in the two capacities, as if in relation to his service otherwise than in the capacity of a practitioner the material date for the purpose of ascertaining his remuneration was the date on which he ceased to hold his last employment before becoming a practitioner, and his remuneration was the annual remuneration of the employment on which contributions were payable by him on that date, or, if in that employment he was not an officer of an employing authority, the annual emoluments of that employment ;

- (c) in the case of a person whose contributing service, together with his non-contributing service (if any) reckoned at half its actual length, exceeds forty years, the calculation required to be made by reference to his contributing service and non-contributing service shall be made by reference to forty years contributing service, and if he is such a person as is mentioned in proviso (a) or (b) to this paragraph, his service as a practitioner and his service in any other capacity shall be reduced proportionately to their actual lengths, any non-contributing service being reckoned at half its actual length ;
- (d) the transfer value payable shall be reduced by—
  - (i) an amount equal to any sum which, when the person ceased to hold the employment in relation to which the transfer value is payable, was paid to him by way of a return of contributions, and by a further amount equal to any income tax which was deducted from his contributions in respect of such payment ; and
  - (ii) an amount equal to the balance of any debt the right to receive which, pursuant to the provisions of the fourth schedule to these regulations, is deemed to be transferred to the local authority whose employment the person has entered ; and
- (e) if in relation to the employment which the person has ceased to hold he was in the course of making but had not completed making additional contributory payments, and if in the employment he has entered he is a local Act contributor, the transfer value shall be increased by an amount equal to the aggregate amount of the additional contributory payments so made, except to the extent that such amount may have been returned to the person or any sum may have been deducted on account of income tax from such amount in respect of such return.

3. If after a transfer value has been paid in respect of a person who has become a contributory employee or local Act contributor in the part-time employment of a local authority, that person, within twelve months after the material date, or in the case of a person who ceased to hold his former employment in order to undertake national service, within six months after the termination of that service, while retaining that part-time employment enters other part-time employment in which he is an officer of an employing authority, a contributory employee or local Act contributor, he shall be treated for the purposes of this schedule as if he had simultaneously become such an officer, employee or contributor in each of such part-time employments, and the transfer value already paid shall be adjusted accordingly.

4.—(1) The sum to be calculated by reference to a person's contributing service shall be ascertained in accordance with the provisions of this paragraph.

(2) The amount shown in column (2) of the relative Table set out below in relation to an age which corresponds with that of the person at the material date is to be multiplied by the number of years of contributing service completed on the material date.

(3) The product aforesaid is an amount appropriate in respect of one hundred pounds of remuneration.

(4) A total amount is to be calculated proportionately by reference to the person's remuneration.

5.—(1) The sum to be calculated by reference to a person's non-contributing service shall be ascertained in accordance with the provisions of this paragraph.

(2) The amount shown in column (3) of the relative Table set out below in relation to an age which corresponds with that of the person at the material date is to be multiplied by the number of years of non-contributing service completed on the material date.

(3) The product aforesaid is an amount appropriate in respect of one hundred pounds of remuneration.

(4) A total amount is to be calculated proportionately by reference to the person's remuneration.

6. In the case of a person to whom paragraph (2) of regulation 30 applied immediately before the material date, any sum calculated under paragraph 4 or 5 of this schedule in respect of any period of service of which account would have been taken under paragraph (3) of regulation 30 in calculating the amount of the reduction of any pension to which the person might have become entitled under these regulations shall be reduced by the sum shown in the appropriate column of Table V set out in the fourth schedule to these regulations in relation to an age which corresponds with that of the person at the material date, in respect of each one pound of the amount of the reduction of the pension as aforesaid in respect of that period of service, and by a proportionate sum in respect of any fraction of a pound included in the said amount.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

These regulations provide for the establishment of a contributory superannuation scheme for—

- (a) officers and servants of Regional Hospital Boards, Executive Councils and other bodies constituted under the National Health Service Act, 1946 ;*
- (b) general medical practitioners and general dental practitioners on the lists of Executive Councils ; and*
- (c) other persons engaged in health services, whether provided under the Act or otherwise.*

The scheme, which will be administered by the Minister of Health, will be financed by contributions from the participants in its benefits and by contributions made out of Exchequer moneys. The scheme will not be funded but will be subjected to actuarial investigation periodically.

The scheme is designed to provide benefits comparable with those applicable in the case of an established civil servant under the Superannuation Acts, 1918–1946. The major benefits are a pension and a lump sum retiring allowance, together with a widow's pension. Subsidiary benefits include a death gratuity, an incapacity pension, an injury allowance, a short service gratuity and an option to a pensioner to allocate part of his pension to his wife or any dependant.

Provision is made for preserving the rights in respect of previous superannuable service of persons who become participants in the scheme on being transferred under the Act of 1946 to the central health service. In addition, superannuable employment in the central health service is made interchangeable with superannuable service in the Civil Service, the Local Government Service and the Teaching Service.

The scheme also extends and modifies the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, in its application to local health authorities and other superannuation schemes administered by local health authorities under local Acts by substituting benefits similar to those provided by the regulations for the benefits of the Act of 1937 or those local Act schemes in relation to superannuable employees on the medical and nursing staff of the local health authorities, and to any other classes of superannuable employees designated by the Minister. Similar provision is made in relation to the superannuable staff employed by local education authorities for the purposes of the school health service.

INCREASE OF PENSIONS (CALCULATION OF INCOME) (AMENDMENT) REGULATIONS, 1947

September 3, 1947

Whereas by sub-section (2) of section 2 of the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1947, it is enacted that in calculating the income of a pensioner for the purposes of section 1 of the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944 and the Second Schedule thereto the amount of any service pension (as defined in that Schedule) shall be taken into account :

Now therefore the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury, in pursuance of Their powers under sub-section (1) of section 3 of the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944, and of all other powers enabling Them in that behalf, hereby make the following Regulations :—

- 1.—(1) These Regulations may be cited as the Increase of Pensions

(Calculation of Income) (Amendment) Regulations, 1947, and these Regulations and the Increase of Pensions (Calculation of Income) Regulations, 1944, may be cited together as the Increase of Pensions (Calculation of Income) Regulations, 1944 and 1947.

(2) These Regulations shall be construed as one with the Increase of Pensions (Calculation of Income) Regulations, 1944.

(3) The Interpretation Act, 1889, applies to the interpretation of these Regulations as it applies to the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. [2214]

2. The proviso to paragraph (1) of Regulation 2 of the Increase of Pensions (Calculation of Income) Regulations, 1944 (which provides for disregarding the first fifty-two pounds a year of income otherwise than in respect of a pension specified in the First Schedule to the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944), shall be amended by the insertion therein after the word "Act" of the words "or a service pension as defined in the Second Schedule thereto." [2215]

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of these Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

Section 2 (2) of the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1947, provides that for the purpose of calculating the income of a pensioner, a service pension should be treated in the same way as a pension specified in the First Schedule to the Pensions (Increase) Act, 1944. This necessitates a consequential amendment of the Increase of Pensions (Calculation of Income) Regulations, 1944, which is effected by the present Regulations.

To all Local Authorities

MINISTRY OF HEALTH,
WHITEHALL,
LONDON, S.W.1
7th May, 1947

SIR,

SUPERANNUATION CONTRIBUTIONS BY LOCAL AUTHORITIES

I am directed by the Minister of Health to state that, in consultation with the Secretary of State for Home Affairs and the Minister of Transport, consideration has been given to the extent to which expenditure incurred by local authorities under the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, may be accepted as a proper charge in connection with services which are the subject of grant or reimbursement from Exchequer funds.

In cases where it has been the practice of grant-aiding Departments to accept as ranking for financial assistance charges by way of "equivalent contribution" under section 6 (2) of the Act in respect of any Local Government employee, an apportionment in respect of that employee of any sum properly payable under section 22 will, as from the 1st April, 1946, also be admitted provided that the apportionment is made on a reasonable basis which is applied uniformly over the whole of the Council's services. Similar arrangements will be made where the superannuation fund is maintained in accordance with the Local Act which contains provisions analogous to those included in the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937.

An additional copy of the Circular is enclosed for the information of the Chief Financial Officer of the Council.

I am, Sir, etc. [2218]

CASES

Local government—Superannuation of officers—Right to annual superannuation allowance on ceasing to be employed—Question to be decided by Minister—Claim after cessation of employment—Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937 (c. 68), s. 35.

Practice—Procedure—Preliminary point of law—Unconditional appearance by defendants—Right to plead that plaintiff has no cause of action—R. S. C., Ord. 25, r. 2.

W., who was employed by a local authority and was entitled, as an employee, to participate in the benefits of a superannuation fund, ceased to be so employed on December 17, 1945, and the local authority decided that he was not entitled to an annual superannuation allowance under the Local Government Superannuation Act, 1937, s. 8 (1) (a). In an action by W., begun on July 31, 1946, claiming a declaration that he was so entitled, unconditional appearance to the writ was entered by the local authority, but it was pleaded by para. 6 of the defence that W. had no cause of action because, under s. 35 of the Act of 1937, the question whether or not he was entitled to an allowance was to be determined by the Minister of Health. The master ordered that the issue raised by this defence should be disposed of before the trial, under R. S. C., Ord. 25, r. 2. At the hearing W. contended (i) that, since the authority had entered an unconditional appearance, the plea in para. 6 of the defence was bad since it denied the jurisdiction of the Court; (ii) that s. 35 of the Act of 1937 applied only to persons who were still in the employment of the authority and not to persons who had ceased to be employees:—

Held: (i) the fact that the local authority had entered an unconditional appearance to the writ did not preclude them from raising the point that W. had no cause of action because his proper and only remedy was the exercise of a statutory right of appeal, and the procedure under R. S. C., Ord. 25, r. 2, was, therefore, not open to objection.

Wright v. Prescott Urban Council (1916), 86 L. J. (Ch.) 221, considered.

(ii) although W. had ceased to be employed by the local authority before action brought, s. 35 of the Act of 1937 applied to him and he had no cause of action.—*WILKINSON v. ## STATUTES

TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING ACT, 1947

(10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 51)

PRELIMINARY NOTE

This far-reaching Act, which received the Royal Assent on August 6, 1947, provides for the exercise of a greater control over land and buildings than has previously been known in this country, and with this control local authorities are intimately connected, many being "local planning authorities" on which much of the responsibility for implementing its provisions rests and others being concerned through delegation. The Act deals with two separate though closely related subjects—first, the compensation to be paid on the compulsory acquisition of land, whether or not for planning purposes, these provisions (contained in Part V of, and Sched VII to the Act) being included in the title LAND, ACQUISITION, SALE, ETC. OF, ante; and secondly, town and country planning proper to which the rest of the Act relates and with which the present title is concerned.

The rapid development of the towns coupled with the break-up of the large hereditary estates and the immense improvement in communications that characterised the last century showed the need for some form of planning control if the good of the whole were not to be subordinated to the independence of the part, and, as the unit of area grew, it became increasingly clear that town planning was a national as well as a local concern.

It was not until 1909 that the first of our modern statutes was passed. This was the Housing, Town Planning, &c. Act, 1909, the purpose of which was officially explained as being "to ensure by means of schemes which may . . . be proposed either by local authorities or landowners, that in future land in the vicinity of towns shall be developed in such a way as to secure proper sanitary conditions, amenity, and convenience in connection with the laying out of the land itself and of any neighbouring land" (Local Government Board Circular of December 31, 1909). Planning legislation was here treated merely as a subsidiary of the law of housing.

Though the Act of 1909 has long since ceased to have effect, the thread of planning legislation can be traced through the Housing, Town Planning, &c. Act, 1919 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 956), and the Town Planning Act, 1925 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 1079), which first separated planning from housing, to the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932 (25 Halsbury's Statutes 470), which extended planning to land already built upon and enabled local authorities, if they so desired, to prepare town planning schemes zoning areas, restricting the density of residential zones, and generally laying down the positions of roads, open spaces and building lines. In addition, the design of new buildings was controlled in a limited way. There was, however, no obligation on local authorities to prepare planning schemes, and compensation was payable to persons adversely affected by restrictions imposed. Once a planning scheme had been decided on, "interim development control" (a concept introduced by the Act of 1919, supra) was exercised. Schemes had to be exact in detail and consequently took a long time to prepare, while insufficient provision was made or changes rendered necessary by altered circumstances and developing views on planning theory.

The Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 239), dealt a blow at the piecemeal character of previous planning legislation by placing under interim development control as from October 22, 1943, all land not already subject to such control, and the same Act made important changes in the existing law. The central aspect of planning had already been strengthened, as from February 4, 1943, by the transfer of planning functions to a new and separate authority, the Minister of Town and Country Planning.

Since then the extension of control has come swiftly. The Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 420), gave powers of compulsory acquisition and development in the case of "areas of extensive war damage" (currently known as "blitzed areas") and "areas of bad lay-out and obsolete development" (known as "blighted areas"). Provision was also made for accommodating the "overspill" from densely inhabited districts in areas developed by local authorities for the purpose, the principle of this provision being later followed up by the New Towns Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 661). This element of active planned development, "constructive" as opposed to the previous "restrictive" legislation, is one of the most important developments in present-day planning theory.

Three major reports, the Barlow, Scott and Uthwatt Reports (Cmd. 6153, 6378 and 6386), have considered various aspects of the position, the first dealing with the distribution of the industrial population, the second the utilisation of land in rural areas, and the third the controversial problems of compensation and betterment. Each of these impinged in its own particular way on the provisions for settling land policy by the making of plans, enforcing planning control and taking positive action to see that the plan is carried into effect.

An Explanatory Memorandum on the Town and Country Planning Bill, 1947 (Cmd. 7006), listed four principal defects which, with the issues of compensation and betterment, the Bill was an attempt to solve. First, the position was too static, the procedure for altering schemes, as mentioned above, being inadequate. Next, the system was too localised, in that the local authorities concerned included both urban and rural district councils with consequent local variations in schemes which were not always justified by circumstances. Thirdly, there was no enforceable obligation on local authorities to prepare planning schemes, and lastly, the system was too negative, in that while it could by control prevent bad development it could not easily secure good development. The last point involved a much greater emphasis on the constructive side of planning.

Before examining the detailed provisions of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, it may be well to note the dates of its commencement and the extent of its application. Though the Act received the Royal Assent on August 6, 1947, only the following provisions came into force on that day: ss. 2 and 3; ss. 37 (2) and 38 (2) and any other provisions of Part IV of the Act relating to the acquisition of land under s. 37 (2) or 38 (2); the whole of Part V (dealt with in the title LAND, ACQUISITION, SALE, ETC., OF, ante); so much of s. 91 as relates to acquisitions before the appointed day; so much of s. 113 (2) as relates to Sched. IX, Part I; and Sched. IX, Part I, itself (s. 120 (2)). The rest of the Act did not come into operation until July 1, 1948, the date appointed by order of the Minister of Town and Country Planning under s. 119 (1) (see S.I. 1948 No. 213).

The Act as a whole applies only to England and Wales, and only s. 2 (which provides for the establishment of the Central Land Board, with special reference to Scotland) and s. 58 (2) (which includes Scotland in the area for which the global sum of £300,000,000, referred to later, is to provide) apply to Scotland, where special, though parallel, provision has been made by the Town and Country Planning (Scotland) Act, 1947 (10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 53). No part of the Act applies to Northern Ireland.

The present Act repeals most of the earlier statutes on the subject (ss. 113, 120 and Sched. IX), and in their stead establishes a system of planning which is far more ambitious and comprehensive than the provisions contained in any previous enactments dealing with the subject. The pattern of the Act may be summarised thus : the right to "develop" land is denied to the private owner, a global sum of £300,000,000 being allocated to meet hardship caused to owners by the loss of development values ; this sum will be recovered by a charge which may be levied where development is permitted ; compensation for public acquisition of land is limited to the value of the land for its existing use, since no development right remains in private ownership ; and the reduced cost of compensation is reflected in a new planning code which provides for a greater amount of public development. Further, Exchequer contributions are provided in aid of this development.

Part I of the Act, which is merely introductory, is concerned with the agencies through which this policy is to be implemented. At the national end comes the Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1), and a new public corporation, the Central Land Board, whose constitution and functions are provided for by ss. 2 and 3.

On October 28, 1947, the Minister (jointly with the Secretary of State) made under powers conferred by s. 2 the Central Land Board Regulations, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2294, whereby provision was made for the appointment and tenure of office of members, the non-disclosure of information and the execution of documents by the Board. Further, in the House of Commons on November 11, 1947, the Minister stated that he had invited the Chairman of the War Damage Commission, Sir Malcolm Eve, and its other members, to accept appointment to the Central Land Board, so that the Central Land Board might have the advantage of the ability and experience of the War Damage Commissioners, and be able to draw on the Commission's staff and accommodation. The Chairman and most of the members had been able to accept the appointment which would, however, hold good only until March 31, 1948, when the position would be reviewed (444 H. of C. Official Report 168-169).

At the other end of the scale come the "local planning authorities," comprising county councils and county borough councils to the exclusion of county district councils ; but this is subject, first, to the Minister's power of uniting areas under joint planning boards (s. 4), and secondly, to the power of local planning authorities to delegate their powers in regard to development control to district councils (s. 34). In the latter connection, the Minister on November 21, 1947, made the Town and Country Planning (Authorisation of Delegation) Regulations, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2499, allowing local planning authorities (other than county borough councils), by agreements made with the Minister's consent, to delegate to county district councils any of their functions under Part III of the Act, subject to the detailed provisions of the order. (See also Town and Country Planning Circular No. 37/47). S. 4 and Sched. I to the Act provide for the setting up of joint advisory committees of local planning authorities.

Next, Parts II and III of the Act provide the new planning code. In essentials, this is little different from the previous code, though it does provide for the incorporation of s. 20 of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 449) without limitation on the development which may be undertaken by local authorities (see Sched. XI). Instead of the scheme under the 1932 Act, supra, the new code provides for a development plan which is to be the beginning of the process and not the end. Moreover, instead of interim development control preceding the making of a scheme, which was a salient feature of the 1932 and 1943 Acts, supra, the present Act provides for development control to follow the plan. The local planning authorities are to survey their areas and, within three years from July 1, 1948, prepare plans showing the future development proposed (s. 5) ; in preparing their plans, county councils are required to consult the county district councils in their area (s. 10). These plans will not be unlike the schemes under the 1932

Act, but they will bear more resemblance to re-development plans under the 1944 Act: inter alia, they may designate as subject to compulsory purchase any lands required for statutory or planning purposes (s. 5 (1) (c)), the effect of such designation being somewhat similar to that of a declaratory order under the 1944 Act. Acquiring authorities for planning purposes under the Act will not be the local planning authorities but the councils for the areas in which the land is situated (s. 5 (2) (c) and s. 119 (1)).

The new plans, which will be more flexible than schemes under the 1932 Act, will be subject to five-yearly review (s. 6 (1)). They will require approval by the Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 5 (4)), and will be subject to inquiry before confirmation.

Once plans are confirmed they will be a basis for the development control for which Part III of the Act provides. Permission under these provisions will be required for practically all development (s. 12). The grant of such permission will be provided for by a development order made by the Minister (s. 13 (1)); this order may itself grant the consent, but usually the procedure will be by application to the local planning authority or the delegate local authority. Application may also be made under this section and under s. 18 for permission to retain contravening development. Where permission is refused, an appeal will lie to the Minister under s. 16, but the Minister need not consider an appeal relating to development which is contrary to the plan (s. 16 (1), proviso).

In the past, cases of doubt have arisen as to whether planning permission was or was not necessary, and s. 17 introduces a useful provision whereby application may be made for determination whether any proposed development requires consent. This provision and the supplementary provisions that follow in s. 18 are similar to those contained in the Building Restrictions (War-Time Contraventions) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 899).

From the provisions of s. 10 (6) of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 484) and s. 11 of the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 437) there has evolved a purchase notice procedure, described in s. 19 of the present Act, whereby if, by reason of a refusal of permission to develop, any land becomes incapable of reasonably beneficial use, the owner may serve a notice on the council of the district requiring them to purchase his land. Such a notice is to be transmitted to the Minister and requires his confirmation.

S. 21 provides that permissions granted may be revoked or modified by orders made by the relevant local planning authority and confirmed by the Minister. A hearing will be given to objecting parties and the procedure is similar to that of revocation orders under the 1943 Act, supra. Where such an order is confirmed, however, compensation must be paid for the depreciation of the existing use value (s. 22).

Where any development contravenes the development control provisions or any previous planning control, such development may be prohibited by an enforcement notice under s. 23 of the Act, this notice being similar to the prohibition notice procedure of s. 13 of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 485) as extended by s. 5 of the 1943 Act (36 Halsbury's Statutes 245). In addition to a right of appeal to the justices, however, an application may be made to the planning authority for permission to retain the use on its merits (s. 23 (3) (a)). The enforcement notice must be served within four years of the development taking place or, in relation to previous contravening development, within three years of July 1, 1948.

If an enforcement notice is not complied with, the local planning authority concerned may enter and enforce the action required by the notice, and may recover any reasonable expenses incurred in so doing. Where a use is carried on in contravention of the notice, persons carrying on or permitting or causing such use become liable to a fine of £50 on a first conviction and on further conviction to a maximum fine of £20 for every day on which the use is so continued (s. 24).

The development or use of land may be regulated by agreement (s. 25), and by the following section in the interests of proper planning wide powers are given to local planning authorities to require discontinuance or modification of existing uses, even though such uses are authorised, subject, however, to payment of compensation (ss. 26, 27).

Special provision is made for "tree preservation orders" for the preservation of trees and woodlands in the interests of amenity (s. 28), and for equivalent "building preservation orders" and other machinery for keeping intact buildings of special architectural or historic interest (ss. 29, 30).

Among the more important provisions of Part III of the Act are ss. 31 and 32, which constitute a new code for the display of advertisements, superseding as from July 1, 1948, the Advertisements Regulation Acts, 1907 and 1925 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 908, 1113), which are accordingly repealed (ss. 113, 120 and Sched. IX). Provision is also made by s. 33 for the service of "abatement notices" (similar to enforcement notices) in respect of any vacant land felt to be an eyesore.

Part IV of the Act, which deals with the acquisition and disposal of land for planning purposes, is important as providing the machinery for carrying out the constructive development mentioned earlier. Where development is shown to be desirable, owners may not always be willing to develop their land themselves or allow others to develop it for them, and this Part of the Act therefore lays down the procedure for compulsory purchase. Its provisions can best be understood by reference to s. 5 (2) of the Act which allows designation for compulsory purchase as follows:

Paragraph (a)—Land required by a Minister, local authority or statutory undertakers for their functions; and

Paragraph (b)—Land in an area to be developed or re-developed as a whole or an associated "overspill" area, and any other land which may have to be acquired compulsorily to secure its use in accordance with the plan.

S. 37, the first section in Part IV of the Act, provides for compulsory acquisition as in paragraph (a), supra, by applying the procedure laid down in the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 52), including the speedy purchase procedure of s. 2 of that Act. The following section (s. 38) follows this up by making somewhat similar provision for the cases covered by Paragraph (b), supra, though here the speedy procedure is negatived, the procedure for expedited completion which appeared in the 1944 Act being substituted (s. 39).

Next, s. 40 gives local authorities wide powers of acquiring land by agreement if required for planning purposes, but the consent of the Minister is required and the provisions of the Lands Clauses Acts (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1113 et seq.) are to apply.

Succeeding sections of Part IV confirm the powers of local authorities to purchase buildings of special architectural or historic interest (s. 41), and to appropriate for development any land held by them forming part of a common or open space (s. 42), while provision is also made with regard to the construction, stopping-up and diversion of highways, the execution of street-works and other matters (ss. 47, 48 and 49).

Part V of the Act (dealt with in the title LAND, ACQUISITION, SALE, ETC., OF, ante) needs no further mention here. Parts VI and VII, taken together, make a determined effort to solve the problems of compensation and betterment which have raised such difficulty in the past. The Barlow, Scott and Uthwatt Reports, ante, all took the view that the chief obstacle to planning was the cost of compensation and the impossibility of recovering any part of that cost by a betterment charge. The opinion was also expressed that the item in the compensation cost which caused most difficulty was the obligation to pay for floating development value. The present Act solves the problems of compensation and betterment by expropriating all development rights in exchange for a payment of £300,000,000 (ss. 12, 58 and 69 (1)). Betterment, in the future, will be collected by the Central Land Board on almost all development.

The sum of £300,000,000 is not compensation, but is a value which has been placed on the "float" and which will be paid out, in accordance with a scheme to be made by the Treasury and approved by each House of Parliament, to persons who can show that their lands possessed development value of which they have been deprived by the Act (s. 58). This scheme may take into account other circumstances besides the loss of development values. The view expressed in the Ministry's Explanatory Memorandum (Cmd. 7006) is that, since the Act imposes only a negative restriction on the right of property, no compensation is payable at common law (see the Uthwatt Report, ante, paras. 32 to 38), but that since hardship will undoubtedly be caused if no payment is made the sum of £300,000,000 is being allocated to avoid hardship. No attempt has been made in the Act to define "hardship" in this context.

The concept of development value, which is to be calculated by reference to the condition of the land at July 1, 1948, is defined with some particularity (s. 61). In broad terms, it is the difference between the "unrestricted value" of the land (the full market value were the land not restricted by the Act) and the "restricted value" (the value of the land subject to the restrictions imposed by the Act, which may roughly be taken as its value for the purposes for which it is currently used), always assuming that the unrestricted value is greater than the restricted. The actual calculation of the value will be based not on prices at the appointed day but at January 7, 1947, the date when the provisions of the Bill were made known.

Payments out of the global sum of £300,000,000 are to be satisfied not in cash but by the issue of government stock, bearing interest at a rate to be determined by the Treasury (ss. 65, 66), but certain payments in respect of war-damaged land for which provision is made by s. 59 are to be paid in cash (s. 65).

The power to levy charges in respect of future development is in some ways an offset to the payments out of the global sum considered above. As a general rule, a person who wishes to carry out operations or make a new use of land or a building for which planning permission is required will, unless the case comes within a limited class described in Sched. III, have to pay a development charge to the Central Land Board (s. 69). In assessing the amount of the charge, that Board will act in accordance with regulations of the Minister made with the consent of the Treasury (s. 70), and against such assessments by the Board there is no appeal.

Development charges may be determined as a single capital payment or as a series of annual or other periodical payments; in the latter event the Board may require security (s. 71). S. 73 gives the Board limited powers to vary their determinations as to development charges.

Part VIII relates the provisions of the Act to a number of special cases which otherwise cannot be readily brought within its general provisions. Considerations of space preclude more than a mere mention at this stage. The cases of buildings unfinished at July 1, 1948 (s. 78), land then already ripe for development (s. 80), the working of minerals in relation to development (s. 81), requisitioned land (s. 89), land held by local authorities or by statutory undertakers or by charities (ss. 82-85), Crown land (ss. 87-88) and the property of the National Coal Board (s. 90) are all provided for.

In addition, the provisions of the Act are related to various cases arising under previous planning control (ss. 75-77, 79; see also Sched. X).

Local authorities are particularly concerned with Part IX of the Act which, by s. 93, makes available Exchequer subsidies in aid of re-development by local authorities. On the Third Reading of the Bill in the House of Commons on May 20, 1947, the Minister indicated that, under the regulations to be made, re-development in war-damaged areas would receive a grant for sixty years at a maximum of 90 per cent. of the annual cost for the first five years and 50 per cent. for the remainder of the time. Other re-development would be subject to a weighting formula with subsidies ranging from just below the war-damaged areas rate down to 50 per cent. for the first five years, 30 per cent. for the next seven, and 20 per cent. for the remainder (437 H. of C. Official Report 2201-2202).

Other Exchequer grants may be made in respect of expenditure incurred in paying certain compensation under Parts III and VIII of the Act, the limit of such grants being 50 per cent. of the expenditure (s. 94). The conditions relating to the provision of Exchequer grants are dealt with in s. 95, while the section following enables additional grants to be made to local authorities in respect of contributions or compensation paid under the 1932 and 1943 Acts, supra, by authorities which were interim development authorities under those Acts (s. 96).

Where compensation is payable by reason of a decision or order, given or made in the interest of some service provided by a government department, the Minister responsible may, by s. 97, make a contribution in respect of such compensation. Local authorities and statutory undertakers may contribute towards the expenses of local planning authorities; and the Minister may require one local authority to contribute towards the expenses of another local authority where he considers it reasonable because of a benefit accruing to the former through a proceeding giving rise to compensation (s. 98).

The most important matters dealt with by the supplemental provisions comprising Part X of the Act are those relating to the default powers of the Minister (s. 100), and the transfer of functions and establishments to the new local planning authorities constituted under the Act (s. 101). By s. 102 provision is also made for securing, in the interests of simplicity, that only one application need be made for planning permission, for the fixing of a development charge and for any consent required under any other Act, a concession that will be cordially welcomed in legal circles. There are special provisions for London (s. 114). [2220]

CENTRAL AND LOCAL ADMINISTRATION

1. The Minister.—The Minister for the purposes of this Act shall be the Minister of Town and Country Planning, and the expression “the Minister” in this Act shall be construed accordingly. [2222]

The Minister of Town and Country Planning.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning Act, 1943, s. 1 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 40), provided for the appointment of a Minister of Town and Country Planning “to be charged with the duty of securing consistency and continuity in the framing and execution of a national policy with respect to the use and development of land throughout England and Wales. . . .”

By s. 5 of the same Act the Minister is constituted a corporation sole with an official seal.

2. The Central Land Board.—(1) For the purpose of the performance of the functions assigned to them by the following provisions of this Act, and by any corresponding provisions which may be enacted in relation to Scotland, there shall be established a Board to be called the Central Land Board which shall be a body corporate by that name, with perpetual succession and a common seal. [2223]

(2) The Board shall consist of a chairman and such number of other members (not exceeding nine) as the Ministers may think expedient, to be appointed by the Ministers, and the Ministers may appoint one of the members of the Board to act as deputy chairman. [2224]

(3) The Board, with the approval of the Ministers, may appoint a Secretary to the Board, and such other officers and such servants as the Ministers may, with the consent of the Treasury, determine. [2225]

(4) There shall be paid to the members, officers and servants of the Board such remuneration (whether by way of salaries or by way of fees), and such reasonable allowances in respect of expenses properly incurred in the performance of their duties, as may be determined by the Ministers with the consent of the Treasury; and any such remuneration and allowances as aforesaid shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [2226]

(5) The Ministers may make regulations with respect to any of the following matters, that is to say :—

(a) the appointment of members of the Board, and their tenure and vacation of office;

(b) the execution of instruments by or on behalf of the Board, and the proof of documents purporting to be executed, issued or signed by the Board or by a member, officer or servant thereof, and subject to the provisions of any such regulations as aforesaid, the Board shall have power to regulate their own procedure (including the manner in which matters subject to the determination of the Board are to be determined by or on behalf of the Board). [2227]

(6) The validity of any proceeding of the Board shall not be affected by any vacancy amongst the members thereof, or by any defect in the appointment of a member thereof. [2228]

(7) The Board shall, as soon as possible after the end of each financial year of the Board, make to the Ministers a report on the exercise and performance by them of their functions during that year; and the Ministers shall lay a copy of every such report before each House of Parliament. [2229]

(8) In this section the expression “Ministers” means the Minister and the Secretary of State concerned with town and country planning in Scotland. [2230]

Date of commencement of this section.—August 6, 1947 (s. 120, post).

Functions.—Includes power and duties (s. 119 (1), post). The principal functions of the Central Land Board arise under Parts VI and VII of the Act, post.

Chairman.—The Minister stated when the Act as a Bill was being considered in Standing Committee of the House of Commons :—

“The chairman will be full time and possibly the vice-chairman. The members will be part time and . . . removed from the sphere of party politics. . . .” (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.D., February 20, 1947, col. 60).

As to membership of the Board, see the Preliminary Note, ante.

Regulations.—See also ss. 3 (4) and 111, post. Under the present section the Minister has made the Central Land Board Regulations, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2294, dated October 28, 1947, as to which see the Preliminary Note, ante.

3. General provisions as to functions of Central Land Board.—(1) The Central Land Board shall, in the performance of their functions under this Act, comply with such directions of a general character as may be given to them by the Minister. [2231]

(2) The report made for any year under subsection (7) of the last foregoing section shall set out any direction given by the Minister to the Board during that year unless the Minister has notified to the Board his opinion that it is against the interests of national security so to do. [2232]

(3) The functions under this Act of the Board, and of their officers and servants, shall be exercised on behalf of the Crown. [2233]

(4) Regulations made for the purposes of the last foregoing section shall provide for requiring members of the Board who are interested in any land the subject of a claim or application made to the Board under this Act to disclose to the Board the nature of their interest, and may for that purpose apply any of the provisions of section one hundred and forty-nine of the Companies Act, 1929, subject to such modifications as may be prescribed by the regulations. [2234]

(5) Any administrative expenses incurred for the purposes of this Act by the Board with the approval of the Minister shall, to such extent as may be sanctioned by the Treasury, be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [2235]

Date of commencement of this section.—August 6, 1947 (s. 120, post).

Directions of a general character.—It would appear to be within the power of the Central Land Board to encourage or discourage a particular class of development by imposing a light or heavy development charge. This is a point on which the Minister might issue a general direction, but he would not be able to direct the Board to impose a heavy or light charge in a particular case (see also s. 70 (3), post).

Annual report of the Central Land Board.—This report will be made to the Ministers mentioned in s. 2 (8), ante, and it will be presented by them to each House of Parliament where it may be debated. This will give Parliament an opportunity of raising questions relating to directions given to the Board by the Minister and disclosed in the report.

Functions.—Includes powers and duties (s. 119 (1), post).

On behalf of the Crown.—See now the Crown Proceedings Act, 1947 (10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 44).

Regulations.—See, further, s. 111, post.

Land.—"Land" is defined by s. 119 (1), post.

Companies Act, 1929, s. 149.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 872. This section provides, inter alia, that it shall be the duty of a director of a company who is in any way, whether directly or indirectly, interested in any contract or proposed contract with the company to declare the nature of his interest at a meeting of the directors of the company. Any director who fails to comply with the provisions of this section is liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.

4. Local planning authorities, etc.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, the local planning authority for the purposes of this Act shall, for each county or county borough, be the council of that county or borough. [2236]

(2) If it appears to the Minister that it is expedient that a joint board should be established as the local planning authority for the areas of any two or more such councils as aforesaid, or for any parts of those areas, he may by order constitute those areas or parts as a united district for the purposes of this Act, and constitute a joint board (in this Act referred to as a joint planning board) as the local planning authority for that district:

Provided that the Minister shall not make such an order except after holding a local enquiry unless all the councils concerned have consented to the making of the order. [2237]

(3) Where an inquiry has been held under the provisions of the last foregoing subsection, the order shall be laid before Parliament and if either house, within a period of forty days after the order is so laid before it, resolves that the order be annulled, the order shall thereupon cease to have effect, but without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done thereunder or to the making of a new order.

In reckoning for the purposes of this subsection any such period of forty days, no account shall be taken of any time during which Parliament is dissolved or prorogued or during which both Houses are adjourned for more than four days. [2238]

(4) The provisions of Part I of the First Schedule to this Act shall have effect with respect to the constitution of joint planning boards under this section; and the provisions of Parts II and III of that Schedule shall have effect with respect to the establishment and functions of planning committees and joint advisory committees of local planning authorities. [2239]

(5) References in this Act to a local planning authority (except references thereto in the said First Schedule) or to a local authority shall include references to a joint planning board constituted under this section ; and references in this Act to the area of a local planning authority shall be construed—

- (a) in relation to a joint planning board, as references to the united district for which the board is constituted ; and
- (b) in relation to a local planning authority for an area of which part only is included in such a district, as references to that part of that area which is not so included. [2240]

(6) If it appears to the Minister, after consultation with the local authorities concerned, to be expedient that any land acquired by a local authority under section thirty-eight or forty of this Act should be held by a joint body consisting of representatives of that authority and of any other local authority, he may by order provide for the establishment of such a joint body and for the transfer to that body of the land so acquired ; and any such order may make such provision as the Minister considers expedient with respect to the constitution and functions of the joint body including provisions—

- (a) for incorporating the joint body ;
- (b) for conferring on them, in relation to the land transferred to them as aforesaid, any of the powers conferred on local authorities by Part IV of this Act in relation to land acquired and held by such authorities for the purposes of the said Part IV ;
- (c) for determining the manner in which their expenses are to be defrayed. [2241]

General note.—The expression “ local planning authority ” did not occur in the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932 (25 Halsbury’s Statutes 470), or the Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943 (36 Halsbury’s Statutes 239). Under the 1932 Act “ local authorities for the purposes of the Act ” were :—

- (a) As respects the City of London, the common council of that city,
- (b) As respects the County of London, the London County Council,
- (c) Elsewhere, the councils of county boroughs and county districts (1932 Act, s. 2 (1) ; 25 Halsbury’s Statutes 472).

The above authorities were the authorities primarily charged with the duty of preparing planning schemes.

Sub-s. (2) of s. 2 of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury’s Statutes 473) provided for an alternative arrangement, and enabled a district council to relinquish to a county council some or all of its powers as planning authority.

S. 3 of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury’s Statutes 473) provided that two or more authorities, being local authorities or county councils and desirous of acting jointly in the preparation of a scheme, could concur in appointing a joint committee for the purpose.

By s. 4 of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury’s Statutes 474) the Minister was empowered in certain circumstances to bring about a combination of authorities for purposes of schemes and for this purpose to constitute joint committees.

In the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 (see s. 55 ; 37 Halsbury’s Statutes 474), the expression “ local planning authority ” is used to denote such a council as is mentioned in s. 2 (1) of the 1932 Act, supra.

Under the present Act, the common council of the City of London will cease to be a local planning authority ; so also will non-county boroughs and urban and rural district councils. The London County Council will become the local planning authority for the City of London (see s. 114 (1), post), and county councils the local planning authorities for all places within the county except county boroughs.

The Minister is empowered, however, to form “ united districts ” and appoint a joint board as the local planning authority for such a district. References to local planning authorities in the Act include references to a joint planning board where established (sub-ss. (2) and (4), ante).

The transfer of property and officers to local planning authorities under this Act is dealt with in s. 101, post.

Note that this section like the remainder of the Act except those provisions mentioned in the proviso to s. 120 (2), does not come into force until the appointed day, namely, July 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 213).

If it appears to the Minister.—These words are inserted for the purpose of making the Minister the sole judge (subject to Parliament) of the question whether or not it is expedient that a joint board should be established.

Certain other expressions such as “ in the opinion of the Minister,” “ if the Minister is satisfied ” and “ if it is clear to the satisfaction of the Minister,” have a similar effect ; see Robinson v. Sunderland Corpn., [1899] 1 Q. B. 751, per CHANNELL, J., at pp. 756, 757 ; R. v. Comptroller General of Patents, Ex parte Bayer Products, Ltd., [1941] 2 K. B. 306 ; [1941] 2 All E. R. 677, per SCOTT, L.J., at p. 681 ; Liversidge v. Anderson, [1942] A. C. 206 ; [1941] 3 All E. R. 338, per Lord ATKIN, at pp. 353, 354 ; Point of Ayr Collieries, Ltd. v. Lloyd-George, [1943] 2 All E. R. 546, and Robinson v. Minister of Town & Country Planning, [1947] K. B. 702 ; [1947] 1 All E. R. 851, C. A., post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Order.—The power to make an order includes power to amend or revoke that order by a subsequent order (s. 111 (4), post).

United district.—A united district may comprise the areas or parts of the areas of two or more such councils as are mentioned in sub-s. (1), ante.

Local enquiry.—See s. 104, post. The inquiry would be held on behalf of the Minister with reference to an order which he himself proposed to make. As to inquiries of this kind and local inquiries generally, see s. 104, post, and notes thereto.

An objection to the establishment of a joint planning board which might carry weight with the Minister would be that there is no community of interest between the areas which it is proposed to form into a united district and therefore that there is no advantage in seeking to plan the area as a whole.

The order shall be laid before Parliament.—The procedure of the two Houses when orders or regulations are "laid" is described in the Report of the Committee on Ministers' Powers, 1932 (Cmd. 4060), at pp. 41-44. This provision affords an opportunity to an aggrieved county council or county borough council to secure a debate in Parliament.

Planning committee and joint advisory committee.—The planning committee of a local planning authority must be distinguished from a joint advisory committee, which is a committee of two or more local planning authorities (Sched. I, Part II, post).

Joint body.—A joint body might be established under sub-s. (6) of this section where a local authority proposed to acquire land in another local authority's area for the purpose of "re-locating" a part of their population which they are unable to accommodate in their own area. This sub-section would enable the Minister to make an order under which the land required by the "exporting" authority could be acquired jointly or held jointly with the authority in whose area the population was being "re-located."

The Minister is not obliged to hold a local inquiry before making an order under this subsection; he is, however, obliged to consult the authorities concerned.

Definitions.—For definitions of "functions," "local authority" and "land," see s. 119 (1), post.

PART II

DEVELOPMENT PLANS

5. Surveys of planning areas and preparation of development plans.—

(1) As soon as may be after the appointed day, every local planning authority shall carry out a survey of their area, and shall, not later than three years after the appointed day, or within such extended period as the Minister may in any particular case allow, submit to the Minister a report of the survey together with a plan (hereinafter called a "development plan") indicating the manner in which they propose that land in that area should be used (whether by the carrying out thereon of development or otherwise) and the stages by which any such development should be carried out. [2242]

(2) Subject to the provisions of any regulations made under this Act for regulating the form and content of development plans, any such plan shall include such maps and such descriptive matter as may be necessary to illustrate the proposals aforesaid with such degree of particularity as may be appropriate to different parts of the area; and any such plan may in particular—

- (a) define the sites of proposed roads, public and other buildings and works, airfields, parks, pleasure grounds, nature reserves and other open spaces, or allocate areas of land for use for agricultural, residential, industrial or other purposes of any class specified in the plan;
- (b) designate, as land subject to compulsory acquisition by any Minister, local authority or statutory undertakers any land allocated by the plan for the purposes of any of their functions (including any land which that Minister or authority or those undertakers are or could be authorised to acquire compulsorily under any enactment other than this Act);
- (c) designate as land subject to compulsory acquisition by the appropriate local authority—

- (i) any land comprised in an area defined by the plan as an area of comprehensive development (including any land therein which is allocated by the plan for any such purpose as is mentioned in paragraph (b) of this subsection), or any land contiguous or adjacent to any such area;

(ii) any other land which, in the opinion of the local planning authority, ought to be subject to compulsory acquisition for the purpose of securing its use in the manner proposed by the plan. [2243]

(3) For the purposes of this section, a development plan may define as an area of comprehensive development any area which in the opinion of the local planning authority should be developed or re-developed as a whole, for any one or more of the following purposes, that is to say for the purpose of dealing satisfactorily with extensive war damage or conditions of bad layout or obsolete development, or for the purpose of providing for the relocation of population or industry or the replacement of open space in the course of the development or redevelopment of any other area, or for any other purpose specified in the plan; and land may be included in any area so defined, and designated as subject to compulsory purchase in accordance with the provisions of subsection (2) of this section, whether or not provision is made by the plan for the development or redevelopment of that particular land. [2244]

(4) The Minister may approve any development plan submitted to him under this section either without modification or subject to such modifications as he considers expedient:

Provided that—

- (a) the Minister shall not approve a development plan which designates any land as subject to compulsory acquisition as aforesaid if it appears to him that the acquisition is not likely to take place within ten years from the date on which the plan is approved, or, in the case of land being agricultural land within the meaning of the Rating and Valuation (Apportionment) Act, 1928, within seven years from that date;
- (b) the Minister shall not, except with the consent of all persons interested, approve a development plan subject to a modification designating as subject to compulsory acquisition any land not so designated in the plan as submitted to him;
- (c) where a development plan as submitted to the Minister designates as subject to compulsory acquisition any such land as is mentioned in paragraph 9 of the First Schedule to the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (which relates to land of local authorities and statutory undertakers and inalienable land of the National Trust) then, if objection to the proposed designation is duly made by the local authority or statutory undertakers or the National Trust, as the case may be, and is not withdrawn, the land shall not be so designated except in pursuance of an order made by the Minister (or, in the case of land being operational land of statutory undertakers, by the Minister and the appropriate Minister) and any such order shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure. [2245]

(5) At any time before a development plan with respect to the whole of the area of a local planning authority has been approved under this section, that authority may, with the consent of the Minister, and shall if so required by directions of the Minister, prepare and submit to him a development plan relating to any part of that area, and the foregoing provisions of this section shall apply in relation to any such plan as they apply in relation to a plan relating to the whole of that area. [2246]

Appointed day.—Means such day as the Minister may by order appoint (s. 119 (1), post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (see S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Survey.—See the extract from the Minister's speech on the Second Reading of the Bill in the note "Development plan," post.

The Ministry of Town and Country Planning will probably issue a memorandum dealing with the matters to be included in the survey and dealt with in the report.

Note that, by s. 10, post, local planning authorities, before preparing a plan relating to land comprised in a county district, must consult with the council of that district.

Any local authority and any statutory undertakers may contribute towards any expenses incurred by a local planning authority in connection with the carrying out of the survey or in the preparation of a development plan (s. 98, post).

For powers of entry, see s. 103, post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Development plan.—The following is an extract from the Minister's speech on the Second Reading of the Bill:

"How will the local planning authority set about preparing the plan? The first step is the survey. This will cover the physical features of the area, water supply, soil fertility, minerals, and so forth; the growth of population, the industries that are expanding and those that are declining; housing, open spaces, public buildings; the development projects of the transport authorities, of local industrialists, of statutory undertakers, and of Government Departments. I attach the greatest possible importance to this survey, which will present a reliable and detailed analysis of the community from every aspect, and an estimate of its future growth and needs. Without this survey no plan can be of any real value. It will need the co-operative effort of economists, geographers, sociologists and other professions to secure that all the facts about the area are known, including the characteristics and wishes of the people. Here there is room for considerable scientific research and the fullest possible collaboration with the universities. A new type of planner will have to be trained to carry out this broader conception of planning, and I am confident that the universities will recognise the importance and urgency of the matter, and fully play their part both in research and in training.

"On the basis of all this information, and after full consultation with all concerned with the county districts, public authorities, and regional representatives of Government Departments, the local planning authority will prepare their provisional plan. The greater part of this plan will be simply framework. It will show the principal communications and the broad allocation of land among the main uses, such as agriculture, new towns to be established, existing communities to be enlarged, special areas to be preserved because of their scenic beauty, and so on. Over part of the area, the plan is likely to go into much more detail. Where large numbers of new houses are to be built soon—there will be a good many of them—large-scale maps will show two or three neighbourhood units, each with its shopping centre, elementary school and open spaces. My regional officers will be available to help and advise at all stages of the preparation of the plan, and I hope they will be freely called upon.

"Next, the provisional plan will be exhibited and submitted to public opinion by such means as maps and pamphlets, travelling exhibitions, talks by planning technicians, and films and models of the more important parts of the area. . . . It is not merely landowners in the area who are affected, or even business interests. Too often in the past the objections of a noisy minority have been allowed to drown the voices of other people vitally affected. The housewife, who will use the new shops and whose children will go to the new school, the trade union branch whose members will work on the new factory estate, the farmer, the motorist, the amenity society—these too must have their say, and when they have had it, the provisional plan may need a good deal of alteration, but it will be all the better for that since it will reflect actual needs democratically expressed. In the past, plans have been too much the plans of officials and not the plans of individuals, but I hope we are going to stop that" (432 H. of C. Official Report 962-963).

Land.—This means any corporeal hereditament including a building (s. 119 (1), post). "Building" includes any structure or erection, and any part of a building as so defined, but does not include plant or machinery comprised in a building (s. 119 (1), post).

Development.—See ss. 12 (2) and 119 (1), post. Note that "development" includes the making of any material change in the use of any building or other land.

The stages by which any such development should be carried out.—This appears to be a point on which local planning authorities will require guidance from the Ministry.

Regulations.—See ss. 10 (2) and 111, post.

Designate as land subject to compulsory acquisition.—Note the special provisions relating to designation contained in s. 9, post. It will be open to persons having an interest in any land designated by the local planning authority in the plan to lodge an objection against the designation. An owner or occupier lodging such an objection will probably be afforded an opportunity of being heard, in support of his objection, by a person appointed by the Minister for that purpose (see s. 10, post). Such hearings in the past have usually taken the form of local inquiries.

In Standing Committee of the House of Commons the Minister gave an indication of the position as to development by an owner; see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.D., March 4, 1947, col. 214.

The provisions relating to the compulsory acquisition of land are contained in Part IV of the Act, post.

Any Minister.—"Minister" includes the Treasury, the Admiralty, the Board of Trade and any other government department (s. 119 (1), post).

Area of comprehensive development.—This is a new term. Under the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 420) there were areas of extensive war damage and areas of bad lay-out and obsolete development. These areas are now included in the new term together with land required for the purpose of providing for the re-location of population or industry or the replacement of open space or for any other purpose specified in the plan (sub-s. (3), ante).

Contiguous or adjacent.—In a New Zealand case it was said that "the word 'contiguous' . . . is not a word of precise meaning. . . . The definition of the word 'contiguous' in standard dictionaries and the mode in which that word has been used by the most eminent judges as well as common usage all warrant its being construed in the sense of near to but not actually touching" (Waihi Grand Junction Gold Mining Co., Ltd. v. Dudson (1909), 29 N. Z.

L. R. 499, per EDWARDS, J., at p. 505). See also Haynes v. King, [1893] 3 Ch. 439, per NORTH, J., at p. 448 (strict meaning "touching"); Southwark Revenue Officer v. Hoe (R.) & Co., Ltd. (1930), 143 L. T. 544, per AVORY, J., at p. 545 (precise significance "touching").

"Adjacent" is not a word to which a precise and uniform meaning is attached by ordinary usage. It is not confined to places adjoining, and it includes a place close to or near. What degree of proximity would justify the application of the word is entirely a question of circumstances" (Wellington Corp'n. v. Lower Hutt Corp'n., [1904] A. C. 773, at p. 775, p.c.).

Use.—Unless the context otherwise requires, "use" in relation to land does not include the use of land by the carrying out of any building or other operations thereon (s. 119 (1), post). But here the context otherwise requires; see sub-s. (1), ante.

Modification.—It would seem that the power to modify would include a power to cure any legal defect in the plan (Minister of Health v. R., Ex parte Yaffé, [1931] A. C. 494; also Re Bowman, South Shields (Thames Street) Clearance Order, 1931, [1932] 2 K. B. 621). This power to modify should be borne in mind in drafting objections or representations: it may be advisable to state clearly the nature of the modifications which it is desired that the Minister should make.

If it appears to him.—See note to s. 4, ante.

Agricultural land within the meaning of the Rating and Valuation (Apportionment) Act, 1928.—See s. 2 (2) of that Act (14 Halsbury's Statutes 714).

Allotment garden.—This term is defined by the Allotments Act, 1922, s. 22 (1) (1 Halsbury's Statutes 316).

Special parliamentary procedure.—This means the procedure set out in the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 439).

Sub-s. (5).—This subsection may prove of special value to large county boroughs and county areas containing "areas of comprehensive development." A development plan could be submitted in respect of an area of comprehensive development only, in order that re-development could proceed without further undue delay while a plan for the rest of the local planning authority's district was being prepared.

Definitions.—As to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante and 119 (1), post. As to "statutory undertakers," see s. 119 (1), (2), post. For definitions of "agricultural," "local authority," "functions," "enactment," "area of extensive war damage," "area of bad layout or obsolete development," "relocation of population or industry," "replacement of open space," "National Trust," "Operational land" and "appropriate Minister," see s. 119 (1), post. Other definitions are referred to supra.

6. Amendment of development plans.—(1) At least once in every five years after the date on which a development plan for any area is approved by the Minister, the local planning authority shall carry out a fresh survey of that area, and submit to the Minister a report of the survey, together with proposals for any alterations or additions to the plan which appear to them to be required having regard thereto. [2247]

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions of the foregoing subsection, any local planning authority may at any time, and shall if so required by directions of the Minister, submit to the Minister proposals for such alterations or additions to the development plan relating to their area or any part thereof as appear to them to be expedient, or as may be required by those directions, as the case may be. [2248]

(3) Where proposals for alterations or additions to a development plan are submitted to the Minister under this section, the Minister may amend that plan to such extent as he considers expedient having regard to those proposals and to any other material considerations, and any such amendment may in particular provide for securing that any land previously designated by the plan as subject to compulsory acquisition shall cease to be so designated, or that any land not previously so designated shall be so designated:

Provided that the proviso to subsection (4) of the last foregoing section shall apply in relation to the amendment of a development plan by the Minister as it applies in relation to the approval of such a plan by him, and for that purpose shall have effect—

(a) as if for the reference in paragraph (a) to the date on which the plan is approved there were substituted a reference to the date on which the amendment is effected; and

(b) as if for the references in paragraphs (b) and (c) to the plan as submitted to the Minister there were substituted references to the proposals submitted to him under this section. [2249]

(4) Where, under subsection (5) of the last foregoing section, a development plan is approved with respect to a part of the area of a local planning authority, the periods of five years mentioned in subsection (1) of this section shall run from the date on which development plans in respect of the whole of the area of the local planning authority have been approved by the Minister but without prejudice to the provisions of subsection (2) of this section. [2250]

Effect of section.—The provisions of this section do not imply that a development plan shall only plan the area for a period of about five years ahead. Development plans prepared now will in many cases determine the character and lay-out of towns for perhaps a century or even longer. But amendments, some minor and some major, will prove to be necessary from time to time. This section, while providing that proposals for alterations or additions to a plan may be submitted at any time, ensures that a thorough review of the area and plan shall take place at least once in every five years.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Fresh survey.—If, after the first survey, administrative arrangements are made to keep up to date the data obtained, the making of this fresh survey will be little more than a nominal task.

Shall if so required.—Note the powers conferred on the Minister by the next section. An owner of land or a body representing particular interests (e.g. of local traders) desiring to secure an amendment to the plan, could approach the local planning authority in the first instance with a request that the authority submit a proposal to the Minister. If the local planning authority refused so to do, the case for amendment could then be submitted directly to the Minister, who, if of opinion that a strong prima facie case for amendment had been made out, would be able to direct the local planning authority to submit a proposal to him.

Proposals for alterations or additions.—For procedure, see s. 10, post.

Designated . . . as subject to compulsory acquisition.—See s. 5, ante.

Definitions.—As to “development plan,” ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post. As to “local planning authority,” see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post.

7. Additional powers of Minister with respect to development plans.—

(1) Where, by virtue of any of the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act, or of any directions of the Minister thereunder, any development plan, report or proposals for alterations or additions to a development plan are required to be submitted to the Minister, then—

- (a) if within the period prescribed in that behalf by those provisions or directions no such plan, report or proposals, or no such plan or proposals satisfactory to the Minister, have been so submitted; or
- (b) if at any time the Minister is satisfied, after holding a local inquiry, that the local planning authority are not taking the steps necessary to enable them to submit such a plan, report or proposals within that period, the Minister may, after carrying out any survey which appears to him to be expedient for the purpose, make such development plan, or as the case may be, amend the development plan to such extent, as he considers expedient. [2251]

(2) Where, under the foregoing provisions of this section, the Minister has power to make or amend a development plan, he may, if he thinks fit, authorise the local planning authority for any neighbouring area, or any other local planning authority which appears to the Minister to have an interest in the proper planning of the area concerned, to submit such a plan to him for his approval, or, as the case may be, to submit to him proposals for the amendment of the plan, and to carry out any survey of the land which appears to him to be expedient for the purpose, and may approve any plan so submitted either without modification or subject to such modifications as he considers expedient, or, as the case may be, may amend the plan to such extent as he considers expedient having regard to the proposals so submitted and to any other material considerations. [2252]

(3) The foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act shall, so far as applicable, apply to the making, approval or amendment of development plans under this section, and to plans so made, approved or amended, as they apply to the approval or amendment of development plans under those provisions, and to plans approved or amended thereunder. [2253]

(4) Any expenses incurred by the Minister under this section in connection with the making or amendment of a plan with respect to the area, or any part of the area, of a local planning authority, shall be paid in the first instance out of moneys provided by Parliament, but so much of those expenses as may be certified by the Minister to have been incurred in the performance of functions of that authority shall on demand be repaid by that authority to the Minister. [2254]

(5) Where, under this section, a plan, or proposals for the amendment of a plan, are authorised to be submitted to the Minister by the local planning authority for any area other than the area in which the land is situated, any expenses reasonably incurred in that behalf by the said authority, as certified by the Minister, shall be repaid to that authority by the local planning authority for the area in which the land is situated. [2255]

Effect of section.—Under this section if the local planning authority fail to make or amend a plan the Minister can do it himself or authorise another local planning authority to do it. It is seldom that resort has to be made to powers of the kind conferred by this section: the fact that the powers exist usually provides a sufficient stimulus to laggard authorities.

As to default powers of the Minister, see also s. 100, post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Report.—See s. 5 (1), ante.

Is satisfied.—See note to s. 4, ante.

Local inquiry.—See s. 104, post, and notes thereto.

If he thinks fit.—This imports the exercise of a discretion (Roberts v. Hopwood, [1925] A. C. 578), but only in very exceptional circumstances would the Courts be likely to interfere with the exercise of a discretion of this nature.

Local planning authority.—For definition, see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post. Note that it is only a local planning authority, not any local authority, who may be so authorised.

Definitions.—As to “development plan,” see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “land” and “functions,” see s. 119 (1), post.

8. Incorporation in development plans of orders relating to trunk roads and new towns.—(1) Where an order is made by the Minister of Transport in accordance with the Second Schedule to the Trunk Roads Act, 1946, directing that any road proposed to be constructed by him shall become a trunk road, or authorising him to construct or improve any road under section four of that Act, any development plan approved or made under this Act which relates to land on which a road is to be constructed or improved in accordance with that order shall have effect as if the provisions of that order were included in the plan. [2256]

(2) Where an order is made by the Minister under section one of the New Towns Act, 1946, designating any area as the site of a new town under that Act, any development plan approved or made under this Act which relates to land in that area shall have effect as if the provisions of that order were included in the plan. [2257]

(3) Nothing in this section shall be construed as prohibiting the inclusion in a development plan, as approved or made by the Minister or as for the time being amended, of provisions defining the line of roads proposed to be constructed by the Minister of Transport in accordance with any such order as is mentioned in subsection (1) of this section, or areas designated as the sites of new towns by any such order as is mentioned in subsection (2) of this section, or of provisions defining land as likely to be made the subject of any such order as aforesaid. [2258]

(4) Provision may be made by regulations under this Act for enabling any proceedings preliminary to the making of any such order as is mentioned in subsection (1) or subsection (2) of this section to be taken concurrently with proceedings required under this Act to be taken in connection with the approval or making of a development plan relating to land to which any such order applies or in connection with any amendment of a development plan rendered necessary or desirable in consequence of any such order. [2259]

General note.—Among other things the development plan (see s. 5, ante) will be a land utilisation plan, and the fundamental idea is that it should show everything known or intended with regard to the land in the area which it covers. The inclusion of the orders in the plan is one way of giving permanent publicity to the orders: it puts them on permanent record locally. As regards land likely to be included in an order of the kind mentioned in this section, this may be included under the general powers conferred by s. 5, ante.

In dealing with an application for permission to develop land, the local planning authority is to have regard to the provisions of the development plan so far as material thereto and to any other material considerations (s. 14 (1), post).

Trunk Roads Act, 1946, s. 4.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 154. For partial repeal, see s. 113 and Sched. IX, Part II, post.

Approved or made.—A development plan will normally be made by the local planning authority and approved by the Minister but in certain circumstances (if the local planning authority are in default) the Minister may make the plan himself (s. 7 (1), ante).

Land.—This term is widely defined in s. 119 (1), post.

Regulations.—See s. 111, post.

Concurrently.—The main point about this is that one local inquiry could be made to serve for all purposes with a consequent saving of time and expense. The idea is not new (cf. Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, Sched. II, Part I, para. 6; 37 Halsbury's Statutes 485).

Orders made under this Act.—Note the provisions of s. 111, post.

9. Modification of development plans in relation to land designated as subject to compulsory acquisition.—(1) Where any land is designated by a development plan as subject to compulsory acquisition, then if at the expiration of twelve years from the date on which the plan, or the amendment of the plan, by virtue of which the land was first so designated came into operation, any of that land has not been acquired by a Minister, local authority or statutory undertakers who could be authorised to acquire it compulsorily under the provisions of this Act, any owner of the land may, within the time and in the manner prescribed by regulations under this Act, serve on the local planning authority a notice requiring his interest in the land to be so acquired. [2260]

(2) Where any such notice is served as aforesaid, then unless within six months after the service of the notice either—

- (a) notice to treat in respect of the interest to which the notice relates has been served by any such Minister, authority or undertakers as aforesaid; or
- (b) an offer has been made to the owner of the said interest by any such Minister, local authority or undertakers to acquire it on terms that the price payable therefor shall be equal to (and shall be determined, in default of agreement, in like manner as) the compensation which would be payable in respect of that interest if it were acquired compulsorily, the development plan shall have effect, after the expiration of the said six months, as if the land were not designated as subject to compulsory acquisition. [2261]

(3) The power conferred by subsection (2) of section five of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, to withdraw a notice to treat shall not be exercisable in the case of a notice to treat which is served as mentioned in paragraph (a) of the last foregoing subsection. [2262]

(4) Where any land is designated by a development plan as subject to compulsory acquisition by the appropriate local authority (not being land comprised in an area defined by the plan as an area of comprehensive development) then if permission is granted under Part III of this Act for any development of the land so designated, or any part thereof, and that development is carried out in accordance with the permission so granted, the development plan shall have effect as if the land to which the permission relates were not designated as subject to compulsory acquisition:

Provided that where any such permission as aforesaid is granted for a limited period only, the provisions of this subsection shall cease to have effect in relation to the land at the expiration of that period. [2263]

(5) In relation to land being agricultural land within the meaning of the Rating and Valuation (Apportionment) Act, 1928, subsection (1) of this section shall have effect as if for the words "twelve years" there were substituted the words "eight years." [2264]

Effect of section.—This section enables an owner of land which has been designated in a development plan, but which has not been acquired at the expiration of twelve years (in the case of agricultural land, eight years) from the date on which it was first designated, to require the purchase of his interest or the removal of the designation.

Designated.—See s. 5, ante.

Regulations.—As to regulations and orders generally, see s. 111, post.

Serve.—As to service of notices, see s. 105, post.

Months.—This means calendar months (Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 3; 18 Halsbury's Statutes 993).

Notice to treat.—See s. 18 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1120), incorporated in the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 52).

Compensation.—See Part V, title LAND, ACQUISITION, SALE, ETC. OF, ante.

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, s. 5 (2).—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1179.

Area of comprehensive development.—See s. 5 (2) (c), ante. It is not contemplated that a local planning authority will grant permission for development to be carried out on land designated in the plan as an area of comprehensive development. If, however, such permission were granted the land would still remain designated.

Rating and Valuation (Apportionment) Act, 1928.—14 Halsbury's Statutes 713.

Permission granted for a limited period only.—As to the meaning of this phrase, see s. 14 (2), post.

Definitions.—As to "development plan," see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land," "a Minister," "local authority," "statutory undertakers" and "owner," see s. 119 (1), post.

10. Supplementary provisions as to development plans.—(1) A local planning authority shall, before preparing a development plan relating to any land comprised in any county district, or proposals for alterations or additions to any such plan, consult with the council of that district and shall, before submitting any such plan or proposals to the Minister, give to that council an opportunity to make representations with respect thereto and consider any representations so made. [2265]

(2) Provision may be made by regulations under this Act with respect to the form and content of development plans, and with respect to the procedure to be followed in connection with the preparation, submission, approval, making and amendment of such plans, and such regulations shall in particular make provision for securing—

- (a) that notice shall be given by advertisement in the London Gazette and in at least one newspaper circulating in the area concerned of the submission to the Minister of any such plan or of proposals for the amendment of any such plan, and of any proposal by the Minister to make or amend such a plan and of the place or places where copies of the plan or proposals as so submitted, or of any such proposal of the Minister, may be inspected.
- (b) that objections and representations duly made in accordance with the regulations shall be considered, and that such local inquiries or other hearings as may be prescribed by the regulations shall be held, before such a plan is approved, made or amended by the Minister; and
- (c) that copies of any such plan as approved or made by the Minister, including any amendments thereof, shall be available for inspection by the public, and that copies thereof (including reproductions on such scale as may be appropriate of any relevant maps) shall be available on sale to the public at a reasonable cost. [2266]

(3) If as the result of any objections or representations considered, or local inquiry or other hearing held, in connection with a development plan or proposals for amendment of such a plan submitted to or prepared by the Minister under this Part of this Act, the Minister is of opinion that the local planning authority or any other authority or person ought to be consulted before he decides whether to approve or make the plan either with or without modifications, or to amend the plan, as the case may be, he shall consult that authority or person, but shall not be under any obligation to consult any other authority or person, or to afford any opportunity for further objections or representations or to cause any further local inquiry or other hearing to be held. [2267]

(4) Subject to the foregoing provisions of this section, the Minister may give directions to any local planning authority, or to local planning authorities generally—

- (a) for formulating the procedure for the carrying out of their functions under the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act ;
- (b) for requiring them to furnish to him such information as he may require for the purpose of the exercise of any of his functions under those provisions. [2268]

(5) In the application of the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945, to any order made in pursuance of paragraph (c) of the proviso to sub-section (4) of section five of this Act, any requirements imposed by regulations under this section with respect to the publication of notices and the consideration of objections in relation to the development plan shall be deemed for the purposes of section two of that Act to be requirements with respect to proceedings preliminary to the making of the order. [2269]

Effect of section.—Sub-s. (1) ensures that councils of county districts will be consulted regarding the planning of their districts and secures for them an opportunity of making representations to the local planning authority before the development plan or proposals for alterations or additions to any such plan are submitted to the Minister.

Regulations made for the purposes of sub-s. (2) will deal with the form and content of development plans and the procedure to be followed with respect to the preparation, etc. of such plans.

But for the provisions contained in sub-s. (3), it would have been possible for the Courts to hold that, while the Minister could obtain information in any way he thought best, he must give those who are parties to the controversy a fair opportunity of correcting or contradicting any relevant statement prejudicial to their view (see Board of Education v. Rice, [1911] A. C. 179, per Lord LOREBURN, at p. 182). If this rule could have been applied to the functions of the Minister under this section, the Minister might have found himself obliged, after consulting the local planning authority or some association or person, to make a statement with regard to such consultations and afford an opportunity for further objections or representations and in some cases cause a further local inquiry or other hearing to be held.

County district.—I.e. non-county boroughs, urban districts and rural districts. Many county district councils have already incurred substantial expense in preparing, either by themselves or as a constituent authority of a joint committee, draft planning schemes for their districts. Doubtless they will be pleased to make the results of their labours available to their successors. There may, however, be some features of their schemes which they would like to see preserved in the development plan; if so, they should not fail to take up the matter with the local planning authority at an early date.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Regulations.—See also s. 111, post.

Local inquiries.—See s. 104, post. As to the service of notices, see s. 105, post.

Or other hearing.—The regulations may provide that the Minister shall cause hearings to be held which are not local inquiries within the meaning of s. 104, post. (Cf. Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, Sched. I, Part I, para. 5 ; 37 Halsbury's Statutes 485.)

Modifications.—It seems that the power to modify includes a power to cure any legal defect in the plan (Minister of Health v. R., Ex parte Yaffé, [1931] A. C. 494).

He shall consult.—This does not, of course, mean that the Minister himself must do the consulting. See, generally, the observations of Lord GREENE, M.R., in Carltona, Ltd. v. Commissioners of Works, [1943] 2 All E. R. 560.

See also Local Government Board v. Arlidge, [1915] A. C. 120, and Robinson v. Minister of Town and Country Planning, [1947] 1 All E. R. 851, post.

Definitions.—As to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; as to "development plan," see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land" and "function," see s. 119 (1), post.

11. Validity and date of operation of development plans.—(1) Immediately after a development plan has been approved or made or amended by the Minister under this Part of this Act, the local planning authority shall publish in such manner as may be prescribed by regulations under this Act a notice stating that the plan has been approved, made, or amended, as the case may be, and naming a place where a copy of the plan or of the plan, as amended, may be seen at all reasonable hours, and shall serve a like notice on any person by whom an objection or representation was duly made to the proposed plan or amendment, and who has sent to the authority a request in writing to serve him with the notice required by this subsection, specifying an address for service, and on such other persons, if any, as may be required by general or special directions given by the Minister. [2270]

(2) If any person aggrieved by the plan or by the amendment, as the case may be, desires to question the validity thereof or of any provision contained therein on the ground that it is not within the powers of this Act, or on the ground that any requirement of this Act or any regulation made thereunder has not been complied with in relation to the approval or making of the plan, or, as the case may be, in relation to the making of the amendment, he may, within six weeks from the date on which the notice required by the last foregoing subsection is first published, make an application to the High Court, and on any such application the Court—

- (a) may by interim order suspend the operation of the plan or amendment, as the case may be, or of any provision contained therein either generally or in so far as it affects any property of the applicant, until the final determination of the proceedings; and
- (b) if satisfied that the plan or amendment, or any provision contained therein, is not within the powers of this Act, or that the interests of the applicant have been substantially prejudiced by a failure to comply with any such requirement as aforesaid, may quash the plan or amendment or any provision contained therein either generally or in so far as it affects any property of the applicant. [2271]

(3) Subject to the provisions of the last foregoing subsection, a development plan or an amendment of a development plan shall not, either before or after it has been approved or made, be questioned in any legal proceedings whatsoever, and shall become operative on the date on which the notice required by this section is first published. [2272]

(4) Where, under paragraph (c) of the proviso to subsection (4) of section five of this Act, any land to which a development plan relates is designated as subject to compulsory acquisition in pursuance of an order to which the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945, applies, then—

- (a) if that order is confirmed by Act of Parliament under section six of that Act, subsections (2) and (3) of this section shall not apply to the plan so far as it so designates that land; and
- (b) in any other case, this section shall have effect in relation to the plan, so far as it so designates that land, as if in subsection (2) for the reference to the date on which the notice required by subsection (1) is first published there were substituted a reference to the date on which the order becomes operative under the said section six, and as if in subsection (3) the words from “and shall become operative” to the end of the subsection were omitted. [2273]

Effect of section.—The short effect of this section is to substitute the remedy provided therein for the remedies which would otherwise have existed at common law.

In the absence of special statutory provision such as that contained in this section, a development plan could have been challenged in the Courts by a writ claiming a declaration that it was ultra vires and an injunction to restrain the planning authority from having regard to it. It is also probable that the act of making a development plan would have been held sufficiently judicial to support an application for an order of certiorari or prohibition where it was alleged that the order had been made either without or in excess of jurisdiction (see R. v. Electricity Commissioners, Ex parte London Electricity Joint Committee Co. (1920), Ltd., [1924] 1 K. B. 171).

The plan can only be challenged on one or both of the following grounds:—

- (a) that it is not within the powers of the Act;
- (b) that any requirement of the Act or any regulation made thereunder has not been complied with in relation to the approval or making of the plan. (If this ground is relied on, it will also be necessary to satisfy the Court that the interests of the applicant have been substantially prejudiced by the non-compliance.)

The application should be made in accordance with the Rules of the Supreme Court; the notice of motion and the affidavits in support thereof should state the matters of complaint and objection with precision and particularity (Franklin v. Minister of Town and Country Planning, [1947] 1 All E. R. 612).

Made.—This word relates to a case where the Minister himself makes the plan (see s. 7 (1), ante).

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Regulations.—See s. 111, post.

Serve a like notice.—As to service of notices, see s. 105, post.

PART III

CONTROL OF DEVELOPMENT, ETC.

Permission to develop land

12. Obligation to obtain permission for development.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section and to the following provisions of this Act, permission shall be required under this Part of this Act in respect of any development of land which is carried out after the appointed day. [2274]

(2) In this Act, except where the context otherwise requires, the expression "development" means the carrying out of building, engineering, mining or other operations in, on, over or under land, or the making of any material change in the use of any buildings or other land :

Provided that the following operations or uses of land shall not be deemed for the purposes of this Act to involve development of the land, that is to say :—

- (a) the carrying out of works for the maintenance, improvement or other alteration of any building, being works which affect only the interior of the building or which do not materially affect the external appearance of the building ;
- (b) the carrying out by a local highway authority of any works required for the maintenance or improvement of a road, being works carried out on land within the boundaries of the road ;
- (c) the carrying out by any local authority or statutory undertakers of any works for the purpose of inspecting, repairing or renewing any sewers, mains, pipes, cables or other apparatus, including the breaking open of any street or other land for that purpose ;
- (d) the use of any buildings or other land within the curtilage of a dwelling-house for any purpose incidental to the enjoyment of the dwelling-house as such ;
- (e) the use of any land for the purposes of agriculture or forestry (including afforestation), and the use for any of those purposes of any building occupied together with land so used ;
- (f) in the case of buildings or other land which are used for a purpose of any class specified in an order made by the Minister under this section, the use thereof for any other purpose of the same class.

(3) For the avoidance of doubt it is hereby declared that for the purposes of this section—

- (a) the use as two or more separate dwellinghouses of any building previously used as a single dwellinghouse involves a material change in the use of the building and of each part thereof which is so used ;
- (b) the deposit of refuse or waste materials on land involves a material change in the use thereof, notwithstanding that the land is comprised in a site already used for that purpose, if the superficial area or the height of the deposit is thereby extended :

Provided that nothing in paragraph (b) of this subsection shall be deemed to require permission in respect of the deposit of refuse or waste materials on a site already used for that purpose if the height of the deposit does not exceed the level of the land adjoining such site, and the superficial area of the deposit is not thereby extended. [2276]

(4) Without prejudice to the provisions of any regulations made under the provisions of this Act relating to the control of advertisements, the use for the display of advertisements of any external part of a building which is not normally used for that purpose shall be treated for the purposes of this section as involving a material change in the use of that part of the building. [2277]

(5) Notwithstanding anything in this section, permission shall not be required under this Part of this Act—

- (a) in the case of land which, on the appointed day, is being used temporarily for a purpose other than the purpose for which it is normally used, in respect of the resumption of the use of the land for the last-mentioned purpose;
- (b) in the case of land which, on the appointed day, is normally used for one purpose and is also used on occasions, whether at regular intervals or not, for any other purpose, in respect of the use of the land for that other purpose on similar occasions after the appointed day;
- (c) in the case of land which on the appointed day is unoccupied, in respect of the use of the land for the purpose for which it was last used:

Provided that—

- (i) in determining for the purposes of paragraph (a) of this subsection the purposes for which land was normally used and in determining for the purposes of paragraph (c) of this subsection the purposes for which land was last used no account shall be taken of any use of the land begun in contravention of previous planning control within the meaning of section seventy-five of this Act;
- (ii) paragraph (c) of this subsection shall not apply to land which was unoccupied on the seventh day of January nineteen hundred and thirty-seven and has not been occupied since that date. [2278]

Application made before the appointed day but not determined.—See Sched. X, post, relating to transitory provisions.

Permission shall be required.—For the steps which can be taken by a local planning authority where development has been commenced without permission, see s. 23, post.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister may by order appoint (s. 119 (1), post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Or other operations.—The ejusdem generis rule appears to apply. "When general words follow specific words previously enumerated, they must be construed to mean something of the same kind as those which went before" (East London Waterworks Co. v. Mile End Old Town Trustees (1851), 17 Q. B. 512, per COLERIDGE, J.).

In, on, over or under land.—These words relate to all the operations mentioned—building, engineering, mining or other operations. See Great Western Ry. Co. v. Swindon and Cheltenham Ry. Co. (1884), 9 App. Cas. 787, per Lord BRAMWELL.

Material change.—These words provide scope for differences of opinion in particular cases. In deciding whether change of use is a material change, regard must be had to the scope and object of the Act. The test appears to be "Is the change 'material' from a planning standpoint?" In answering this question it seems proper to have regard to the effect of the change on, for example, the amenities of the neighbourhood. One industrial use may be quite unobjectionable; another may be seriously detrimental to the amenities of the neighbourhood.

As to applications to determine whether permission is required, see s. 17, post.

Curtilage.—"A garden, yard, field or piece of void ground, lying near and belonging to the messuage" (Termes de la Ley). Speaking in the House of Lords with reference to this word during the passage of the Bill, the Lord Chancellor said:—

"This is one of those cases in which, broadly speaking, we all know what we mean, but none of use can quite define it. . . . It covers the garden, but not the paddock, but there may be cases of a small paddock where it should be included. Vague though the word is, I cannot think of anything better . . . we must leave it to the judges to provide us with a set of rules as to what is and what is not a curtilage" (149 H. of L. Official Report 556).

Occupied together with land so used.—See Sanders v. Searson, Sanders v. Smith (1880), 45 J. P. 22, per GROVE, J., at p. 23.

Sub-s. (3), para. (a).—The following observations of the Minister with reference to the conversion of a single dwelling-house into two or more separate dwelling-houses will be of interest :—

"Admittedly at the present time with the shortage of houses, local authorities ought to be lenient in the direction of permitting conversion from single family to multi-family dwellings. Of course they ought. On the other hand—and here I speak with some experience, as a former chairman of a town planning committee—a great deal of good can be done by the exercise of this control, in ensuring that the conversion is properly and decently carried out. Very often people come along and make applications for conversion which is entirely unsatisfactory, which would provide bad living accommodation for the families whom they are proposing to house. The exercise of control enables this proposed bad development to be converted into good development" (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.D., March 6, 1947, col. 301).

Such conversions, if permitted, are excluded from the development charge provisions of Part VII of the Act (see Sched. III, Part I, post).

Regulations.—For the general provisions as to regulations, see s. 111, post.

Control of advertisements.—See s. 31, post.

In contravention of previous planning control.—For the meaning of this expression, see s. 75 (9), post.

Definitions.—For definitions of "building operations," "land," "use," "buildings," "local highway authority," "improvement" (in relation to a highway), "local authority," "statutory undertakers," "agriculture" and "advertisement," see s. 119 (1), post.

13. Development orders.—(1) The Minister shall by order provide for the grant of permission for the development of land under this Part of this Act, and such permission may be granted—

- (a) in the case of any development specified in any such order, or in the case of development of any class so specified, by that order itself ;
- (b) in any other case, by the local planning authority (or, in the cases hereinafter provided, by the Minister) on an application in that behalf made to the local planning authority in accordance with the provisions of the order. [2279]

(2) An order under subsection (1) of this section (hereinafter called a "development order") may be made either as a general order applicable (subject to such exceptions as may be specified therein) to all land, or as a special order applicable only to such land as may be so specified, and the permission granted by any such order may be granted either unconditionally or subject to such conditions or limitations as may be so specified. [2280]

(3) Without prejudice to the generality of the last foregoing subsection, a development order which grants permission for any development may—

- (a) where permission is thereby granted for the erection, extension or alteration of any buildings, require the approval of the local planning authority to be obtained with respect to the design or external appearance thereof ;
- (b) where permission is thereby granted for development of any specified class, enable the Minister or the local planning authority to direct that that permission shall not apply either in relation to development in any particular area or in relation to any particular development. [2281]

(4) For the purpose of enabling development to be carried out in accordance with permission granted under this Part of this Act, or otherwise for the purpose of promoting proper development in accordance with the development plan, a development order may direct that any enactment passed before the passing of this Act, or any regulations, orders or byelaws made (whether before or after the passing of this Act) under any such enactment, shall not apply to any development specified in the order, or shall apply thereto subject to such modifications as may be so specified. [2282]

(5) Every development order shall be laid before Parliament immediately after it is made, and if either House within the period of forty days after the order is so laid before it resolves that the order be annulled, the order shall thereupon cease to have effect, but without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done thereunder or to the making of a new order :

Provided that, without prejudice to the foregoing provision, where any such order makes provision for excluding or modifying any enactment contained in a public general Act (other than any of the excepted enactments specified in the Second Schedule to this Act) the order shall be of no effect until that provision is approved by resolution of each House of Parliament.

(6) In reckoning for the purpose of the last foregoing subsection any such period of forty days, no account shall be taken of any time during which Parliament is dissolved or prorogued or during which both Houses are adjourned for more than four days. [2284]

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Order.—For the general provisions relating to orders under this Act, see s. 111, post. Note also s. 14 (3), post, as to provisions which may be inserted in a development order.

Permission for the development of land.—The permission for development required by s. 12, ante, and dealt with further in this section is termed "planning permission" (s. 119 (1), post).

Applications for planning permission.—Note that these applications are to be made to the local authority for the area in accordance with the provisions of the order (see s. 34, post, and notes thereto).

Subject to such conditions or limitations as may be so specified.—There is no right of appeal against conditions or limitations imposed by an order, either general or special. Every development order, however, has to be laid before Parliament (sub-s. (5), ante).

Sub-s. (3), para. (b).—It will be necessary to inquire of the local planning authority whether the Minister or the authority themselves have directed that the permission shall not apply. This provision bears a similarity to Article 5 of the Town and Country Planning (General Interim Development) Order, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 699).

Enactment.—For definition, see s. 119 (1), post. Similar provision was made with respect to planning schemes by s. 11 of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932 (25 Halsbury's Statutes 484), and with respect to interim development orders by s. 39 of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 465).

Effect of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946.—This Act came into full operation on January 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 3).

Documents made after its commencement and in exercise of certain statutory powers conferred by Acts passed before its commencement are "statutory instruments" regulated by the Act (Statutory Instruments Act, 1946, s. 1 (2); 39 Halsbury's Statutes 784). The class of documents to which the Act applies is defined in a manner depending on the meaning of "statutory rules" in the Rules Publication Act, 1893 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1017), and was not clear; however, regulations under the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946, s. 8 (1) (39 Halsbury's Statutes 788), now clarify the position as to what documents become regulated by that Act (see S.I. 1948 No. 1). Orders under the present section are statutory instruments if made on or after January 1, 1948.

Note that ss. 4-7 of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946, have no application to documents where the so-called "affirmative resolution procedure" applies, as is the case with orders of the kind referred to in the proviso to sub-s. (5), supra.

Definitions.—As to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land," "erection" and "building," see s. 119 (1), post.

14. Applications to local planning authorities for permission.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this and the next following section, where application is made to the local planning authority for permission to develop land, that authority may grant permission either unconditionally or subject to such conditions as they think fit, or may refuse permission; and in dealing with any such application the local planning authority shall have regard to the provisions of the development plan, so far as material thereto, and to any other material considerations. [2285]

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing subsection, conditions may be imposed on the grant of permission to develop land thereunder—

(a) for regulating the development or use of any land under the control of the applicant (whether or not it is land in respect of which the application was made) or requiring the carrying out of works on any such land, so far as appears to the local planning authority to be expedient for the purposes of or in connection with the development authorised by the permission;

(b) for requiring the removal of any buildings or works authorised by the permission, or the discontinuance of any use of land so authorised, at the expiration of a specified period, and the carrying out of any works required for the re-instatement of land at the expiration of that period;

and any permission granted subject to any such condition as is mentioned in paragraph (b) of this subsection is in this Act referred to as permission granted for a limited period only. [2286]

(3) Provision may be made by a development order for regulating the manner in which applications for permission to develop land are to be dealt with by local planning authorities, and in particular—

- (a) for enabling the Minister (or, in the case of development affecting trunk roads, the Minister of Transport) to give directions restricting the grant of permission by the local planning authority, during such period as may be specified in the directions, in respect of any such development, or in respect of development of any such class, as may be so specified ;
- (b) for authorising the local planning authority, in such cases and subject to such conditions as may be prescribed by the order, or by directions given by the Minister thereunder, to grant permission for development which does not accord with the provisions of the development plan ;
- (c) for requiring the local planning authority, before granting or refusing permission for any development, to consult with such authorities or persons as may be prescribed by the order or by directions given by the Minister thereunder ;
- (d) for requiring the local planning authority to give to any applicant for permission, within such time as may be prescribed by the order, such notice as may be so prescribed as to the manner in which his application has been dealt with ;
- (e) for requiring the local planning authority to furnish to the Minister, and to such other persons as may be prescribed by or under the order, such information as may be so prescribed with respect to applications for permission made to them, including information as to the manner in which any such application has been dealt with. [2287]

(4) Without prejudice to any provisions included in the development order by virtue of the last foregoing subsection for restricting the grant of permission by local planning authorities, an application to the local planning authority for permission to develop land by the erection thereon of an industrial building of any class prescribed by regulations made for the purposes of this subsection by the Board of Trade shall be of no effect unless it is certified by the Board that the development in question can be carried out consistently with the proper distribution of industry, and a copy of the certificate is furnished to the local planning authority together with the application :

Provided that—

- (a) no such certificate as aforesaid shall be required in respect of the erection of any industrial building which will have an aggregate floor space not exceeding five thousand square feet ; and
- (b) the regulations made by the Board for the purposes of this subsection may direct that no such certificate as aforesaid shall be required in respect of the erection, in any area prescribed by or under the regulations, of industrial buildings of any such class as may be so prescribed. [2288]

(5) Every local planning authority shall keep, in such manner as may be prescribed by the development order, a register containing such information as may be so prescribed with respect to applications for permission made to that authority, including information as to the manner in which such applications have been dealt with ; and every such register shall be available for inspection by the public at all reasonable hours. [2289]

Position of London.—For special provisions relating to London, see s. 114, post.

Decisions of the authority.—In R. v. Hendon R. D. C., Ex parte Chorley, [1933] 2 K. B. 696, it was held that an interim development decision of a district council was a judicial and not merely an executive decision and that therefore a writ of certiorari would lie. In that case one of the members of the council whose duty it was to decide judicially was shown to be disqualified by bias and the rule was therefore made absolute.

Subject to such conditions as they think fit.—Some degree of care should be exercised in drafting conditions: if the terms of the conditions are vague and uncertain they may prove unenforceable.

Shall have regard to the development plan.—If the development plan has not become operative, the local planning authority must have regard to any directions which may be given them by the Minister as to the provisions to be included in such a plan and, subject to any such directions, they are to have regard to the provisions which in their opinion will be required to be so included for securing the proper planning of the area (s. 36, post). See also the provisions of sub-ss. (3) (c) and (4) of the present section, ante.

It would seem that a local planning authority must not grant permission for development which would not be in accordance with the plan, unless authorised by the Minister to do so either under the development order or directions issued thereunder (sub-ss. (3) (b), ante).

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Consult.—It is probable that county councils, as local planning authorities, will be required to consult with the district council in whose district the land in respect of which planning permission is sought is situated.

Notice to the applicant of the manner in which his application has been dealt with.—Under the earlier Acts an application for interim development permission was deemed to have been refused if the applicant was not informed in writing within two months of the decision of the interim development authority.

Furnish . . . information.—Similar provision was made by the Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943, s. 6 (2) (36 Halsbury's Statutes 247), and the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, s. 31 (2) (37 Halsbury's Statutes 460); cf. s. 10 (4) (b), ante.

Certified by the Board of Trade.—As to the exercise of functions by the Board of Trade under this Act, see s. 116, post.

Regulations and orders.—For the general provisions applicable, see s. 111, post.

Definitions.—As to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post. As to "develop," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; for "development plan," see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post; and for "development order," see ss. 13, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land," "use," "buildings or works," "erection" and "industrial building," see s. 119 (1), post.

15. Reference of applications to Minister.—(1) The Minister may give directions to any local planning authority, or to local planning authorities generally, requiring that any application for permission to develop land, or all such applications of any class specified in the directions, shall be referred to the Minister instead of being dealt with by the local planning authority, and any such application shall be so referred accordingly. [2290]

(2) Where an application for permission to develop land is referred to the Minister under this section, the provisions of subsections (1) and (2) of the last foregoing section shall apply, subject to any necessary modifications, in relation to the determination of the application by the Minister as they apply in relation to the determination of such an application by the local planning authority:

Provided that before determining any such application the Minister shall, if either the applicant or the local planning authority so desire, afford to each of them an opportunity of appearing before and being heard by a person appointed by the Minister for the purpose. [2291]

(3) The decision of the Minister on any application referred to him under this section shall be final. [2292]

General note.—Similar provision was made with respect to interim development applications by s. 6 of the Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 247).

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Directions.—Like orders and regulations, directions lawfully given have the same force as the Statute under which they are made, and must be obeyed. Where a direction has been given under this section, the local planning authority have no jurisdiction to consider an application to which the direction relates and, if they purport to do so, their decision will be null and void and of no effect.

If either the applicant or the local planning authority so desire.—Note that it is not merely the applicant who may require a hearing but also the local planning authority.

An opportunity of appearing before and of being heard.—This hearing need not necessarily take the form of a public local inquiry, but in the past such hearings have taken this form.

It is not to be assumed that in these cases the Minister has made up his mind beforehand. Even if he has formed a provisional view, it will be subject to anything the applicant or local planning authority may urge either in their statements in writing or orally at the hearing.

The decision of the Minister shall be final.—But not if the Minister were to act in excess of jurisdiction (see R. v. Minister of Health, [1939] 1 K. B. 232; [1938] 4 All E. R. 32).

Definitions.—As to “local planning authority,” see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to “develop,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definition of “land,” see s. 119 (1), post.

16. Appeals to Minister.—(1) Where application is made under this Part of this Act to a local planning authority for permission to develop land, or for any approval of that authority required under a development order, and that permission or approval is refused by that authority, or is granted by them subject to conditions, then if the applicant is aggrieved by their decision he may be notice served within the time, not being less than twenty-eight days from the receipt of notification of their decision, and in the manner prescribed by the development order, appeal to the Minister :

Provided that the Minister shall not be required to entertain an appeal under this subsection in respect of the determination of an application for permission to develop land if it appears to him that permission for that development could not have been granted by the local planning authority, or could not have been so granted otherwise than subject to the conditions imposed by them, having regard to the provisions of section fourteen of this Act and of the development order, and to any directions given under that order. [2293]

(2) Where an appeal is brought under this section from a decision of the local planning authority the Minister may allow or dismiss the appeal or may reverse or vary any part of the decision of the local planning authority, whether or not the appeal relates to that part, and deal with the application as if it had been made to him in the first instance ; and the provisions of the last foregoing section shall apply, subject to any necessary modifications, in relation to the determination of an application by the Minister on appeal under this section as they apply in relation to the determination by the Minister of an application referred to him under that section. [2294]

(3) Unless within such period as may be prescribed by the development order, or within such extended period as may at any time be agreed upon in writing between the applicant and the local planning authority, the local planning authority either—

- (a) give notice to the applicant of their decision on any application for permission to develop land, or for any approval required under a development order, made to them under this Part of this Act, or
- (b) give notice to him that the application has been referred to the Minister in accordance with directions given by him under the last foregoing section.

the provisions of subsection (1) of this section shall apply in relation to the application as if the permission or approval to which it relates had been refused by the local planning authority and as if notification of their decision had been received by the applicant at the expiration of the period prescribed by the development order or the extended period agreed upon as aforesaid, as the case may be. [2295]

(4) Provision may be made by a development order for securing that in the case of decisions by a local planning authority of such classes as may be prescribed by the order (being decisions relating to the design or external appearance of buildings or other similar matters) any appeal under this section shall lie to an independent tribunal established in accordance with the provisions of that order instead of to the Minister ; and in relation to any such appeal the foregoing provisions of this section shall apply, subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be specified in the order, as they apply in relation to appeals to the Minister thereunder. [2296]

General note.—This section confers a similar right of appealing to the Minister to that which existed under the previous law with respect to interim development applications. Operative schemes under the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932 (25 Halsbury's Statutes 470), always conferred a similar right of appeal in regard to applications for permission to develop under the scheme. An appeal lies against (1) refusal to grant permission for proposed development; (2) conditions imposed on the grant of permission for proposed development; and (3) refusal to approve the design or external appearance to a building the erection or alteration of which is permitted by a development order subject to such approval being obtained.

Service of notices.—For the general provisions in this connection, see s. 105, post.

Time for appealing.—The appeal must be made within the time prescribed by the development order, which time must not be less than 28 days from the receipt of notification of the local planning authority's decision.

Manner of appealing.—The appeal must be made in the manner prescribed by the development order. In all probability the Ministry will prepare and supply to appellants printed forms of appeal.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Right of parties to be heard.—If either the appellant or the local planning authority so desire, the Minister must afford each of them an opportunity of appearing before and being heard by a person appointed by the Minister for the purpose (sub-s. (2) and s. 15 (2), proviso, ante).

Grounds of appeal.—The grounds of appeal should, as a general rule, be confined to meeting the grounds of refusal and the case for the appellant must be built up to refute these grounds. It must be borne in mind, however, that the Minister in deciding an appeal may do so as if the application had been made to him in the first instance and he may vary or reverse any part of the decision of the local planning authority irrespective of whether the appeal relates to that part (sub-s. (2), ante). On appeal, the whole question is at large, and the appellant must be prepared to deal with any point which may affect the Minister's mind in coming to a decision.

The hearing.—The hearing is not bound to take the form of a local inquiry, but in the past it has usually done so.

Applicant.—Note that the right to appeal is conferred only on a person or persons who apply for planning permission.

Could not have been granted by the local planning authority.—It would seem, for instance, from s. 14 (3) (b), ante, that unless the Minister authorises a local planning authority, either by provision contained in a development order or by directions under a provision contained in a development order, to grant permission for development which does not accord with the provisions of the development plan, the local planning authority cannot grant such permission.

If the Minister under a provision in a development plan has given directions restricting the grant of permission by the local planning authority in respect of any such development as may be specified in the directions, then the local planning authority cannot grant permission in such circumstances and no appeal from their decision need be entertained by the Minister.

Note also the provisions contained in s. 15, ante.

Sub-s. (3).—A similar provision was enacted by the 1943 Act with regard to interim development applications (Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943, s. 2 (3); 36 Halsbury's Statutes 242).

Independent tribunal.—Note the use of these words in contrast to "the Minister." The Minister, even on an appeal, is not an independent tribunal, and the rules of conduct applicable to an independent tribunal are not applicable to him.

Provision is made for the expenses of "independent tribunals" by s. 108, post.

Definitions.—As to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; as to "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "development order," see ss. 13, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land" and "building," see s. 119 (1), post.

17. Applications to determine whether permission required.—(1) If any person who proposes to carry out any operations on land or make any change in the use of land wishes to have it determined whether the carrying out of those operations or the making of that change in the use of the land, would constitute or involve development of the land within the meaning of this Act, and, if so, whether an application for permission in respect thereof is required under this Part of this Act having regard to the provisions of the development order, he may, either as part of an application for such permission, or without any such application, apply to the local planning authority to determine that question. [2297]

(2) The foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act shall, subject to any necessary modifications, apply in relation to any application under this section and to the determination thereof as they apply in relation to applications for permission to develop land and to the determination of such applications:

Provided that where it is decided by the Minister under any of the said provisions that any operations or use to which an application under this section relates would constitute or involve development of the land, or that an application for permission is required as aforesaid in respect thereof, that decision shall not be final for the purposes of any appeal to the court under the provisions of this Part of this Act relating to the enforcement of planning control, in relation to those operations or that use. [2298]

Effect of section.—This section contains a new and very useful provision in town and country planning legislation. Many cases have occurred in the past in which a person proposing to develop land has been uncertain whether, in the special circumstances of his case, he required permission or not. An application might have been made to the High Court for an appropriate declaration, but there has been a disinclination to follow this course because of the time and expense involved. In cases of doubt, therefore, applications for permission have been made and, where appeal has been made to the Minister, the appellant has been obliged to proceed on the assumption that permission was necessary, and the Minister has decided the appeal on its merits.

Now, under this section a person who wishes to develop land but is not sure whether permission is required or not will be able to apply to a local planning authority to determine the question, and against their decision an appeal will lie to the Minister.

The value of the present provision is enhanced by the proviso to sub-s. (2), ante. The Minister's decision on any such appeal will not be final for the purpose of any appeal to the Court under the provision of this Part of the Act relating to the enforcement of planning control. An application can be made asking the local planning authority, first, to determine whether permission is necessary, and secondly, if it is necessary, to grant permission.

The question whether or not permission is necessary will be a question of law to be determined on the facts of the case.

By whom an application is or could be made.—Reference should be made to the development order as soon as it is available, in order to ascertain the persons who are entitled to make application for permission.

Development order.—This term is defined in s. 13, ante. The order itself may grant permission for certain development (s. 13 (1) (a), ante). Note also the exemptions enacted by s. 12 (5), ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Enforcement of planning control.—See s. 23, post.

Definitions.—As to "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land" and "use," see s. 119 (1), post.

18. Supplementary provisions as to grant of permission.—(1) The power to grant permission to develop land under this Part of this Act shall include power to grant permission for the retention on land of any buildings or works constructed or carried out thereon before the date of the application, or for the continuance of any use of land instituted before that date (whether without permission granted under this Part of this Act or in accordance with permission so granted for a limited period only); and references in this Part of this Act to permission to develop land or to carry out any development of land, and to applications for such permission, shall be construed accordingly. [2299]

(2) Any such permission as is mentioned in the foregoing subsection may be granted so as to take effect from the date on which the buildings or works were constructed or carried out, or the use was instituted, or from the expiration of the said period, as the case may be. [2300]

(3) Where permission is granted under this Part of this Act for the erection of a building, the grant of permission may specify the purposes for which the building may be used; and if no purpose is so specified, the permission shall be construed as including permission to use the building for the purpose for which it is designed. [2301]

(4) Where permission to develop land is granted under this Part of this Act, then, except as may be otherwise provided by the permission, the grant of permission shall enure for the benefit of the land and of all persons for the time being interested therein, but without prejudice to the provisions of this Part of this Act with respect to the revocation and modification of permission granted thereunder. [2302]

(5) Where permission to develop land is granted under this Part of this Act for a limited period only, nothing in this Part of this Act shall be construed as requiring permission to be obtained thereunder for the resumption, at the expiration of that period, of the use of the land for the purpose for which it was normally used before the permission was granted:

Provided that in determining for the purposes of this subsection the purposes for which land was normally used before the grant of permission, no account shall be taken of any use of the land begun in contravention of the provisions of this Part of this Act or begun before the appointed day in contravention of previous planning control within the meaning of section seventy-five of this Act. [2303]

Effect of section.—The Minister was advised under the 1932–1944 Acts that an application for interim development could not lawfully be made after the development had been carried out and that, if such application was in fact made and refused, he had no jurisdiction to hear an appeal against the refusal.

Sub-s. (1), ante, cures this defect in the law—assuming the view of the previous law taken by the Minister to be right. It must be borne in mind, however, that the present section, like nearly all the remainder of the Act, does not come into force until the appointed day, July 1, 1948 (see infra).

Sub-s. (2), ante, enables permission to be given retrospective effect in respect of development previously carried out without permission.

The next subsection authorises a permission to specify the purposes for which a building may be used: if no purposes are specified, the permission is to be construed as a permission to use the building for the purpose for which it is designed.

Sub-s. (4) provides that, except as may be otherwise provided by the permission, the grant of a permission shall endure for the benefit of the land and all persons for the time being interested therein, without prejudice to the powers of revocation and modification.

The words in italics are important as they indicate that, if the local planning authority think fit, they may insert in the permission terms or conditions which will prevent the permission from enduring for the benefit of the land.

Finally, it is provided by sub-s. (5), ante, that nothing in the present section is to be construed as requiring permission to be obtained for a resumption of the normal use of land at the expiration of a permission granted for a limited period.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (s. 119 (1), post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Definitions.—As to “develop,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to “permission granted for a limited period only,” see ss. 14, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “land,” “buildings or works,” “use,” “erection” and “building,” see s. 119 (1), post.

19. Obligation to purchase land on refusal of permission in certain cases.—

(1) Where permission to develop any land is refused, whether by the local planning authority or by the Minister, on an application in that behalf made under this Part of this Act, or is granted by that authority or by the Minister subject to conditions, then if any owner of the land claims—

- (a) that the land has become incapable of reasonably beneficial use in its existing state; and
- (b) in a case where permission to develop the land was granted as aforesaid subject to conditions, that the land cannot be rendered capable of reasonably beneficial use by the carrying out of the permitted development in accordance with those conditions;
- (c) in any case, that the land cannot be rendered capable of reasonably beneficial use by the carrying out of any other development for which permission has been or is deemed to be granted under this Part of this Act, or for which the local planning authority or the Minister have undertaken to grant such permission,

he may, within the time and in the manner prescribed by regulations made under this Act, serve on the council of the county borough or county district in which the land is situated a notice (hereinafter referred to as a “purchase notice”) requiring that council to purchase his interest in the land in accordance with the provisions of this section. [2304]

(2) Where a purchase notice is served on any council under this section, that council shall forthwith transmit a copy of the notice to the Minister, and subject to the following provisions of this section the Minister shall, if he is satisfied that the conditions specified in paragraphs (a) to (c) of the foregoing subsection are fulfilled, confirm the notice, and thereupon the council shall be deemed to be authorised to acquire the interest of the owner compulsorily in accordance with the provisions of Part IV of this Act, and to have served a notice to treat in respect thereof on such date as the Minister may direct:

Provided that—

- (a) if it appears to the Minister to be expedient so to do, he may, in lieu of confirming the purchase notice, grant permission for the development in respect of which the application was made or, where permission for that development was granted subject to conditions, revoke or amend those conditions so far as appears to him to be required in order to enable the land to be rendered capable of reasonably beneficial use by the carrying out of that development ;
- (b) if it appears to the Minister, that the land, or any part of the land, could be rendered capable of reasonably beneficial use within a reasonable time by the carrying out of any other development for which permission ought to be granted, he may, in lieu of confirming the notice, or in lieu of confirming it so far as it relates to that part of the land, as the case may be, direct that such permission shall be so granted in the event of an application being made in that behalf ;
- (c) if it appears to the Minister, having regard to the probable ultimate use of the land, that it is expedient so to do, he may, if he confirms the notice, modify it, either in relation to the whole or in relation to any part of the land to which it relates, by substituting any other local authority for the council on whom the notice is served, and in any such case the foregoing provisions of this subsection shall have effect accordingly. [2305]

(3) If within the period of six months from the date on which a purchase notice is served under this section the Minister has neither confirmed the notice nor taken any such other action as is mentioned in paragraph (a) or paragraph (b) of the last foregoing subsection, nor notified the owner by whom the notice was served that he does not propose to confirm the notice, the notice shall be deemed to be confirmed at the expiration of that period, and the council on whom the notice was served shall be deemed to be authorised to acquire the interest of the owner compulsorily in accordance with the provisions of Part IV of this Act, and to have served notice to treat in respect thereof at the expiration of the said period. [2306]

(4) The power conferred by subsection (2) of section five of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, to withdraw a notice to treat shall not be exercisable in the case of a notice to treat which is deemed to have been served by virtue of this section. [2307]

(5) Before confirming a purchase notice, or taking any other action in lieu thereof, under this section, the Minister shall give notice of his proposed action—

- (a) to the person by whom the notice was served ;
- (b) to the council on whom the notice was served ;
- (c) to the local planning authority for the area in which the land is situated ; and
- (d) to any other local authority whom the Minister proposes, under the foregoing provisions of this section, to substitute for the said council ; and if within the period prescribed by the notice under this subsection (not being less than twenty-eight days from the service thereof) any person or authority on whom that notice is served so requires, the Minister shall, before confirming the purchase notice or taking any such other action as aforesaid, afford to those persons and authorities an opportunity of appearing before and being heard by a person appointed by the Minister for the purpose.

[2308]

Effect of section.—Where permission to develop land has either been refused or granted subject to conditions and the owner is able to claim that the land is incapable of “reasonably beneficial use” in its existing state, he may require the district council or county borough council to purchase it. Alternatively, the Minister may direct planning permission to be granted.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Reasonably beneficial use.—The Minister is to be the sole judge as to whether or not the conditions specified in sub-s. (1), ante, have been fulfilled including the claim that the land is incapable of “reasonably beneficial use” (see sub-s. (2), ante, and note on the words “If he is satisfied,” infra).

Sub-s. (1), para. (c).—Before making this claim, the owner will be wise to discuss the matter with the local planning authority and see what other development (if any) they would permit and what conditions (if any) they would impose on granting such permission. He should inspect the register of development consents to see if permission has been given for any other development to anyone else with respect to his land. As to the register of permissions, see s. 14 (5), ante.

Regulations.—See s. 111, post.

Serve.—As to service of notices, see s. 105, post.

Purchase notice.—The notice should contain recitals dealing with the conditions specified in sub-s. (1), ante. It may also be desirable to state facts in support of the claims either in the notice itself or in a document accompanying the notice, but authoritative guidance may be given in the regulations.

Shall forthwith transmit a copy of the notice to the Minister.—This important requirement should be noted by district councils and county borough councils.

If he is satisfied.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the words “If it appears to the Minister.” Of the cases there cited, see in particular Robinson v. Minister of Town and Country Planning, [1947] K. B. 702; [1947] 1 All E. R. 851, C. A., post.

Confirm the notice.—The effect of the Minister’s confirming the notice is that the council are deemed :—

1. To be authorised to acquire the owner’s interest in the land compulsorily ;
2. To have served a notice to treat on such date as the Minister may direct.

Notice to treat.—See the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, s. 18 (2 Halsbury’s Statutes 1120, and 6 Halsbury’s Laws (2nd Edn.), 81 et seq.).

Grant permission for the development.—Such permission may be granted notwithstanding that the Minister has previously refused to grant permission with respect to the development in question (cf. sub-s. (1), ante). In appealing to the Minister against a refusal to grant permission or against conditions, one of the grounds of appeal might be that unless the appeal is allowed the land will be incapable of reasonably beneficial use.

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, s. 5 (2).—2 Halsbury’s Statutes 1179.

An opportunity of being heard.—This does not necessarily mean that the hearing will take the form of a public local inquiry, though in the past the Minister has given effect to these words by holding a local inquiry. As to local inquiries, see s. 104, post.

Definitions.—As to “develop” and “development,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. As to “local planning authority,” see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “land,” “owner,” “use” and “local authority,” see s. 119 (1), post.

20. Compensation for refusal of permission in certain cases.—(1) Where, on application made under this Part of this Act for permission to carry out development of any class specified in Part II of the Third Schedule to this Act permission for that development is refused by the Minister, either on appeal or on the reference of the application to him for determination, or is so granted by the Minister subject to conditions, then if, on a claim made to the local planning authority within the time and in the manner prescribed by regulations under this Act, it is shown that the value of the interest of any person in the land is less than it would have been if the permission had been granted, or had been granted unconditionally, as the case may be, the local planning authority shall pay to that person compensation (to be assessed in accordance with the provisions of the Fourth Schedule to this Act) equal to the difference. [2309]

(2) In determining for the purposes of the foregoing subsection whether and to what extent the value of any interest in land is less than it would have been if the permission had been granted or had been granted unconditionally, it shall be assumed that any subsequent application for the like permission would be determined in the same way :

Provided that if, on the refusal of permission for the development in respect of which the application is made, the Minister undertakes to grant permission for any other development of the land in the event of an application being made in that behalf, regard shall be had to that undertaking in determining the matters aforesaid. [2310]

(3) Where a purchase notice served under the last foregoing section in respect of any interest in land does not take effect, or does not take effect in relation to any part of the land, by reason of any such direction as is mentioned in paragraph (b) of the proviso to subsection (2) of that section, then if it is shown, on a claim made to the local planning authority, within the time and in the manner prescribed by regulations under this Act that the permitted development value of that interest or, as the case may be, of that interest so far as it relates to that part of the land, is less than its compulsory purchase value, the local planning authority shall pay to the person entitled to that interest compensation (to be assessed in accordance with the provisions of the Fourth Schedule to this Act) equal to the difference. [2311]

(4) For the purposes of the last foregoing subsection the expression "permitted development value", in relation to an interest in land in respect of which any such direction as is mentioned in that subsection has been given, means the value of that interest calculated with regard to the direction and to any determination of the Central Land Board under subsection (4) of section seventy of this Act, but on the assumption that no permission would be granted under this Part of this Act otherwise than in accordance with the direction; and the expression "compulsory purchase value", in relation to any such interest, means the value of that interest as it would be assessed in accordance with the provisions of section fifty-one of this Act for the purpose of ascertaining the compensation payable on a purchase thereof in pursuance of the purchase notice. [2312]

(5) Where any such permission as is mentioned in subsection (1) of this section is granted by the Minister subject to conditions, or where any permission required to be granted by any such direction as is mentioned in subsection (3) of this section would be so granted subject to conditions, being in either case conditions for regulating the design or external appearance of buildings, or the size or height of buildings, or, in the case of permission to be granted in accordance with any such direction as aforesaid, for regulating the number of buildings to be erected on the land, then if it appears to the Minister that it is reasonable so to do having regard to the local circumstances, he may direct that those conditions shall be disregarded, either altogether, or to such extent as may be specified in the direction, in assessing the compensation (if any) payable under the said subsection (1) or under the said subsection (3), as the case may be. [2313]

(6) Except as provided by subsection (3) of this section, no compensation shall be payable under this section in respect of any interest in land in respect of which a purchase notice is served under section nineteen of this Act. [2314]

Effect of section.—Part II of Sched. III, post, specifies certain development which it would be unreasonable to refuse without payment of compensation. Sub-s. (1) of the present section, ante, makes provision for compensation if permission is refused by the Minister on appeal or on reference to him of the application. A claim for compensation can similarly be made under the subsection where the Minister grants permission for development specified in Part II of Sched. III subject to conditions.

If, on a refusal of permission in respect of development of the kind specified in Part II of Sched. III, the Minister undertakes to grant permission for any other development of the land in the event of an application being made in that behalf, regard must be had to that fact in determining the amount of compensation payable (sub-s. (2), proviso, ante).

The Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176), applies to the determination of disputed questions of compensation under this section, except so far as may be otherwise provided by regulations (s. 110, post).

In certain circumstances a purchase notice under s. 19, ante, may not take effect. Provision for compensation is made by sub-s. (1) of the present section, such compensation to be assessed in accordance with Sched. IV, post. Reference should be made to s. 19 (2), ante, particularly para. (b) of the proviso.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Regulations.—For the general provisions as to regulations, see s. 111, post.

Compensation.—Values will be ascertained under rule (2) of s. 2 of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1178), which is applied with the necessary modifications by Sched. IV, post.

Sub-s. 4.—In ascertaining the permitted value, regard must be had to two factors:—

- (a) The development which would be permitted under a direction given in pursuance of s. 19 (2) (b), ante; and
- (b) The amount of the development charge (if any) fixed by the Central Land Board under s. 70, post, with respect to such development.

Under s. 51, post, the compulsory purchase value of the interest in land is to be assessed under the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1178), as modified by the present Act, on the assumption that planning permission would be given for development of any class specified in Sched. III, post, but not for any other development.

Definitions.—As to "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post. For "purchase notice," see ss. 19, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land" and "building," see s. 119 (1), post.

21. Revocation and modification of permission to develop.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, if it appears to the local planning authority that it is expedient, having regard to the development plan and to any other material considerations, that any permission to develop land granted on an application made in that behalf under this Part of this Act should be revoked or modified, they may by order revoke or modify the permission to such extent as appears to them to be expedient as aforesaid:

Provided that no such order shall take effect unless it is confirmed by the Minister, and the Minister may confirm any order submitted to him for the purpose either without modification or subject to such modifications as he considers expedient. [2315]

(2) Where a local planning authority submit an order to the Minister for his confirmation under this section, that authority shall serve notice on the owner and on the occupier of the land affected, and on any other person who in their opinion will be affected by the order; and if within such period as may be prescribed in that behalf in the notice (not being less than twenty-eight days from the service thereof) any person on whom the notice is served so requires, the Minister shall, before confirming the order, afford to him, and to the local planning authority, an opportunity of appearing before and being heard by a person appointed by the Minister for the purpose. [2316]

(3) The power conferred by this section to revoke or modify permission to develop land may be exercised—

- (a) where the permission relates to the carrying out of building or other operations, at any time before those operations have been completed;
- (b) where the permission relates to a change of the use of any land, at any time before the change has taken place:

Provided that the revocation or modification of permission for the carrying out of building or other operations shall not affect so much of those operations as has been previously carried out. [2317]

Effect of section.—This section empowers local planning authorities by order to revoke or modify development permissions, subject to the necessity for such orders to be confirmed by the Minister following opportunities for both parties to be heard by a person appointed for the purpose.

Nevertheless, the powers of the section must be exercised before the works previously authorised have been completed or the change of use previously allowed has taken place. Protection is also given where part of the works has been completed. The next section provides for compensation for loss sustained through the exercise of these powers of revocation and modification.

If it appears that it is expedient.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the words "If it appears to the Minister."

Any other material considerations.—It would be a "material consideration," for example, if the local planning authority had submitted or prepared to submit amendments to the plan which if approved by the Minister would render the proposed development no longer in conformity with the plan.

Granted . . . under this part of this Act.—See ss. 12 and 14, ante. Note the provisions contained in ss. 77 and 78, post, under which permissions granted under the previous law are deemed to have been granted under this Part of this Act.

By order revoke or modify.—No special procedure is laid down for challenging a revocation order either before or after it has been confirmed by the Minister. The order could be challenged by prohibition or certiorari.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Serve notice.—As to service of notices, see s. 105, post.

An opportunity of appearing before and being heard.—See note to s. 15, ante.

Definitions.—As to “local planning authority,” see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; as to “development plan,” see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to “develop,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “land,” “owner,” “building operations” and “use,” see s. 119 (1), post.

22. Supplementary provisions as to revocation and modification.—(1)

Where permission to develop land is revoked or modified by an order made under the last foregoing section, then if, on a claim made to the local planning authority within the time and in the manner prescribed by regulations under this Act, it is shown that any person interested in the land has incurred expenditure in carrying out work which is rendered abortive by the revocation or modification, or has otherwise sustained loss or damage which is directly attributable to the revocation or modification, that authority shall pay to that person compensation in respect of that expenditure, loss or damage:

Provided that unless either—

- (a) any sum has been paid under Part VII of this Act by way of development charge in respect of the development to which the permission relates; or
- (b) no such charge is payable in respect of that development by virtue of any of the provisions of Part VIII of this Act;

no compensation shall be payable under this subsection in respect of loss or damage consisting of the depreciation in value of any interest in the land by virtue of the revocation or modification. [2318]

(2) For the purposes of this section, any expenditure incurred in the preparation of plans for the purposes of any work or upon other similar matters preparatory thereto shall be deemed to be included in the expenditure incurred in carrying out that work, but except as aforesaid no compensation shall be paid under this section in respect of any work carried out before the grant of the permission which is revoked or modified, or in respect of any other loss or damage (not being loss or damage consisting of the depreciation in value of an interest in land) arising out of anything done or omitted to be done before the grant of that permission. [2319]

(3) Where permission for the development of land granted by a development order has been withdrawn, whether by the revocation or amendment of the order or by the issue of directions under powers in that behalf conferred by the order, then, if, on an application made in that behalf under this Part of this Act, permission for that development is refused or is granted subject to conditions other than those previously imposed by the development order, the foregoing provisions of this section shall apply, as if the permission granted by the development order had been granted by the local planning authority under this Part of this Act and had been revoked or modified by an order under the last foregoing section. [2320]

(4) The provisions of section nineteen of this Act shall apply in relation to an order made under the last foregoing section revoking permission to develop land or modifying any such permission by the imposition of conditions, as they apply in relation to the refusal of an application for such permission or the grant of such an application subject to conditions, and in any such case the said section nineteen shall have effect subject to the following modifications:—

- (a) in paragraph (b) of subsection (1), for the words “in a case where permission to develop the land was granted as aforesaid subject to conditions” there shall be substituted the words “in a case where the permission was modified by the imposition of conditions”; and

- (b) for paragraph (a) of the proviso to subsection (2) there shall be substituted the following paragraph :—

“(a) if it appears to the Minister to be expedient so to do he may, in lieu of confirming the purchase notice, cancel the order revoking the permission or, where the order modified the permission by the imposition of conditions, revoke or amend those conditions so far as appears to him to be required in order to enable the land to be rendered capable of reasonably beneficial use by the carrying out of the development in respect of which the permission was granted”. [2321]

(5) Where the permission which is revoked or modified by an order under the last foregoing section is permission of any such class as is mentioned in subsection (1) of section twenty of this Act, the provisions of that section shall apply as if for references therein to the refusal of the permission or the imposition of conditions on the grant thereof there were substituted references to the revocation of permission or the modification thereof by the imposition of conditions and subsection (1) of that section shall have effect as if for the words “if the permission had been granted or had been granted unconditionally” there were substituted the words “if the permission had not been revoked or had not been modified”. [2322]

(6) Where, by virtue of the foregoing provisions of this section, compensation is payable in respect of expenditure incurred in carrying out any work on land, then if a purchase notice is served under section nineteen of this Act in respect of any interest in that land, or a claim for compensation is made in respect of any such interest under subsection (1) of section twenty of this Act, any compensation payable in respect of the acquisition of that interest under the said section nineteen or as the case may be, any compensation payable in respect of that interest under the said section twenty, shall be reduced by an amount equal to the value of the works in respect of which compensation is payable under this section. [2323]

(7) Any compensation payable under this section in respect of loss or damage consisting of the depreciation in value of an interest in land shall be assessed in accordance with the provisions of the Fourth Schedule to this Act, and in calculating the amount of any such depreciation it shall be assumed that permission would be granted under this Part of this Act for development of the land of any class specified in the Third Schedule to this Act. [2324]

General note.—This section provides for compensation where a development permission granted under the previous section is revoked or modified.

First, it will be noted that the claim must be made to the local planning authority or to the delegate authority where delegation has been made under regulation 3 of the Town and Country Planning (Authorisation of Delegation) Regulations, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2499, within the time and in the manner prescribed by the regulations.

Secondly, compensation falls under two heads :—

- (a) For expenditure in carrying out work which is rendered abortive by the revocation or modification; and
- (b) For loss or damage sustained which is directly attributable to the revocation or modification.

Dealing first with abortive expenditure, an example would be a case where the developer has commenced his operations and done actual work after the grant of permission and before it is revoked or modified. It may have been necessary for him to make a survey of the land and to prepare plans in connection with the work before carrying it out. By express provision the Act makes it clear that compensation may be claimed in respect of these preliminary matters even though the expense was incurred before permission was granted (sub-s. (2), ante).

The second head would cover the case where a developer had to expend money to get release from a contract entered into after (not before) the grant of permission.

No compensation will be payable in respect of loss or damage consisting of depreciation in the value of any interest in land by virtue of the revocation or modification unless either :—

- (a) A development charge in respect of the development revoked or modified has been paid; or
- (b) No development charge was payable in respect of the development.

Sub-s. (4) applies s. 19, subject to certain modifications. This enables the owner to serve a purchase notice where by reason of the order the land has become incapable of beneficial use.

• Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations, see s. 111, post.

If it appears to the Minister.—See note to s. 4, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

S. 20.—Note the provisions of sub-s. (5), ante, which relates to permissions granted under s. 20 (1), ante, which have been revoked or modified under s. 21, ante. In such cases references to the refusal of the permission or the imposition of conditions on the grant thereof are to be read as the revocation of permission or the modification thereof by the imposition of conditions, and s. 20 (1) will have effect in modified form.

Definitions.—As to “development” and “develop,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; as to “local planning authority,” see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to “purchase notice,” see ss. 19, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “land” and “use,” see s. 119 (1), post.

23. Enforcement of planning control.—(1) If it appears to the local planning authority that any development of land has been carried out after the appointed day without the grant of permission required in that behalf under this Part of this Act, or that any conditions subject to which such permission was granted in respect of any development have not been complied with, then, subject to any directions given by the Minister, the local planning authority may within four years of such development being carried out, if they consider it expedient so to do having regard to the provisions of the development plan and to any other material considerations, serve on the owner and occupier of the land a notice under this section. [2325]

(2) Any notice served under this section (hereinafter called an “enforcement notice”) shall specify the development which is alleged to have been carried out without the grant of such permission as aforesaid or, as the case may be, the matters in respect of which it is alleged that any such conditions as aforesaid have not been complied with, and may require such steps as may be specified in the notice to be taken within such period as may be so specified for restoring the land to its condition before the development took place, or for securing compliance with the conditions, as the case may be; and in particular any such notice may, for the purpose aforesaid, require the demolition or alteration of any buildings or works, the discontinuance of any use of land, or the carrying out on land of any building or other operations. [2326]

(3) Subject to the provisions of the next following subsection, an enforcement notice shall take effect at the expiration of such period (not being less than twenty-eight days after the service thereof) as may be specified therein :

Provided, that—

(a) if within the period aforesaid an application is made to the local planning authority under this Part of this Act for permission for the retention on the land of any buildings or works, or for the continuance of any use of the land, to which the enforcement notice relates, the notice shall be of no effect pending the final determination of that application, and if such permission as aforesaid is granted on that application, the notice shall not take effect;

(b) if within the period aforesaid an appeal is made to the court under the following provisions of this section by a person on whom the enforcement notice was served, the notice shall be of no effect pending the final determination or withdrawal of the appeal.

(4) If any person on whom an enforcement notice is served under this section is aggrieved by the notice, he may, at any time within the period mentioned in the last foregoing subsection, appeal against the notice to a court of summary jurisdiction for the petty sessional division or place within which the land to which the notice relates is situated; and on any such appeal the court—

(a) if satisfied that permission was granted under this Part of this Act for the development to which the notice relates, or that no such permission was required in respect thereof, or, as the case may be, that the conditions subject to which such permission was granted have been complied with, shall quash the notice to which the appeal relates ;

- (b) if not so satisfied, but satisfied that the requirements of the notice exceed what is necessary for restoring land to its condition before the development took place, or for securing compliance with the conditions, as the case may be, shall vary the notice accordingly ;
- (c) in any other case shall dismiss the appeal :

Provided that where the enforcement notice is varied or the appeal is dismissed, then, without prejudice to the provisions of paragraph (a) of the proviso to subsection (3) of this section, the court may, if they think fit, direct that the enforcement notice shall not come into force until such date (not being later than twenty-eight days from the determination of the appeal) as the court think fit. [2328]

(5) Any person aggrieved by a decision of a court of summary jurisdiction under the last foregoing subsection may appeal against that decision to a court of quarter sessions. [2329]

Effect of section.—This section provides the necessary machinery for enforcing planning control by dealing with development which contravenes the Act. This may be either by developing land without permission or by failing to observe development conditions imposed, and in such cases local planning authorities may (but are not bound to) serve "enforcement notices" on the owners and occupiers concerned. Any such notices must, however, be served within four years of the carrying out of the development against which they are directed.

Here two special provisions become applicable: first, an application may be made, usually within twenty-eight days of service, to the local planning authority to regularise the development by giving the necessary permission; and secondly, an appeal against the notice may be made within the like period to the local Magistrates' Court, subject to a further appeal to Quarter Sessions.

Enforcement procedure may be delegated under S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2499.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister may by order appoint (s. 119 (1), post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Under this Part of this Act.—Action may also be taken under this section in respect of contraventions of previous planning control; see s. 75, post. S. 75, post, enables enforcement procedure to be applied to contraventions of the 1932 Act which took place before the passing of the 1943 Act which had previously been protected against the prohibition procedure of s. 5 of the 1943 Act. Action in respect of previous contraventions must be taken within three years from the appointed day.

Conditions.—For power to grant permission subject to conditions, see s. 14, ante.

Subject to any direction given by the Minister.—These are important words. The Minister may direct a local planning authority not to exercise their powers under this section.

And to any other material consideration.—There may be something outside the development plan itself which may be material, e.g., directions from the Minister.

Development plan.—Note the provisions contained in s. 36, post.

Serve notice.—As to service of notices, see s. 105, post.

Permission for retention.—As to application for such permission, see s. 18, ante, and in the case of contraventions of previous planning control, see s. 75 (4), post. Where permission is granted to retain a contravention of previous control, see s. 75 (7), post, for relief from development charges.

Appeal . . . to a court of summary jurisdiction.—Procedure on appeal will be by way of complaint for an order under Rule 53 of the Summary Jurisdiction Rules, 1915.

Definitions.—As to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; as to "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "development plan," see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land," "owner," "buildings or works," "use" and "building operations," see s. 119 (1), post.

24. Supplementary provisions as to enforcement.—(1) If within the period specified in an enforcement notice, or within such extended period as the local planning authority may allow, any steps required by the notice to be taken (other than the discontinuance of any use of land) have not been taken, the local planning authority may enter on the land and take those steps, and may recover as a simple contract debt in any court of competent jurisdiction from the person who is then the owner of the land any expenses reasonably incurred by them in that behalf; and if that person, having been entitled to appeal to the court under the last foregoing section, failed to make such an appeal, he shall not be entitled in proceedings under this subsection to dispute the validity of the action taken by the local planning authority upon any ground which could have been raised by such an appeal. [2330]

(2) Any expenses incurred by the owner or occupier of any land for the purpose of complying with an enforcement notice served under the last foregoing section in respect of any development, and any sums paid by the owner of any land under the foregoing subsection in respect of the expenses of the local planning authority in taking steps required to be taken by such a notice, shall be deemed to be incurred or paid for the use and at the request of the person by whom the development was carried out. [2331]

(3) Where, by virtue of an enforcement notice, any use of land is required to be discontinued, or any conditions are required to be complied with in respect of any use of land or in respect of the carrying out of any operations thereon, then if any person, without the grant of permission in that behalf under this Part of this Act, uses the land or causes or permits the land to be used, or carries out or causes or permits to be carried out those operations, in contravention of the notice, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds; and if the use is continued after the conviction, he shall be guilty of a further offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds for every day on which the use is so continued. [2332]

(4) Nothing in this Part of this Act shall be construed as requiring permission to be obtained thereunder for the use of any land for the purpose for which it could lawfully have been used under this Part of this Act if the development in respect of which an enforcement notice is served under the last foregoing section had not been carried out. [2333]

(5) Provision may be made by regulations under this Act for applying in relation to steps required to be taken by an enforcement notice under the last foregoing section all or any of the following provisions of the Public Health Act, 1936, that is to say—

- (a) section two hundred and seventy-six (which empowers local authorities to sell materials removed in executing works under that Act, subject to accounting for the proceeds of sale);
- (b) section two hundred and eighty-nine (which confers power to require the occupier of any premises to permit works to be executed by the owner of the premises);
- (c) section two hundred and ninety-two (which confers power on local authorities to include a sum in respect of establishment charges in their expenses in executing works); and
- (d) section two hundred and ninety-four (which limits the liability of persons holding premises as agents or trustees in respect of the expenses recoverable under that Act);

subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be specified in the regulations, and any such regulations may provide for the charging on the land of any expenses recoverable by a local authority under this section.

[2334]

Effect of section.—The provisions of this section, which are a logical corollary to those of the preceding section, take the position a stage further. In the case of non-compliance with an enforcement notice, local planning authorities are authorised to enter on the land and themselves take the steps required by the notice, though this procedure does not apply where it is a change of use that is required.

Liability, as it were, runs with the land, for it is from the owner for the time being that local planning authorities can recover their expenses, but successors in title of the original developer can recover expenses from him.

Further, sub-s. (3) provides for enforcement notices to be enforced by criminal proceedings with default fines applicable to offences continuing after conviction.

Owner.—It is from the owner that these expenses are recoverable; but note the provision contained in sub-s. (2), supra.

Reasonably incurred.—These words are important. The Court would be able to decide whether or not the expenses have been reasonably incurred (L.C.C. v. Harling Street, [1935] 2 K. B. 322).

For the use and at the request.—This implies a type of the so-called constructive contract. Where a payment is made at the request of another and strictly for his use, a promise to repay the amount will be implied, even though the person at whose request the payment was made has not thereby been relieved from any legal claim (see 7 Halsbury's Laws (2nd Edn.) 261 et seq.).

Twenty pounds for every day.—If a use is continued by a person after he has been convicted, the legal maximum of the default fine to which he becomes liable can soon become extremely heavy, though the maximum fine would no doubt only be imposed by the justices in the most flagrant cases. It is, perhaps, worthy of note in this connection that the maximum imprisonment that can be imposed by the Bench as an alternative to payment is limited to three months however high the amount of the fine under this section (Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, s. 5; 11 Halsbury's Statutes 324).

For recent examples of similar fines, see the Cotton (Centralised Buying) Act, 1947, s. 6 (2) (10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 26) and regulation 58A (3) of the Defence (General) Regulations, 1939, S. R. & O., 1939, No. 927, as amended.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post.

Public Health Act, 1936, ss. 276, 289, 292 and 294.—29 Halsbury's Statutes 499, 509, 512, 513. The effect of these sections is shortly summarised in the text, ante, and s. 276 is reproduced in the notes to s. 26, post.

Definitions.—As to "enforcement notice," see s. 23 (2), ante; as to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "use," "land," "owner" and "local authority," see s. 119 (1), post.

25. Agreements regulating development or use of land.—(1) A local planning authority may, with the approval of the Minister, enter into an agreement with any person interested in land in their area for the purpose of restricting or regulating the development or use of the land, either permanently or during such period as may be prescribed by the agreement, and any such agreement may contain such incidental and consequential provisions (including provisions of a financial character) as appear to the local planning authority to be necessary or expedient for the purposes of the agreement.

(2) An agreement made under this section with any person interested in land may be enforced by the local planning authority against persons deriving title under that person in respect of that land as if the local planning authority were possessed of adjacent land and as if the agreement had been expressed to be made for the benefit of such land. [2336]

(3) Nothing in this section or in any agreement made thereunder shall be construed as restricting the exercise, in relation to land which is the subject of any such agreement, of any powers exercisable by any Minister or authority under this Act so long as those powers are exercised in accordance with the provisions of the development plan or in accordance with any directions which may have been given by the Minister under section thirty-six of this Act, or as requiring the exercise of any such powers otherwise than as aforesaid. [2337]

(4) The power of a local planning authority to make agreements under this section may be exercised also—

- (a) in relation to land in a county district, by the council of that district;
- (b) in relation to land in the area of a joint planning board, by the council of the county or county borough in which the land is situated.

and references in this section to a local planning authority shall be construed accordingly. [2338]

General note.—Under this section local authorities may enter into agreements with owners regulating the development or use of land and may enforce such agreements as if they were restrictive covenants. It continues the power given by s. 34 of the 1932 Act. For the provisions relating to the continuance of s. 34 agreements already made, see para. 10 of Sched. X, post.

Dealing with agreements under the said s. 34, the Lord Chancellor, at the Committee Stage of the Bill in the House of Lords on July 1, 1947, indicated the type of agreements contemplated by this section:—

"Therefore agreements which deal with many various sorts of things—for instance, with waiver of claims for compensation, for injurious affection in respect of certain lands on condition that no claims were made by the authorities for betterment in respect of development of other land; for granting gifts of land in consideration of permission to develop other land; for permitting public right of access to private lands in consideration of permission to develop other land; for granting permission to develop or redevelop land on condition that the value of the works was discounted in computing the consideration on a subsequent purchase of the property by the authority" (149 H. of L. Official Report 642).

Agreements under this section cannot permanently override the powers of the Act. Any agreement under this section which is a "prohibition of or restriction on the user or mode of user of land or buildings" should be registered in the register of local land charges; see s. 15 of the Land Charges Act, 1925, as amended by the Schedule to the Law of Property (Amendment) Act, 1926 (15 Halsbury's Statutes 538). See amendments of the substituted sub-s (7) of s. 15 of the said Act of 1925 contained in Part II of Sched. IX, post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

As appear to be necessary or expedient.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the words "If it appears to the Minister."

Enforced against persons deriving title.—The effect of sub-s. (2) is to make the agreements referred to enforceable as if they were restrictive covenants the benefit and burden of which run with the land under the equitable doctrine of Tulk v. Moxhay (1848), 2 Ph. 774.

The subsection may be compared with other statutory provisions designed to make covenants run with the land; see the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, s. 34 (2) (25 Halsbury's Statutes 506); the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, s. 3 (4) (37 Halsbury's Statutes 428); the Water Act, 1945 s. 15 (2) (38 Halsbury's Statutes 507); and the Forestry Act, 1947 (10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 21), s. 1 (2).

The essential elements necessary to the enforcement of restrictive covenants under the general law were stated by Farwell, J., in Zetland v. Driver, [1939] Ch. 1; [1938] 2 All E. R. 158, at p. 161.

As to restrictive covenants generally, see 29 Halsbury's Laws (2nd Edn.) 441, and Cheshire's Modern Law of Real Property (5th Edn.), pp. 301 et seq.

Joint planning board.—The provisions as to the establishment by the Minister of such joint boards are contained in s. 4 (2), ante.

Definitions.—As to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; as to "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "development plan," see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land," "use" and "Minister" (as in the phrase "any Minister"), see ss. 119 (1), post.

Additional powers of control

26. Powers relating to authorised uses.—(1) Without prejudice to the provisions of this Part of this Act with respect to the service of enforcement notices, if it appears to a local planning authority that it is expedient in the interests of the proper planning of their area (including the interests of amenity), regard being had to the development plan and to any other material considerations—

- (a) that any use of land should be discontinued, or that any conditions should be imposed on the continuance thereof; or
- (b) that any building or works should be altered or removed.

they may by order require the discontinuance of that use, or impose such conditions as may be specified in the order on the continuance thereof, or require such steps as may be so specified to be taken for the alteration or removal of the buildings or works, as the case may be:

Provided that no such order shall take effect unless it is confirmed by the Minister, and the Minister may confirm any order submitted to him for the purpose either without modification or subject to such modifications as he considers expedient. [2339]

(2) Where a local planning authority submit an order to the Minister for his confirmation under this section, that authority shall serve notice on the owner and on the occupier of the land affected, and on any other person who in their opinion will be affected by the order; and if within the period specified in that behalf in the notice (not being less than twenty-eight days from the service thereof) any person on whom the notice is served so requires, the Minister shall, before confirming the order, afford to that person, and to the local planning authority, an opportunity of appearing before and being heard by a person appointed by the Minister for the purpose. [2340]

(3) Where an order under this section has been confirmed by the Minister, a copy of the order shall be served by the local planning authority on the owner and occupier of the land to which the order relates. [2341]

(4) Where, by virtue of an order made under this section, the use of any land for any purpose is required to be discontinued, or any conditions are imposed on the continuance thereof, then if any person, without the grant of permission in that behalf under this Part of this Act, uses the land for that purpose or, as the case may be, uses the land for that purpose in contravention of those conditions, or causes or permits the land to be so used, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds; and if the use is continued after conviction, he shall be guilty of a further offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds for every day on which the use is so continued. [2342]

(5) If within the period prescribed in that behalf by an order under this section any steps required by that order to be taken for the alteration or removal of any buildings or works have not been taken, the local planning authority may, and shall if so required by directions of the Minister, enter on the land and take those steps and section two hundred and seventy-six of the Public Health Act, 1936 (which empowers local authorities to sell materials removed in executing works under that Act, subject to accounting for the proceeds of sale) shall apply in relation to any works executed by a local planning authority under this section as it applies in relation to works executed by a local authority under that Act. [2343]

(6) An order under this section may grant permission for any development of the land to which the order relates subject to such conditions as may be specified in the order; and the provisions of this Part of this Act shall apply in relation to any permission so granted as they apply in relation to permission granted by the local planning authority on an application in that behalf made thereunder. [2344]

(7) Where the requirements of any order under this section will involve the displacement of persons residing in any premises, it shall be the duty of the local planning authority, in so far as there is not other residential accommodation suitable to the reasonable requirements of those persons available on reasonable terms, to secure the provision of such accommodation in advance of the displacement. [2345]

General note.—This section gives power to bring existing uses into line with the plan. Similar power was given in s. 13 of the 1932 Act; but there action was taken on the order of the local authority requiring the works to be brought into conformity with the scheme. The Minister did not come into the picture and the only appeal was to a court of summary jurisdiction on grounds similar to those permitted against enforcement notices under the present Act.

Sub-ss. (1) and (2), ante, may usefully be compared with s. 21 (1) and (2), ante, and sub-s. (4), ante, may be similarly compared with s. 24 (3), ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Serve notice.—For the general provisions as to service of notices under the Act, see s. 105, post.

Twenty pounds for every day.—See note to s. 24, ante.

Public Health Act, 1936, s. 276.—29 Halsbury's Statutes 499. This section is as follows:—

"(1) A local authority may sell any materials which have been removed by them from any premises, including any street, when executing works under, or otherwise carrying into effect the provisions of, this Act, and which are not before the expiration of three days from the date of their removal claimed by the owner and taken away by him.

"(2) Where a local authority sell any materials under this section, they shall pay the proceeds to the person to whom the materials belonged after deducting the amount of any expenses recoverable by them from him.

"(3) This section does not apply to refuse removed by a local authority."

This section may also be applied under s. 24 (5), ante, in the circumstances of that section.

Sub-s. 6.—A permission granted under this subsection may forestall the service of a purchase notice under s. 19, ante, and force the owner to ask compensation for depreciation under s. 27, post.

Definitions.—As to "enforcement notices," see s. 23 (2), ante; as to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; as to "development plan," see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "use," "land," "buildings or works," "owner" and "local authority," see s. 119 (1), post.

27. Provisions supplementary to s. 26.—(1) Where an order is made under the last foregoing section requiring any use of land to be discontinued, or imposing conditions on the continuance thereof, or requiring any buildings or works on land to be altered or removed, then if, on a claim made to the local planning authority within the time and in the manner prescribed by regulations under this Act, it is shown that any person has suffered damage in consequence of the order by the depreciation of any interest in the land to which he is entitled or by being disturbed in his enjoyment of the land, that authority shall pay to that person compensation in respect of that damage; and any compensation payable under this subsection in respect of the depreciation in the value of an interest in the land shall be assessed in accordance with the provisions of the Fourth Schedule to this Act. [2346]

(2) Without prejudice to the foregoing provisions of this section and subject to the provisions of paragraph 4 of the Fourth Schedule to this Act, any person who carries out any works in compliance with an order under the last foregoing section shall be entitled, on a claim made as aforesaid, to recover from the local planning authority compensation in respect of any expenses reasonably incurred by him in that behalf. [2347]

(3) If any person entitled to an interest in land in respect of which an order is made under the last foregoing section claims that by reason of the order the land is incapable of reasonably beneficial use in its existing state and that it cannot be rendered capable of reasonably beneficial use by the carrying out of any development for which permission has been granted under this Part of this Act, whether by that order or otherwise, he may serve a purchase notice in respect of his interest in accordance with the provisions of subsection (1) of section nineteen of this Act; and in relation to a purchase notice so served the provisions of the said section nineteen shall apply as they apply in relation to a notice served under subsection (1) of that section, subject to the following modifications:—

(a) in subsection (2), for the words “the conditions specified in paragraphs (a) to (c) of the foregoing subsection” there shall be substituted the words “the conditions specified in subsection (3) of section twenty-seven of this Act”;

(b) for paragraph (a) of the proviso to the said subsection (2) there shall be substituted the following paragraph:—

“(a) if it appears to the Minister to be expedient so to do he may, in lieu of confirming the purchase notice, revoke the order under section twenty-six of this Act or, as the case may be amend that order so far as appears to him to be required in order to prevent the land from being rendered incapable of reasonably beneficial use by the order.” [2348]

(4) Where a purchase notice in respect of any interest in land is served under the said section nineteen in consequence of an order made in relation to the land under the last foregoing section, then if that interest is purchased in accordance with the said section nineteen, or if compensation is payable in respect thereof under subsection (3) of section twenty of this Act, no compensation shall be payable under this section in respect of that order. [2349]

(5) Except as provided by this section, no purchase notice shall be served under the said section nineteen in respect of an interest in land while the land is incapable of reasonably beneficial use by reason only of an order made under the last foregoing section. [2350]

General note.—Under this section compensation is payable for any depreciation in the “existing use” value caused by an order under s. 26, ante. The compensation will be the difference between the value of that use calculated under s. 51 for the purpose of compulsory purchase and whatever its value would be for whatever other use is permitted after the order is made. Compensation will also be payable for disturbance.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post.

Depreciation.—Note that by para. 1 of Sched. IV compensation under ss. 20, 22 and 27 is compensation in respect of depreciation. S. 20, ante, deals with the manner of calculating the depreciation.

Sched. IV.—Sched. IV applies the rules of s. 2 of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919; but note that under s. 51, post, values for compulsory purchase must now be based on the assumption that permission to develop will only be granted in respect of development specified in Sched. III.

Incapable of reasonably beneficial use.—See s. 19, ante.

Purchase notice.—See s. 19, ante. For compensation payable when a purchase notice is not confirmed because of the grant of permission for other development, see s. 20 (3), ante.

If it appears to the Minister.—See note to s. 4, ante.

Definitions.—As to “local planning authority,” see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to “development,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “use,” “land” and “buildings or works,” see s. 119 (1), post.

28. Orders for preservation of trees and woodlands.—(1) If it appears to a local planning authority that it is expedient in the interests of amenity to make provision for the preservation of trees or woodlands in their area, they may for that purpose make an order (in this Act referred to as a “tree preservation order”) with respect to such trees, groups of trees or woodlands as may be specified in the order; and, in particular, provision may be made by any such order—

- (a) for prohibiting (subject to any exemptions for which provision may be made by the order) the cutting down, topping, lopping or wilful destruction of trees except with the consent of the local planning authority, and for enabling that authority to give their consent subject to conditions;
- (b) for securing the replanting, in such manner as may be prescribed by or under the order, of any part of a woodland area which is felled in the course of forestry operations permitted by or under the order;
- (c) for applying, in relation to any consent under the order, and to applications therefor, any of the provisions of this Part of this Act relating to permission to develop land, and to applications for such permission, subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be specified in the order;
- (d) for the payment by the local planning authority, subject to such exceptions and conditions as may be specified in the order, of compensation in respect of damage or expenditure caused or incurred in consequence of the refusal of any consent required under the order, or of the grant of any such consent subject to conditions.

(2) A tree preservation order shall not be made in relation to any land in respect of which a Forestry Dedication Covenant is in force under the Forestry Act, 1947, or in respect of which advances have been made by the Forestry Commissioners under the Forestry Acts, 1919 to 1947. [2352]

(3) A tree preservation order shall not take effect until it is confirmed by the Minister, and the Minister may confirm any such order either without modification or subject to such modifications as he considers expedient. [2353]

(4) Provision may be made by regulations under this Act with respect to the form of tree preservation orders, and the procedure to be followed in connection with the submission and confirmation of such orders, and such regulations shall, in particular, make provision for securing—

- (a) that notice shall be given to the owners and occupiers of land affected by any such order of the submission to the Minister of the order;
- (b) that objections and representations with respect to the proposed order duly made in accordance with the regulations shall be considered before the order is confirmed by the Minister; and
- (c) that copies of the order when confirmed by the Minister shall be served on the owners and occupiers of the land to which it relates:

Provided that where it appears to the Minister that any such order should take effect immediately, he may confirm the order provisionally without complying with the requirements of any such regulations with respect to the consideration of objections and representations, but any order so confirmed shall cease to have effect upon the expiration of two months from the date on which it is so confirmed unless within that period it has again been confirmed, with or without modifications, after compliance with those requirements. [2354]

(5) Without prejudice to any other exemption for which provision may be made by a tree preservation order, no such order shall apply to the cutting down, topping or lopping of trees which are dying or dead or have become dangerous or the cutting down, topping or lopping of any trees in compliance with any obligation imposed by or under any Act of Parliament or so far as may be necessary for the prevention or abatement of a nuisance. [2355]

(6) If any person contravenes the provisions of a tree preservation order, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds; and if in the case of a continuing offence the contravention is continued after the conviction, he shall be guilty of a further offence and liable on summary conviction to an additional fine not exceeding forty shillings for every day on which the contravention is so continued. [2356]

General note.—This section amplifies existing planning provisions for securing the preservation on amenity grounds of trees and woodlands, and brings them within the framework of the present Act.

S. 46 of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932 (25 Halsbury's Statutes 512), made provision for the preservation of trees by allowing protective provisions to be inserted in town planning schemes, including requirements as to the replanting of felled areas.

Later, the Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943, s. 8 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 248), made fairly elaborate provision for the making of "interim preservation orders" and it is these orders which, under the amended provisions of the present section, give place to the new "tree preservation orders." Provision may be made for payment of compensation by the local planning authorities, but, subject to this, the question of compensation is left to be settled by the orders in the light of the particular circumstances in which they are made.

Note that as from July 1, 1948, the whole of the 1932 and 1943 Acts, referred to above, are repealed (ss. 113, 120 and Sched. IX, Part II, post).

The Explanatory Memorandum on the Bill (Cmd. 7006) stated of the present section, at p. 14: "This provision will not be used to prevent the felling of trees required for timber."

Presumably any order made under the present section should be registered as a local land charge (see note to s. 26, ante).

If it appears to a local planning authority . . . where it appears to the Minister.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the phrase "If it appears to the Minister."

Forestry dedication covenants.—By s. 1 (1) of the Forestry Act, 1947 (10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 21), the expression "forestry dedication covenant" means "a covenant entered into with the Forestry Commissioners . . . to the effect that land shall not, except with the previous consent in writing of the Commissioners or, in case of dispute, under direction of the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries, be used otherwise than for the growing of timber (within the meaning of section three of the Forestry Act, 1919) in accordance with the rules or practice of good forestry or for purposes connected therewith, being a covenant not containing any expression of intention contrary to the application of section seventy-nine of the Law of Property Act, 1925 (which provides that, unless a contrary intention is expressed, a covenant relating to any land of a covenantor or capable of being bound by him shall be deemed to be made by the covenantor on behalf of himself or his successors in title and the persons deriving title under him or them)."

For the Forestry Act, 1919, s. 3, see 3 Halsbury's Statutes 444, and for the Law of Property Act, 1925, s. 79, see 15 Halsbury's Statutes 257.

Forestry Act, 1947.—10 & 11 Geo. 6, c. 21.

Advances have been made.—By the Forestry Act, 1919, s. 3 (3) (d) (3 Halsbury's Statutes 445), as amended by the Forestry Act, 1945, s. 10 and Sched. II (38 Halsbury's Statutes 22, 24) the Forestry Commissioners are empowered to make advances by way of grant or by way of loan to persons in respect of the afforestation (including the replanting) of land belonging to those persons. In exercising this power the Commissioners are to comply with any directions given to them by the appropriate Minister (see s. 2 of the Act of 1945; 38 Halsbury's Statutes 17).

Forestry Acts, 1919 to 1947.—These Acts are the Forestry Act, 1919 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 443); the Forestry (Transfer of Woods) Act, 1923 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 459); the Forestry Act, 1927 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 464); the Forestry Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 16); and the Forestry Act, 1947, supra.

Forestry Commissioners.—The Forestry Commissioners were originally appointed under the Forestry Act, 1919, s. 1 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 443), but since the passing of the Forestry Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 16), which provided for the reconstitution of the Forestry Commission, they have been appointed under s. 1 of that Act (38 Halsbury's Statutes 17). They are appointed by His Majesty to the maximum number of ten, including a chairman. At least three of their number are to have special knowledge and experience of forestry and at least one is to have scientific attainments and a technical knowledge of forestry.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Regulations under this Act.—For the general provisions applicable thereto, see s. 111, post.

Obligation imposed by or under any Act.—Examples of obligations imposed by Act of Parliament in relation to the lopping of trees arise under (a) the Highway Act, 1835, s. 65 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 81), whereby justices of the peace are empowered to summon owners of land adjoining carriageways or cartways to show cause why obstructing hedges or trees are not lopped, whereupon orders may be made for the owners to carry out the necessary work; and (b) the Public Health Act, 1923, s. 25 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 1123), under which local authorities may serve notices requiring the lopping or cutting of trees, hedges or shrubs overhanging streets or footpaths.

Prevention or abatement of a nuisance.—Boughs and branches of trees overhanging another person's land so as to be a nuisance may be cut off by the owner or occupier of such land without notice to the owner of the trees. Roots of trees growing under a neighbour's land and undermining his wall may also constitute a nuisance (see 1 Halsbury's Laws (2nd Edn.) 432, and the cases there cited; see also 24 Halsbury's Laws (2nd Edn.) 49 et seq.).

In the case of a continuing offence.—See note to s. 24, ante, headed "Twenty pounds for every day."

Definitions.—As to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "develop," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land" and "owner," see s. 119 (1), post.

29. Orders for preservation of buildings of special architectural or historic interest.—(1) If it appears to a local planning authority that it is expedient to make provision for the preservation of any building of special architectural or historic interest in their area, they may for that purpose make an order (in this Act referred to as a "building preservation order") restricting the demolition, alteration or extension of the building:

Provided that no such order shall be made in relation to a building being—

- (a) an ecclesiastical building which is for the time being used for ecclesiastical purposes;
- (b) a building which is the subject of a scheme or order under the enactments for the time being in force with respect to ancient monuments; or
- (c) a building for the time being included in a list of monuments published by the Minister of Works under any such enactment as aforesaid; and no such order shall be made so as to affect the powers of the Minister of Works under any such enactment as aforesaid. [2357]

(2) Provision may be made by a building preservation order—

- (a) for requiring the consent of the local planning authority to be obtained for the execution of works of any description specified in the order, and for applying, in relation to such consent and to applications therefor, any of the provisions of this Part of this Act relating to permission to develop land, and to applications for such permission, subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be specified in the order;
- (b) for enabling that authority, where any such works have been executed in contravention of the order, to require the restoration of the building to its former state, and for that purpose for applying any of the provisions of this Part of this Act with respect to enforcement notices, subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be specified in the order;
- (c) for the payment by that authority, subject to such exceptions and conditions as may be specified in the order, of compensation in respect of damage or expenditure caused or incurred in consequence of the refusal of any consent required under the order, or the grant of any such consent subject to conditions. [2358]

(3) A building preservation order shall not take effect until it is confirmed by the Minister, and the Minister may confirm any such order either without modification or subject to such modifications as he considers expedient:

Provided that no such order shall be made by the local planning authority, or confirmed by the Minister, unless he or they is or are satisfied that the execution of the works specified in the order would seriously affect the character of the building. [2359]

(4) Provision may be made by regulations under this Act with respect to the form of building preservation orders and the procedure to be followed in connection with the submission and confirmation of such orders, and such regulations shall, in particular, make provision for securing—

- (a) that notice shall be given to the owner and any occupier of the building affected by any such order of the submission to the Minister of the order ;
- (b) that objections and representations with respect to the proposed order duly made in accordance with the regulations shall be considered before the order is confirmed by the Minister ; and
- (c) that a copy of the order when confirmed by the Minister shall be served on the owner and any occupier of the building to which it relates :

Provided that where it appears to the Minister that any such order should take effect immediately, he may confirm the order provisionally without complying with the requirements of any such regulations with respect to the consideration of objections and representations, but any order so confirmed shall cease to have effect upon the expiration of two months from the date on which it is so confirmed unless within that period it has again been confirmed, with or without modifications, after compliance with those requirements. [2360]

(5) Without prejudice to any provisions included in the building preservation order by virtue of paragraph (b) of subsection (2) of this section, if any person, being the owner of a building in relation to which a building preservation order is in force or a person upon whom notice of such an order has been served by the authority by whom the order was made, executes or causes or permits to be executed any works in contravention of the order, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds. [2361]

(6) Nothing in this section or in any order made thereunder shall render unlawful the execution of any works which are urgently necessary in the interests of safety or health or for the preservation of the building or of neighbouring property, so long as notice in writing of the proposed execution of the works is given as soon as may be after the necessity for the works arises to the authority by whom the order was made. [2362]

(7) Works specified by the Minister as being required for properly maintaining a building in relation to which a building preservation order is in force and which is settled land within the meaning of the Settled Land Act, 1925, shall be added to the classes of works specified in Part II of the Third Schedule to that Act (which specifies improvements in or towards payment of which capital money may be applied, without any scheme being first submitted to the trustees of the settlement or the court, subject to provisions under which repayment of capital money applied may be required to be made out of income). [2363]

(8) The powers conferred on a local planning authority by this section to make a building preservation order may be exercised also by the council of the county district in which the building to which the order relates is situated ; and references in this Act to local planning authorities shall, in relation to the said powers, be construed as including references to the council of a county district. [2364]

General note.—This section replaces s. 17 of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 490), and s. 43 of the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 467), both of which are repealed by the present Act as from the appointed day (ss. 113, 120 and Sched. IX, Part II, post).

The " building preservation orders " for which provision is made by the present section have much in common with the tree preservation orders which are the subject of the preceding section, ante. Building preservation orders, which are to be made where it is desired to preserve buildings of special architectural or historic interest, will restrict the demolition, alteration or extension of the buildings, but a certain amount of latitude is allowed in that work which is urgently necessary in the interests of safety or health or for the preservation of the building or of neighbouring property may be carried out on written notice being given, and in other cases the Minister must be satisfied before confirming an order that the works in question would seriously affect the character of the building. Or perhaps one should say that a little latitude is " retained " since a similar provision appeared in the 1944 Act (Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, s. 43 (5), proviso ; 37 Halsbury's Statutes 468), though sub-s. (6) of the present section which confers the right did not appear in the Bill as originally presented, but was added by Ministerial Amendment at the Committee Stage in the House of Commons (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.D., March 12, 1947, col. 405).

As to the registration of any order as a local land charge, see note to s. 26, ante. See particularly s. 15 (7) (b) of the Land Charges Act, 1925 (as amended by the Schedule to the Law of Property (Amendment) Act, 1926 (printed, as amended, at 15 Halsbury's Statutes 539), and Part II of Sched. IX, post.

If it appears expedient.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the words "If it appears to the Minister."

Enactments . . . with respect to ancient monuments.—The principal Acts in this connection are the Ancient Monuments Consolidation and Amendment Act, 1913, and the Ancient Monuments Act, 1931 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 392 et seq.; 24 Halsbury's Statutes 296).

S. 22 of the former defines the phrase "ancient monument," and refers to the Schedule to the Ancient Monuments Protection Act, 1882 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 378), which listed the places ordered to be regarded as ancient monuments up to the time of passing of that Act. The whole of the Act of 1882 except such Schedule was repealed by the Act of 1913.

Special provision for ancient monuments is made passim by a number of Statutes, among them the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, ss. 1 (2) (c), 8 (1), and Sched. I, Part III, para. 12 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 55, 61, 65).

List of monuments published.—S. 12 of the Ancient Monuments Consolidation and Amendment Act, 1913 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 397), as amended and extended by s. 7 of the Ancient Monuments Act, 1931 (24 Halsbury's Statutes 301), empowers the Minister (formerly the Commissioners) of Works to prepare and publish from time to time lists of ancient monuments.

Minister of Works.—The Minister of Works now exercises the functions of the old Commissioners of Works under the Crown Lands Act, 1851 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 280), and the Commissioners of Works Act, 1852 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 293). By the Minister of Works and Planning Act, 1942 (35 Halsbury's Statutes 55), provision was made for the appointment of a Minister of Works and Planning, who, being duly appointed by the Crown thereunder, was later renamed the Minister of Works on the transfer of his town planning functions to the Minister of Town and Country Planning (Minister of Town and Country Planning Act, 1943; 36 Halsbury's Statutes 39).

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Regulations.—For the general provisions as to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post.

Service of notices.—See, generally, s. 105, post.

Fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.—Note that under sub-s. (5), ante, there is no provision for default fines as under ss. 24 (3), 26 (4) and 28 (6), ante, and 32 (3), post, for the simple reason that the offence under the present subsection is not a continuing one; if subsequent proceedings were taken in respect of the same act of executing or causing or permitting the execution of works, the plea of autrefois convict or autrefois acquit could be successfully maintained.

Settled Land Act, 1925.—17 Halsbury's Statutes 833. For Sched. III, Part II, to that Act, see 17 Halsbury's Statutes 969. The effect of sub-s. (7), ante, is to make maintenance works required by the Minister in respect of settled land authorised improvements, the capital cost of which the trustees of the settlement or the Court may require to be replaced by instalments out of income.

Definitions.—As to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; as to "develop," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "enforcement notices," see s. 23 (2), ante. For definitions of "building," "enactment," "land" and "owner," see s. 119 (1), post.

30. Lists of buildings of special architectural or historic interest.—(1) With a view to the guidance of local planning authorities in the performance of their functions under this Act in relation to buildings of special architectural or historic interest, the Minister shall compile lists of such buildings, or approve, either with or without modifications, such lists compiled by other persons or bodies of persons, and may amend any list so compiled or approved. [2365]

(2) As soon as may be after any list has been compiled or approved under this section, or any amendments of such a list have been made, a copy of so much of the list as relates to any county borough or county district, or of so much of the amendments as relate thereto, as the case may be, certified by or on behalf of the Minister to be a true copy thereof, shall be deposited with the clerk of the council of that borough or district and also, where that council is not the local planning authority, with the clerk of the local planning authority. [2366]

(3) Any such copy as aforesaid shall be registered in the register of local land charges, in such manner as may be prescribed by rules made for the purposes of this section under subsection (6) of section fifteen of the Land Charges Act, 1925, by the proper officer of the council of the county borough or county district. [2367]

(4) As soon as may be after the inclusion of any building in a list under this section, whether on the compilation or approval of the list or by the amendment thereof, or as soon as may be after any such list has been amended by the exclusion of any building therefrom, the Minister shall serve a notice on every owner and occupier of the building stating that the building has been included in, or excluded from, the list, as the case may be. [2368]

(5) Before compiling or approving, either with or without modifications, any list under this section, or amending any list thereunder, the Minister shall consult with such persons or bodies of persons as appear to him appropriate as having special knowledge of or interest in buildings of architectural and historic interest. [2369]

(6) So long as any building (not being a building to which an order under the last foregoing section applies or a building of any description specified in the proviso to subsection (1) of that section) is included in any list compiled or approved under this section, no person shall execute, or cause or permit to be executed, any works for the demolition of the building or for its alteration or extension in any manner which would seriously affect its character, unless at least two months before the works are executed notice in writing of the proposed works has been given to the local planning authority :

Provided that nothing in this subsection shall render unlawful the execution of any such works as aforesaid which are urgently necessary in the interests of safety or health, or for the preservation of the building or of neighbouring property, so long as notice is given as aforesaid as soon as may be after the necessity for the works arises. [2370]

(7) Where a local planning authority receive notice of any proposed works under the last foregoing subsection, they shall as soon as may be send a copy of the notice to the Minister and, except where the authority is the council of a county borough, to the council of the county district in which the building to which the notice relates is situated, and in either case to such other persons or bodies of persons as may be specified by directions of the Minister either generally or as respects the building in question. [2371]

(8) If any works are carried out in contravention of the provisions of subsection (6) of this section, the local planning authority may serve on the owner and occupier of the building a notice requiring such steps for restoring the building to its former state as may be specified in the notice to be taken within such period as may be so specified ; and in relation to any notice served under this subsection, the provisions of subsections (3) to (5) of section twenty-three of this Act and of section twenty-four of this Act shall, subject to such exceptions and modifications as may be prescribed by regulations under this Act, apply as those provisions apply in relation to an enforcement notice served under the said section twenty-three. [2372]

(9) Without prejudice to the provisions of the last foregoing subsection, if any person contravenes the provisions of subsection (6) of this section, he shall be guilty of an offence and shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds. [2373]

General note.—This section, which is supplementary to the preceding section, re-enacts s. 42 of the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 437) ; but whereas that section was permissive the present section is mandatory.

Sub-ss. (3) and (6)–(9), supra, are new.

Sub-s. (3) is necessary to ensure registration as the section would not otherwise come within s. 15 of the Land Charges Act, 1925, as amended (15 Halsbury's Statutes 538).

Sub-ss. (6), (7) and (9) are designed to restrain action until the local planning authority have had an opportunity of taking action under s. 29, ante.

Sub-s. (8) enables the authority to take enforcement proceedings where works have already been carried out.

As to the publication of existing lists, see 445 H. of C. Official Report 1497 et seq.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Land Charges Act, 1925, s. 15 (6).—15 Halsbury's Statutes 539.

Serving a notice.—As to service of notices, see s. 105, post.

Cause or permit.—These words were considered in Goodbarne v. Buck, [1940] K. B. 771 ; [1940] 1 All E. R. 613, C.A.

Ss. 23 (3)–(5) and 24.—See ante. These sections allow, inter alia, appeal to Magistrates' Courts with a further appeal to Quarter Sessions.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post.

Fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.—See note to s. 29, ante. The same considerations as there set forth apply to sub-s. (9), ante, in which these words occur. Note, however, that s. 24 (3), ante, the provisions of which are applied by the present section, includes provision for a default fine for continuing offences, but it seems likely that this will be one of the provisions to be excepted or modified by regulations issued under sub-s. (8), ante.

Definitions.—As to “local planning authority,” see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to “enforcement notice,” see s. 23 (2), ante. For definitions of “functions,” “building” and “owner,” see s. 119 (1), post.

31. Control of advertisements.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, provision shall be made by regulations under this Act for restricting or regulating the display of advertisements so far as appears to the Minister to be expedient in the interests of amenity or public safety, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provision, any such regulations may provide—

- (a) for regulating the dimensions, appearance and position of advertisements which may be displayed, the sites on which such advertisements may be displayed, and the manner in which they are to be affixed to land ;
- (b) for requiring the consent of the local planning authority to be obtained for the display of advertisements, or of advertisements of any class specified in the regulations ;
- (c) for applying, in relation to any such consent and to applications therefor, any of the provisions of this Part of this Act relating to permission to develop land and to applications for such permission, subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be specified in the regulations ;
- (d) for enabling the local planning authority to require the removal of any advertisement which is being displayed in contravention of the regulations, or the discontinuance of the use for the display of advertisements of any site which is being used for that purpose in contravention of the regulations, and for that purpose for applying any of the provisions of this Part of this Act with respect to enforcement notices, subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be specified in the regulations ;
- (e) for the constitution, for the purposes of the regulations, of such advisory committees as may be prescribed by the regulations, and for determining the manner in which the expenses of any such committee are to be defrayed. [2374]

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the powers conferred by paragraph (c) of the foregoing subsection, regulations made for the purposes of this section may provide that any appeal from the decision of the local planning authority on an application for their consent under the regulations shall lie to an independent tribunal constituted in accordance with the regulations instead of to the Minister. [2375]

(3) Regulations made for the purposes of this section may make different provision with respect to different areas, and in particular may make special provision with respect to areas defined for the purposes of the regulations as areas of special control (being either rural areas or areas other than rural areas which appear to the Minister to require special protection on grounds of amenity) ; and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provision may prohibit the display in any such area of all advertisements except advertisements of such classes (if any) as may be specified in the regulations. [2376]

(4) Areas of special control for the purposes of regulations under this section may be defined either by reference to provisions included in that behalf in development plans or by means of orders made or approved by the Minister in accordance with the provisions of the regulations :

Provided that where the Minister is authorised by the regulations to make or approve any such order as aforesaid, the regulations shall provide for the publication of notice of the proposed order in such manner as may be prescribed by the regulations, for the consideration of objections duly made thereto, and for the holding of such inquiries or other hearings as may be so prescribed, before the order is made or approved. [2377]

(5) Subject as hereinafter provided, regulations made under this section may be made so as to apply to advertisements which are being displayed on the date on which the regulations come into force, or to the use for the display of advertisements of any site which was being used for that purpose on that date :

Provided that any such regulations shall provide for exempting therefrom—

- (a) the continued display of any such advertisement as aforesaid ; and
- (b) the continued use for the display of advertisements of any such site as aforesaid, during such period as may be prescribed in that behalf by the regulations, and different periods may be so prescribed for the purposes of different provisions of the regulations. [2378]

General note.—This section needs careful consideration. It is not a mere re-enactment of s. 47 of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 513), but recasts the old law.

The control of advertisements, a term comprehensively defined in s. 119 (1), post, is brought within the development control provisions of the Act. This means that Mills and Rockleys, Ltd. v. Leicester City Council, [1946] K. B. 315 ; [1946] 1 All E. R. 424, no longer applies. Under the regulations which will be made under this section existing or future displays of advertisements may be prohibited. S. 61 (3) affects the calculation of the restricted value under the development value provisions of the Act and ss. 47 (7) and 19 (1) of the 1932 Act must be taken into account in calculating the unrestricted value. This must, however, be considered in the light of the interpretation given to s. 47 in Mills and Rockleys, Ltd. v. Leicester City Council, supra. Contrast also the five years' grace permitted under s. 47 (6) (iv) of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 514) with whatever period is permitted by the regulations. Also note that prohibitory action under s. 47 of the 1932 Act could only be taken when amenity was seriously injured.

As to the previous control of advertisements outside the provisions of town and country planning law, see the Advertisements Regulation Acts, 1907 and 1925 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 908, 1113), both of which are repealed as from the appointed day (ss. 113, 120 and Sched. IX, Part II, post).

Regulations.—See s. 111, post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Interests of amenity.—Under s. 47 of the 1932 Act action would be taken when the advertisement seriously injured the amenity. This might have ruled out action when the amenity had already been destroyed by existing advertisements. It is intended that regulations shall assist the reclamation of areas where the amenity has been destroyed (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.D., March 12, 1947, col. 407).

Application for . . . permission.—See s. 14, ante. Note also the power of the Minister under s. 15, ante, to require any application to be referred to him.

Enforcement notices.—See ss. 23 and 24, ante.

Independent tribunal.—When the Bill was considered in Committee the Minister stated that it was his intention, if he could get agreement on the part of the advertising industry and the local authorities, to set up an independent tribunal under a legal chairman probably in each planning division. If no agreement could be obtained he proposed that appeal should lie to the Minister (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.D., March 13, 1947, cols. 437-438).

If the Minister requires any application to be referred to himself, there will be no appeal, see s. 15 (3), ante. As to a hearing in such a case, see s. 15 (2), ante.

Areas of special control.—In his speech on the Second Reading of the Bill on January 29, 1947, the Minister said : "One of the most important features of the control would be the almost complete prohibition of outdoor advertising in certain specified areas . . . most rural areas will probably be protected in this way (432 H. of C. Official Report 966).

The Minister then went on to describe the probable exemptions "even in areas of total exclusion," listing them as "certain types of advertisements essential to the life of the community, for example, those which announce forthcoming events or shop signs indicating a man's calling, or perhaps even posters (432 H. of C. Official Report 966). Later, at the Committee Stage, the Minister said that the exceptions would be the subject of discussion with the advertising interests. He then suggested that the exemptions would include election posters, auction sales, recruiting and war savings advertisements, village dances and fetes, meetings of women's institutes and similar meetings (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.D., March 13, 1947, col. 423).

Some further guidance may be obtained from the repealed provisions of s. 47 (6) of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 514).

Development plans.—See ss. 5 to 11, ante.

Such period as may be prescribed.—Dealing with this matter in Committee, the Minister stated :—

“ It certainly is the intention in the Regulations to give a reasonable period of grace. I can say that in no case will there be, in respect of lawful advertisements properly put up, less than a year ” (H. of C. Official Report, S.C.D., March 13, 1947, col. 448).

Definitions.—As to “ local planning authority,” see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to “ develop,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “ advertisements,” “ land ” and “ use,” see s. 119 (1), post.

32. Provisions supplementary to s. 31.—(1) Where the display of advertisements in accordance with regulations made under the last foregoing section involves the development of land within the meaning of this Act, planning permission for that development shall be deemed to be granted by virtue of this section, and no application shall be necessary in that behalf under the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act. [2379]

(2) Where for the purpose of complying with any such regulations as aforesaid works are carried out by any person for the removal of advertisements being displayed on the date on which the regulations come into force or the discontinuance of the use for the display of advertisements of any site used for that purpose on that date, that person shall be entitled, on a claim made to the local planning authority within the time and in the manner prescribed by regulations under this Act, to recover from that authority compensation in respect of any expenses reasonably incurred by him in that behalf :

Provided that no compensation shall be payable under this subsection in respect of the removal of any advertisement which was not being displayed on the seventh day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-seven. [2380]

(3) Without prejudice to any provisions included in regulations made under the last foregoing section by virtue of paragraph (d) of subsection (1) of that section, if any person displays an advertisement in contravention of the provisions of the regulations, he shall be guilty of an offence and liable on summary conviction to a fine of such amount as may be prescribed by the regulations, not exceeding fifty pounds and in the case of a continuing offence, forty shillings for each day during which the offence continues after conviction. [2381]

(4) For the purposes of the last foregoing subsection and without prejudice to the generality thereof, a person shall be deemed to display an advertisement if—

- (a) the advertisement is displayed on land of which he is the owner or occupier ; or
- (b) the advertisement gives publicity to his goods, trade, business or other concerns :

Provided that a person shall not be guilty of an offence under the said subsection by reason only that an advertisement is displayed on land of which he is the owner or occupier, or that his goods, trade, business or other concerns are given publicity by the advertisement, if he proves that it was displayed without his knowledge or consent. [2382]

General note.—The purposes of this supplementary section are, first, to avoid duplication of applications for permission : one application is to cover consent under the regulations and consent for the purpose of development control ; secondly, to provide for the expenses of removing any prohibited display ; and thirdly, to make any contravention of the regulations an offence.

Regulations.—For the general provisions as to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post.
Not being displayed on January 7, 1947.—That is to say, when the provisions of the Bill became known.

Forty shillings for each day.—See note to s. 24, ante, on the phrase “ Twenty pounds for every day.”

The owner.—For definition, see s. 119 (1), post. See also s. 106, post, for power to require information as to ownership.

Not be guilty . . . if he proves.—Note that in the case of proceedings under sub-s. (3), supra, the burden of proving lack of knowledge or consent is upon the accused. Where is it desired to set up this defence, the appropriate plea is, of course, one of not guilty. In recent years clauses of a similar character have been inserted in a great number of statutes, e.g., where the facts are patent but it would be a matter of great difficulty to prove the knowledge or consent of the accused. A frequent example concerns the liability of directors and other officers of corporations which are charged with statutory offences; see, for instance, the Electricity Act, 1947, s. 62 (2), title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante.

Definitions.—As to “development” and “planning permission” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to “local planning authority,” see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “advertisement,” “land,” and “use,” see s. 119 (1), post.

33. Power to require proper maintenance of waste land, etc.—(1) If it appears to a local planning authority that the amenity of any part of the area of that authority, or of any adjoining area, is seriously injured by the condition of any garden, vacant site or other open land in their area, then, subject to any directions given by the Minister, the authority may serve on the owner and occupier of the land, in the manner prescribed by regulations under this Act, a notice requiring such steps for abating the injury as may be specified in the notice to be taken within such period as may be so specified. [2383]

(2) In relation to any notice served under this section, the provisions of subsections (3) to (5) of section twenty-three of this Act, and of section twenty-four of this Act shall, subject to such exceptions and modifications as may be prescribed by regulations under this Act, apply as those provisions apply in relation to an enforcement notice served under the said section twenty-three. [2384]

General note.—This section reproduces a power which has usually been conferred by statutory planning schemes made under the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 470). Compare sub-s. (2), supra, with s. 30 (8), ante.

If it appears.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the words “If it appears to the Minister.”

Amenity.—The word “amenity” is obviously used very loosely; it appears to mean “pleasant circumstances, features, advantages” (Re Ellis and Ruislip-Northwood U.D.C., [1920] 1 K. B. 343, per SCRUTTON, L.J.).

Seriously injured.—To justify action under this section it is not enough that the amenity should be injured, it must be seriously injured. The Explanatory Memorandum on the Bill (Cmd. 7006) refers, at p. 15, to “action where waste land has become an eyesore.”

Other open land.—It is thought that this does not mean that the land must necessarily be open to the public; in this context it suggests land which is open to the view of the public.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Serve.—As to service of notices, see s. 105, post.

Owner.—For definition, see s. 119 (1), post. For power to require information as to ownership of land, see s. 106, post.

Regulations.—See s. 111, post.

Definitions.—As to “local planning authority,” see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post. The meaning of “land” as used in the present section appears to be restricted by the context, in which case the definition in s. 119 (1), post, would apply only in a modified form.

Supplemental

34. Delegation of functions to councils of county districts, etc.—(1) The Minister may, after consultation with such local authorities or associations of local authorities as he considers appropriate, make regulations for authorising or requiring local planning authorities to delegate to the councils of county districts in their areas, with or without restrictions, any of their functions under this Part of this Act, and such regulations may be made so as to apply generally to all local planning authorities (other than the councils of county boroughs) or to such of those authorities as may be specified in the regulations. [2385]

(2) In relation to a local planning authority being a joint planning board, the foregoing provisions of this section shall have effect as if the reference therein to the councils of county districts in their area included a reference to the councils of counties and county boroughs therein. [2386]

(3) Any regulations made for the purposes of this section may make provision—

(a) for requiring any council to whom functions are delegated in accordance with the regulations to perform those functions on behalf of the local planning authority;

- (b) for transferring to any such council any liability of the local planning authority to pay compensation under this Part of this Act in respect of anything done by that council in the exercise of functions delegated to them in accordance with the regulations ;
- (c) for the transfer and compensation of any officers of a local planning authority or of any such council as aforesaid. [2387]

Regulations.—As to regulations generally, see s. 111, post. Under the present section the Minister, on November 21, 1947, made the Town and Country Planning (Authorisation of Delegation) Regulations, 1947 (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 2499), allowing local planning authorities (other than county borough councils), by agreements with the consent of the Minister, to delegate to county district councils any of their functions under Part III of the Act, subject to the detailed provisions of the regulations. See also Town and Country Planning Circular No. 37/47.

In the last-named Circular the Minister expressed the view that county councils should retain sufficient control to ensure that the making of the development plan was not prejudiced, while making full use of the local knowledge of the district councils.

For special provisions relating to London, see s. 114, post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

As he considers appropriate.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the words "If it appears to the Minister."

Requiring.—The common law rule is that delegated powers may be resumed at any time, and an authority who have delegated powers to another authority can exercise those powers without first expressly revoking the delegation (Huth v. Clarke (1890), 25 Q. B. D. 391; Richardson v. Abertillery U.D.C. (1928), 92 J. P. 59).

The application of this rule can, however, be excluded by provision in the regulations.

Requiring any council.—It seems that the local planning authority might be compelled by regulations to delegate functions to certain councils and the latter compelled to accept the delegated powers and exercise them on behalf of the local planning authority.

Definitions.—As to "local planning authorities," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "joint planning board," see s. 4 (2), ante. For definitions of "local authority" and "functions," see s. 119 (1), post.

35. Application to local authorities and statutory undertakers.—(1) Where the authorisation of a government department is required by virtue of any enactment in respect of development to be carried out by any local authority or by any statutory undertakers not being a local authority, that department may, upon granting that authorisation, direct that permission for that development shall be deemed to be granted under this Part of this Act, subject to such conditions, if any, as may be specified in the directions ; and the provisions of this Part of this Act shall apply in relation to any permission deemed to be granted by virtue of such directions as if it had been granted by the Minister on an application referred to him under section fifteen of this Act. [2388]

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions of the foregoing subsection, the provisions set out in the Fifth Schedule to this Act (being provisions re-enacting with additions and modifications sections thirty-five and thirty-six of the Act of 1944) shall have effect for the purposes of the application of this Part of this Act to land of statutory undertakers being operational land as defined by this Act, and to the development of such land by such undertakers :

Provided that the provisions of the said Schedule shall not apply in relation to the display of advertisements on operational land. [2389]

(3) In relation to land of local planning authorities, and to the development by local authorities of land in respect of which they are the local planning authority, the provisions of this Part of this Act (including, in the case of a local planning authority who carry on a statutory undertaking, the last foregoing subsection and the Fifth Schedule to this Act) shall have effect subject to such exceptions and modifications as may be prescribed by regulations made under this Act, and in particular such regulations may (subject to the provisions of subsection (1) of this section) provide for securing—

- (a) that any application by such an authority for permission to develop such land, or for any other consent required in relation to such land under this Part of this Act, shall be made to the Minister instead of to the local planning authority ;

- (b) that any notice or order authorised to be served or made under this Part of this Act in relation to such land shall be served or made by the Minister instead of by that authority. [2390]

(4) For the purposes of this section and of the Fifth Schedule to this Act development by a local authority or by statutory undertakers shall be deemed to be authorised by a government department if—

- (a) any consent, authority or approval to or for the development is granted by the department in pursuance of any enactment;
- (b) a compulsory purchase order is confirmed by the department authorising the purchase of land for the purpose of the development;
- (c) consent is granted by the department to the appropriation of land for the purpose of the development or the acquisition of land by agreement for that purpose;
- (d) authority is given by the department for the borrowing of money for the purpose of the development, or for the application for that purpose of any money not otherwise so applicable; or
- (e) any undertaking is given by the department to pay a grant in respect of the development in accordance with any enactment authorising the payment of such grants, and references in this section and in the said Fifth Schedule to the authorisation of a government department shall be construed accordingly. [2391]

(5) The references in subsection (3) of this section to local planning authorities shall be construed as including references to any council to whom functions of a local planning authority are delegated in pursuance of regulations made under the last foregoing section. [2392]

General note.—Under sub-s. (1) of this section, where the authorisation of a government department (as such authorisation is defined in sub-s. (4)) is required for any development by a statutory undertaking, that authorisation may direct that planning permission shall be deemed to have been granted.

No doubt, before any authorisation is given under this section, there will be consultations on at least departmental level between the department concerned and the Ministry of Town and Country Planning (see H. of C. Official Report, S.C.D., March 13, 1947, col. 495). At the same time the provision could cause much detriment to good planning. Together with the exemption granted to Crown land by s. 87, post, it leaves a substantial gap in the planning code.

Where such authorisation is not granted, the jurisdiction of the Minister in respect of any matters arising on the development of operational land under this Part of the Act will be shared with the Minister appropriate to the particular undertaking; and the joint decisions of the Ministers can be subject to the procedure set out in the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 439). This applies also to any orders as to revocation or discontinuance.

When development is carried out by a local authority which is also the planning authority, initial application will be made to the Minister. When the development relates to operational land of a statutory undertaking carried on by the authority, the provisions of the section relating to statutory undertakings will also apply.

Authorisation of a government department.—See sub-s. (4), supra.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

S. 15.—See ante. This section gives power to the Minister to direct that any application shall be referred to the Minister for determination instead of being considered by the local planning authority. There is no appeal against the decision of the Minister when an application is referred under this section.

Ss. 35 and 36 of the Act of 1944.—37 Halsbury's Statutes 463, 464. These sections related to applications for and revocation of interim development permission, and, being replaced by Sched. V, post, are repealed as from July 1, 1948 (ss. 113, 120 and Sched. IX, Part II, post).

Display of advertisements.—See ss. 31 and 32, ante, and the provision as to the construction of this phrase contained in s. 119 (1), post.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post.

Service of notices.—For the general conditions applicable, see s. 105, post.

Consent, authority or approval . . . is granted.—E.g. where the Minister of Health authorises fire authorities to purchase land compulsorily under s. 3 (5) of the Fire Services Act, 1947 (see title FIRE PROTECTION, ante).

Compulsory purchase order is confirmed.—E.g. under s. 161 of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 394).

Acquisition of land by agreement.—E.g. under s. 158 of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 392).

Sub-s. (5).—As to delegation, see s. 34, ante, and the notes thereto.

Definitions.—As to “local planning authority,” see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to “development” and “develop,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “government department,” “enactment,” “local authority,” “statutory undertakers,” “land,” “operational land” and “functions,” see s. 119 (1), post.

36. Temporary provisions pending approval of plans.—Where, under the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act, a local planning authority are required to have regard to the provisions of the development plan in relation to the exercise of any of their functions, then, in relation to the exercise of those functions during any period before such a plan has become operative with respect to the area of that authority, that authority shall have regard to any directions which may be given to them by the Minister as to the provisions to be included in such a plan, and subject to any such directions shall have regard to the provisions which in their opinion will be required to be so included for securing the proper planning of the said area. [2393]

Effect of section.—This section has the effect of imposing a form of interim development control until the development plan has become operative. All the powers of Part III of the Act will be exercised having regard to the provisions which it is intended to include in the plan, whether under direction from the Minister or generally for the purpose of planning.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Definitions.—As to “local planning authority,” see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; as to “development plan,” see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definition of “functions,” see s. 119 (1), post.

PART IV

ACQUISITION OF LAND, ETC.

Acquisition and disposal of land for planning purposes

37. Compulsory acquisition of land by Ministers, local authorities and statutory undertakers.—(1) Where any land is designated by a development plan under this Act as subject to compulsory acquisition by any Minister, local authority or statutory undertakers, that Minister or authority or those undertakers may be authorised to acquire that land compulsorily in accordance with the provisions of this section. [2394]

(2) If, during the period before a development plan has become operative under this Act with respect to any area—

- (a) the Minister and the Minister of Works are satisfied that the acquisition of any land in that area is necessary for the public service or otherwise for the purposes of any of the functions of the Minister of Works; or
- (b) the Minister and the Postmaster-General are satisfied that the acquisition of any such land is necessary for the purposes of the Post Office, the Minister of Works or the Postmaster-General, as the case may be, may be authorised to purchase that land compulsorily in accordance with the provisions of this section. [2395]

(3) The compulsory acquisition of land under this section may be authorised—

- (a) in the case of land designated by a development plan as subject to acquisition by a Minister, by that Minister;
- (b) in the case of land so designated as subject to acquisition by a local authority, by the Minister concerned with the functions in question;
- (c) in the case of land so designated as subject to acquisition by any statutory undertakers, by the Minister who is the appropriate Minister for the purposes of those undertakers;
- (d) in the case of any such land as is mentioned in subsection (2) of this section, by the Minister of Works or the Postmaster-General, as the case may be. [2396]

(4) The Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, shall apply to the compulsory acquisition of land under this section, and accordingly shall have effect—

- (a) as if this section had been in force immediately before the commencement of that Act ;
- (b) as if any reference in that Act to a local authority (except the references thereto in subsection (2) of section one and in paragraph 9 of the First Schedule) included a reference to statutory undertakers ; and
- (c) as if references therein to the Minister of Transport and to the enactments specified in paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of section one of that Act included respectively references to any Minister and to the provisions of this section. [2397]

(5) Any expenses incurred by the Minister of Transport in the acquisition of land under this section for the purpose of the construction or improvement of a road shall be defrayed out of the road fund. [2398]

General note.—Designation may be for either of two purposes. It may be for some statutory purpose where the power to acquire derives from some other enactment or it may be for planning purposes, in which case the power to acquire is derived from the present Act. This section is concerned with the first case—acquisitions authorised under other enactments.

If the land is designated, then the subsequent acquisition will be by means of a compulsory purchase order submitted by the acquiring Minister, authority, or undertaker, to whatever Minister would be the appropriate confirming authority under the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 52), and the enactment from which the power to acquire is derived. It would appear that the procedure for speedy acquisition under s. 2 of the 1946 Act is available for acquisitions under this section, though it is expressly excluded from cases under ss. 38 and 41, post.

On any order under the present section the confirming authority may disregard any objection which is in effect an objection to the development plan (see s. 45 (1), post).

Sub-s. (2), ante, came into force on August 6, 1947 ; as to the date of commencement of the rest of the section, see s. 120, post.

Designated as subject to compulsory acquisition.—As to designation, see ss. 5 and 9, ante.

Functions of the Minister of Works.—See note to s. 29, ante.

Purposes of the Post Office.—See 13 Halsbury's Statutes 3 et seq. ; 24 Halsbury's Statutes 325 et seq. ; 28 Halsbury's Statutes 181 et seq. ; 30 Halsbury's Statutes 691 ; 32 Halsbury's Statutes 537 ; 33 Halsbury's Statutes 351 ; 35 Halsbury's Statutes 151 ; and 39 Halsbury's Statutes 638.

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 52. For s. 1 (1) (2) and Sched. I, para. 9, see 39 Halsbury's Statutes 55, 64.

The date of commencement of that Act was April 18, 1946.

Definitions.—As to "development plan," see ss. 5 to 11, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land," "Minister" (as in "any Minister"), "local authority," "statutory undertakers," "functions" and "appropriate Minister," see s. 119 (1), post.

38. Compulsory acquisition of land for development.—(1) Where any land is designated by a development plan under this Act as subject to compulsory acquisition by the appropriate local authority, then if the Minister is satisfied—

- (a) in the case of land comprised in an area defined by the plan as an area of comprehensive development, or of land contiguous or adjacent to any such area, that the land is required in order to secure the development or redevelopment of the said area or that it is expedient in the public interest that the land should be held together with land so required ;
- (b) in any other case, that it is necessary that the land should be acquired under this section for the purpose of securing its use in the manner proposed by the plan,

he may authorise the council of the county borough or county district in which the land is situated, to acquire the land compulsorily in accordance with the provisions of this section. [2399]

(2) If during the period before a development plan has become operative under this Act with respect to any area, the Minister is satisfied that the acquisition of any land under this section is expedient—

- (a) for any purpose which appears to him to be immediately necessary in the interests of the proper planning of that area (not being a purpose for which a local authority could be authorised to acquire the land compulsorily under any other enactment);
- (b) for any other purpose for which, by virtue of paragraph (c) or (d) of subsection (1) of section ten of the Act of 1944, a local planning authority could be authorised to acquire land before the appointed day,

he may authorise the council of the county borough or county district in which the land is situated to acquire the land compulsorily in accordance with the provisions of this section. [2400]

(3) Where, under the foregoing provisions of this section, the Minister has power to authorise the council of a county borough or county district to acquire any land compulsorily, he may, if after consultation with that council and, in the case of land in a county, with the council of that county, he thinks it expedient so to do, authorise the land to be so acquired by any other local authority instead of by that council. [2401]

(4) The Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, shall apply to the compulsory acquisition of land under this section and accordingly shall have effect as if this section had been in force immediately before the commencement of that Act :

Provided that section two of the said Act (which confers temporary powers for the speedy acquisition of land in urgent cases) shall not apply to the compulsory acquisition of land under this section. [2402]

Effect of section.—This section deals with acquisitions under designations for planning purposes. It is to be noted that the acquiring authority will be the council for the area. While the planning authority is the county council the council for the area will be the development authority. Note that the provisions of s. 45 (1) apply to objections to any compulsory purchase order made, after designation, under this section. Sub-s. (2) which came into operation on the passing of the Act is similar to s. 10 of the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 435). Its purpose is to enable acquisition to take place where necessary before the plan comes into operation. As to the disposal or appropriation of land acquired under this section, see s. 44 and Sched. XI, post.

Designated as subject to compulsory acquisition.—See ss. 5 and 9, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Contiguous or adjacent.—See note to s. 5, ante, on this phrase.

Comprehensive development.—See s. 5 (3), ante.

Use in the manner proposed by the plan.—This provision is important to ensure that development will not be obstructed by owners who, once they have received payment for the loss of development, will have lost much of the incentive which formerly would have tempted them to dispose of land for development.

See also s. 43, post, for powers of the Central Land Board in the same regard. As to mineral development, see s. 81 (4), post. Note also s. 44, post, which incorporates certain provisions of the 1944 Act. S. 22 of the 1944 Act (see Sched. XI, post) authorises the avoidance of any easement, servitude or restrictive covenant, subject to the payment of compensation for injurious affection under the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1113), by the local authority or any person deriving title under the local authority.

Interests of proper planning.—These words may govern the succeeding parenthesis. Many enactments under which local authorities may acquire land are limited as to the time ahead of their requirements for which they may acquire. The interests of proper planning may enable them to avoid this limitation.

The Act of 1944, s. 10 (1) (c) or (d).—The Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, s. 10 (1) (c) or (d) (37 Halsbury's Statutes 435, 436).

Appointed day.—See ss. 119 (1) and 120, post. July 1, 1948, is the day in question (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Other local authority.—A case in which this provision may be necessary is to provide for "overspill" from areas of comprehensive development.

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 52. For s. 2 of that Act, see 39 Halsbury's Statutes 56. The date of commencement of the Act was April 18, 1946.

Definitions.—As to "development plan," see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post; as to "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land," "local authority," "use" and "enactment," see s. 119 (1), post.

39. Power to expedite completion of purchase under s. 38.—(1) If the Minister is satisfied, in the case of a compulsory purchase order submitted to him under the last foregoing section by a local authority, that it is urgently necessary in the public interest to empower that authority to enter on the whole or any part of the land to which the order relates and secure its vesting in them before the expiration of the time which would be required for the service of notices to treat, he may include in the order as confirmed by him a direction that the provisions of the Sixth Schedule to the Act of 1944 shall apply to the order so far as it relates to that land :

Provided that no such direction shall be so included in a compulsory purchase order unless application in that behalf is included in the order as submitted to the Minister. [2403]

(2) A compulsory purchase order which contains any such direction as aforesaid shall be registered in the register of local land charges, in such manner as may be prescribed by rules made for the purposes of this section under subsection (6) of section fifteen of the Land Charges Act, 1925, by the proper officer of the council of each county borough or county district in which the land to which the direction relates or any part thereof is situated ; and it shall be the duty of the local authority, as soon as may be after the order has become operative, to notify that fact to the proper officer of the authority by whom it is required to be registered as aforesaid, and to furnish him with all information relating to the order which is required for the purpose. [2404]

(3) Where a compulsory purchase order containing any such direction as aforesaid is made in respect of any interest in land which has sustained war damage, then if any of that damage has not been made good at the date on which notice to treat is deemed to have been served, the local authority shall when they notify the fact that the order has become operative to the proper officer under the last foregoing subsection, notify the War Damage Commission of that action having been taken. [2405]

(4) Any reference in the Sixth Schedule to the Act of 1944 to a purchase order providing for expedited completion, or to the purchasing authority, shall be construed as a reference to a compulsory purchase order containing any such direction as aforesaid, and to the local authority authorised to acquire land by that order, as the case may be. [2406]

(5) Paragraph 3 of the Second Schedule to the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (which provides for entry on land before the purchase money has been paid, notwithstanding the provisions of sections eighty-four to ninety of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845) and paragraph 4 of that Schedule (which makes special provision, in substitution for section ninety-two of the said Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, with respect to the sale of parts of houses and other premises) shall not apply to a compulsory purchase order containing any such direction as aforesaid. [2407]

General note.—This section makes the expedited completion provisions of Sched. VI to the 1944 Act (see Sched. XI, post) applicable to purchases for planning purposes. This procedure is permanent, whereas the speedy procedure of the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, s. 2 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 56), will expire on April 18, 1951.

Conveyancing costs.—An opinion of counsel has been obtained and accepted by the Law Society that vendors' costs under Sched. II to the Solicitors' Remuneration Order, 1882, as amended, are applicable in cases of compulsory acquisition by local authorities with expedited completion (see the Law Society's Gazette, February, 1948, at p. 36).

Service of notices to treat.—Note the provisions of s. 119 (3), post, as to constructive service of such notices.

Provisions of the Sixth Schedule.—Sched. VI to the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 490) provides for purchases proceeding as if notices to treat had been served as soon as the order confirming the compulsory purchase has been registered in the local land charges register, and provides further for transferring ownership soon afterwards notwithstanding that the compensation may not have been paid or even ascertained (see Sched. XI, post).

Land Charges Act, 1925, s. 15 (6).—15 Halsbury's Statutes 539.

Sub-s. (3).—This provision is to ensure that the War Damage Commission are aware that s. 14 of the War Damage Act, 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 353), and s. 53 of the present Act.

post, affect the land. As to what is "war damage," see the War Damage Act, 1943, s. 2 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 338), and s. 119 (1), post. As to the War Damage Commission, see s. 3 of the Act of 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 339).

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 52. For Sched. II, paras. 3 and 4, thereto, see 39 Halsbury's Statutes 67.

Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ss. 84-90 and 92.—See Halsbury's Statutes 1142 et seq., 1145.

Definitions.—For definitions of "local authority" and "land," see s. 119 (1), post.

40. Acquisition of land by agreement for development.—(1) The council of any county, county borough or county district may, with the consent of the Minister, acquire by agreement any land (whether or not being land designated by a development plan as subject to compulsory acquisition) which they require for any purpose for which a local authority may be authorised to acquire land compulsorily under section thirty-eight of this Act. [2408]

(2) The Lands Clauses Acts (except the provisions relating to the purchase of land otherwise than by agreement and the provisions relating to access to the special Act, and except sections one hundred and twenty-seven to one hundred and thirty-two of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845) shall be incorporated with this section, and in construing those Acts as so incorporated this section shall be deemed to be the special Act and references to the promoters of the undertaking shall be construed as references to the council authorised to acquire the land under this section. [2409]

Effect of section.—This section gives similar powers to acquire by agreement for planning purposes any lands which could have been acquired compulsorily under s. 38, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Designated as subject to compulsory acquisition.—See ss. 5 and 9, ante.

Lands Clauses Acts.—See 2 Halsbury's Statutes 1113 et seq.

Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ss. 127-132.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1158 et seq.

Definitions.—As to "development plan," see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land" and "local authority," see s. 119 (1), post.

41. Power to acquire buildings of special architectural or historic interest.

—(1) Where a building preservation order is in force as respects any building and it appears to the Minister that reasonable steps are not being taken for properly preserving the building, the Minister may authorise the council of the county or county borough or county district in which the building is situated to acquire compulsorily under this section the building and any land comprising or contiguous or adjacent to it which appears to the Minister to be required for preserving the building or its amenities, or for affording access thereto, or for the proper control or management thereof. [2410]

(2) Where a building preservation order is in force as respects any building and it appears to the Minister of Works that reasonable steps are not being taken for properly preserving the building, that Minister may be authorised under this section to acquire compulsorily the building and any land comprising or contiguous or adjacent to it which appears to him to be required as mentioned in the foregoing subsection. [2411]

(3) The Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, shall apply to the compulsory acquisition of land under this section, and accordingly shall have effect—

(a) as if this section had been in force immediately before the commencement of that Act;

(b) as if references therein to the Minister of Transport and to the enactments specified in paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of section one of that Act included respectively references to the Minister of Works and to the provisions of this section:

Provided that section two of the said Act (which confers temporary powers for the speedy acquisition of land in urgent cases) shall not apply to the compulsory acquisition of land under this section. [2412]

(4) Any person having an interest in any building which it is proposed to acquire compulsorily under this section may, within twenty-eight days after the service of the notice required to be served under paragraph 3 of the First Schedule to the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, apply to a court of summary jurisdiction for the petty sessional division or place within which the building to which the notice relates is situated for an order staying further proceedings on the compulsory purchase order, and if the court is satisfied that reasonable steps are being taken for properly preserving the building, they shall make an order accordingly.

Any person aggrieved by the decision of a court of summary jurisdiction under this subsection may appeal against that decision to a court of quarter sessions. [2413]

(5) Where any building is acquired under the provisions of subsection (1) of this section, the council of the county or county borough or county district, by whom the building is acquired shall observe the provisions of the building preservation order relating to that building. [2414]

(6) Without prejudice to the generality of the powers conferred by the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act, any power of a local authority to acquire land by agreement thereunder shall include power to acquire by agreement any building as respects which a building preservation order has been or could be made by the local planning authority, and any land comprising or contiguous or adjacent to it which appears to the Minister to be required for the purposes specified in subsection (1) of this section. [2415]

Effect of section.—The powers of this section reinforce the powers as to building preservation orders given under s. 29, ante, to secure the preservation of buildings of special architectural or historic interest.

An interesting feature of this section is contained in sub-s. (4), supra, under which, on application to a court of summary jurisdiction, that court can make an order staying the submission of a compulsory purchase order to the Minister for confirmation. An appeal lies to Quarter Sessions.

Building preservation order.—See s. 29, ante.

Where it appears to the Minister.—See note to s. 4, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Contiguous or adjacent.—See note to s. 5, ante, on this phrase.

Minister of Works.—See note to s. 29, ante.

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 52. For ss. 1 (1) (b), 2 and Sched. I, para. 3, thereof, see 39 Halsbury's Statutes 55, 56, 62. Note that under the present section the power of speedy acquisition is excluded, as it is from s. 38, ante, though no such exclusion applies to the provisions of s. 37, ante.

The date of commencement of that Act was April 18, 1946.

Appeal to a Court of Quarter Sessions.—Time for appeal to Quarter Sessions will be fourteen days. For procedure, see the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, s. 31 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 338), as amended by the Summary Jurisdiction (Appeals) Act, 1933, s. 1 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 546).

Definitions.—As to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "building," "land" and "local authority," see s. 119 (1), post.

42. Power of local authorities to appropriate certain land for planning purposes.—(1) Any local authority may be authorised, by order made by that authority and confirmed by the Minister, to appropriate for any purpose specified in a development plan (being a purpose for which that authority can be authorised to acquire land under any enactment) any land for the time being held by them for other purposes, being land which is or forms part of a common, open space or fuel or field garden allotment (including any such land which is specially regulated by any enactment, whether public general or local or private), other than land being Green Belt land as defined in the Green Belt (London and Home Counties) Act, 1938. [2416]

(2) Paragraph 11 of the First Schedule to the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (which makes special provision with respect to compulsory purchase orders under that Act relating to land forming part of a common, open space or fuel or field garden allotment) shall apply to an order under this section authorising the appropriation of land as it applies to a compulsory purchase order under that Act. [2417]

(3) Without prejudice to the generality of the powers conferred by the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act, any power of a local authority to acquire land (whether compulsorily or by agreement) thereunder shall include power to acquire land required for giving in exchange for land appropriated under this section, or for Green Belt land appropriated, in accordance with the Green Belt (London and Home Counties) Act, 1938, for any purpose specified in a development plan. [2418]

(4) Section one hundred and sixty-three of the Local Government Act, 1933 (which contains general provisions as to the appropriation by local authorities of land belonging to them) shall not apply to land which a local authority have power to appropriate under subsection (1) of this section. [2419]

(5) Where any land appropriated under this section was acquired under any enactment incorporating the Lands Clauses Acts, any work executed on the land after the appropriation has been effected shall, for the purposes of section sixty-eight of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, be deemed to have been authorised by the enactment under which the land was acquired. [2420]

(6) On the appropriation of land under this section there shall be made in the accounts of the local authority such adjustments as the Minister of Health may direct. [2421]

General note.—This section follows s. 29 of the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 458) in authorising any use of land in accordance with the development plan, notwithstanding that the land is already held for other purposes.

Under this section, however, the appropriation for use in accordance with the plan must be confirmed by the Minister. If confirmed by the Minister, the land can be appropriated in accordance with the plan notwithstanding the fact that the land is specially regulated by any enactment (cf. R. v. Minister of Health, Ex parte Villiers, [1936] 2 K. B. 29; [1936] 1 All E. R. 817). Land which is Green Belt land under the Green Belt (London and Home Counties) Act, 1938 (31 Halsbury's Statutes 439), is excluded.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Common, open space or field or field garden allotment.—By s. 119 (1), post, these terms have the same meanings as in the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946. See s. 8 (1) of that Act (39 Halsbury's Statutes 61).

Sub-s. (2).—If the Minister certifies that equally advantageous land is being given in exchange or that the land is required for widening an existing highway and that no exchange is necessary the appropriation may be effected without further ado. If this certificate is not given, the order for appropriation will be subject to the procedure set out in the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 439).

Green Belt land.—This term is defined in the Green Belt (London and Home Counties) Act, 1938, s. 2 (1) (31 Halsbury's Statutes 439), as:

"(a) any land which for the time being is the subject of an express declaration made in manner provided by this Act or is under the provisions of this Act deemed to be Green Belt land; and

"(b) any land acquired by a local authority under the powers conferred by section 3 (Acquisition of and covenants relating to land and contributions to cost) of this Act;

"but shall not include any land which by virtue of the provisions of this Act or of any order made or consent given by the Minister under those provisions is freed from all the restrictions imposed upon it whether by this Act or by any declaration made in manner provided by this Act."

Green Belt (London and Home Counties) Act, 1938.—31 Halsbury's Statutes 439. The purpose of this Act was to preserve from industrial or building development areas of land in and around the administrative county of London.

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, Sched. I, para. 11.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 64.

Sub-s. (3).—This subsection gives power to acquire land for the purpose of being given in exchange for land appropriated under the present section.

Local Government Act, 1933, s. 163.—26 Halsbury's Statutes 396.

Lands Clauses Acts.—See 2 Halsbury's Statutes 1113 et seq.

Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, s. 68.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1134. This section provides for the payment of compensation for injurious affection caused by the execution of any works authorised by the special Act applicable.

Minister of Health.—Note that, though the confirmation required by sub-s. (1), ante, is that of the Minister of Town and Country Planning, it is the Minister of Health who, under sub-s. (6), supra, is to direct adjustments in the accounts of local authorities.

Definitions.—As to "development plan," see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "local authority," "land" and "enactment," see s. 119 (1), post.

43. Acquisition of land by Central Land Board.—(1) The Central Land Board may, with the approval of the Minister, by agreement acquire land for any purpose connected with the performance of their functions under the following provisions of this Act, and in particular may so acquire any land for the purpose of disposing of it for development for which permission has been granted under Part III of this Act on terms inclusive of any development charge payable under those provisions in respect of that development. [2422]

(2) If the Minister is satisfied that it is expedient in the public interest that the Board should acquire any land for any such purpose as aforesaid, and that the Board are unable to acquire the land by agreement on reasonable terms, he may authorise the Board to acquire the land compulsorily in accordance with the provisions of this section. [2423]

(3) Subsection (4) of section thirty-eight and section thirty-nine of this Act shall apply to the compulsory acquisition of land by the Central Land Board under this section as they apply to the compulsory acquisition of land by local authorities under the said section thirty-eight; and for the purposes of this section the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, shall have effect as if any reference therein to a local authority (except the references thereto in subsection (2) of section one and in paragraph 9 of the First Schedule) included a reference to the Board. [2424]

(4) Any land acquired by the Central Land Board under the provisions of this section shall be disposed of by them in accordance with such directions as may be given to them in that behalf by the Minister, and until the land is so disposed of the Board may manage it in accordance with such directions:

Provided that nothing in this section shall be construed as authorising the Board to carry out any development of land acquired by them thereunder. [2425]

(5) Any expenses incurred by the Central Land Board in the acquisition of land under this section shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament; and any sums received by the Board in respect of the disposal of any such land shall be paid into the Exchequer. [2426]

(6) Provision may be made by regulations under this Act for requiring the Central Land Board to keep a register containing such particulars as may be prescribed by the regulations of land acquired and disposed of under this section, and for the inspection of any such register by the public on payment of such reasonable fee, if any, as may be so prescribed. [2427]

General note.—Under this section the Central Land Board can acquire land by compulsion or by agreement and can dispose of it at a price which will include the development charge to any person who will develop it in accordance with the plan.

This power should be compared with the power of local authorities to acquire land under s. 38, ante, for the purpose of ensuring that the land in question is used in accordance with the plan.

One use to which this section may be put by the Board is in checking the amounts of development values. Throughout the country the Board can be expected to purchase lands as a representative sample which they will put on the market, very likely by auction, carrying planning permission and free of development charge, for the purpose of testing what development values are in the open market (see 149 H. of L. Official Report 715).

As to the position where compulsory powers are required to enable mineral development to be carried on, see also s. 81 (4), post.

Central Land Board.—For the constitution and functions of the Board, see ss. 2 and 3, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Development charge.—See ss. 69–74, post.

If the Minister is satisfied.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the phrase “If it appears to the Minister.”

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 52. For s. 1 (2) and Sched. I, para. 9, thereof, see 39 Halsbury's Statutes 55, 64.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post.

Definitions.—As to “development,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “land,” “functions” and “local authority,” see s. 119 (1), post.

44. Incorporation of certain provisions of Act of 1944.—(1) Sections nineteen to thirty of the Act of 1944 (which provide for the disposal and appropriation by local planning authorities of land acquired or appropriated under Part I of that Act, for the carrying out by such authorities of development of such land, and for other matters arising in relation to the acquisition of land under that Part) shall, except so far as repealed by this Act, be incorporated with this Part of this Act, subject to the amendments specified in the second column of the Eighth Schedule to this Act and to the following provisions of this section. [2428]

(2) Subsection (3) of section twenty of the Act of 1944 (which provides that in certain cases the Minister shall not give his consent to the carrying out of any operation by the local planning authority under that section if a person other than that authority is able and willing to carry out the operation) shall cease to have effect. [2429]

(3) Section fifteen of the Act of 1944 (which relates to the purchase of licensed premises) shall apply in relation to premises comprised in land acquired under this Part of this Act, not being land in a licensing planning area within the meaning of the Licensing Planning (Temporary Provisions) Acts, 1945 and 1946, and the said section shall accordingly have effect subject to the amendments specified in relation thereto in the second column of the Eighth Schedule to this Act. [2430]

(4) Paragraph 9 of the Fifth Schedule to the Act of 1944 (which provides for the assessment at site values of compensation in respect of the compulsory acquisition of certain dwellinghouses unfit for human habitation) shall apply in relation to land compulsorily acquired under this Part of this Act and accordingly shall have effect subject to the amendments specified in relation thereto in the second column of the Eighth Schedule to this Act. [2431]

General note.—This section imports into the Act the provisions of the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 420) relating to the disposal and appropriation of land acquired for planning purposes (see Sched. XI, post).

The amendment contained in sub-s. (2), supra, removes the limitation contained in s. 20 (3) of the 1944 Act, which prevented local authorities from carrying out development where some other person was able and willing to carry it out. This amendment means that s. 20 (1) of the 1944 Act now effects a very substantial extension of the powers of local authorities: those powers now include power, with the consent of the Minister, to erect or carry out any building or work "notwithstanding any limitation imposed by law on the capacity of [the authority] by virtue of its constitution. . . ."

The powers of the local authority to dispose of the land are, however, restricted to the granting of 99-year leaseholds unless there are exceptional circumstances (see s. 19 (5) of the 1944 Act, reproduced in Sched. XI, post). This should be compared with the powers of the Central Land Board to dispose of the freehold for development under s. 43, ante. It seems that "exceptional circumstances" will be interpreted narrowly by the Minister. An example of buildings which have been accepted under the 1944 Act as exceptional are church buildings, since under Canon Law land cannot be consecrated for divine worship unless the freehold is held by the Church.

Note the requirement of s. 19 (6)–(7) of the 1944 Act (see Sched. XI, post) requiring local authorities to provide where practicable for the reinstatement of persons displaced from areas of comprehensive development; and also the power of the Minister to direct disposals and the manner, terms and conditions of such disposals.

The present section further provides for the application of s. 40 of the Housing Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 598), to any houses acquired which are unfit for human habitation. Such houses will be acquired at site value, provided an order under Sched. V to the Act of 1944 (see Sched. XI, post) either is made after the compulsory purchase order or has been made not earlier than two years before. Orders under para. 9 of Sched. V to the 1944 Act are, in effect, clearance orders under Part III of the Housing Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 584 et seq.).

References to the Act of 1944.—The Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, as originally enacted, is printed at 37 Halsbury's Statutes 420 et seq., and, as amended by the present Act, is reproduced in Sched. XI, post. For ss. 15, 19–30 and Sched. V, para. 9, reference may therefore conveniently be made to Sched. XI, post.

45. Amendment of 9 & 10 Geo. 6, c. 49, in relation to acquisition of land under Part IV.—(1) Where any land is designated by a development plan under this Act as subject to compulsory acquisition for any purpose, then if a compulsory purchase order relating to that land is submitted to the confirming authority in accordance with Part I of the First Schedule to the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, or, as the case may be, is made in draft by a Minister in accordance with Part II of that

Schedule, the confirming authority or that Minister, as the case may be, may disregard for the purposes of that Schedule any objection to the order or draft which, in the opinion of that authority or Minister, amounts in substance to an objection to the provisions of the development plan defining the proposed use of that or any other land. [2432]

(2) Where a compulsory purchase order authorising the acquisition of any land under section thirty-eight of this Act is submitted to the Minister in accordance with Part I of the said First Schedule, then if the Minister is satisfied that the order ought to be confirmed so far as it relates to part of the land comprised therein, but has not for the time being determined whether or not it ought to be confirmed so far as it relates to any other such land, he may confirm the order so far as it relates to the first-mentioned land and give directions postponing the consideration of the order, so far as it relates to any other land specified in the directions until such time as may be so specified; and in any such case the notices required by paragraph 6 of the said First Schedule to be published and served shall include a statement of the effect of the directions. [2433]

(3) Paragraph 9 of the said First Schedule (which makes special provision in relation to the compulsory acquisition of land of local authorities and statutory undertakers and inalienable land of the National Trust) shall not apply to land which is designated by a development plan under this Act as subject to compulsory acquisition. [2434]

(4) Notwithstanding anything in paragraph 10 of the said First Schedule, a compulsory purchase order may be confirmed or made under this Act authorising the acquisition of land which has been acquired by statutory undertakers for the purposes of their undertaking (whether or not the land is designated as mentioned in the last foregoing subsection) without any such certificate as is mentioned in the said paragraph 10:

Provided that except where such a certificate is given as aforesaid, or the land is designated as mentioned in the last foregoing subsection,—

- (a) the order shall be of no effect unless it is confirmed or made by the appropriate Minister jointly with the Minister or Ministers who would apart from this provision have power to make or confirm it; and
- (b) if any objection to the order is duly made by the statutory undertakers and is not withdrawn, the order shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure. [2435]

(5) Where any such land as is mentioned in the last foregoing subsection is compulsorily acquired without any such certificate as is therein referred to, any compensation payable to the statutory undertakers in respect of the purchase shall be assessed in accordance with the provisions of the Fourth Schedule to the Act of 1944. [2436]

(6) Regulations made under this Act, may provide for securing that any proceedings required by the said First Schedule to be taken for the purposes of the compulsory acquisition of any land under this Act may be taken concurrently with any proceedings required by or under this Act to be taken in connection with the approval, making or amendment of a development plan designating that land as subject to compulsory acquisition. [2437]

(7) In construing the Lands Clauses Acts as incorporated, by virtue of paragraph 1 of the Second Schedule to the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, with Part IV of this Act—

- (a) references to the execution of the works shall be construed as including references to any erection, construction or carrying out of buildings or works authorised by section twenty-two of the Act of 1944 (as incorporated with this Part of this Act by virtue of section forty-four of this Act), and in relation to any such erection, construction or carrying out, the reference in section sixty-eight of the Lands

Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, to the promoters of the undertaking shall, notwithstanding anything in sub-paragraph (b) of paragraph 1 of the Second Schedule to the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, be construed as references to the person by whom the buildings or works in question are erected, constructed or carried out;

- (b) references to the execution of the works shall be construed as including also references to any erection, construction or carrying out of buildings or works on behalf of a Minister, or by or on behalf of statutory undertakers, on land acquired by that Minister or those undertakers, for the purposes for which the land was acquired. [2438]

Effect of section.—This section amends the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 52). Under sub-s. (1), ante, where land has been designated, the confirming authority can disregard any objection to a compulsory purchase order which is in effect an objection to a provision in the development plan.

Sub-s. (2), ante, enables the confirming authority to postpone considering whether or not to confirm a compulsory purchase order so far as concerns part only of the land in question.

The provisions of the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 439), which would have been applicable under Sched. I, para. 9, to the Act of 1946, are excluded by sub-s. (3), ante, where land has been designated for compulsory purchase. The reason for this exclusion is that the designation in the plan has already been subject to special parliamentary procedure (see s. 5 (4) (c), ante).

Sub-s. (4), ante, authorises the confirmation of a compulsory purchase order in respect of land subject to Sched. I, para. 10, to the Act of 1946, despite the absence of the certificate required under that Act, provided the land is designated.

The next subsection provides for the compensation of statutory undertakers whose lands are acquired. Sub-s. (6), ante, enables compulsory purchase orders to be made concurrently with proceedings for the approval of the development plan.

Finally, sub-s. (7), ante, makes the person actually carrying out the development liable to meet claims for injurious affection under s. 68 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1134), instead of the acquiring authority who would be responsible under Sched. II, para. 1 (b), to the Act of 1946.

Designated as subject to compulsory acquisition.—As to designation, see ss. 5 and 9, ante.

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 52. For Sched. I, Part I and Part II, and Sched. II, see 39 Halsbury's Statutes 62, 63, 66.

A Minister; the Minister; appropriate Minister.—Note the different meanings attributable to these terms by virtue of s. 119 (1), post.

If the Minister is satisfied.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the words "If it appears to the Minister."

National Trust.—Land may be held inalienably by the National Trust under the National Trust Act, 1907, s. 21, or the National Trust Act, 1939, s. 8. Not being a public general statute, neither appears in Halsbury's Statutes.

Act of 1944.—The Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 420). For s. 22 and Sched. IV thereof, see Sched. XI, post, where the unrepealed provisions of the Act of 1944 are reproduced as amended by the present Act.

Lands Clauses Acts.—See 2 Halsbury's Statutes 1113 et seq.

46. Acquisition of land by development corporations under New Towns Act, 1946.—(1) For the removal of doubt it is hereby declared that the powers of acquiring land conferred by the New Towns Act, 1946 on a development corporation established for the purposes of a new town include power to acquire any land within the area designated under that Act as the site of the new town whether or not it is proposed to develop or re-develop that particular land. [2439]

(2) Section five of the said Act (which regulates the disposal of land by development corporations) shall have effect as if in subsection (1), after the words "this Act" in the second place where those words occur, there were inserted the words "or for purposes connected therewith". [2440]

General note.—In this section the legislature have taken the opportunity of correcting two minor flaws in the New Towns Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 661), which experience had shown to exist.

New Towns Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 661. For s. 5 thereof, see 39 Halsbury's Statutes 669.

Definitions.—As to "develop," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definition of "land," see s. 119 (1), post.

Powers Relating to Highways

47. Construction of highways on land acquired under Part IV.—(1) Section ten of the Development and Road Improvement Funds Act, 1909 (which enables the Minister of Transport to authorise the construction of new roads in respect of which advances are made under that Act and provides for the expenses of the construction, and for the maintenance, of such roads) shall apply in relation to the construction of a new road by a local highway authority on land defined by a development plan as the site of a proposed road or on any other land acquired by or transferred to them under this Part of this Act as if the road were a road in respect of the construction of which an advance were made to that authority under that section. [2441]

(2) Without prejudice to the provisions of subsection (5) of section nineteen of the Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935, and of subsection (8) of section six of the Trunk Roads Act, 1936 (which provide for contributions by local authorities towards expenses incurred by local highway authorities and by the Minister of Transport under those Acts) any local authority may contribute towards any expenses incurred by a local highway authority or by the Minister of Transport in the acquisition of land under this Part of this Act or in the construction or improvement of roads on land so acquired or in connection with any development required in the interests of the proper planning of the area of the local authority. [2442]

General note.—By this section provision is made for the construction of highways on land acquired under the plan and for expenses of construction and maintenance by applying s. 10 of the Development and Road Improvement Funds Act, 1909 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 213).

Local authorities are empowered to contribute towards any expenses incurred by the Minister of Transport or local highway authorities in respect of the acquisition of land under the plan or in the construction or improvement of roads on land so acquired.

Development and Road Improvement Funds Act, 1909, s. 10.—9 Halsbury's Statutes 213. The effect of this section is summarised in the text, supra.

Local highway authority.—This means a highway authority other than the Minister of Transport (s. 119 (1), post).

Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935, s. 19.—28 Halsbury's Statutes 95. For the short effect of this section, see the text, supra.

Trunk Roads Act, 1936, s. 6 (8).—29 Halsbury's Statutes 194. This subsection is also summarised in the text, supra.

Improvement.—S. 119 (1), post, provides that this term, in relation to a highway, is to have the same meaning as the expression "improvement of roads" in Part II of the Development and Road Improvement Funds Act, 1909 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 212 et seq.), where the expression is defined as including "the widening of any road, the cutting off the corners of any road where land is required to be purchased for that purpose, the levelling of roads, the treatment of a road for mitigating the nuisance of dust, and the doing of any other work in respect of roads beyond ordinary repairs essential to placing a road in a proper state of repair." The expression "road" is similarly stated to include bridges, viaducts and subways (s. 8 (5) of the Act of 1909, supra; 9 Halsbury's Statutes 212).

Definitions.—As to "development plan," see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land" and "local authority," see s. 119 (1), post.

48. Construction and improvement of private streets.—(1) The provisions of this section shall apply in relation to any land defined by a development plan as the site of a proposed road, or as land required for the widening of any existing road which is of less than byelaw width, being land which is designated by the plan as land to which this section applies. [2443]

(2) Where any land is so defined and designated as aforesaid, the appropriate council as defined by this section may at any time by order declare the land (together with any land forming part of any such existing road as aforesaid) to be a private street, and thereupon the land shall be deemed to have been dedicated to the public and to be a private street:

Provided that no such order shall be made by the council in relation to land which has not been acquired by them at the date of the order (other than land forming part of any such existing road as aforesaid) except with the consent of all persons interested in the land. [2444]

(3) In relation to land which is deemed to be a private street by virtue of a declaration under the last foregoing subsection, the provisions of the Private Street Works Act, 1892, or, in the case of land in a district in which that Act is not in force, the provisions of sections one hundred and fifty and one hundred and fifty-one of the Public Health Act, 1875 (including any provisions of that Act which relate to the said sections one hundred and fifty and one hundred and fifty-one) shall apply, subject to such exceptions, adaptations and modifications as may be prescribed by regulations made under this Act, as if the land were a street to which those provisions respectively apply. [2445]

(4) Regulations made for the purposes of the last foregoing subsection shall make provision for securing—

- (a) that the amount of the expenses incurred in the execution of street works charged under the provisions referred to in that subsection on the owners of adjoining land shall not exceed the amount which would, at the date of the commencement of the works, have been the cost of the execution of street works in the course of the construction, widening or improvement if it had been carried out so as to comply with the provisions of any byelaws, regulations or other enactments in force in the district, and, as respects matters for which no such provision is made, so as to comply with such requirements as would have been imposed by the highway authority at the date of the commencement of the works as a condition of declaring the street to be a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large ;
- (b) that as soon as the street has been made up or widened by or to the satisfaction of the appropriate council it shall become a highway repairable by the inhabitants at large ;
- (c) that no expenses incurred in the execution of any street works shall be recoverable against agricultural land or buildings until the land or buildings cease to be agricultural land or buildings ;
- (d) that no expenses incurred in the execution of street works for the purpose of making a new street shall be recoverable in respect of any land (whether the site of a building or not) unless and until access is provided for and used by persons or vehicles from that land to the new street. [2446]

(5) Regulations made for the purposes of subsection (3) of this section may provide—

- (a) for the inclusion in the expenses recoverable as aforesaid in respect of street works carried out by the appropriate council of any expenses incurred by a local authority, after the date on which the land is defined and designated as mentioned in subsection (1) of this section, and before it is declared to be a private street under subsection (2) of this section, in the construction of sewers in or under the land ; and
  - (b) for authorising the appropriate council to enter on any land adjoining the street for the purpose of executing street works on land comprised in the street. [2447]
- (6) In this section the following expressions have the meanings hereby respectively assigned to them, that is to say—

“ appropriate council ”, in relation to any land, means the council of the county borough or county district in which the land is situated or, in the case of land in a rural district, or land in any other county district which is defined by a development plan as the site of a road which is to become a county road, or as land required for the widening of such a road, the council of the county in which the land is situated ;

"byelaw width" in relation to a road, means the width required by any byelaws, regulations or enactments regulating the construction of streets in the area in which the road is situated ;

"construction" and "improvement", in relation to a street, include the planting, laying out, maintenance and protection of trees, shrubs and grass margins in and beside the street ;

"street works" means the sewerage, levelling, paving, metalling, flagging, channelling and making good a street or part of a street and providing proper means of lighting therefor. [2448]

(7) References in this section to sections one hundred and fifty and one hundred and fifty-one of the Public Health Act, 1875, shall be construed as including references to those sections as amended by any local Act, and to any local Act making provision corresponding with the provisions of those sections or of the Private Street Works Act, 1892 ; and the power of the Minister to make regulations under this section shall include power to make special regulations with respect to any district in which such a local Act is in force. [2449]

General note.—The appropriate council (see sub-s. (6), ante), can by order declare to be a private street any land defined and designated by a development plan as the site of a proposed road, or as land required for the widening of an existing road which is less than byelaw width ; but no such order may be made by the council in relation to land which has not been acquired by them at the date of the order (other than land forming part of any such existing road as aforesaid) without the consent of all persons interested in the land.

An order under this section brings into operation whatever enactments are in force in the district concerning the execution of private street works and the recovery of cost from the frontagers. The enactments relating to street works may be modified by regulations.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post. Note that sub-s. (7), supra, empowers the Minister to make special regulations with respect to any districts where local Acts are in force.

Improvement.—In relation to a highway, this term is defined by s. 119 (1), post (see also note to s. 47, ante) ; where it appears in the present section in relation to a street, it is defined by sub-s. (6), supra.

49. Power to stop up and divert highways, etc.—(1) Without prejudice to the provisions of section twenty-three of the Act of 1944, as incorporated with this Act, or section three of the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, the Minister of Transport may, if he is satisfied that it is necessary so to do in order to enable development to be carried out in accordance with planning permission granted under Part III of this Act or to be carried out by a government department, by order made in accordance with the provisions of the Sixth Schedule to this Act authorise the stopping up or diversion of any highway. [2450]

(2) Any order made under the foregoing subsection may make such provision as appears to the Minister of Transport to be necessary or expedient for the provision or improvement of any other highway, and may direct—

- (a) that any highway so provided or improved shall be repairable by the inhabitants at large ;
- (b) that the said Minister, or any local authority specified in that behalf in the order, shall be the highway authority therefor ;
- (c) in the case of a highway for which the said Minister is to be the highway authority, that the highway shall, on such date as may be specified in the order, become a trunk road within the meaning of the Trunk Roads Acts, 1936 and 1946. [2451]

(3) The Minister of Transport or a local highway authority may be authorised to acquire land compulsorily for the purpose of providing or improving any highway which is to be provided or improved in pursuance of an order made under this section or for any other purpose for which land is required in connection with such an order; and the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, shall apply to the compulsory acquisition of land under this section, and accordingly shall have effect—

- (a) as if this section had been in force immediately before the commencement of that Act;
- (b) as if this section were included among the enactments specified in paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of section one of that Act:

Provided that section two of the said Act (which confers temporary powers for the speedy acquisition of land in urgent cases) shall not apply to the compulsory acquisition of land under this section. [2452]

(4) Any order made under this section may contain such incidental and consequential provisions as appear to the Minister of Transport to be necessary or expedient, including in particular provision for authorising that Minister, or requiring any other authority or person specified in the order—

- (a) to pay, or to make contributions in respect of, the cost of doing any work provided for by the order or any increased expenditure to be incurred which is attributable to the doing of any such work;
- (b) to repay, or to make contributions in respect of, any compensation paid by the highway authority in respect of restrictions imposed under section one or section two of the Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935, as respects any highway stopped up or diverted under the order:

Provided that if objection to any such provision is duly made in accordance with the Sixth Schedule to this Act by any authority or person who would be required thereby to make any such payment, repayment or contribution as aforesaid, and is not withdrawn, the order shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure. [2453]

(5) Regulations made under this Act by the Minister of Transport may provide for securing that any proceedings required to be taken for the purposes of the acquisition of land under subsection (3) of this section may be taken concurrently with any proceedings required to be taken for the purposes of the order under this section. [2454]

(6) Section twenty-five of the Act of 1944 (which, as amended by this Act, provides for the extinguishment of rights of way, and rights as to apparatus, of statutory undertakers over land acquired under this Part of this Act) shall, subject to any necessary modifications, apply in relation to any highway to which an order under this section relates as it applies in relation to land acquired by a Minister under this Part of this Act, and sections twenty-six and twenty-seven of that Act shall have effect accordingly. [2455]

(7) The powers of the Minister of Transport under subsection (1) of this section shall include power to make an order authorising the stopping up or diversion of any highway which is temporarily stopped up or diverted under any other enactment; and the provisions of this section shall not prejudice any power conferred upon the Minister of Transport by any other enactment to authorise the stopping up or diversion of a highway. [2456]

(8) Section three of the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (which enables the Minister of Town and Country Planning to extinguish certain public rights of way over land acquired under that Act) shall apply in relation to land acquired before the commencement of that Act by a local authority, being—

- (a) land acquired compulsorily under any such enactment as is specified in paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of section one of that Act; or
- (b) land acquired by agreement for a purpose such that the land could have been so acquired compulsorily.

(9) Any expenses incurred by the Minister of Transport in the construction or improvement of roads under this section shall be defrayed out of the road fund, and any other expenses of that Minister under this section shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [2457]

General note.—By this section the Minister of Transport is empowered to authorise by order the stopping up or diversion of a highway if he is satisfied that it is necessary so to do in order to enable development to be carried out either in accordance with planning permission granted under Part III of the Act or by a government department. Wide ancillary powers are given to the Minister of Transport.

PART VI

PAYMENTS OUT OF CENTRAL FUNDS IN RESPECT OF DEPRECIATION OF LAND VALUES

Payments for depreciation

58. Payments for depreciation of land values.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Part of this Act, payments shall be made in accordance with a scheme to be made by the Treasury under this section, in respect of interests in land which are depreciated in value by virtue of the provisions of this Act. [2458]

(2) The aggregate amount of the payments to be made by virtue of this section and of any corresponding provisions which may be enacted in relation to Scotland shall be the sum of three hundred million pounds, and that amount shall be apportioned, as between land in England and Wales and land in Scotland, in such manner as the Treasury may by order determine after they are sufficiently informed as to the development values of land in those countries respectively as ascertained for the purposes of this Part of this Act and of any such corresponding provisions as aforesaid. [2459]

(3) As soon as may be after they are sufficiently informed as to the development values of interests in land in respect of which claims are made for payments under this Part of this Act, the Treasury shall make a scheme providing for the distribution, as between those interests or such of them as may be prescribed by the scheme, of the sum apportioned under the last foregoing subsection to land in England and Wales. [2460]

(4) Without prejudice to the generality of the last foregoing subsection, any scheme made by the Treasury thereunder may provide for the ascertainment of the amount of the payments to be made under the scheme in respect of particular interests in land either by reference to the development values of those interests respectively or by reference to such other circumstances affecting those interests as may be prescribed by the scheme, or partly in the one way and partly in the other, and may contain such incidental and consequential provisions as appear to the Treasury to be necessary or expedient, including provision—

- (a) for applying, in relation to any payment made in accordance with the scheme, all or any of the provisions of sections twenty-four to thirty of the War Damage Act, 1943 (which relate to the rights of mortgagees and certain other persons as to payments for war damage) subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be prescribed by the scheme ;
- (b) for enabling any such payment falling to be made in respect of a leasehold interest, or any part of such a payment, to be made, in such cases and subject to such conditions as may be prescribed by the scheme, to the lessor instead of to the lessee, and for any consequential modifications of the liabilities of the lessee under the lease ;
- (c) for the determination of questions arising under the scheme as to the right of any person to receive a payment, or any part of a payment, thereunder. [2461]

(5) The power of the Treasury to make a scheme under this section shall include power to amend any such scheme by a subsequent scheme made thereunder. [2462]

(6) A scheme made by the Treasury under this section shall be of no effect unless it is approved by resolution of each House of Parliament. [2463]

Scheme.—A scheme made under this Act and within the powers of the Act will have the force and effect of an Act of Parliament.

By sub-s. (5), supra, the power to make a scheme includes power to amend the scheme by a subsequent scheme.

The scheme will be of no effect unless it is approved by resolution of each House of Parliament.

By virtue of the provisions of this Act.—If land has been depreciated in value by reason of previous planning control and no compensation would have been payable under the previous Acts, then a payment for that depreciation cannot be claimed under this Act.

After they are sufficiently informed.—That is to say, as a result of the information given when claims for payment are made to the Central Land Board. Note the provisions contained in s. 60 (2), post, relating to this matter.

War Damage Act, 1943, ss. 24–30.—For these sections, see 36 Halsbury's Statutes 364–368.

For the determination of questions arising under the scheme.—Note the provisions contained in s. 60 (2) (a), post.

The right of any person to receive a payment.—The Act confers a right to claim for a payment, but is not at all clear about the right of any person to receive a payment. It is expected that the scheme will clarify this position and entitle some persons to receive a payment as of right. S. 60 (2) (c), post, also contains a reference to the right to a payment.

Definitions.—As to “war damage,” see s. 119 (1), post, and the War Damage Act, 1943, s. 2 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 338). For definitions of “land,” “leasehold interest” and “lease,” see s. 119 (1), post.

59. Additional payments in respect of certain war-damaged land.—

(1) Without prejudice to the provisions of the last foregoing section, the Treasury may make a scheme under this section providing for the making of payments of such amounts, in such cases, and subject to such conditions, as may be prescribed by the scheme, in respect of interests in land which are depreciated in value by virtue of the provisions of this Act, being land in the case of which it is shown—

- (a) that the land sustained war damage in such circumstances that the appropriate payment under the War Damage Act, 1943, in respect of a hereditament within the meaning of that Act which consists of or includes the whole or any part of the land is a value payment ;
- (b) that by reason of the prospects of development other than the making good of the war damage, the value of the hereditament in the state in which it was immediately after the occurrence of the damage is higher, and the amount of the value payment is accordingly lower, than it would be apart from the prospect of such development.

(2) For the purposes of this section, a value payment shall be deemed to be the appropriate payment under the War Damage Act, 1943, in respect of a hereditament—

- (a) where such a payment would be appropriate thereunder, but no payment falls to be made because the value of the hereditament in the state in which it was immediately after the occurrence of the war damage is equal to or greater than its value in the state in which it was immediately before the occurrence of the damage; and
- (b) where a value payment falls to be made under any provision of the said Act in substitution for a payment of cost of works which, but for that provision, would be the appropriate payment. [2465]

(3) Any scheme made under this section may contain such incidental and consequential provisions as appear to the Treasury to be necessary or expedient, including provision for the matters specified in paragraphs (a) to (c) of subsection (4) of the last foregoing section. [2466]

(4) Any scheme made under this section shall be laid before Parliament immediately after it is made, and if either House within the period of forty days after the scheme is so laid before it, resolves that the scheme be annulled, it shall thereupon cease to have effect, but without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done thereunder or to the making of a new scheme. [2467]

(5) In reckoning for the purposes of the last foregoing subsection any such period of forty days no account shall be taken of any time during which Parliament is dissolved or prorogued or during which both Houses are adjourned for more than four days. [2468]

Effect of section.—Where a value payment has been calculated under the War Damage Act, 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 334), on the assumption that the owner retains a development value in the land, if it were not for this section he would be deprived of that development value without compensation by the provisions of this Act. This section enables the Treasury to make a scheme providing for an additional payment in these circumstances to compensate for the loss of this development value. These payments will not come out of the £300,000,000, and will not be satisfied in stock, but in cash. See ss. 65 and 67, post. The scheme under this section can be expected to be ready long before the scheme under s. 58, ante (see 149 H. of L. Official Report 764).

One type of case which this section has particularly in mind is where "the value of a property after the bomb fell was larger than before"; in other words, where a lot of old poor-class development was wiped out by enemy action and the site is now available for re-development for a different purpose, for which there is a demand.

Value payments and cost of works payments.—See the War Damage Act, 1943, ss. 7 et seq. (36 Halsbury's Statutes 344 et seq.).

Definitions.—The term "war damage" is defined by s. 2 of the War Damage Act, 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 338), and this definition is applied to the present Act by s. 119 (1), post. "Hereditament" is defined by s. 5 of the said Act of 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 341). For definition of "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "land," see s. 119 (1), post.

60. Establishment of claims for payments.—(1) Any claim for a payment under a scheme made under this Part of this Act shall be made to the Central Land Board in such manner, within such period, and accompanied by such particulars and verified by such evidence, as may be prescribed by regulations made for the purposes of this section, or as may be required by the Board in accordance with such regulations. [2469]

(2) Provision may be made by regulations under this Act for regulating the making of claims for payments under a scheme made under this Part of this Act and for the ascertainment, in the case of interests in land in respect of which claims are so made, of the development values of those interests and of such other particulars as may be required for the purposes of the preparation of a scheme under section fifty-eight of this Act or for the purposes of a scheme made under the last foregoing section; and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provision, such regulations may provide—

- (a) for requiring the development values of interests in land to be determined by such authority, in such manner and within such period

- as may be prescribed by the regulations, and for the settlement of any disputes arising in relation to such determinations by an arbitrator appointed in accordance with the provisions of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, or by a special tribunal constituted in accordance with the regulations ;
- (b) for regulating the practice and procedure to be followed in connection with the making of any such determination and the settlement of any such dispute, and the time within which and the manner in which proceedings may be taken in respect of any alleged irregularity in connection therewith ;
  - (c) for rendering the right to a payment under this Part of this Act conditional upon compliance with the provisions of the regulations with respect to the making of claims ;
  - (d) for any matters incidental to or consequential on the matters aforesaid. [2470]

(3) A claim for a payment under a scheme made under this Part of this Act may be made in respect of any interest in land being an interest in fee simple or a leasehold interest as defined by this Act. [2471]

(4) Subject as hereinafter provided, a claim for a payment under a scheme made under this Part of this Act may be made in respect of such land as the claimant thinks fit, and different claims may be made in respect of the interest of the same person in different parcels of land :

Provided that the Central Land Board may direct that any two or more claims in respect of the interest of the same person in different parcels of land shall be dealt with together and treated as if they were one claim in respect of the interest of that person in the whole of the land included in the claims. [2472]

General note.—Where notice to treat for the compulsory acquisition of land has been served after the passing of the Act, the vendor will be the person to make the claim and not the acquiring authority, even though the acquisition is completed before the appointed day (s. 91 (2), post). Under s. 91 (4) (c), post, where the acquisition is by agreement the contract may provide that sub-ss. (2) and (3) of that section shall not apply.

Central Land Board.—For the constitution and functions of the Board, see ss. 2 and 3, ante.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post.

Development values.—For the rules for ascertaining development values, see s. 61, infra.

Disputes.—Note that the disputes mentioned in this paragraph are restricted to disputes arising in relation to the determination of development values ; no provision is made for the settlement of disputes as to the amount of the payment proposed to be made, or the right to receive a payment. Regulations made under s. 58, ante, may provide for the determination of questions as to the right of any person to receive a payment, but no provision is there made for the settlement of disputes arising in relation to any such determination.

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176. S. 1 of that Act provides that, in cases of compulsory acquisition by government departments, local or public authorities, inter alia, questions of disputed compensation are to be referred to and determined by the arbitration of such one of a panel of official arbitrators as may be selected in accordance with rules to be laid down.

Sub-s. (3).—Claims can only be made in respect of an interest in fee simple or a leasehold interest ; but see s. 58 (4) (a), ante, as to protection of the interests of mortgagees and others.

Definitions.—For definitions of "land" and "leasehold interest," see s. 119 (1), post.

61. Ascertainment of development values of land.—(1) For the purposes of this Part of this Act and of any scheme made thereunder an interest in land shall be deemed to be depreciated in value by virtue of the provisions of this Act if the restricted value of that interest on the appointed day, calculated in accordance with the provisions of this and the next following section, is less than the unrestricted value of that interest on that day as so calculated ; and references in this Part of this Act to the development value of an interest in land shall be construed as references to the difference between those values. [2473]

(2) Subject to the following provisions of this section—

- (a) the restricted value of an interest in land on the appointed day shall be taken to be the value of that interest as it subsists on that day, calculated on the assumption that planning permission would be granted under Part III of this Act for development of any class specified in the Third Schedule to this Act, but would not be so granted for any other development ; and

- (b) the unrestricted value of an interest in land on the appointed day shall be taken to be the value which that interest would have had as it subsists on that day if the provisions of this Act (other than this and the next following section) had not passed. [2474]

(3) Where land is used on the appointed day for the display of advertisements, no account shall be taken, in calculating the restricted value of any interest therein, of any power to require the discontinuance of that use by virtue of regulations made under the provisions of Part III of this Act with respect to the control of advertisements. [2475]

(4) Where any permission to develop land granted on an application made in that behalf under an interim development order has been revoked or modified before the appointed day under section four of the Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943, the unrestricted value of any interest in that land shall be calculated without regard to the revocation or modification of that permission :

Provided that—

- (a) in calculating the unrestricted value of the interest no account shall be taken of any works in respect of which any compensation has been paid under subsection (2) of section seven of the said Act ; and

- (b) if any contribution has been paid under subsection (4) of the said section four to the owner of the interest or his predecessor in title, the amount of that contribution shall be deducted from the unrestricted value of the interest. [2476]

(5) For the purposes of this section, the restricted and the unrestricted values of interests in land shall be calculated by reference to prices current immediately before the seventh day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, and for that purpose any such interest shall be treated as if it had been subsisting immediately before that date with all incidents to which it is subject on the appointed day (being incidents which are relevant to the calculation of the restricted or unrestricted value of that interest, as the case may be), and the land shall be treated as having been immediately before that date in the same state as it is on the appointed day :

Provided that in computing the restricted value of an interest in land, no account shall be taken of the provisions of this Act except in their application to that land. [2477]

(6) In computing the unrestricted value of the interest of any person in land which, on the appointed day, was held by him with other land, there shall be deducted—

- (a) an amount equal to the compensation (if any) to which that person would be entitled for the severance of the land from that other land if the first-mentioned land were compulsorily acquired by a government department in pursuance of a notice to treat given on the appointed day ; and

- (b) in so far as the unrestricted value of the land depends on the prospect of development which would injuriously affect that other land, an amount equal to the compensation (if any) to which that person would be entitled for such injurious affection if the first-mentioned land were compulsorily acquired as aforesaid for the purpose of that development. [2478]

- (7) In so far as the unrestricted value of an interest in land depends upon the prospect of any development which, if carried out by the owner of that interest, would necessarily involve a loss to him in the nature of disturbance in respect of the purposes for which the land is being used on the appointed day, the amount of that loss shall be deducted from the unrestricted value of that interest. [2479]

General note.—For observations on this section, see the Preliminary Note, ante.

Appointed day.—Such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint. July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Planning permission.—See, generally, ss. 12 et seq., ante.

Display of advertisements.—The term “advertisement” is widely defined in s. 119 (1), post. In Part III of the Act, s. 31, ante, provides for the making of regulations for the control of advertisements. See also s. 12 (4), ante.

Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943.—36 Halsbury's Statutes 239. For ss. 4 and 7 thereof, see 36 Halsbury's Statutes 244.

Immediately before January 7, 1947.—That is, immediately before the text of the Act, as a Bill, was published.

Severance.—Compensation for severance arises under ss. 49 and 63 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1128, 1133).

Notice to treat.—See s. 18 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1120), incorporated in the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 52).

Injurious affection.—See ss. 49 and 63 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1128, 1133), and note the expression “or otherwise injuriously affecting such lands.”

Disturbance.—See Horn v. Sunderland Corpn., [1941] 2 K. B. 26; [1941] 1 All E. R. 480, particularly the judgment of SCOTT, L.J., for a clear explanation of the law relating to compensation for disturbance.

Definitions.—As to “develop” and “development,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “land” and “use,” see s. 119 (1), post.

62. Supplementary provisions as to development values.—(1) Rules (2) (3) and (4) of the Rules set out in section two of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, shall apply in computing the restricted and the unrestricted values of interests in land for the purposes of this Part of this Act as they apply in relation to the compulsory purchase of interests in land. [2480]

(2) The restricted and the unrestricted values of an interest in land expectant on the determination of a lease shall be computed on the assumption that the lessee will at all times be able to pay the rent and perform his other obligations under the lease, and the restricted and the unrestricted values of a leasehold interest or of an interest expectant on the determination of a lease shall be computed as aforesaid on the assumption that any option exercisable by either party to determine or to renew the lease will be exercised by that party if it is in his interest so to do and not otherwise. [2481]

(3) The restricted and the unrestricted values of an interest in land which is subject to a mortgage shall be computed as if the mortgage had been discharged. [2482]

(4) It is hereby declared that the restricted or the unrestricted value, or both the restricted and the unrestricted values, of an interest in land may be a minus quantity. [2483]

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, s. 2, Rules (2), (3) and (4).—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1178. These Rules are as follows:—

“(2) The value of land shall, subject as hereinafter provided be taken to be the amount which the land if sold in the open market by a willing seller might be expected to realise: Provided always that the arbitrator shall be entitled to consider all returns and assessments of capital value for taxation made or acquiesced in by the claimant:

“(3) The special suitability or adaptability of the land for any purpose shall not be taken into account if that purpose is a purpose to which it could be applied only in pursuance of statutory powers, or for which there is no market apart from the special needs of a particular purchaser or the requirements of any Government Department or any local or public authority: Provided that any bona fide offer for the purchase of the land made before the passing of this Act which may be brought to the notice of the arbitrator shall be taken into consideration:

“(4) Where the value of the land is increased by reason of the use thereof or of any premises thereon in a manner which could be restrained by any court, or is contrary to law, or is detrimental to the health of the inmates of the premises or to the public health, the amount of that increase shall not be taken into account.”

Restricted and unrestricted values.—These terms are defined respectively in s. 61 (2) (a) and (b), ante. The development value of an interest in land is the difference between the restricted and unrestricted values (s. 61 (1), ante).

Option to determine or to renew the lease.—It is more usual for an option to be exercisable by a lessee only, but options exercisable by either party are not uncommon. By entering into a lease for a fairly long term with the insertion of an option to determine exercisable on either side, the parties avoid the trouble and expense of frequent renewals. Thus, instead of granting a lease for seven years with an option to renew for a further seven or fourteen years, it is quite usual for a lessor to grant a lease for twenty-one years determinable at the end of seven or fourteen. The essence of an option is that it can be exercised by the person in whose favour it is given without any further consent on the part of the donor, but the conditions of exercise must be carefully observed.

Sub-s. (4).—This subsection would cover the case of the tail end of a lease containing fairly onerous repairing covenants. The tenancy might be worth nothing or perhaps even involve a minus quantity. The restricted value might be minus two and the unrestricted value minus one. This subsection gives the owner of the interest the right to claim the difference between the two minus quantities.

Definitions.—For definitions of "land," "lease" and "leasehold interest," see s. 119 (1), post.

63. Exclusion of small claims.—(1) Without prejudice to any provisions which may be included in a scheme made under section fifty-eight of this Act for prescribing the cases in which payments are to be made thereunder, no such payment shall be made in respect of an interest in land in respect of which a claim is made unless—

- (a) the development value of that interest, when averaged over the area of the land, exceeds the rate of twenty pounds per acre; and
- (b) the development value of that interest also exceeds one tenth of its restricted value. [2484]

(2) In determining for the purposes of paragraph (b) of the foregoing subsection whether the development value of an interest in land exceeds one tenth of its restricted value, those values shall be calculated—

- (a) in the case of a leasehold interest, as if the rent payable under the lease were a rent of a peppercorn;
- (b) in the case of an interest which is subject to a rentcharge, as if the interest were not subject thereto. [2485]

Development value.—The difference between the restricted and unrestricted values (s. 61 (1), ante).

Restricted value.—The value of an interest in land on July 1, 1948, calculated on the assumption that planning permission would be granted for the minor types of development specified in Sched. III, post, but would not be granted for any other development (s. 61 (2) (a)).

Sub-s. (2).—The purpose of this subsection is to overcome the difficulty which would otherwise arise where the restricted value is nil.

Rent of a peppercorn.—A purely nominal rent. "A peppercorn rent" or a "rent of one peppercorn, if demanded" was the ancient method of preserving the relationship of landlord and tenant without requiring any substantial rent. In later days it figured in attornment clauses in mortgages where the draftsman's aim was to produce a notional relation of landlord and tenant between mortgagee and mortgagor, though in recent years the phrase has tended to fall into disuse.

Definitions.—For definitions of "land," "leasehold interest," "lease" and "mortgage," see s. 119 (1), post.

64. Vesting and assignment of right to payments under Part VI.—(1) Subject to the provisions of any scheme made under this Part of this Act with respect to the disposal of payments made thereunder, the right to receive any such payment in respect of an interest in land shall vest in the person who is on the appointed day the owner of that interest. [2486]

(2) The right to receive a payment under any scheme made under this Part of this Act, or a part of such a payment, shall be transmissible by assignment or by operation of law as personal property:

Provided that regulations made under this Act may direct that any such assignment shall be of no effect for the purposes of any such scheme as aforesaid unless notice thereof has been given to the Central Land Board, in the manner prescribed by the regulations, within such period as may be so prescribed. [2487]

(3) Subject to the following provisions of this section the reference in this section to the owner of an interest in land shall be construed as a reference to the person in whom the legal estate in respect of the interest is vested or, if the interest is a tenancy under an agreement for a lease, to the person entitled to have vested in him the legal term agreed to be created. [2488]

(4) Where the legal estate or the title thereto, as the case may be, in respect of an interest in land is vested in the official trustee of charity lands or other trustee on or for charitable, ecclesiastical or public trusts or purposes not entitled to act in the trust, or in the Public Trustee holding in circumstances in which he is not entitled to act in the trust then,—

(a) in the case of a trustee on or for charitable, ecclesiastical or public trusts or purposes, the managing trustees or committee of management shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to be the owner of the interest ;

(b) in the case of the Public Trustee, the person in receipt of the rent incident to the Public Trustee's estate, or, if there is no rent incident thereto, the person in occupation of the land, shall be deemed for those purposes to be the owner of the interest. [2489]

(5) Where under section nine of the Administration of Estates Act, 1925, or section fifteen of the Court of Probate (Ireland) Act, 1859, the estate of a person who died intestate is vested in the Probate Judge, that judge shall not be deemed for the purposes of this section to be the owner of any interest in land comprised in the estate, but upon administration being granted the administrator shall be deemed for those purposes to have been the owner thereof as from the date of the death. [2490]

(6) In relation to requisitioned land the reference in paragraph (b) of subsection (4) of this section to rent shall be construed as including a reference to compensation payable under the Compensation (Defence) Act, 1939, or under any such agreement as is mentioned in section fifteen of that Act, and the reference in the said paragraph (b) to the person in receipt of rent shall be construed as a reference to the person who is, or, if a claim therefor had been duly made under that Act, would have been, in receipt of such compensation as aforesaid. [2491]

Vesting of right to receive payment.—Note, in connection with sub-s. (1), the provisions contained in s. 91, post (land in process of acquisition at the appointed day).

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister may by order appoint. July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Assignment.—Note that notice of assignment may have to be given to the Central Land Board, though no regulations under sub-s. (2), ante, had been made up to the time of going to press.

Operation of law.—E.g. on death or bankruptcy.

Personal property.—Personal property comprises all forms of property, movable or immovable, corporeal or incorporeal, other than freehold estates and interests in land. Certain interests concerning or savouring of realty called “chattels real,” though strictly personalty, tended to be of a hybrid nature and the present provision, inserted ex abundanti cautela on account of the close relation to land of payments under the schemes referred to, obviates any possible difficulty that might have arisen as to the nature of the payments.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to such regulations, see s. 111, post.

Legal estate in respect of the interest.—This links up with s. 60 (3), ante, whereby claims for payment may be made in respect of interests in fee simple and leasehold interests as defined in s. 119 (1), post. The whole basis of claims, subject to the special cases for which provision is made by sub-ss. (4) and (5), supra, is the legal estate, whether freehold or leasehold (see the Law of Property Act, 1925, s. 1 (1) ; 15 Halsbury's Statutes 177).

Administration of Estates Act, 1925, s. 9.—8 Halsbury's Statutes 313. This section provides that, until a grant of administration is made, the real and personal estate of an intestate is to vest in the Probate Judge in the same manner and to the same extent as formerly in the case of personal estate it vested in the ordinary. “Intestate” in this section, semble, means “without having appointed an executor or having appointed an executor whose rights in respect of the executorship have wholly ceased.” Though the term is defined by s. 55 (1) (vi) of the same Act (8 Halsbury's Statutes 357), the definition there is not exhaustive.

Court of Probate (Ireland) Act, 1859.—22 & 23 Vict. c. 31.

Compensation (Defence) Act, 1939.—32 Halsbury's Statutes 1013. This Act makes provision for compensation to be paid in respect of action taken on behalf of the Crown in the exercise of certain emergency powers, notably the taking possession of land and the requisitioning of property other than land.

Any such agreement as is mentioned, etc.—S. 15 of the Compensation (Defence) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1028), reads as follows :—

“The provisions of this Act shall be without prejudice to any agreement for the making of any payment (whether by way of compensation or otherwise) in respect of the doing of anything on behalf of His Majesty in the exercise of emergency powers ;

but, where compensation in respect of the doing of anything as aforesaid, would, apart from this section, be payable both under this Act and under some other enactment or rule of law, then, subject to any such agreement as aforesaid, the compensation shall be payable in accordance with this Act and not otherwise."

Definitions.—As to "requisitioned land," see ss. 89 and 119 (1), post. For definition of "land," see s. 119 (1), post.

Satisfaction of Payments

65. Satisfaction of payments under Part VI.—(1) All payments falling to be made in accordance with a scheme made under section fifty-eight of this Act shall be satisfied by the issue of government stock, that is to say stock the principal of which and the interest on which shall be charged on the Consolidated Fund; and all payments falling to be made in accordance with a scheme made under section fifty-nine of this Act shall be made in cash by the Central Land Board. [2492]

(2) Any such stock shall be issued on such date as may be fixed by the Treasury, being a date not later than five years after the appointed day:

Provided that if the amount of any payment required by this section to be satisfied by the issue of stock has not been finally determined on the date so fixed, the stock to be issued in satisfaction of the payment shall be issued on such date not being later than three months after the amount thereof has been so determined as the Treasury may direct. [2493]

(3) Interest on the amount of any payment falling to be made in accordance with a scheme made under this Part of this Act shall accrue, at such rate as may from time to time be determined by the Treasury, from the appointed day until the payment is satisfied in accordance with the provisions of this section, and shall be paid in cash by the Central Land Board at the time when the payment is so satisfied. [2494]

(4) The amount of the stock to be issued in satisfaction of any payment under this Part of this Act shall be such as, in the opinion of the Treasury, is of a value equal on the date of the issue to the amount of the payment, having due regard to the market values of other government securities existing on that date. [2495]

(5) The Treasury may by regulations make provision as to the procedure for the issue of stock in satisfaction of payments under this Part of this Act including provision as to evidence of the amount of stock to be issued in any case, and the person to whom it is to be issued, on which the Banks of England and Ireland respectively are to be authorised or required to act. [2496]

General note.—This section deals with the satisfaction of two kinds of payment. First, where claims for depreciation of land values have been admitted, the claimant becomes entitled to a payment from the global sum of £300,000,000 referred to in s. 58, ante, but this will not be paid in cash but, as under many other compensation provisions of present-day nationalisation schemes, by the issue of stock (compare, for instance, the Electricity Act, 1947, s. 20, title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante), in this case of negotiable government stock. It will not be possible to issue the stock until much preliminary work has been completed, so sub-s. (2), supra, provides for its issue at a date not later than five years after the appointed day, subject to a proviso to meet cases where the amount of the payment has not then been finally settled. By sub-s. (4) the amount of the stock is to be based on the market values of other government securities on the date of issue, the whole procedure being subject to detailed regulations to be made by the Treasury (sub-s. (5)).

Secondly, the section deals with satisfaction of the additional payments to be made in respect of certain war-damaged land under s. 59, ante. Here, in contrast to the previous case, payment is to be in cash.

Interest at a rate to be settled by the Treasury is to be paid for the period from July 1, 1948, to the date of actual satisfaction. Payment of interest is to be by cash and not by stock (compare interest on payments under the War Damage Act, 1943; 36 Halsbury's Statutes 334).

Central Land Board.—For the constitution and functions of the Board, see ss. 2 and 3, ante.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order direct (s. 119 (1), post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Interest on the amount of any payment.—Tax will be deducted from interest payments (see Explanatory Memorandum on the Bill (Cmd. 7006), at p. 9).

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post.

66. General provisions as to stock.—(1) Any stock issued in accordance with the last foregoing section (in this section referred to as "the stock") shall bear such rate of interest, and shall be subject to such conditions as to repayment, redemption and other matters (including provision for a sinking fund), as the Treasury may determine. [2497]

(2) Any expenses incurred in connection with the issue or repayment of the stock shall be charged on and issued out of the Consolidated Fund. [2498]

(3) The Treasury may, for the purpose of providing any sums required by them in order to redeem the stock, raise money in any manner in which they are authorised to raise money under the National Loans Act, 1939, and any securities created and issued to raise money under this subsection shall be deemed for all purposes to have been created and issued under that Act. [2499]

(4) Interest on the stock shall be paid out of the permanent annual charge for the national debt. [2500]

(5) There shall be paid to the Banks of England and Ireland respectively, out of the Consolidated Fund, such sum in respect of the management of the stock in any financial year as may be agreed upon between the Treasury and those banks respectively. [2501]

(6) Section forty-seven of the Finance Act, 1942 (which empowers the Treasury to make regulations as respects the transfer and registration of stock and registered bonds of the descriptions specified in Part I of the Eleventh Schedule to that Act) and any regulations made under that section which are in force immediately before the passing of this Act, shall have effect as if the stock were included among the stocks mentioned in the said Part I and among the stocks to which the said regulations apply. [2502]

(7) The stock shall be subject to the provisions of the National Debt Act, 1870, so far as is consistent with the tenor of this Act. [2503]

(8) Paragraphs 3, 4 and 5 of the Second Schedule to the National Loans Act, 1939 (which applies certain enactments to securities issued under that Act) shall have effect as if references to securities so issued included references to the stock. [2504]

General note.—This section elaborates the conditions subject to which the negotiable government stock referred to in the previous section is to be issued. A wide discretion is given to the Treasury to determine the rate of interest which the stock will bear and the other terms of issue.

National Loans Act, 1939.—32 Halsbury's Statutes 1235. This Act gives the Treasury wide powers as to the raising of money. S. 4 thereof (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1237) authorises trustees to invest in securities issued under the Act. Cf. s. 3 of the Act (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1237) with the present section.

For Sched. II, paras. 3, 4 and 5 to the said Act, see 32 Halsbury's Statutes 1239.

Finance Act, 1942, s. 47.—35 Halsbury's Statutes 188. The effect of this section is briefly summarised in sub-s. (6), supra.

Passing of this Act.—August 6, 1947.

National Debt Act, 1870.—16 Halsbury's Statutes 258. This Act has been widely applied in the past, e.g. to local loans stock under the National Debt and Local Loans Act, 1887 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 282).

67. Provision for payments in cash.—(1) The Treasury may issue to the Central Land Board out of the Consolidated Fund such sums as are necessary to enable the Board to make any payments which under this Part of this Act are payable by the Board in cash. [2505]

(2) For the purpose of providing sums to be issued under the last foregoing subsection, or of providing for the replacement of sums so issued, the Treasury may at any time, if they think fit, raise money in any manner in which they are authorised to raise money under the National Loans Act, 1939, and any securities created and issued to raise money under this section shall be deemed for all purposes to have been created and issued under that Act. [2506]

General note.—Just as the previous section elaborated the provisions of s. 65 in regard to the issue of stock, so this section elaborates its provisions in regard to payments in cash.

Central Land Board.—For the constitution and functions of this Board, see ss. 2 and 3, ante.

National Loans Act, 1939.—32 Halsbury's Statutes 1235. See note to s. 66, ante.

68. Payments by Central Land Board into Exchequer.—(1) The Central Land Board shall, out of moneys provided by Parliament, pay into the Exchequer in accordance with the following provisions of this section sums equal to the aggregate amount of—

- (a) the amount of any payments satisfied by the issue of stock under the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act; and
- (b) the amount of any sums issued to the Board out of the Consolidated Fund under the last foregoing section in respect of interest on such payments, together with interest on the said aggregate amount at such rate as the Treasury may direct from the date of the issue. [2507]

(2) The sums required by the foregoing subsection to be paid into the Exchequer by the Central Land Board shall be paid by twenty equal instalments of principal and interest, of which the first shall be paid one year after the date fixed by the Treasury for the issue of the stock, and the remainder annually thereafter:

Provided that where any payment made under this Part of this Act is satisfied, in accordance with the proviso to subsection (2) of section sixty-five of this Act, by the issue of stock at any time after the date fixed as aforesaid, the sums required to be paid into the Exchequer under this section in respect of that payment, and in respect of sums issued to the Board under the last foregoing section in respect of interest thereon, shall be so paid by such number of equal annual instalments of principal and interest as will complete the instalments on the same date as the instalments in respect of payments which are satisfied on the date fixed as aforesaid. [2508]

(3) Any sums paid into the Exchequer under the foregoing provisions of this section shall be issued out of the Consolidated Fund at such times as the Treasury may direct, and shall be applied by the Treasury as follows, that is to say—

- (a) so much thereof as represents principal shall be applied in redeeming or paying off debt of such description as the Treasury think fit;
- (b) so much thereof as represents interest shall be applied to the payment of interest which would, apart from this provision, have fallen to be paid out of the permanent annual charge for the national debt. [2509]

General note.—The effect of this section is summarised in the Explanatory Memorandum on the Bill (Cmd. 7006), at p. 11, as follows:—

"The Exchequer will recover a sum equal to the amount of payments satisfied by the issue of stock, and accrued interest on those payments, by way of twenty annuity payments charged on the Central Land Board's Vote. These annuity payments will be applied, as to principal, to the redemption of debt, and as to interest, to the payment of interest on the National Debt. Development charges collected by the Central Land Board will be paid into the Exchequer and will thus be available to be appropriated in aid of the Board's Vote."

Central Land Board.—For the constitution and functions of the Board, see ss. 2 and 3, ante.

PART VII

DEVELOPMENT CHARGES

69. Levy of development charge in respect of certain development.—

(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, there shall be paid to the Central Land Board in respect of the carrying out of any operations to which this Part of this Act applies, and in respect of any use of land to which this Part of this Act applies, a development charge of such amount (if any) as the Board may determine, and accordingly no such operations shall be carried out, and no such use shall be instituted or continued, except with the consent in writing of the Central Land Board, until the amount of the charge (if any) to be paid in respect of those operations or that use has been determined by the Board in accordance with the provisions of this Part of this Act, and the Board have certified that the amount so determined has been paid or secured to their satisfaction in accordance with those provisions. [2510]

(2) This Part of this Act applies to all operations for the carrying out of which planning permission under Part III of this Act is required, and to all uses of land for the institution or continuance of which such permission is so required :

Provided that—

(a) this Part of this Act does not (except as hereinafter provided) apply to operations of any description specified in the Third Schedule to this Act or to any use of land so specified ;

(b) regulations made under this Act with the consent of the Treasury may provide for exempting from the provisions of this Part of this Act operations or uses of any description specified in the regulations. [2511]

(3) Notwithstanding anything in paragraph (a) of the proviso to the last foregoing subsection, where planning permission is granted under Part III of this Act for the carrying out of operations of any class specified in the Third Schedule to this Act, or for the institution of any use so specified, then if—

(a) compensation has been paid under section twenty of this Act in consequence of a previous refusal of permission for those operations or that use or of the grant of such permission subject to conditions, or in consequence of the revocation or modification of permission so granted ; or

(b) compensation has been paid under section twenty-seven of this Act in consequence of an order requiring the removal of any building or the discontinuance of any use of land, and the planning permission authorises the rebuilding of that building or the resumption of that use, this Part of this Act shall apply to those operations, or to that use, as the case may be ; and where the amount of the development charge to be paid in respect of those operations or that use has been determined by the Central Land Board in accordance with the provisions of this Part of this Act, the Board may pay to any local authority by whom any such compensation as aforesaid has been paid a contribution towards that compensation not exceeding the said amount. [2512]

(4) Where, by virtue of any provision of this Act, planning permission under Part III of this Act is granted in respect of the retention on land of any buildings or works erected or carried out in accordance with planning permission granted for a limited period only, this Part of this Act shall apply to the retention of the buildings or works as it applies to operations for which planning permission under Part III of this Act is required ; and references in this Part of this Act to the carrying out of such operations shall be construed accordingly. [2513]

(5) Regulations made for the purposes of paragraph (b) of the proviso to subsection (2) of this section shall be of no effect unless they are approved by resolution of each House of Parliament. [2514]

(6) Any sums required by the Central Land Board for the making of contributions under this section shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [2515]

General note.—This section provides :—

1. That a development charge shall be paid to the Central Land Board in respect of development for which planning permission is required under Part III of the Act.

2. That normally no development charge shall be paid in respect of—

(a) development specified in Sched. III ; and

(b) development exempted by regulations made with the consent of the Treasury.

3. That a development charge shall be payable where planning permission is granted for development of any class described in Sched. III in cases where—

(a) compensation has been paid in respect of a previous refusal under s. 20, ante, or in consequence of a revocation or modification of permission previously granted ;

(b) compensation has been paid under s. 27, ante, in respect of an order requiring the removal of any building or the discontinuance of any use of land, and the planning permission now granted authorises the rebuilding of that building or the resumption of that use.

The Central Land Board may pay to any local authority who has paid such compensation as above mentioned a contribution towards that compensation not exceeding the amount of the development charge.

4. That a development charge shall be paid in cases where planning permission is granted under Part III in respect of the retention of buildings or works erected or carried out in accordance with planning permission granted for a limited period only.

5. That any regulations made with the consent of the Treasury under sub-s. (2) (b), ante, shall be of no effect unless they are approved by resolution of each House of Parliament. This is an example of the so-called " affirmative resolution procedure " to which ss. 4-7 of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 785 et seq.), are inapplicable.

Central Land Board.—See ss. 2 and 3, ante.

As the Board may determine.—The Board's decision is final and conclusive.

No such operation shall be carried out.—If development is carried out in contravention of this section, the Board may impose a penalty not exceeding the amount of the development charge subsequently fixed by the Board (s. 73 (2), post).

Paid or secured.—See s. 71, post.

Regulations.—See s. 111, post.

Sub-s. (3).—What this subsection, in effect, provides is that if a person has received compensation for loss of development rights which he would otherwise have had under Sched. III, then if he regains those rights he must pay a development charge.

Not exceeding the said amount.—That is, the amount of the development charge determined by the Board.

Sub-s. (4).—See s. 18, ante.

Definitions.—As to " planning permission," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post ; as to " permission granted for a limited period only," see ss. 14, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of " use," " land," " building," " local authority " and " buildings or works," see s. 119 (1), post.

70. Determination of development charge by Central Land Board.—

(1) Subject as hereinafter provided, the Central Land Board shall, on application being made to them in the manner prescribed by regulations under this Act by a person having an interest in land sufficient to enable him to carry out such operations as aforesaid or to make any such use as aforesaid, or by a person who satisfies them that he is able to obtain such an interest, determine whether any and if so what development charge is to be paid in respect of those operations or that use :

Provided that—

(a) where planning permission under Part III of this Act has not been granted for the carrying out of the said operations or for the institution or continuance of the said use, the Board may postpone the determination of the development charge to be paid in respect thereof until such permission has been granted ;

(b) where the application relates to the carrying out of any operations, the Board may refuse to determine the development charge payable in respect thereof unless they are satisfied, after consultation with the local planning authority, that the applicant is able to carry out those operations, and that he will do so within such period as the Board consider appropriate ;

(c) where the application relates to the institution of any use of land, the Board may refuse to determine the amount of the charge in respect thereof unless they are satisfied, after consultation with the local planning authority, that the use will be instituted within such period as the Board consider appropriate. [2516]

(2) In determining whether any and if so what development charge is to be paid under this Part of this Act in respect of any operations or any use of land, the Board shall have regard to the amount by which the value of the land with the benefit of planning permission for those operations or that use (calculated without regard to any charge payable in respect thereof under this Part of this Act and on the assumption that the operation or use can lawfully be carried out or made apart from the provisions of this Act) exceeds the value which it would have without the benefit of such permission, and shall not give any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage to one applicant over another. [2517]

(3) Subject to the provisions of the last foregoing subsection, regulations made under this Act with the consent of the Treasury may prescribe general principles to be followed by the Central Land Board in determining under this Part of this Act whether any and if so what development charge is to be paid thereunder in respect of any operations or use of land, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provision, such regulations may in particular provide for securing that the amount of the said charge shall be determined on different principles in relation to operations or uses of different classes, or in relation to operations or uses carried out or begun at different periods. [2518]

(4) Where planning permission for any operations, or for any use of land, is granted under subsection (6) of section twenty-six of this Act, or directions are given under subsection (2) of section nineteen of this Act requiring such permission to be granted on application made in that behalf, the Board may determine the amount of the development charge (if any) which would be payable under this Part of this Act in respect of those operations or that use, notwithstanding that no such application as is mentioned in this section has been made to them in that behalf. [2519]

(5) Regulations made for the purposes of subsection (3) of this section shall be of no effect unless they are approved by resolution of each House of Parliament. [2520]

Central Land Board.—For the constitution and functions of the Board, see ss. 2 and 3, ante.
Application.—See, further, s. 102, post.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post. By sub-s. (5), supra, regulations made for the purposes of sub-s. (3), supra, are subject to the so-called "affirmative resolution procedure" to which ss. 4-7 of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 785 et seq.) do not apply.

Having an interest in land.—The Central Land Board have power to require information as to the ownership of land (s. 106, post).

By a person who satisfies them, etc.—Note, in connection with this provision, the terms of s. 43 (1), ante.

Shall have regard.—The Board are merely required to have regard to the increased value of the land due to the benefit of the planning permission; they are not bound to make the charge equivalent to the whole amount of the increased value of the land due to the benefit of the permission, nor as a general rule are they likely to do so.

Undue or unreasonable preference or advantage.—Thus the Board may give preference to one applicant over another, if they have good reasons for so doing. The Courts would not lightly interfere with their discretion in this matter.

Compare the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946, s. 1 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 256) ("avoidance of any undue or unreasonable preference or advantage"); and the Electricity Act, 1947, s. 37 (8), title ELECTRICITY SUPPLY, ante ("undue preference . . . undue discrimination").

Shall be determined on different principles.—By means of the regulations authorising a differential development charge, certain forms of development may be encouraged or discouraged. Thus, the powers relating to development charges may be used to exercise planning control additional to that authorised by Part III of the Act, ante.

Definitions.—As to "planning permission," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; as to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land" and "use," see s. 119 (1), post.

71. Payment and security for payment of development charges.—(1) The amount of the development charge payable under this Part of this Act in respect of the carrying out of any operations or in respect of any use of land may be determined either as a single capital payment or as a series of instalments of capital, or of capital and interest combined, or as a series of other annual or periodical payments, of such amounts, and payable at such times, as the Central Land Board may determine after taking into account any representations made by the applicant. [2521]

(2) Except where the development charge is determined as aforesaid as a single capital payment which is then discharged, the Central Land Board may require the applicant—

- (a) to enter into such covenants as they may direct for the payment of any sums payable by virtue of the determination (whether with or without interest in default of due payment);
- (b) to give such security as they may direct (whether by way of a charge on the interest of the applicant in the land or otherwise) for the payment of any such sums as aforesaid :

Provided that notwithstanding anything in this section or in any requirement of the Board thereunder, any person for the time being interested in the land may at any time discharge any outstanding liability for sums payable by virtue of the determination by the payment of such amount as may be determined by the Board to represent the value of those sums subject to such discount as they consider appropriate. [2522]

(3) Where the amount of a development charge as determined by the Board has been discharged or any such requirement as aforesaid has been complied with, or where the Board determine that no such charge is to be paid, the Board shall, if so required by the applicant, issue their certificate to that effect. [2523]

(4) The purposes authorised for the application of capital moneys—

- (a) by section seventy-three of the Settled Land Act, 1925, and by that section as applied by section twenty-eight of the Law of Property Act, 1925, in relation to trusts for sale; and
- (b) by section twenty-six of the Universities and College Estates Act, 1925, and the purposes authorised by section seventy-one of the Settled Land Act, 1925, by that section as applied as aforesaid, and by section thirty-one of the Universities and College Estates Act, 1925, as purposes for which moneys may be raised by mortgage, shall include the discharge of any sum payable in respect of a development charge under this Part of this Act, being a sum determined by the Board under this section as a capital payment or as an instalment of capital. [2524]

(5) Any sums received by the Central Land Board in respect of the payment of a development charge shall be paid into the Exchequer. [2525]

General note.—The Central Land Board is to have power, after considering anything the applicant has to say on the subject, to make a development charge payable (a) in a lump sum; (b) by instalments of capital, or capital and interest; or (c) by other annual or periodical payments. In addition, in either case (b) or (c) the Board may require covenants to pay or security, such as a charge on the land, or both.

Provision is made, however, for payment off of instalments or periodical payments at any time an owner chooses, and for the issue of "clearance certificates" (see infra). Capital money may be applied in the discharge of capital sums outstanding in respect of development charges.

Central Land Board.—See ss. 2 and 3, ante.

Certificate.—Where a person who has obtained planning permission and paid the development charge sells land with the benefit of the permission and payment, the purchaser should require production of the permission and the certificate. It will also be necessary to make inquiries of the local planning authority to make sure that the planning permission has not been revoked or modified. See, further, s. 72 (1), post, particularly the proviso.

Settled Land Act, 1925, s. 73.—17 Halsbury's Statutes 906. This is the section which sets out the ways in which capital money under that Act may be invested or otherwise applied.

Law of Property Act, 1925, s. 28.—15 Halsbury's Statutes 203. By this section trustees for sale are given all the powers of a tenant for life and the trustees of a settlement under the Settled Land Act, 1925 (17 Halsbury's Statutes 833).

Universities and College Estates Act, 1925, s. 26.—7 Halsbury's Statutes 100. This section sets out the purposes for which universities and colleges to which that Act applies may, with the consent of the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries, apply capital money.

Raising money by mortgage.—The Settled Land Act, 1925, s. 71 (17 Halsbury's Statutes 903), authorises a tenant for life to raise money required for specified purposes on the security of the settled land by legal mortgage; the Law of Property Act, 1925, s. 28 (15 Halsbury's Statutes 203), applies this power to trustees for sale, and the Universities and College Estates Act, 1925, s. 31 (7 Halsbury's Statutes 104), describes the circumstances in which universities and colleges within that Act may raise money by mortgage of land belonging to them.

In each of these three cases, sub-s. (4), ante, brings the discharge of the capital of development charges within the ambit of the existing provisions.

Definitions.—For definitions of "use," "land" and "mortgage," see s. 119 (1), post.

72. Scope and effect of determinations of Central Land Board.—(1) Subject as hereinafter provided, a determination of the Central Land Board under this Part of this Act in respect of any operations or use of land shall have effect in relation to the carrying out of those operations, or, as the case may be, in relation to that use of the land, by any person for the time being interested therein and the question whether any and if so what development charge is to be paid under this Part of this Act in respect of any such operations or use shall be determined accordingly:

Provided that the Board may, if they think fit, direct that any such determination as aforesaid shall cease to have effect if, before the operations to which the determination relates are carried out or completed, or, as the case may be, before the use to which it relates is instituted, any interest in the land is transferred or created (otherwise than by operation of law), unless the determination is confirmed by the Board with or without modifications, on a subsequent application made to them in that behalf. [2526]

(2) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing subsection, the amount of the development charge payable under this Part of this Act in respect of the use of land for any purpose may be determined in respect of the use of the land for that purpose during such period as may be specified in the determination:

Provided that—

(a) where planning permission for the institution or continuance of the use of land for any purpose has been granted under Part III of this Act for a limited period only, the amount of the said charge shall not be determined in respect of the use of the land for that purpose during any longer period; and

(b) where application is made to the Central Land Board to determine the amount of the said charge in respect of the use of the land for any purpose during any period specified in the application, the said amount shall not be so determined in respect of the use of the land for that purpose during any period longer than the period so specified. [2527]

(3) Where a determination of the Central Land Board is made, under the last foregoing subsection, in respect of the use of land for any purpose during a period specified in the determination, the provisions of this Part of this Act shall apply in relation to the use of the land for that purpose by any person after the expiration of that period as if the determination had not been made. [2528]

General note.—The proviso to sub-s. (1) of this section contains a highly important provision relating to the transfer of land.

Although planning permission may have been granted in respect of the use of land for a particular purpose unconditionally as regards the period for which the use may continue, the Central Land Board may determine the amount of the development charge for that purpose during such period as may be specified in the determination.

Where planning permission in respect of a use has been granted for a limited period, the amount of the charge must not be determined in respect of that use during any longer period.

An application may be made to the Central Land Board to determine the amount of the charge in respect of a use for a period specified in the application and in this case the Board must not determine the amount of the charge in respect of the use for any longer period than the period so specified.

If it is desired to continue the use beyond the period for which the charge has been determined, then a fresh application must be made to the Board to determine the amount of the charge.

Central Land Board.—For the constitution and functions of the Board, see ss. 2 and 3, ante.

By operation of law.—E.g. on death or bankruptcy.

Definitions.—As to "planning permission," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "permission granted for a limited period only," see ss. 14, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "use" and "land," see s. 119 (1), post.

73. Variation of determinations and repayment of development charges in certain cases.—(1) The Central Land Board may at any time, on application made to them in that behalf in accordance with regulations under this Act by the person entitled to an interest in land to which a determination under this Part of this Act relates, vary their determination in such manner as appears to them to be appropriate having regard to any change of circumstances since the determination was made, including the development, after the determination, of adjacent land in accordance with planning permission granted otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of the development plan, and may amend, discharge or release any covenants or charges made or given in respect of the determination, or repay any sums previously paid thereunder, so far as may be required in order to give effect to the variation:

Provided that, except in a case where application is made to them to confirm a previous determination on the transfer or creation of any interest in land, the Board shall not have power to vary any determination under this Part of this Act so as to increase the amount of the development charge payable thereunder. [2529]

(2) Where, after the amount of the development charge has been determined under this Part of this Act in respect of any operations or in respect of any use of land, and before the amount so determined has been fully discharged—

- (a) planning permission for the carrying out of those operations or for the institution or continuance of that use is revoked by an order made under section twenty-one of this Act; or
- (b) an order is made under section twenty-six of this Act requiring the removal of any buildings or works erected or constructed in carrying out those operations, or requiring the discontinuance of that use; or
- (c) the whole of the land to which the determination relates is compulsorily acquired under this or any other Act, the determination, and any covenants or charges made or given in respect thereof, shall thereupon cease to have effect, but without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done thereunder. [2530]

(3) Where, after the amount of the development charge has been determined as aforesaid, and before the amount so determined has been fully discharged,—

- (a) planning permission for the carrying out of the operations, or for the institution or continuance of the use, to which the determination relates, is modified by an order made under the said section twenty-one; or
- (b) an order is made under the said section twenty-six requiring the alteration of any buildings or works erected or constructed in the carrying out of those operations, or imposing conditions on the continuance of that use; or
- (c) any part of the land to which the determination relates is compulsorily acquired under this or any other Act, the Board shall, on application made to them in accordance with regulations under this Act, vary the determination and amend, discharge or release any covenants or charges made or given in respect thereof, so far as may be just in consequence of the modification, order or purchase as the case may be.

(4) Where compensation is payable under Part III of this Act in consequence of any such order as mentioned in paragraph (a) or paragraph (b) of subsection (2) or subsection (3) of this section, then in calculating for the purposes of the compensation any depreciation in the value of the land to which the order relates, or any other loss or damage sustained by a person interested in that land, regard shall be had to the foregoing provisions of this section and to anything done by the Board thereunder. [2532]

(5) Where compensation is payable under the said Part III in consequence of any such order as aforesaid, or where land is compulsorily acquired as mentioned in paragraph (c) of subsection (2) or subsection (3) of this section, then if any sums have been paid to the Central Land Board by way of development charge in accordance with the determination referred to in those subsections, the Board shall pay to the authority or person by whom compensation is payable in consequence of the order or, as the case may be, in respect of the compulsory acquisition, a contribution towards that compensation representing such proportion of the sums so paid by way of development charge as may be agreed between the Board and that authority or person, or, failing agreement, as may be determined by the Minister, to be appropriate in all the circumstances of the case. [2533]

(6) Subsection (3) of section twenty-two of this Act shall apply for the purposes of this section as it applies for the purposes of that section, and shall accordingly have effect as if the reference therein to the foregoing provisions of that section included a reference to the foregoing provisions of this section; and any reference in this section to the compulsory acquisition of land shall be construed as including a reference to the acquisition of land by agreement by any authority or person who has power or can be authorised to acquire it compulsorily. [2534]

(7) Any sums required by the Central Land Board for the repayment of sums under this section, or for the making of contributions thereunder, shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [2535]

Effect of section.—This section enables the Central Land Board (1) to vary their determinations as to development charges, having regard to subsequent changes of circumstance; and (2) to amend or discharge covenants entered into or charges given and, where appropriate, to repay out of public funds any sums already paid. Such action is to be at the instance of persons interested in the land, and development charges payable can only be increased where the Board is asked to confirm an earlier determination on the transfer or creation of an interest in land.

By sub-ss. (2) and (3) provision is made for covenants or charges either to cease or to have effect or to be amended where particular events there specified have taken place after the date of the original determination.

Where compensation is payable under Part III of the Act, ante, first, sub-s. (4) provides that sub-ss. (1)–(3), ante, are to be taken into account in calculating the amount of the depreciation in value of the land; and secondly, sub-s. (5) provides for the payment by the Central Land Board of contributions towards the compensation payable.

Central Land Board.—See ss. 2 and 3, ante.

Regulations under this Act.—For the general provisions applicable, see s. 111, post.

Adjacent land.—See note to s. 5, ante, on the words “contiguous or adjacent.”

Development plan.—See Part II, ante.

Compulsorily acquired.—E.g. by Ministers, local authorities and statutory undertakers under s. 37, ante. Note the provision contained in sub-s. (8), supra, whereby references to compulsory acquisition in the present section are to include references to acquisition by agreement where compulsory powers exist. As to the acquisition of land by agreement for development purposes, see s. 40, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Definitions.—As to “planning permission,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “land,” “use” and “buildings or works,” see s. 119 (1), post.

74. Powers of Central Land Board as to development carried out in contravention of Part VII.—(1) If any operations to which this Part of this Act applies are carried out, or any use of land to which this Part of this Act applies is instituted or continued, in contravention of the foregoing provisions of this Part of this Act, the Central Land Board may, without any application being made to them in that behalf, by order determine whether any and if so what development charge is to be paid in respect of those operations or in respect of that use:

Provided that, subject to the following provisions of this section, the amount of the development charge so determined shall not exceed the amount which, in the opinion of the Board, would have been so determined if application had been duly made to them in that behalf under this Part of this Act. [2536]

(2) Any order made under this section may require the payment to the Board, by such persons as may be specified in the order (being persons by whom the operations were carried out, or by whom the use was instituted or continued, as the case may be), of such sums in respect of the charge and interest thereon as may be so specified, and may charge the interest of any person in the land with the payment of any sums so payable by that person or by any of his predecessors in title. [2537]

(3) Subject as hereinafter provided, the Central Land Board may, if it appears to them to be just so to do, include in the amount of the development charge determined by an order under this section such additional sum by way of penalty as they consider appropriate, not exceeding twice the amount of the development charge determined as aforesaid, and the provisions of subsection (2) of this section shall apply in relation to any such penalty as they apply in relation to the amount determined as aforesaid:

Provided that any person who is aggrieved by the inclusion of any such penalty in an order under this section may appeal to the appropriate court, and that court may, if they think fit, modify the order by omitting the penalty or by reducing the amount thereof to such extent as they consider appropriate. [2538]

(4) The provisions of this section shall apply in relation to any such operations or uses of land as are mentioned in subsection (1) of this section whether or not planning permission was granted in respect thereof under Part III of this Act; but where proceedings are taken under section twenty-three of this Act for the enforcement of planning control in relation to any such operations or use, regard shall be had to those proceedings in determining the amount of the development charge under this section. [2539]

(5) A charge on land created by virtue of an order under this section shall be deemed to be a land charge of Class A within the meaning of the Land Charges Act, 1925, and the Board shall, for the purposes of enforcing it, have the same powers and remedies under the Law of Property Act, 1925, and otherwise as they would have if they were mortgagees by deed having powers of sale and lease and of appointing a receiver. [2540]

(6) For the purposes of subsection (3) of this section, the expression "the appropriate court" means, in relation to a penalty exceeding five hundred pounds, the High Court, and in relation to any other penalty, the county court for the district in which the land or any part thereof is situated. [2541]

General note.—This section empowers the Central Land Board to deal with cases where development is carried out in contravention of this Part of the Act. Note, in particular, the power to impose a penalty not exceeding twice the amount of the development charge. There is a right of appeal to the High Court where the amount of the penalty exceeds five hundred pounds, and in relation to any other penalty, to the county court.

Where there has been failure to obtain planning permission also, and enforcement proceedings have been taken under Part III, ante, the Board must have regard to those proceedings in determining the amount of the development charge under this section (sub-s. (4), supra). If the enforcement proceedings result in prohibition of the development, presumably no charge will be made. If no charge is made, there can be no penalty.

Attention is particularly drawn to s. 75 (8), post, which relates to works carried out or uses begun in contravention of previous planning control before July 1, 1948.

Central Land Board.—For the constitution and functions of the Board, see ss. 2 and 3, ante.

Appeal to the appropriate court.—On appeal the court "may, if they think fit, modify the order by omitting the penalty or by reducing the amount thereof to such extent as they consider appropriate." The inference is that if they do not "think fit" to take either of these courses, the court may dismiss the appeal. Note that there is no express provision whereby the appeal court can make any order that was open to the tribunal of first instance.

Land charge of Class A.—S. 10 (1) of the Land Charges Act, 1925 (15 Halsbury's Statutes 531), lays down the classes of charges on or obligations affecting land which may be registered as land charges in the register of land charges. Of these Class A comprises :—

“ A rent, or annuity, or principal money payable by instalments or otherwise, with or without interest, being a charge (otherwise than by deed) upon land created pursuant to the application of some person either before or after the commencement of this Act— ”

Then follow references to the relevant statutory provisions. Charges on land created by virtue of orders under the present section are now to be deemed within these provisions.

The official responsible for the register of land charges is the Land Charges Superintendent, whose address is H.M. Land Registry, Lincoln's Inn Fields, London, W.C.2 (Telephone HOLborn 8232).

Law of Property Act, 1925.—15 Halsbury's Statutes 177. For the statutory powers and remedies of mortgagees by deed in relation to sale, leasing and appointing a receiver, see ss. 99, 101 and 103–107 thereof (15 Halsbury's Statutes 277, 283, 286–290).

Definitions.—As to “ planning permission,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “ use ” and “ land,” see s. 119 (1), post.

PART VIII

APPLICATION TO SPECIAL CASES

75. Existing development contravening previous planning control.—

(1) Where any works on land existing at the appointed day were carried out, or any use to which land is put on that day was begun, in contravention of previous planning control, then, subject to the provisions of this section, the provisions of Part III of this Act with respect to enforcement notices shall apply in relation thereto as they apply in relation to development carried out after the appointed day without the grant of permission in that behalf under the said Part III :

Provided that an enforcement notice shall not be served by virtue of the provisions of this section in respect of any works or use (not being works or a use carried out or begun during the war period as defined by the Building Restrictions (War-Time Contraventions) Act, 1946) at any time after three years from the appointed day. [2542]

(2) Where any such works as aforesaid were carried out, or any such use as aforesaid was begun, during the war period as defined by the Building Restrictions (War-Time Contraventions) Act, 1946, then—

(a) if by virtue of the provisions of that Act, or of any determination effected thereunder (whether before or after the appointed day), the works or use are deemed to comply with planning control within the meaning of that Act, the provisions of this section shall not apply, or, as the case may be, shall cease to apply to those works or that use ; and

(b) if it has been determined under that Act (whether before or after the appointed day) that the works or use shall not be deemed to comply with planning control within the meaning of that Act, subsection (3) of section twenty-three of this Act shall have effect, in relation to any enforcement notice served in respect of the works or use by virtue of the provisions of this section, as if the proviso to that subsection were omitted. [2543]

(3) Where, by virtue of this section, an enforcement notice is served in respect of any works being government war works within the meaning of the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945, then, subject as herein-after provided—

(a) if the steps required by the notice are taken by the owner or occupier of the land, any expenses reasonably incurred in that behalf shall be recoverable from the authority by whom the notice was served ;

(b) if the steps required by the notice are taken by the said authority, that authority shall not be entitled, under section twenty-four of this Act, to recover the expenses incurred by them in that behalf :

Provided that where, under paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of section

two of the Compensation (Defence) Act, 1939, compensation has been paid equal to the full cost (as estimated for the purposes of that compensation) of taking the steps required by the enforcement notice, the foregoing provisions of this subsection shall not apply; and where compensation has been paid under the said paragraph (b) (otherwise than as aforesaid), or under subsection (4) of section three of the said Act, in respect of the land, the amount which, by virtue of this subsection, is recoverable from the authority by whom the enforcement notice was served or, as the case may be, is not recoverable by that authority, shall be reduced so far as may be just having regard to the compensation so paid. [2544]

(4) The power of the local planning authority under Part III of this Act to grant permission for the retention on land of buildings or works constructed or carried out before the date of application, or for the continuance of any use of land instituted before that date, shall include power to grant such permission in respect of any buildings or other works or use of land in respect of which that authority are empowered to serve an enforcement notice by virtue of the provisions of this section; and where permission is so granted, the foregoing provisions of this section shall cease to apply to the works or use to which the permission relates, but without prejudice to the application thereto of any provisions of the said Part III with respect to the contravention of conditions subject to which permission for development has been granted thereunder. [2545]

(5) In relation to an enforcement notice served by virtue of this section, subsection (4) of section twenty-three of this Act shall have effect as if for paragraph (a) thereof there were substituted the following paragraph:—

“(a) if satisfied that the works or use to which the notice relates are not works or a use to which section seventy-five of this Act applies, shall quash the notice to which the appeal relates”. [2546]

(6) Where an enforcement notice served by virtue of this section in relation to any land takes effect—

(a) the value of any interest therein for the purposes of the assessment of the compensation payable under Part V of this Act on the compulsory acquisition thereof; and

(b) the development value of any interest therein for the purposes of Part VI of this Act shall be calculated having regard to the requirements of the notice, and the assumptions required to be made for those purposes shall be modified accordingly. [2547]

(7) Where, under Part III of this Act, planning permission is granted for the continuance of any such use as is mentioned in subsection (1) of this section, then, notwithstanding anything in subsection (2) of section sixty-nine of this Act, no development charge shall be payable under Part VII of this Act in respect of the continued use of the land, in accordance with permission so granted. [2548]

(8) Provision may be made by regulations under this Act for applying the foregoing provisions of this section, subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be specified in the regulations, to works on land carried out, or uses of land begun, at any time before the appointed day, in contravention of any restriction in force under any enactment repealed by this Act (other than the enactments relating to town and country planning); and any such regulations may make such consequential provisions as the Minister considers expedient, including provision for amending the Building Restrictions (War-Time Contraventions) Act, 1946, in its application to any such restriction as aforesaid:

Provided that where provision is made by such regulations for amending the said Act of 1946, the regulations shall be of no effect unless they are approved by resolution of each House of Parliament. [2549]

(9) For the purposes of this section, works on land shall be deemed to have been carried out, and uses of land to have been begun, in contravention of previous planning control—

- (a) where at the material time the land was subject to a resolution to prepare a planning scheme, if carried out or begun otherwise than in accordance with permission granted in that behalf by or under the interim development order ;
- (b) where at the material time the land was subject to a planning scheme, if carried out or begun otherwise than in conformity with the provisions of the scheme or of permission granted thereunder ;

and where permission for any works or use was granted as aforesaid subject to conditions (in whatever form) restricting the period during which the works or use could be continued on the land, and that period has expired before the appointed day, the provisions of this section shall apply as if the works or use had been carried out or begun in contravention of previous planning control. [2550]

General note.—Under the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 470) if a person carried out development after the "material date" (i.e. the date on which the land became subject to an operative resolution to prepare a planning scheme) without obtaining interim development permission (equivalent to planning permission under the present Act), he did so at his peril. No action could be taken against him until the scheme came into operation, but if, when it came into operation, the development contravened the provisions of the scheme, enforcing action could be taken under s. 13 of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 486) without payment of compensation for any loss that such action might inflict on the owner.

The 1943 Act (36 Halsbury's Statutes 239) strengthened the powers of interim development authorities by empowering them to take immediate action with respect to development carried out without interim development permission. This Act also brought all land in England and Wales, not hitherto subject to planning control of any kind, under interim development control as from October 22, 1943.

Relatively very few schemes under the 1932 Act have actually come into operation, with the result that there remains much existing development which had been carried out, even after the material date, without interim development permission.

As from the appointed day local authorities are empowered by this section to enforce planning control with respect to such development under Part III of the Act ; the position is practically the same as it would have been when the scheme finally came into operation. Instead of the scheme bringing the day of reckoning, the Minister brought it when he fixed July 1, 1948, as the "appointed day" under this Act.

Note, however, the provision contained in sub-s. (4), ante, which enables application to be made for planning permission in respect of existing development which contravenes previous planning control.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (ss. 119 (1) and 120 (1), post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Service of enforcement notices.—See ss. 23, ante, and 105, post.

Building Restrictions (War-Time Contraventions) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 899.

Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945.—38 Halsbury's Statutes 582. By s. 59 (1) of that Act (38 Halsbury's Statutes 623), "government war works" are defined as "works constructed in the course of government war work," the last term being itself defined as "work done during the war period for war purposes by or by arrangement with a Minister or under emergency powers."

Compensation (Defence) Act, 1939.—32 Halsbury's Statutes 1013. For ss. 2 (1) (b) and 3 (4) of that Act, see 32 Halsbury's Statutes 1016, 1018.

Development value.—The difference between the unrestricted value of the land and its restricted value in each case as at the appointed day (see s. 61 (1), ante).

Sub-s. (7).—Note that the exemption from payment of a development charge is only in respect of a use, and does not extend to works.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post. Note that by virtue of sub-s. (8), ante, regulations may amend the Building Restrictions (War-Time Contraventions) Act, 1946 (see supra), but in such case affirmative resolutions of both Houses are required to bring the regulations into effect. To such regulations ss. 4-7 of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 785 et seq.), do not apply.

Enactment repealed by this Act.—See ss. 113, 120 and Sched. IX, post.

Planning scheme.—This means a scheme under the Act of 1932 (25 Halsbury's Statutes 470) or any enactment repealed by that Act (s. 119 (1), post).

Interim development order.—This means an order made under s. 10 (1) of the Act of 1932 ; 25 Halsbury's Statutes 482 (s. 119 (1), post).

Definitions.—As to “enforcement notice,” see s. 23 (2), ante; as to “development” and “planning permission,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; as to “local planning authority,” see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “land,” “appointed day,” “use,” “owner,” “buildings or works,” “enactment” and “Act of 1932,” see s. 119 (1), post. Other definitions are mentioned ante.

76. Existing development authorised subject to conditions.—(1) Where any works on land existing at the appointed day, or any use to which land is put on that day, has been authorised by a permission granted subject to conditions under a planning scheme or under an interim development order, the provisions of Part III of this Act shall apply in relation to those works or that use as if the conditions had been imposed on the grant of planning permission under the said Part III. [2551]

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing subsection, where any such permission as aforesaid was granted subject to conditions (in whatever form) restricting the period for which the works or use may be continued on the land, then, if that period has not expired at the appointed day and the works are not removed, or the use discontinued, at the expiration of that period, the provisions of Part III of this Act with respect to enforcement notices shall apply in relation thereto as if the works had been carried out, or the use begun, as the case may be, at the expiration of that period and without the grant of permission in that behalf under the said Part III. [2552]

(3) The power of a local planning authority under Part III of this Act to grant permission for the retention on land of buildings or works constructed or carried out before the date of the application, or the continuance of any use of land instituted before that date, shall include power to grant such permission in respect of any works or use authorised by a permission granted subject to any such conditions as are mentioned in the last foregoing subsection; and where permission is so granted—

(a) the last foregoing subsection shall cease to apply to the works or use to which the permission relates, but without prejudice to the application thereto of any provisions of the said Part III with respect to the contravention of conditions subject to which permission for development has been granted thereunder;

(b) in a case where the permission authorises the retention of any works, subsection (4) of section sixty-nine of this Act shall apply in relation to the retention of those works as if they had been erected or carried out in accordance with planning permission granted for a limited period only. [2553]

(4) The value of any interest in land to which any such permission as is mentioned in subsection (1) of this section relates for the purposes of the assessment of compensation payable under Part V of this Act on the compulsory acquisition thereof, and the development value of any such interest for the purposes of Part VI of this Act, shall be calculated having regard to the conditions subject to which the permission was granted and to the provisions of this section, and the assumptions required to be made for those purposes shall be modified accordingly. [2554]

(5) Where at any time before the appointed day, it has been determined under the Building Restrictions (War-time Contraventions) Act, 1946, that any works on land or any use of land shall be deemed to comply with planning control within the meaning of that Act subject to any conditions specified in the determination, the provisions of this section shall apply in relation to those works or that use, and in relation to any interest in the land in question, as if the said conditions had been imposed on the grant of permission under a planning scheme or under an interim development order; and notwithstanding any breach of those conditions, the provisions of the last foregoing section shall not apply thereto. [2555]

(6) Provision may be made by regulations under this Act for applying the foregoing provisions of this section, subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be specified in the regulations, to works on land carried out, or uses of land begun, at any time before the appointed day, in accordance with permission granted subject to conditions under any enactment repealed by this Act (other than the enactments relating to town and country planning); and for the purposes of this provision any works or use in respect of which a notice has been served under subsection (1) of section one of the Restriction of Ribbon Development (Temporary Development) Act, 1943, or is deemed by virtue of subsection (4) of that section to have been so served, shall be treated as carried out or begun in accordance with permission granted subject to a condition restricting the period for which the works or use may be continued on the land. [2556]

General note.—S. 75, ante, dealt, inter alia, with cases where permission for works or use had been granted for a limited period and that period had expired before the appointed day. The present section proceeds to deal with cases where permission had been granted for a limited period and that period had not expired at the appointed day, July 1, 1948.

Permission may be granted for the retention of works or use, but works retained are specifically made subject to a development charge.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (ss. 119 (1) and 120 (1), post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Development value.—The difference between the unrestricted value of the land and its restricted value, in each case as at the appointed day (see s. 61 (1), ante).

Building Restrictions (War-Time Contraventions) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 899.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post. Note that there is no provision in sub-s. (6), supra, as there is in s. 75 (8), ante, for certain limited circumstances, requiring affirmative resolutions of both Houses for bringing the regulations into force.

Enactment repealed by this Act.—See ss. 113, 120 and Sched. IX, post.

Restriction of Ribbon Development (Temporary Development) Act, 1943.—36 Halsbury's Statutes 130. For s. 1 (1), (4), thereof, see 36 Halsbury's Statutes 131, 132.

Definitions.—As to "planning permission" and "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; as to "enforcement notice," see s. 23 (2), ante; as to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "permission granted for a limited period only," see ss. 14, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land," "use," "planning scheme," "interim development order," "buildings or works" and "enactment," see s. 119 (1), post.

77. General provisions as to development authorised under interim development orders after 21st July, 1943.—(1) Where permission for any development of land has been granted, at any time after the twenty-first day of July, nineteen hundred and forty-three, and before the appointed day, on an application in that behalf made under an interim development order, then if and so far as that development has not been carried out before the appointed day and the permission granted as aforesaid is in force immediately before that day, planning permission shall be deemed by virtue of this section to be granted in respect thereof under Part III of this Act, subject to the like conditions, if any, as were imposed by the permission under the interim development order as in force as aforesaid:

Provided that this subsection shall not apply in relation to any development for which permission was required before the appointed day under the Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935, unless that permission has also been granted. [2557]

(2) Subject to the provisions of the next following section, in any case to which those provisions apply, no account shall be taken of the provisions of this section in calculating for the purposes of Part VI of this Act the development value of any interest in land for the development of which permission is deemed to be granted by virtue of this section; and nothing in this section shall be construed as affecting the operation of Part VII of this Act in relation to any development in respect of which permission is deemed to be so granted. [2558]

(3) The provisions of section twenty-one of this Act shall apply in relation to permission which is deemed to be granted by virtue of this section as if it had been granted on an application made in that behalf under Part III of this Act, and in relation to any order made under that section for the revocation or modification of any such permission any reference in subsection (2) of section twenty-two of this Act to the grant of permission shall be construed as a reference to the grant of the permission under the interim development order. [2559]

(4) Where permission for any development of land has been granted as mentioned in subsection (1) of this section, and permission for that development has also been granted under the Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935, then if the permission so granted under the said Act of 1935 was granted subject to conditions, those conditions shall be treated for the purposes of this section as conditions imposed by the permission granted under the interim development order. [2560]

General note.—Any interim development permission granted since the 1943 Act (36 Halsbury's Statutes 239) came into operation will carry over under the present Act; but the permission will be disregarded for the purpose of calculating the development value, and a development charge will be payable where the development is not carried out until after the appointed day, July 1, 1948.

As to buildings which have been begun but which are unfinished at the appointed day, see s. 78, infra.

After July 21, 1943.—I.e. after the 1943 Act (36 Halsbury's Statutes 239) came into operation. That Act received the Royal Assent and came into force on July 22, 1943.

Appointed day.—See ss. 119 and 120, post. July 1, 1948, has been appointed the day in question (S.I. 1948, No. 213).

Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935.—28 Halsbury's Statutes 275.

Development value.—The difference between the unrestricted value of the land and its restricted value in each case as at the appointed day (see s. 61 (1), ante).

S. 21.—See ante. This section re-enacts the provisions of s. 4 of the 1943 Act (36 Halsbury's Statutes 244). Interim development consents granted since the 1943 Act came into operation must be specifically revoked. Other consents, whether under interim development before the 1943 Act came into operation or under schemes at any time, are revoked by the present Act and further applications for consent must be made after the appointed day unless the provisions of s. 78, infra, apply.

Definitions.—As to "development" and "planning permission," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land" and "interim development order," see s. 119 (1), post.

78. Unfinished buildings.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, where any works for the erection or alteration of a building have been begun but not completed before the appointed day, then if immediately before that day those works could have been completed in conformity with the provisions of a planning scheme or of permission granted thereunder, or in accordance with permission granted by or under an interim development order, and if any permission required under the Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935, for the carrying out of those works was granted, planning permission shall, by virtue of this section, be deemed to be granted under Part III of this Act in respect of the completion of those works. [2561]

(2) The permission deemed to be granted by virtue of this section shall be deemed to be so granted subject to any conditions applicable thereto by or under the scheme or the permission granted by or under the interim development order, as the case may be, and to any conditions imposed by the permission granted under the Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935, and shall include permission to use the building when erected or altered—

(a) where the purpose for which it could be so used was prescribed by or under the planning scheme, or by the permission granted by or under the interim development order, as the case may be, for that purpose;

(b) in any other case, for the purpose for which the building, or the building as altered, is designed. [2562]

(3) The development value of land for the development of which permission is deemed to be granted by virtue of this section shall be calculated for the purposes of Part VI of this Act as if that development had been completed immediately before the appointed day, and no development charge shall be payable under Part VII of this Act in connection with that development. [2563]

(4) In relation to any such works as are mentioned in subsection (1) of this section, being works in respect of which permission was granted after the twenty-first day of July, nineteen hundred and forty-three, on an application in that behalf made under an interim development order, the provisions of this section shall have effect in substitution for the provisions of the last foregoing section. [2564]

General note.—Buildings which have been begun in accordance with planning control and which are not yet completed at the appointed day are, in effect, to be deemed to have been completed before the appointed day, which is July 1, 1948.

There is no need to apply for any further consent, no matter whether the original permission was before or after the 1943 Act (36 Halsbury's Statutes 239) came into operation; and no development charge will be levied on the development.

Attention must, however, be drawn to the words: "if immediately before that day those works could have been completed. . . ." These words would appear to distinguish the circumstances contemplated in this section from the circumstances in contemplation of the preceding and succeeding sections. In effect, the works must actually be capable of completion lawfully at the appointed day.

Appointed day.—See ss. 119 and 120, post. July 1, 1948, has been appointed the day in question (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935.—28 Halsbury's Statutes 275.

Development value.—The difference between the unrestricted value of the land and its restricted value in each case as at the appointed day (see s. 61 (1), ante).

Development charge.—See ss. 69 et seq., ante.

After July 21, 1943.—I.e. after the 1943 Act (36 Halsbury's Statutes 239) came into operation. That Act received the Royal Assent and came into force on July 22, 1943.

Definitions.—As to "planning permission" and "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "erection," "building," "planning scheme," "interim development order" and "land," see s. 119 (1), post.

79. Compensation for abortive expenditure on refusal of permission for other development authorised before appointed day.—(1) Where an application is made under Part III of this Act within six months after the appointed day for permission to complete or carry out any buildings or works begun or contracted for before that day, and that permission is refused by the Minister, either on appeal or on the reference of the application to him for determination, or is so granted by the Minister subject to conditions, then if, on a claim made to the local planning authority within the time and in the manner prescribed by regulations under this Act, it is shown—

- (a) that the buildings or works in question were begun or contracted for in conformity with the provisions of a planning scheme or of permission granted thereunder, or in accordance with permission granted, at any time before the twenty-second day of July, nineteen hundred and forty-three, by or under an interim development order; or
- (b) that the buildings or works in question were begun or contracted for at a time when no resolution to prepare or adopt such a scheme had taken effect; and
- (c) that the applicant has incurred expenditure in carrying out work which is rendered abortive by the refusal or conditions, or has entered into a contract for any work which is abandoned in consequence thereof, that authority shall pay to the applicant compensation equal to the expenditure so incurred or, as the case may be, to any sum reasonably paid by him in the discharge of any liability arising under the contract in respect of the abandonment of the work. [2565]

(2) For the purposes of the last foregoing subsection, any expenditure incurred in the preparation of plans for the purposes of any work or upon any similar matters preparatory thereto shall be deemed to be included in the expenditure incurred in carrying out that work, but except as aforesaid no compensation shall be paid under the said subsection in respect of anything done for the purposes of any such buildings or works as are mentioned in paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of this section if it was done before the following date, that is to say—

(a) where the building or work was authorised by permission granted under a planning scheme or by or under an interim development order, the date on which permission was so granted;

(b) where the building or work was otherwise begun or contracted for in conformity with a planning scheme, the date on which that scheme came into force. [2566]

(3) Any compensation payable under this section in respect of an interest in land shall be payable in addition to any compensation payable under Part III of this Act in respect of that interest in consequence of the refusal of the permission or the grant thereof subject to conditions:

Provided that no account shall be taken, in assessing the compensation payable as aforesaid under the said Part III (whether in respect of the compulsory acquisition of the said interest or otherwise), of the value of any works in respect of which compensation is payable under this section. [2567]

(4) The reference in subsection (3) of section thirty-four of this Act to compensation under Part III of this Act shall be construed as including a reference to compensation payable under this section. [2568]

General note.—This section deals with consents which antedate the 1943 Act (36 Halsbury's Statutes 239), or which are under scheme control, or which relate to development begun or contracted for before a resolution to plan. All such consents or authority to develop are revoked by the present Act and fresh consent must be obtained.

If such consent is either refused by the Minister or granted by him subject to conditions, compensation is payable for expenditure on development which is rendered abortive. It should be noted that compensation is only payable where an application is turned down or conditions are imposed by the Minister, and the application must be made within six months after the appointed day.

Appointed day.—See ss. 119 and 120, post. July 1, 1948, has been appointed the day in question (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Begun.—Contrast the use of this word with the use of the same word in the preceding section. In s. 78, ante, the expression used is "begun but not completed."

It would appear that if the buildings could lawfully be completed (except those dealt with under sub-s. (1) (c), ante), they may be continued without further application for consent; but that if something other than the coming into operation of the Act made impossible the completion of the works immediately before the appointed day, a further application for consent must be made.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post.

Before July 22, 1943.—I.e. before the 1943 Act (36 Halsbury's Statutes 239) came into operation. That Act received the Royal Assent and came into force on that date.

Definitions.—As to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "buildings or works," "planning scheme," "interim development order" and "land," see s. 119 (1), post.

80. Land ripe for development before the appointed day.—(1) Where planning permission is granted under Part III of this Act in respect of any development consisting of the erection, extension or alteration of buildings, or is deemed by virtue of section seventy-seven of this Act to be so granted, then if the Minister is satisfied, on application made to him within one year after the appointed day or within such extended period as the Minister may in any particular case allow—

(a) that the development values of interests in the land, as required to be ascertained in accordance with the provisions of Part VI of this Act and without regard to the provisions of this section would be wholly or mainly attributable to the prospects of that development at the appointed day; and

(b) that a building contract made in relation to that development within the period of ten years before the seventh day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, was in force on the appointed day, or that a byelaw submission or a building application had been made in respect thereof within that period, he shall certify accordingly:

Provided that if it appears to the Minister that proceedings should be taken with a view to the revocation of the permission granted or deemed to be granted as aforesaid, he may postpone the issue of a certificate pending the taking of such proceedings, and if the permission is revoked he shall not be required to issue the certificate. [2569]

(2) Where a certificate is issued under this section, then—

- (a) in calculating for the purpose of Part VI of this Act the development value of any interest in the land to which the certificate relates, no account shall be taken of any value attributable to the prospects of the development specified in the certificate; and
- (b) no development charge shall be payable under Part VII of this Act in respect of that development if carried out within such period, if any, as may be prescribed by the certificate. [2570]

(3) For the purposes of this section

- (a) the expression “building contract”, in relation to any development, means a contract made between a person for the time being interested in the land and any other person, under which that other person undertakes to carry out the whole or substantially the whole of the building operations to be carried out in the course of that development;
- (b) the expression “byelaw submission”, in relation to any development, means the submission by a person for the time being interested in the land of plans of the buildings proposed to be erected, extended or altered in the course of the development to the proper local or other authority in order to comply with the requirements of any byelaws or other enactment requiring plans to be so submitted, and
- (c) the expression “building application” in relation to any development means an application including such plans as aforesaid and made by any such person as aforesaid to a local or other authority under the Town and Country Planning Acts, 1932 and 1943, or under any byelaws or other enactment requiring the consent of that authority to be obtained for the construction, extension or alteration of buildings. [2571]

General note.—Certain limited classes of land will qualify as “dead ripe” land, and will be excluded from the development value provisions and from liability to pay a development charge. Buildings in course of completion will escape under the provisions of s. 78, ante. Certain other land will escape if the Minister certifies:—

(a) that the development value is attributable to the prospect of development at the appointed day; and

(b) that a building contract in relation to the development made between January 7, 1937, and January 7, 1947, is in force on the appointed day, or that an application for byelaw or planning consent has been made in respect of the development between the same dates, provided that such application has been accompanied by plans sufficient to support a byelaw application.

A planning application accompanied by a lay-out plan will not be sufficient to earn the Minister's certificate. Application for the Minister's certificate is to be made within twelve months of the appointed day or such longer period as the Minister may allow. This section will apply to cases where permission is given under Part III, ante, or where permission is deemed to have been given under s. 77, ante.

Note the definitions in sub-s. (3), supra, of “building contract,” “byelaw submission” and “building application.”

Planning permission.—See ss. 12–20, ante.

S. 77.—See ante. This section provides for the carry-over of interim development consents granted since July 21, 1943.

If the Minister is satisfied.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the words “If it appears to the Minister.”

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (ss. 119 (1) and 120 (1), post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Development values.—The difference between the unrestricted values of the lands and their restricted values, in each case as at the appointed day (see s. 61 (1), ante).

Before January 7, 1947.—I.e. before the text of the Bill was made known to the public.

Byelaw submission or building application.—Note that while the byelaw submission or building application may be sufficient to earn the Minister's certificate under this section it will not carry planning consent if before July 22, 1943. Any consent granted before the 1943 Act (36 Halsbury's Statutes 239) should be the subject of a further application within six months of the appointed day to ensure the retention of the right to compensation for abortive expenditure under s. 79, ante.

If it appears to the Minister.—See note to s. 4, ante.

Development charge.—See ss. 69 et seq., ante.

Town and Country Planning Acts, 1932 and 1943.—25 Halsbury's Statutes 470; 36 Halsbury's Statutes 239.

Definitions.—As to "development" and "planning permission," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "erection," "building," "land," "building operations," "local authority" and "enactment," see s. 119 (1), post.

81. Mineral workings.—(1) In relation to development consisting of the winning and working of minerals, the provisions of this Act shall have effect subject to such adaptations and modifications as may be prescribed by regulations made under this Act with the consent of the Treasury. [2572]

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provision, any such regulations as aforesaid may provide for securing—

- (a) that in the case of such land as may be prescribed by or under the regulations, no development charge shall be payable under Part VII of this Act in respect of the winning and working of any minerals in the land during a period of three years after the appointed day;
- (b) that the restricted and the unrestricted values of any interest in such land as is mentioned in the foregoing paragraph shall be calculated for the purposes of Part VI of this Act as if any operations carried out for the winning and working of minerals during the said period of three years had been carried out before the appointed day;
- (c) that the amount of any development charge payable under Part VII of this Act in respect of the winning and working of minerals in accordance with planning permission granted or deemed to have been granted under Part III of this Act shall be calculated by reference to the amount of minerals got from time to time in accordance with such permission. [2573]

(3) Regulations made for the purposes of this section shall provide for securing—

- (a) that where a development charge is payable under Part VII of this Act in respect of the winning and working of minerals comprised in a mining lease which was in force on the appointed day, the royalty or other payment required to be made under the lease may be varied, by such tribunal as may be prescribed by the regulations, so far as may be just having regard to the amount of the charge;
- (b) that where a development charge is payable under the said Part VII in respect of the winning and working of minerals authorised by an order made under Part I of the Mines (Working Facilities and Support) Act, 1923, the provisions of the order may be varied by the Railway and Canal Commission so far as may be just having regard to the amount of the charge. [2574]

(4) Where a development plan provides that any land is to be used for the purposes of securing the winning and working of any minerals comprised therein, then, without prejudice to the powers conferred by Part IV of this Act in relation to land designated by such a plan as subject to compulsory acquisition, the provisions of the Mines (Working Facilities and Support) Act, 1923, shall have effect in relation to the land subject to such modifications as may be prescribed by regulations made under this Act by the Minister and the Minister of Fuel and Power, and such regulations may in particular provide for securing—

- (a) that a right to work any minerals in the land may be granted by the Railway and Canal Commission under the said Act to any person who is desirous of working them, either by himself or through his lessees, and who is unable to obtain the necessary rights by agreement on reasonable terms ;
  - (b) that for the purposes of the determination by the Commission of an application for any such right, it shall be assumed that the winning and working of the minerals is expedient in the national interest ; and
  - (c) that the compensation or consideration in respect of any such right which is granted by the Commission shall be assessed having regard to the amount of the compensation which would be payable in respect of a compulsory acquisition of the minerals under Part IV of this Act. [2575]
- (5) Regulations made for the purposes of this section shall be of no effect unless they are approved by resolution of each House of Parliament. [2576]
- (6) The provisions of this section and of any regulations made thereunder shall not apply to the winning and working of any such minerals as are mentioned in paragraph 5 of the Third Schedule to this Act, or to the winning and working of any minerals vested in the National Coal Board, and nothing in this section shall be construed as affecting the prerogative right of His Majesty (whether in right of the Crown or of the Duchy of Lancaster) or of the Duke of Cornwall to any gold or silver mine. [2577]

General note.—The working of minerals is covered by the definition of “development” contained in s. 12, ante, and the present section provides for the application of the provisions of the Act to such workings.

A moratorium is given to any workings in the period of three years from the appointed day in respect of the levy of development charges. When, however, the development charge is levied, it may be calculated on a royalty basis. In the light of any development charge imposed, any existing lease may be varied so far as royalty, etc., is concerned. So may the provisions of any Mines (Working Facilities) Order.

Where mineral development is impeded by the refusal of any owner to grant a mining lease and the minerals are zoned for working in the development plan, the right to work may be granted by the Railway and Canal Commission under the Mines (Working Facilities and Support) Act, 1923 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 181).

As to the share which may be expected to be obtained by mineral owners out of the global sum of £300,000,000 under s. 58, ante, see 441 H. of C. Official Report 911.

Winning and working of minerals.—This term includes both underground and surface workings by virtue of the definition of “minerals” in s. 119 (1), post.

The scope of the term “minerals” and that of “mineral substances” have been the subject of numerous judicial decisions (see, for example, the cases cited in Words and Phrases, Vol. 3, pp. 374 et seq.), but the present Act avoids the strict meaning of “minerals” by its reference in s. 119 (1), post, to “minerals and substances . . . ordinarily worked for removal.” Note that “minerals” includes peat if cut for sale, but not otherwise (s. 119 (1), post).

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post. Note that regulations under the present section are to be made with Treasury consent (sub-s. (1), ante); such regulations are only to take effect on being approved by resolutions of both Houses (sub-s. (5), supra). To regulations where this affirmative resolution procedure applies, ss. 4–7 of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 785 et seq.), are inapplicable.

Regulations under sub-s. (4), ante, it should be noted, are to be made jointly by the Minister of Town and Country Planning and the Minister of Fuel and Power.

Development charge.—See s. 69 et seq., ante.

Appointed day.—See ss. 119 and 120, post. July 1, 1948, has been appointed the day in question (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Restricted and unrestricted values.—See s. 61, ante. Any excess of the unrestricted value over the restricted value of land as at the appointed day constitutes the development value of the land in question (s. 61 (1), ante).

Mining lease.—This is widely defined in s. 119 (1), post, the essence being the conferring of a right to win or work minerals.

Mines (Working Facilities and Support) Act, 1923.—12 Halsbury's Statutes 181. For Part I, comprising ss. 1–14 thereof, see 12 Halsbury's Statutes 181 et seq. S. 6 (1) of that Act empowers the Railway and Canal Commission by order to grant a variety of rights in relation to the working of minerals.

Land designated as subject to compulsory acquisition.—See, in particular, ss. 5 (1) (b) and 37, ante.

Minerals vested in the National Coal Board.—By s. 119 (1), post, the National Coal Board is defined by reference to the Coal Industry Nationalisation Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 251), s. 1 of which established the Board and laid down its functions. As to the transfer to, and vesting in the Board of property and rights, see ss. 5-9 of the 1946 Act (39 Halsbury's Statutes 260 et seq.).

Prerogative right of His Majesty.—By prerogative right the Crown is entitled to all mines of gold and silver within the realm, whether such mines are situate in its own lands or in the lands of a subject. See, generally, 6 Halsbury's Laws (2nd Edn.) 731 et seq.

Definitions.—As to "development" and "planning permission," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "development plan," see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definition of "land," see s. 119 (1), post. Other definitions are referred to in the notes supra.

82. Land held by local authorities for general statutory purposes.—

(1) This section applies to land for the time being held by a local authority for the purposes of any of their functions as such, not being—

- (a) land to which the next following section applies ;
- (b) land held by the local authority for the purpose of any statutory undertaking carried on by them ; or
- (c) land of any class excepted from the provisions of this section by regulations made under this Act. [2578]

(2) No payment shall be made under Part VI of this Act to a local authority in respect of any interest in land which, on the appointed day, is land to which this section applies. [2579]

(3) In the case of land which, on the appointed day, was land to which this section applies, no development charge shall be payable under Part VII of this Act in respect of any operations carried out on the land, or in respect of any use of the land, while the land remains land to which this section applies. [2580]

(4) If by reason of an appropriation, sale or lease, any land which on the appointed day was land to which this section applies ceases to be such land, no development charge shall be payable under the said Part VII in respect of any development of the land for which planning permission had been granted under Part III of this Act at the time of the appropriation, sale or lease. [2581]

(5) Where any land to which this section applies is compulsorily acquired under this or any other Act, in pursuance of a notice to treat served on or after the appointed day, then, in assessing the compensation payable in respect of the acquisition, it shall be assumed—

- (a) that planning permission would be granted under Part III of this Act for any development by virtue of which the use of the land would be made to correspond with the use which prevails generally in the case of contiguous or adjacent land ; and
- (b) that no development charge would be payable under Part VII of this Act in respect of any such development. [2582]

Effect of section.—If at the appointed day land is held by a local authority for general statutory purposes, it will not rank for payment out of the global sum of £300,000,000, and no development charge will be payable in respect of its development. If the land is disposed of by the authority after the appointed day, no charge will be levied in respect of any development for which permission is given at the time of the disposal.

If the land is the subject of compulsory acquisition, it is to be assumed for purposes of compensation that permission would be granted to use the land in the same way as that prevalent in the case of contiguous or adjacent land and that no development charge would be levied in respect of development in accordance with that use.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111; post.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (see ss. 119 (1) and 120, post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Contiguous or adjacent.—See note to s. 5, ante, on these words.

Definitions.—As to "planning permission" and "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land," "local authority," "functions," "statutory undertaking," "use" and "lease," see s. 119 (1), post.

83. Land acquired by local authorities and development corporations for comprehensive development or re-development.—(1) No payment shall be made under Part VI of this Act in respect of any interest in land, being—

- (a) the interest of a local authority in land acquired or appropriated by that authority under Part I of the Act of 1944 for the purposes of the development or re-development of any area as a whole ; or
- (b) the interest of a development corporation in land acquired by the corporation under the New Towns Act, 1946 ; and where a local authority or a development corporation have before the appointed day disposed of an interest in any such land, no payment shall be made under the said Part VI in respect of that interest. [2583]

(2) No development charge shall be payable under Part VII of this Act in respect of the following operations or uses of land, that is to say :—

- (a) any operations carried out by a local authority on any such land as is mentioned in paragraph (a) of the foregoing subsection or on any land acquired or appropriated by that authority under Part IV of this Act for the purposes of the development or re-development of any area as a whole, or any use by a local authority of any such land as aforesaid ;
- (b) any operations carried out by a development corporation on land acquired by the corporation under the New Towns Act, 1946, whether before or after the appointed day, or any use by a development corporation of any such land ; and where any such land as aforesaid has been disposed of by the local authority or development corporation, whether before or after the appointed day, no development charge shall be payable as aforesaid in respect of the carrying out of any operations on the land or the institution of any use of the land, for which planning permission under Part III of this Act had been granted at the time of the disposal or, in the case of land disposed of before the appointed day, in respect of the carrying out of any operations on the land or the institution of any use of the land carried out or instituted in accordance with the terms of the instrument by which the land was disposed of. [2584]

(3) In respect of any such operations or uses of land as are mentioned in the last foregoing subsection, the local authority or development corporation shall from time to time pay to the Central Land Board such sums, if any, in lieu of development charges, as the Minister may, with the consent of the Treasury, determine :

Provided that the Minister may, with the like consent, direct the Board to repay from time to time the whole or any part of any sums so paid. [2585]

(4) Any sums received by the Central Land Board under the last foregoing subsection shall be paid into the Exchequer, and any sums required by the Central Land Board for the repayment of sums so received shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [2586]

Effect of section.—Land acquired for planning purposes whether under the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 423), the New Towns Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 664), or under the present Act will not be subject to a development charge when disposed of in respect of any development for which permission is granted at the time of such disposal. And where land has been acquired under the 1944 Act, or the New Towns Act, 1946, supra, no payment will be made out of the global sum under Part VI of the Act, ante.

In lieu of development charges, however, the Minister may require the local authority or the development corporation under the New Towns Act, 1946, supra, to make payments to the Central Land Board.

Part I of the Act of 1944.—The Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, ss. 1-56 ; 37 Halsbury's Statutes 423 et seq.

New Towns Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 664. As to development corporations under that Act, see s. 2 thereof (39 Halsbury's Statutes 665).

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (see ss. 119 (1) and 120, post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Development charge.—See ss. 69 et seq., ante.

Central Land Board.—For the establishment and functions of this Board, see ss. 2 and 3, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Definitions.—As to “development” and “planning permission,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “land,” “local authority” and “use,” see s. 119 (1), post.

84. Operational land of statutory undertakers.—(1) No payment shall be made under Part VI of this Act in respect of the interest of any statutory undertakers in land which, on the appointed day, is operational land. [2587]

(2) In the case of land which, on the appointed day, was operational land, no development charge shall be payable under Part VII of this Act in respect of any operations carried out on the land by the statutory undertakers, or in respect of any use of the land by them, while the land remains operational land. [2588]

(3) Where any land which on the appointed day was operational land ceases at any time thereafter to be operational land, no development charge shall be payable under the said Part VII in respect of—

(a) the use of that land for the purpose which prevails generally in the case of contiguous or adjacent land ;

(b) the carrying out of any operations necessary for the purpose of making that use of that land, if the use is instituted, or the operations carried out, as the case may be, within such period after the cessation as may be prescribed by regulations under this Act. [2589]

(4) Where any operational land of statutory undertakers is compulsorily acquired, under this or any other Act, in pursuance of a notice to treat served on or after the appointed day, then if the compensation payable in respect of the acquisition is assessed in accordance with section two of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, it shall be assumed—

(a) that planning permission would be granted under Part III of this Act for any development by virtue of which the use of the land would be made to correspond with the use which prevails generally in the case of contiguous or adjacent land ; and

(b) (whether or not the provisions of the last foregoing subsection are applicable to the land in question) that no development charge would be payable under Part VII of this Act in respect of any such development. [2590]

Effect of section.—Operational land of statutory undertakers will not rank for payment out of the global sum under Part VI of the Act, ante, and operational development will not be subject to a development charge under Part VII, ante.

Should any land cease to be operational after the appointed day, it may be disposed of as if its existing use were that generally prevailing on adjacent land and such development will be free of development charge. Should such land be the subject of compulsory acquisition, it is to be assumed that it has an existing use similar to that generally prevailing on adjacent land, and that no development charge would be payable in respect of that use. (Cf. s. 82, ante.)

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (see ss. 119 (1) and 120, post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Development charge.—See ss. 69 et seq., ante.

Contiguous or adjacent.—See note to s. 5, ante, on these words.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post.

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, s. 2.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1178.

Definitions.—As to “planning permission” and “development,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “statutory undertakers,” “land,” “operational land” and “use,” see s. 119 (1), post.

85. Land held on charitable trusts.—(1) This section applies to land an interest in which is held on charitable trusts or for ecclesiastical or other charitable purposes of any description if the land, as distinct from the rents and profits thereof, is used in any manner (including use in a manner involving the beneficial occupation of the land by any person) for or in connection with the purposes for which the said interest is held, and not otherwise, or if the land would be so used but for the occurrence of war damage or but for the fact that the land is for the time being requisitioned land. [2591]

(2) No payment shall be made under Part VI of this Act in respect of any such interest as aforesaid in land which, on the appointed day, is land to which this section applies; and no development charge shall be payable under Part VII of this Act in respect of any operations carried out on such land by the person entitled to any such interest for or in connection with the purposes for which that interest is held or in respect of any use of the land by that person for those purposes. [2592]

(3) Where any land which, on the appointed day, was land to which this section applies ceases at any time thereafter to be such land, no development charge shall be payable under Part VII of this Act in respect of any development by virtue of which the use of the land is made to correspond with the use which prevails generally in the case of contiguous or adjacent land, if planning permission for that development has been granted under Part III of this Act before the land ceases to be land to which this section applies. [2593]

(4) Where any such interest as is mentioned in subsection (1) of this section in land to which this section applies is compulsorily acquired under this or any other Act in pursuance of a notice to treat served on or after the appointed day, then if—

- (a) the land was land to which this section applies on the appointed day; or
- (b) the land is being used at the time of the notice to treat for a purpose of such a nature that there is no general demand or market for land for that purpose, it shall be assumed, in assessing the compensation payable in respect of the acquisition of the said interest, that planning permission would be granted under Part III of this Act for any development by virtue of which the use of the land would be made to correspond with the use which prevails generally in the case of contiguous or adjacent land, and that no development charge would be payable under Part VII of this Act in respect of any such development. [2594]

(5) If, upon application made to him at any time within three years after the appointed day, the Minister is satisfied—

- (a) that any interest in land was held on that day on charitable trusts or for ecclesiastical or other charitable purposes of any description, but that the land was not then used in any such manner as is mentioned in subsection (1) of this section; and
- (b) that it is reasonable, having regard to any proposals for its future use, that the land should be treated for the purposes of this section as if it had been so used,

he may, if he thinks fit, direct that the foregoing provisions of this section shall have effect in relation to the land, so long as that interest is so held, as if the land was land to which this section applies and had been such land on the appointed day:

Provided that subsection (3) of this section shall not apply by virtue of any such direction if the interest in question ceases to be held on charitable trusts or for ecclesiastical or other charitable purposes before the land has been actually used in the manner aforesaid. [2595]

(6) For the purposes of subsection (1) of this section any interest in land which is held by the National Trust shall be deemed to be used for the purposes for which that interest is held, and not otherwise, if, and only if, that interest is held by the Trust inalienably. [2596]

Effect of section.—Land held on charitable trusts is treated in a similar fashion to land held by statutory undertakers. If it is operational land held for the purposes of the trust it will not rank for payment out of the global sum under Part VI of the Act, ante, and should it ever cease to be used for the purposes of the trust it may be sold free of development charge for development of the same character as that prevailing generally on adjacent land, provided planning permission for such development is obtained before the land ceases to be used for the purpose of the trust.

Investment land held by a charitable trust is subject to the provisions of the Act in the same way as land held by any other landowner; but land which it is intended to use for the purposes of the charity may be the subject of an application to the Minister within three years from July 1, 1948, and the Minister on such application may direct that such land shall be treated as operational land. This section also applies to land held inalienably by the National Trust.

War damage.—By s. 119 (1), post, this term has the same meaning as in the War Damage Act, 1943 (see s. 2 (1) thereof; 36 Halsbury's Statutes 338).

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (see ss. 119 (1) and 120, post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Development charge.—See ss. 69 et seq., ante.

Contiguous or adjacent.—See note to s. 5, ante, on these words.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

National Trust.—Land may be held inalienably by the National Trust under the National Trust Act, 1907, s. 21, and the National Trust Act, 1939, s. 8. Neither is a public general statute and so neither appears in Halsbury's Statutes.

Definitions.—As to "development" and "planning permission," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land," "use" and "requisitioned land," see s. 119 (1), post.

86. Land subject to claims for betterment under other Acts.—Where, on the carrying out of any development after the appointed day, any payment falls to be made to a local authority by virtue of the provisions of section forty-eight of this Act or of any Act passed before the passing of this Act, in respect of any works carried out (whether before or after the passing of this Act) by that authority, then—

- (a) if the amount of any such payment is required to be calculated by reference to any increase in the value of the land in respect of which the payment is made, the amount of that increase shall be calculated as if Part VII of this Act had not been enacted;
- (b) whether or not the amount of any such payment falls to be calculated as aforesaid, the payment, or the liability therefor, shall be taken into account in determining under the said Part VII whether any and if so what development charge is to be paid in respect of that development. [2597]

Effect of section.—Where land is subject to a betterment claim under any Act passed before the present Act or to liability to make a payment under s. 48 of the present Act, ante, which relates to the construction and improvement of private streets, such claim or liability will be calculated without reference to any liability for development charge; but in calculating the development charge under the present Act, the claim or liability to make a payment will be taken into account.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (see ss. 119 (1) and 120, post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Passing of this Act.—August 6, 1947.

Development charge.—See ss. 69 et seq., ante.

Definitions.—As to "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "local authority" and "land," see s. 119 (1), post.

87. Crown Land.—(1) In this and the next following section the expression "Crown land" means land an interest in which belongs to His Majesty in right of the Crown or of the Duchy of Lancaster, or to the Duchy of Cornwall, and land an interest in which belongs to a government department or is held in trust for His Majesty for the purposes of a government department. [2598]

(2) Notwithstanding any interest of the Crown in land being Crown land as defined by this section but subject to the following provisions of this section,—

- (a) a development plan approved or made under Part II of this Act may include proposals relating to the use of the land and may designate the land as subject to compulsory acquisition, and any power to acquire land compulsorily under Part IV of this Act may be exercised in relation to any interest therein which is for the time being held otherwise than by or on behalf of the Crown ;

- (b) any restrictions and powers imposed and conferred by the said Part III, shall apply and be exercisable in relation to the land, to the extent of any interest therein for the time being held otherwise than by or on behalf of the Crown, and the provisions of that Part, and of Parts VI, VII and VIII of this Act shall have effect accordingly. [2599]

(3) Except with the consent of the appropriate authority as defined by this section—

- (a) no notice or order shall be served or made under section twenty-three, twenty-six, twenty-eight, twenty-nine or thirty-three of this Act (or under any of those provisions as applied by any order or regulations made under Part III of this Act) in relation to land which for the time being is Crown land ;
- (b) no building which is for the time being Crown land shall be included in any list compiled or approved under section thirty of this Act ;
- (c) no interest in land which is for the time being Crown land shall be acquired compulsorily under Part IV of this Act. [2600]

(4) No purchase notice shall be served under section nineteen of this Act in relation to any interest in Crown land unless an offer has been previously made by the owner of that interest to dispose thereof to the appropriate authority on terms that the price payable therefor shall be equal to (and shall be determined, in default of agreement, in like manner as) the compensation which would be payable in respect of that interest if it were acquired in pursuance of such a notice, and that offer has been refused by that authority. [2601]

(5) No notice shall at any time be served under section twenty-three of this Act in respect of development carried out by or on behalf of the Crown after the appointed day on land which was Crown land at the time when the development was carried out. [2602]

(6) For the purposes of this and the next following section, the expression “the appropriate authority”, in relation to any land, means—

- (a) in the case of land belonging to His Majesty in right of the Crown, the Commissioners of Crown Lands or other government department having the management of the land in question ;
- (b) in the case of land belonging to His Majesty in right of the Duchy of Lancaster, the Chancellor of the Duchy ;
- (c) in the case of land belonging to the Duchy of Cornwall, such person, as the Duke of Cornwall, or the possessor for the time being of the Duchy of Cornwall, appoints ; and
- (d) in the case of land belonging to a government department or held in trust for His Majesty for the purposes of a government department, that department ; and, if any question arises as to what authority is the appropriate authority in relation to any land, that question shall be referred to the Treasury, whose decision shall be final. [2603]

Effect of section.—This section virtually excludes Crown land from planning control. No control can be exercised over any interest which is held by or on behalf of the Crown. But interests in the same property held otherwise than by or on behalf of the Crown will rank for payment out of the global sum under Part VI of the Act. Any development relating to such an interest will require permission ; but the application of the enforcement provisions will require the consent of the government department concerned with the particular property.

Designate the land as subject to compulsory acquisition.—See ss. 5 (2) (b) and 37 et seq., ante.

Appropriate authority.—This term is defined in sub-s. (6), supra.

Notice shall be served.—For the general provisions as to service of notices, see s. 105, post.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (see ss. 119 (1) and 120, post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Commissioners of Crown lands.—See the Crown Lands Act, 1832, s. 1 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 264), and the Crown Lands Act, 1927, s. 1 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 330).

Definitions.—As to "development plan," see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post; as to "purchase notice," see ss. 19, ante, and 119 (1), post; as to "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "Crown land," see sub-s. (1), ante. For definitions of "land," "government department" and "building," see s. 119 (1), post.

88. Agreements and arrangements relating to Crown land.—(1) The appropriate authority and the local planning authority for the district in which any Crown land is situated may make agreements for securing the use of the land, so far as may be prescribed by any such agreement, in conformity with the provisions of the development plan applicable thereto (or, during any period before such a plan has become operative with respect to the land, in conformity with the requirements of the proper planning of that district), and any such agreement may contain such consequential provisions, including provisions of a financial character, as may appear to be necessary or expedient having regard to the purposes of the agreement :

Provided that—

- (a) an agreement made under this subsection by the Commissioners of Crown Lands or by any government department shall be of no effect unless it is approved by the Treasury ; and
- (b) in considering whether to make or approve an agreement under this section relating to land belonging to a government department, or held in trust for His Majesty for the purposes of a government department, the department and the Treasury shall have regard to the purposes for which the land is held by or for the department.

[2604]

(2) In relation to land belonging to His Majesty in right of the Duchy of Lancaster, or to the Duchy of Cornwall, arrangements may be made, with the approval of the Treasury, between the appropriate authority and the Central Land Board—

- (a) for the inclusion among the interests in land in respect of which payments may be made under Part VI of this Act of any interest of the Crown in the land ;
- (b) for the payment by the appropriate authority to the Board of such sums as may be determined in accordance with the arrangements to be appropriate in substitution for any development charge which would have become payable in respect of any development of the land under Part VII of this Act if that development had not been carried out on behalf of the Crown. [2605]

(3) Any sums received by the Central Land Board under any such arrangements as aforesaid shall be paid into the Exchequer. [2606]

(4) The purposes authorised by section twenty-five of the Act of the fifty-seventh year of King George the Third, chapter ninety-seven, for the application of moneys arising by any such sale of annuities standing in the name or to the account of the Duchy of Lancaster as is therein mentioned shall include the payment of any sums payable in respect of land belonging to the Duchy in accordance with arrangements made under this section. [2607]

(5) The purposes authorised by section eight of the Duchy of Cornwall Management Act, 1863, as amended by section one of the Act of the thirty-first and thirty-second years of Queen Victoria, chapter thirty-five, for the advancement of parts of such gross sums as are therein mentioned shall include the payment of any sums payable in respect of land belonging to the Duchy of Cornwall in accordance with arrangements made as aforesaid. [2608]

Effect of section.—Local planning authorities may enter into agreements with the Crown as to the use of Crown land. In the case of land held in right of the Duchy of Lancaster or Cornwall, arrangements can be made with the Central Land Board bringing such land within the provisions of Part VI of the Act and providing for payment of sums equivalent to the development charges under Part VII, ante, when such land is developed.

89. Requisitioned land.—(1) For the purposes of Part VI of this Act, the development value of any interest in land which is requisitioned land on the appointed day shall be calculated as if the land had been on that day in the state in which it was immediately before the beginning of the period of requisition, and accordingly, in relation to any such interest, the second reference to the appointed day in subsection (5) of section sixty-one of this Act, and any reference to that day in the Third Schedule to this Act, shall be construed as a reference to the beginning of the period of requisition :

Provided that—

(a) where a payment in respect of the value of any buildings or works erected or constructed on the land during the period of requisition has been or is required to be made to a Minister by any person interested in the land in pursuance of an agreement made between them, or where any such buildings or works were otherwise erected or constructed wholly or partly at the expense of any such person, those buildings or works shall be treated for the purposes of this subsection as having been erected or constructed immediately before the beginning of the period of requisition ; and

(b) in calculating the development value of any interest in the land, such adjustment as may be appropriate shall be made in respect of any development carried out during the period of requisition, being development in respect of which compensation is payable under the Compensation (Defence) Act, 1939, or under regulations made under the Emergency Powers (Defence) Act, 1939. [2609]

(2) Where any payment falls to be made under section fifty-eight of this Act in respect of any interest in land which is requisitioned land on the appointed day, any payment in respect of the value of any works on the land made to a Minister under Part II of the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945, in pursuance of a report of the War Works Commission, may include such sum as that Commission may think just, not exceeding the amount of the payment to be made under the said section fifty-eight in respect of any increase in the value of the interest in the land which is attributable to the carrying out of the works. [2610]

(3) In this section the expression "requisitioned land" means land of which possession has been taken on behalf of His Majesty in the exercise or purported exercise of emergency powers (that is to say powers conferred by regulations made under the Emergency Powers (Defence) Act, 1939, by section fifty-two of the Telegraph Act, 1863, or by section seven of the Air Navigation Act, 1920, or exercisable by virtue of the prerogative of the Crown); and the expression "period of requisition" in relation to requisitioned land means the period during which possession of the land under such powers taken as aforesaid continues. [2611]

Effect of section.—In brief, the development value of requisitioned land is to be calculated by reference to the state of the land before requisitioning. Where any works, however, have been carried out at the expense of any person interested in the land, such works are to be treated as if they had been carried out before requisitioning.

Development value.—See s. 61, ante. This is broadly the difference between the restricted and unrestricted values of land at the appointed day.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (see ss. 119 (1) and 120, post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

90. Property of National Coal Board.—(1) Regulations made under this Act by the Minister and the Minister of Fuel and Power with the consent of the Treasury may direct that any of the provisions of this Act relating to statutory undertakers and to land of such undertakers shall apply, subject to such adaptations, modifications and exceptions as may be specified in the regulations, in relation to the National Coal Board, and in relation to land (including mines) of that Board of any such class as may be specified in the regulations, as if the Board were statutory undertakers and as if the land of any class so specified were operational land within the meaning of this Act. [2612]

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing subsection, any regulations made for the purposes of that subsection may in particular provide that any compensation payable to the National Coal Board by virtue of any of the provisions applied by those regulations, being compensation which, in the case of statutory undertakers, would be assessable in accordance with the provisions of the Fourth Schedule to the Act of 1944, shall, in lieu of being so assessed, be assessed in accordance with the provisions of the regulations. [2613]

Effect of section.—This section enacts that the provisions relating to statutory undertakers are to apply to the National Coal Board subject to such modifications as may be made by regulations made jointly by the Minister and the Minister of Fuel and Power with Treasury consent.

Definitions.—For definitions of "land" and "operational land," see s. 119 (1), post. Other definitions are referred to in the notes supra.

91. Land in process of compulsory acquisition, etc.—(1) Where any interest in land is compulsorily acquired on or after the appointed day by any authority or person in pursuance of a notice to treat served before the passing of this Act, the provisions of this Act and of any scheme made under Part VI of this Act shall apply in relation to that interest as if the purchase had been completed immediately before the appointed day. [2614]

(2) Where any interest in land is compulsorily acquired before the appointed day by any government department or local or public authority within the meaning of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation)

Act, 1919, in pursuance of a notice to treat served after the passing of this Act, then—

- (a) the provisions of Part VI of this Act and of any scheme made thereunder shall have effect in relation to the land as if that interest had been subsisting on the appointed day with all incidents to which it was subject immediately before the date of the notice to treat, as if the land had been on the appointed day in the same state as it was immediately before the date of the notice to treat, and as if the person who was entitled thereto immediately before the date of the notice to treat had been entitled thereto on the appointed day ;
- (b) except as aforesaid, no payment shall be made under the said Part VI in respect of the interest so acquired, or in respect of any interest derived therefrom ; and
- (c) subject as hereinafter provided, nothing in this Part of this Act shall be construed as exempting from the payment of a development charge any operations carried out on the land by the person entitled to any such interest, or any use of the land by any such person :

Provided that paragraph (c) of this subsection shall not apply to any operations or uses of land which are exempted from the payment of a development charge by virtue of any of the provisions of section eighty-three of this Act. [2615]

(3) Where any interest in land is compulsorily acquired (whether before, on or after the appointed day) in pursuance of a notice to treat served after the appointed day) in pursuance of a notice to treat served after the passing of this Act, then—

- (a) where the compensation payable in respect thereof falls to be calculated in accordance with any of the provisions of sections fifty-two to fifty-four of this Act, that provision shall apply, subject to any necessary modifications, for the purpose of calculating under Part VI of this Act the restricted and the unrestricted values of that interest ;
- (b) where the compensation so payable falls to be assessed in accordance with Rule (5) of the rules set out in section two of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, as amended by subsection (2) of section fifty-six of this Act, the provisions of the said Rule (5), as so amended, shall apply, subject to any necessary modifications, for the purpose of calculating under the said Part VI the restricted value of that interest, and any calculation of those values previously made under the said Part VI shall be adjusted accordingly. [2616]

(4) Subject as hereinafter provided, the foregoing provisions of this section shall apply where an interest in land is acquired by agreement by any authority or person who have power or could be authorised to acquire that interest compulsorily under any enactment, as they apply where an interest in land is compulsorily acquired, and in relation to any such acquisition any reference in those provisions to the service of notice to treat shall be construed as a reference to the making of the contract, and the reference in the last foregoing subsection to compensation payable in respect of the compulsory acquisition shall be construed as a reference to the compensation which would be so payable if the land were compulsorily acquired :

Provided that—

- (a) the provisions of section fifty-three of this Act shall not apply for the purpose of calculating the restricted and the unrestricted values of any interest acquired as aforesaid except in the cases provided by subsection (2) of that section, or by that section as extended by subsection (1) of section fifty-five of this Act ;

- (b) the provisions of Rule (5) of the rules set out in section two of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, as amended by subsection (2) of section fifty-six of this Act, shall not apply for the purpose of calculating the restricted value of any interest acquired as aforesaid except in the cases provided by subsection (3) of the said section fifty-six; and
- (c) where any interest in land is acquired as aforesaid before the appointed day in pursuance of a contract made after the passing of this Act, the contract may provide that subsections (2) and (3) of this section shall not apply. [2617]

Effect of section.—This section makes provision with regard to land in the process of acquisition before the appointed day (see infra).

The material date for determining the rules which will apply is the date of the notice to treat. If the notice was served before the passing of the present Act, the provisions relating to development values do not apply and the land will be acquired at 1939 prices under the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 420) subject to the retrospective amendments contained in Sched. VII, post. If the notice is served after the passing of the Act and before the appointed day, the acquiring authority will pay the existing use value for the land under ss. 51 and 55, ante, and the vendor will be entitled to make a claim upon the global sum under Part VI of the Act, ante, as if he were the owner of the interest on the appointed day.

If land which could have been acquired compulsorily is acquired by agreement, the same rules will apply, but the date of the making of the contract will be the cardinal date in place of the date of service of the notice to treat.

The purpose of proviso (c) to sub-s. (4), ante, is described in para. 14 of the notes to Ministry of Health Circular 108/47, as being to enable cases where negotiations were well advanced on the basis of 1939 prices at the date of the Royal Assent (although no contract had been made) to be completed on that basis if the parties agree. If the contract has not been made, the vendor, of course, can insist on the provisions of the present Act applying, if he thinks it to his advantage to do so.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (see ss. 119 (1) and 120, post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Local or public authority, etc.—See the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, ss. 1 and 12 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176, 1183).

Restricted and unrestricted values.—See s. 61 (2), ante.

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176. For s. 2, Rule 5, see 2 Halsbury's Statutes 1178.

Acquired by agreement.—See, for instance, s. 40, ante.

Definitions.—For definitions of "land," "government department," "local authority," "use" and "enactment," see s. 119 (1), post.

92. Determination of questions under Part VIII.—(1) Any question whether land is land to which section eighty-two, eighty-three or eighty-five of this Act applies shall be determined by the Minister. [2618]

(2) Any question of law arising in connection with any such determination as aforesaid, being a question relating to the application of the said section eighty-five, may, if the Minister thinks fit, be referred for decision to the High Court; and any person aggrieved by the decision of the Minister on any such question of law which is not so referred may appeal from that decision to the High Court. [2619]

(3) Provision shall be made by rules of court for regulating references and appeals to the High Court under this section and those rules shall provide for the limiting the time within which such appeals may be brought. [2620]

(4) So much of subsection (1) of section sixty-three of the Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act, 1925, as requires an appeal from any person to the High Court to be heard and determined by a divisional Court shall not apply to appeals under this section. [2621]

Effect of section.—The Minister is empowered to determine whether particular land comes within the sections relating to local authorities and charities, but questions of law as to the application of s. 85, ante, in regard to charity land may be referred to the High Court.

Note the provisions of s. 119 (2), post, in relation to operational land of statutory undertakers.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

If the Minister thinks fit.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the phrase "If it appears to the Minister."

PART IX

FINANCES OF LOCAL AUTHORITIES

93. Exchequer grants to local authorities in respect of acquisition and clearance of land in re-development areas.—(1) Provision may be made by regulations made under this Act with the consent of the Treasury for the payment by the Minister to local authorities of grants of such amounts, and payable over such periods and subject to such conditions, as may be determined by or under the regulations in respect of expenditure incurred by those authorities, in the exercise of powers conferred in that behalf by this Act, in connection with the acquisition and clearing of land approved by the Minister for the purposes of the regulations, being land acquired for the re-development as a whole of areas of extensive war damage or areas of bad layout or obsolete development, or for the relocation of population or industry, or the replacement of open space, in the course of such re-development, or derelict land acquired for the purpose of bringing it into use. [2622]

(2) For the purposes of this section, any expenditure incurred by a local authority before the passing of this Act, under powers in that behalf conferred by the Act of 1944, in the acquisition or clearing of any such land as is mentioned in the foregoing subsection shall be treated as incurred in the exercise of the corresponding powers conferred in that behalf by this Act, and no grant shall be payable under the Act of 1944 in respect of the acquisition or clearing of any such land. [2623]

(3) Regulations made under this section may provide for the payment of grants thereunder, in such cases and subject to such conditions as may be prescribed by or under the regulations, in respect of land appropriated by local authorities (whether before or after the passing of this Act) for any of the purposes specified in subsection (1) of this section as if the land had been acquired for those purposes at a cost of such amount, and defrayed in such manner, as may be determined by or under the regulations. [2624]

(4) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provisions of this section, any regulations made thereunder may provide—

- (a) for the inclusion in the expenditure incurred by local authorities in the acquisition of land for any of the purposes specified in subsection (1) of this section of any sums, or any part of sums, paid by those authorities in connection with any restriction imposed on the development or use of the land by or under any enactment (whether by way of compensation or by way of contribution towards damage or expense incurred in consequence of the restriction) ;
- (b) for the calculation of grants payable under the regulations by reference to the amount of the annual costs incurred or treated as being incurred by local authorities in respect of the borrowing of money to defray expenditure in respect of which the grants are made ;
- (c) for the payment of such grants at different rates in respect of different parts of the period during which they are payable ;
- (d) for the payment of such grants at different rates to different local authorities according to the general financial position of those authorities respectively, and to the financial burdens assumed by them respectively in respect of the matters specified in subsection (1) of this section. [2625]

(5) Grants payable under regulations made for the purposes of this section shall not exceed the following amounts :—

- (a) in the case of land acquired or appropriated for the re-development as a whole of areas of extensive war damage, or for the relocation of population or industry or the replacement of open space in the course of such re-development, an amount equal to ninety per cent. of the annual costs incurred or treated as being incurred by local authorities in respect of the borrowing of money to defray expenditure in respect of which the grants are made ;

- (b) in the case of any other land, an amount equal to eighty per cent. of the said annual costs. [2626]

(6) Any expenses incurred by the Minister in the making of grants in accordance with regulations made for the purposes of this section shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [2627]

Effect of section.—Under this section regulations may be made for the payment of Exchequer grants in respect of expenditure on acquisition and clearing of areas of war damage, obsolete development and bad lay-out, including land required for the relocation of industry and population or the replacement of open space, and for the acquisition and clearing of derelict land acquired for the purpose of bringing it into use.

The grants will be a percentage of the annual cost. In the case of war-damaged land the maximum will be 90 per cent. and in the case of other land 80 per cent. On the Third Reading in the House of Commons on May 20, 1947, the Minister indicated that the grants would be for a period of sixty years. In the case of war-damaged land the first five to eight years will be at the maximum rate of 90 per cent. and for the remainder of the period at the rate of 50 per cent. In the case of other land the grants will be paid on a weighted basis and will begin at 80 per cent. for the first five years and 50 per cent. for the remainder and will decline to 50 per cent. for the first five years, 30 per cent. for the next seven years and 20 per cent. for the remainder (437 H. of C. Official Report 2201-2202).

This section supersedes the provisions of s. 5 of the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 430), which limited grants to areas of war damage. The grants under this section have retrospective effect in relation to action taken under the 1944 Act in respect of development to which this section applies.

It will be a condition of the making of grants under this section that the re-development proposals shall have been approved as likely to result in an annual return and annual equivalent which are reasonable in relation to one another having regard to the circumstances and the requirements of proper re-development (see s. 95, post).

See also s. 95, post, as to a condition that may require negotiations and valuations to be carried out by the Valuation Office.

Regulations.—See sub-s. (4), ante, as to contents and s. 111, post, as to the making of regulations under this section. Note that Treasury consent to such regulations is required.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Re-development as a whole.—See ss. 5 (3) and 38 (2), ante.

Areas of extensive war damage ; areas of bad lay-out or obsolete development ; relocation of population or industry ; replacement of open space.—All these terms are defined in s. 119 (1), post, and it is important that the present section should be read in conjunction with that subsection. "Derelict land" is not defined in s. 119 (1), post.

Note the provisions of s. 5 (3), ante, in regard to definition of areas as areas of comprehensive development by development plans.

Passing of this Act.—August 6, 1947.

Powers conferred by the Act of 1944.—See the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, ss. 1, 2 and 3 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 423, 426, 428).

No grant shall be payable, etc.—As to the making of grants to local authorities under the Act of 1944, see the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, s. 5 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 430).

Definitions.—As to "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "local authority," "land," "use," "Act of 1944" and "enactment," see s. 119 (1), post.

94. Other Exchequer grants to local authorities.—(1) Provision may be made by regulations made under this Act with the consent of the Treasury for the payment by the Minister to local planning authorities and other local authorities of grants of such amounts, and payable in such cases and subject to such conditions, as may be determined by or under the regulations—

- (a) in respect of expenditure incurred by those authorities in the payment of compensation under Part III or Part VIII of this Act, other than compensation payable in respect of land compulsorily acquired by virtue of section nineteen of this Act, and in respect of expenditure incurred by those authorities in taking any action under section twenty-six of this Act ;
- (b) in respect of loss incurred by those authorities in connection with the acquisition and clearing of land approved by the Minister for the purposes of the regulations, including land compulsorily acquired by virtue of the said section nineteen, but excluding any such land as is mentioned in subsection (1) of the last foregoing section. [2628]

(2) Paragraphs (a), (b) and (d) of subsection (4) and subsection (6) of the last foregoing section shall apply in relation to regulations made under this section and to expenses incurred by the Minister in the making of grants under such regulations as they apply in relation to regulations made under the last foregoing section and to expenses incurred by the Minister in the making of grants under those regulations. [2629]

(3) Grants payable under regulations made for the purposes of this section shall not exceed an amount equal to fifty per cent. of the amount of the expenditure or loss in respect of which the grants are made. [2630]

Effect of section.—This section provides for the making of grants in respect of expenditure incurred in paying compensation under Parts III and VIII.

Claims under these Parts may arise under ss. 20, 22, 27, 28, 29, 32 and 79, ante. S. 20 is concerned with compensation payable in respect of the refusal of planning permission for development set out in Part II of Sched. III, post; s. 22 with compensation payable where planning permission is revoked or modified (this relates only to consents granted under Part III or deemed to be so granted by s. 77, ante: in respect of pre-1943 Act consents revoked by the Act compensation for abortive expenditure is dealt with in s. 79 and claims for depreciation must be made under Part VI); s. 27 deals with compensation in respect of orders under s. 26 requiring the removal of existing or authorised works or the discontinuance of existing or authorised uses; ss. 28 and 29 are concerned with the making of tree and building preservation orders respectively; under s. 32 compensation will be paid in respect of expenses incurred in removing advertisements which were being displayed on January 7, 1947; s. 79 provides for the payment of compensation in respect of abortive expenditure incurred under a pre-1943 Act consent where application made within six months after the appointed day in respect of such development is refused by the Minister.

The present section also provides for a grant to be made in respect of any loss incurred in respect of the acquisition and clearing of any land approved by the Minister including land acquired in pursuance of a compulsory purchase notice under s. 9, ante. Presumably this provision will also relate to land acquired under s. 38 (1) (b), ante, where such land does not qualify under s. 93 (1) as derelict land to be acquired for the purpose of bringing it into use.

Grants under this section are not to exceed 50 per cent. of the expenditure or loss. The Minister's approval of a grant under this section may require any negotiations for acquisition or any valuation to be carried out by the Valuation Office (s. 95 (2), post). Grants under the present section may be paid on a weighted basis depending on the financial position of the local authority.

Regulations.—For the general provisions as to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post. Note the provisions of sub-s. (1), ante, as to Treasury consent to regulations.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Local planning authorities.—See ss. 4 and 34, ante, and as to London, s. 114, post.

Local authority.—See s. 119 (1), post.

Part III.—See ante. This Part of the Act contains the development control provisions; see ss. 20, 22, 27, 28, 29 and 32 for liability to pay compensation.

Part VIII.—See ante. This Part deals with the application of the Act to special cases; see s. 79, ante, as to liability to pay compensation.

S. 19.—See ante. This section deals with purchase notice procedure.

S. 26.—See ante. This section confers power to require the removal or discontinuance of existing or authorised works or uses.

95. General provisions as to Exchequer grants to local authorities.—

(1) It shall be a condition of the making of grants under regulations made for the purposes of section ninety-three of this Act, in respect of expenditure incurred by a local authority in connection with the acquisition and clearing of any land—

(a) that there shall have been submitted to the Minister such information as to the proposals of the local authority for the lay-out and redevelopment of the land as the Minister may require in order to enable a comparison to be made between the annual return to the authority from the carrying out of the redevelopment and the annual equivalent of the cost thereof; and

(b) that those proposals shall have been approved by the Minister with the consent of the Treasury as being likely to result in an annual return and an annual equivalent such as are mentioned in the foregoing paragraph which are reasonable in relation to one another having regard to the circumstances of the land and the requirements of a proper lay-out and redevelopment. [2631]

(2) Any approval of the Minister required for the purposes of the payment of grant under section ninety-three or section ninety-four of this Act in connection with the acquisition of land may be given subject to compliance with requirements imposed by the Minister for securing that any negotiations for the acquisition of the land by the local authority will be carried out by the Valuation Office, and that any valuation of such land for the purposes of such acquisition or for any purposes of the regulations, will be made by that office. [2632]

(3) Subject to the foregoing provisions of this section, any regulations made for the purposes of either of the two last foregoing sections may make provision whereby the payment of grants in pursuance of the regulations is dependent upon the fulfilment of such conditions as may be determined by or in accordance with the regulations, and may also make provision for requiring local authorities to whom grants have been so made to comply with such requirements as may be so determined. [2633]

Effect of section.—This section is concerned with the conditions which may be imposed on the making of grants under ss. 93 and 94, ante.

Sub-s. (1), ante, entails that substantial financial details must be submitted to the Minister in respect of any comprehensive re-development proposals contained in any development plan under s. 5, ante. Apparently it is not necessary, however, that this information should be submitted to the Minister at the public local inquiry into the making of the plan even though it might have a material bearing on the Minister's decision as to the extent to which designation for compulsory purchase should be approved. Any objection to the plan that might be pressed on this ground could be met by a statement that the Minister could always satisfy himself as to such objection by consulting under s. 10 (3), ante, with the authority concerned, and that the financial proposals of the authority responsible for development would not be part of the local planning authority's case in promoting the plan.

As to general recommendations applicable to re-development proposals, see the Report of the Central Advisory Committee on Estate Development and Management in War-Damaged Areas (H.M. Stationery Office).

Sub-s. (2), ante, is designed to secure that a condition may be imposed for negotiations for acquisition, and also valuations, to be carried out by the Valuation Office of the Inland Revenue.

Regulations.—For the general provisions as to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Reasonable . . . having regard to the circumstances.—In dealing with a similar provision in s. 12 (7) of the New Towns Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 675), the Minister indicated that he was prepared to accept in certain circumstances that a reasonable return would not necessarily be a return providing a profit (424 H. of C. Official Report 2364).

Definitions.—For definitions of "local authority," "land" and "Valuation Office," see s. 119 (1), post.

96. Grants in respect of certain compensation paid by planning authorities before appointed day.—(1) Provision may be made by regulations made under this Act with the consent of the Treasury for the payment by the Minister to local authorities who were interim development authorities for the purposes of the Act of 1932 of grants of such amounts, and payable in such cases, as may be determined by or under the regulations in respect of expenditure incurred by those authorities—

- (a) in the payment of contributions under subsection (4) of section ten of the Act of 1932 in connection with applications for permission to develop land dealt with after the eleventh day of May, nineteen hundred and forty-three;
- (b) in the payment of contributions under the said subsection (4) as applied by section four of the Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943, or of compensation under subsection (2) of section seven of that Act, in respect of the revocation or modification, after the date aforesaid, of any permission to develop land, whether granted before or after that date, being contributions or compensation payable in respect of loss or damage which operated to reduce the development value on the appointed day of any interest in the land. [2634]

(2) The reference in the foregoing subsection to local authorities who were interim development authorities for the purposes of the Act of 1932 shall be construed as including a reference to local authorities being the constituent authorities of a joint committee who were such an interim development authority, and in relation to any such local authority the reference in that subsection to expenditure incurred by that authority shall be construed as a reference to expenditure incurred by the joint committee. [2635]

(3) Any expenses incurred by the Minister in the making of grants in accordance with regulations made for the purposes of this section shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [2636]

Effect of section.—Under the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 470) compensation for injurious affection by reason of the refusal of interim development consent was not payable until compensation was also payable in respect of injurious affection caused by the scheme. In other words, it was not payable until the scheme came into operation, when it became payable as an addendum to the scheme compensation. To be payable at all, however, the interim development application had to be taken on appeal to the Minister and it was only on the Minister's refusal that an addendum could be made to the probable future claim under the scheme (see s. 18 (2) of the 1932 Act; 25 Halsbury's Statutes 492).

To avoid the necessity of such an appeal the interim development authority might, if they thought fit, make a contribution towards any damage or expense which they were satisfied the applicant had suffered by reason of their decision (s. 10 (4) of the 1932 Act; 25 Halsbury's Statutes 483). These provisions were applied to revocations or modifications of consents made under s. 4 of the 1943 Act (36 Halsbury's Statutes 244). Under that section the interim development authority might make a contribution and the revocation was to be deemed to be an application for permission which had been dismissed on appeal to the Minister for the purposes of s. 18 (2) of the 1932 Act, supra.

The present section provides for the making of regulations under which payments may be made to former interim development authorities in respect of contributions made by such authorities under s. 10 (4) of the 1932 Act, supra, in connection with applications for development dealt with since May 11, 1943, or in respect of revocations or modifications under s. 4 of the 1943 Act, supra, provided such contributions have the effect of reducing the development value of land under Part VI, ante (see the proviso to s. 61 (4), ante) in this regard.

Under s. 7 (2) of the 1943 Act (36 Halsbury's Statutes 248) the interim development authority were under obligation to pay compensation in respect of expenditure rendered abortive by reason of any revocation or modification of permission. The present regulations will also provide for Exchequer contributions to be made in respect of sums paid under that section where the effect has been to reduce the development value of the land. In respect of compensation for expenditure rendered abortive by the revocation of pre-1943 consents by the passing of the present Act, see ss. 79 and 94, ante.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations under the Act, see s. 111, post. Note the provisions of sub-s. (1), ante, as to Treasury consent.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

S. 10 (4) of the Act of 1932.—25 Halsbury's Statutes 483.

Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943.—36 Halsbury's Statutes 239. For ss. 4 and 7 (2) thereof, see 36 Halsbury's Statutes 244, 248.

Development value.—See s. 61 (1), ante. The development value of land is the difference between the restricted value and the unrestricted value of the land in question as there set forth.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (see ss. 119 (1) and 120, post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Joint committee.—As to the establishment of joint committees, see ss. 3 and 4 of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 473, 474), s. 9 of the 1943 Act (36 Halsbury's Statutes 249) and s. 40 of the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 466).

Definitions.—As to "develop," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "local authority," "interim development authority," "Act of 1932" and "land," see s. 119 (1), post.

97. Power of Ministers to contribute towards compensation paid by local authorities.—Where compensation is payable by a local authority under this Act in consequence of any decision or order given or made under Part III of this Act (including compensation payable in respect of land compulsorily acquired by virtue of section nineteen of this Act) then if that decision or order was given or made wholly or partly in the interest of any service which is provided by a government department and the cost of which is defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament or out of the road fund, the Minister responsible for the administration of that service may pay to that authority, out of moneys so provided, a contribution of such amount as he may, with the consent of the Treasury, determine. [2637]

Effect of section.—Where a local authority incur liability to pay compensation under the control of development provisions by reason of a decision made for the benefit of any government department, the Minister responsible for that department may make a contribution towards such compensation.

Local authority.—See s. 119 (1), post. See also s. 34, ante, whereby liabilities of local planning authorities may be delegated to other local authorities.

Government department.—This term includes the Electricity Commissioners (s. 119 (1), post).

Road fund.—This fund was established by s. 3 of the Roads Act, 1920 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 87). See also in this connection 23 Halsbury's Statutes 670, 684; 29 Halsbury's Statutes 772.

98. Power of local authorities and statutory undertakers to contribute towards expenses of local planning authorities, etc.—(1) Any local authority and any statutory undertakers may contribute towards—

- (a) any expenses incurred by a local planning authority in or in connection with the carrying out of a survey or the preparation of a development plan under Part II of this Act ;
- (b) any expenses incurred by a local planning authority, or by the council of any county district, in or in connection with the performance of any of their functions under Part III or Part IV of this Act. [2638]

(2) Where any expenses are incurred by a local authority in the payment of compensation payable in consequence of anything done under Part III of this Act (including any compensation payable in respect of land compulsorily acquired by virtue of section nineteen of this Act), the Minister may, if it appears to him to be expedient so to do, require any other local authority to contribute towards those expenses such sum as appears to him to be reasonable having regard to any benefit accruing to that authority by reason of the proceeding giving rise to the compensation. [2639]

(3) The provisions of the last foregoing subsection shall apply in relation to payments made by a local authority to any statutory undertakers in accordance with financial arrangements to which effect is given under paragraph (c) of subsection (2) of section twenty-six of the Act of 1944, as they apply in relation to compensation payable by such an authority in consequence of anything done under Part III of this Act, and the reference in that subsection to the proceeding giving rise to the compensation shall be construed accordingly. [2640]

(4) For the purposes of this section, contributions made by a local planning authority towards the expenditure of a joint advisory committee shall be deemed to be expenses incurred by that authority for the purposes for which that expenditure is incurred by the committee. [2641]

Effect of section.—Any local authority or statutory undertakers may contribute towards the expenses of the local planning authority in the preparation of the development plan.

Many of the features of the plan and some aspects of the survey may be the result of representations made by other local authorities when consulted by the local planning authority under s. 10 (1), ante. Much other work will be done at the behest of statutory undertakers. It is therefore proper that such bodies should be enabled to contribute to cost. Under s. 5, ante, it is the local planning authority which promotes the plan and the designations for compulsory purchase ; but under ss. 37 and 38, ante, the acquisition of the designated land will mostly be by other local authorities and by statutory undertakers.

The same applies to expenses incurred by the local planning authority or the council of any county district in respect of action under Parts III and IV of the Act, ante.

Where expenses are incurred under Part III, ante, in respect of compensation (including compensation in respect of land acquired consequent on a purchase notice under s. 19, ante) by any local authority and the action giving rise to the compensation confers benefit on some other local authority the Minister may require that other authority to contribute towards the expenses incurred. The sections in Part III under which compensation can arise are ss. 19, 20, 22, 27, 28, 29 and 32, ante. This provision will also apply to any financial arrangement under s. 26 (2) (c) of the 1944 Act (see Sched. XI, post) made as a result of action taken in respect of the property or rights of statutory undertakers under Part III, ante.

Carrying out of survey ; preparation of a development plan.—See s. 5, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

If it appears to him, etc.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the phrase "If it appears to the Minister." s. 26 (2) (c) of the Act of 1944.—37 Halsbury's Statutes 455. This paragraph, in slightly amended form, appears in Sched. XI, post.

Joint advisory committee.—As to the powers of local planning authorities with the approval of the Minister to concur in establishing joint advisory committees, see s. 4, ante, and Sched. I, Part III, post.

Definitions.—As to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post ; and as to "development plan," see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "local authority" and "statutory undertakers," see s. 119 (1), post.

99. Expenses of county councils.—The council of any county may direct that any expenses incurred by them under this Act shall be treated as expenses for special county purposes chargeable upon such part of the county as may be specified in the directions. [2642]

Special country purposes.—S. 180 (1) of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 404), provides that in Part VIII of that Act, and in every other enactment relating to the expenses of county councils, unless the context otherwise requires, this expression means any purposes for expenditure on which part only of the county is chargeable, whether by reason of any part of the county being exempt therefrom or otherwise.

In determining the amount of expenses for any particular special county purpose, a proper proportion of the cost of the officers and buildings and establishment of the county council may be added to the expenses directly incurred for that purpose (Local Government Act, 1933, s. 180 (3); 26 Halsbury's Statutes 405).

PART X

SUPPLEMENTAL

Supplementary provisions as to local planning authorities

100. Default powers of Minister.—(1) If it appears to the Minister, after consultation with the local planning authority, to be expedient that an enforcement notice should be served under section twenty-three of this Act, or under that section as applied by any order or regulations under Part III of this Act, or that a notice should be served under section thirty or section thirty-three of this Act, in respect of any land, he may give directions to the local planning authority requiring them to serve such a notice, or may himself serve such a notice, and any notice so served by the Minister shall have the like effect as a notice served by the local planning authority :

Provided that in relation to an enforcement notice so served by the Minister, section twenty-four of this Act shall have effect as if for reference therein to the local planning authority there were substituted a reference to the Minister. [2643]

(2) If it appears to the Minister, after consultation with the local planning authority, to be expedient that any of the following orders should be made under Part III of this Act, that is to say :—

- (a) an order under section twenty-one of this Act revoking or modifying any permission to develop land ;
- (b) an order under the said section twenty-one as applied by any order or regulations under Part III of this Act ;
- (c) an order under section twenty-six of this Act requiring any use of land to be discontinued, or imposing conditions on the continuance thereof, or requiring any buildings or works on land to be altered or removed ;
- (d) a tree preservation order, or an order amending or revoking a tree preservation order ; or
- (e) a building preservation order, or an order amending or revoking a building preservation order, he may give directions to the local planning authority requiring them to submit to him such an order for his confirmation, or may himself make such an order, and any order so made by the Minister shall have the like effect as if it had been made by the local planning authority and confirmed by the Minister under Part III of this Act. [2644]

(3) In relation to the making by the Minister of any order under the last foregoing subsection, the provisions of Part III of this Act, and of any regulations made thereunder, with respect to the procedure to be followed in connection with the submission of such an order by the local planning authority, the confirmation thereof by the Minister, and the service of copies thereof as so confirmed, shall have effect, subject to any necessary modifications, in relation to any proposal by the Minister to make the order, to the making thereof by the Minister and to the service of copies thereof as so made. [2645]

(4) If the Minister is satisfied, after holding a local inquiry,—

- (a) that the council of any county borough or county district have failed to take steps for the acquisition of any land which in the opinion of the Minister ought to be acquired by that council under section thirty-eight of this Act for the purpose of securing its use in the manner proposed by the development plan or, during the period before a development plan has become operative under this Act with respect to the area of that council, for the purpose of securing the proper planning of that area ; or
- (b) that any local authority have failed to carry out, on land acquired by them under the said section thirty-eight, or appropriated by them under section forty-two of this Act, any development which in the opinion of the Minister ought to be carried out ;

the Minister may by order require the council or authority to take such steps as may be specified in the order for acquiring the land or carrying out the development, as the case may be. [2646]

(5) Any order under the last foregoing subsection shall be enforceable, on the application of the Minister, by mandamus. [2647]

Effect of section.—After consultation with the local planning authority, the Minister may direct the exercise of any of their powers under Part III, ante, or may exercise those powers himself. After a local inquiry he may by order direct any county borough or county district council to acquire land under s. 38, ante, and may direct any local authority to develop land which they have acquired under that section or have appropriated under s. 42, ante. Such an order is enforceable by mandamus. For the default powers of the Minister in relation to development plans, see s. 7, ante.

Position of London.—For the special provisions as to London, see s. 114, post.

If it appears to the Minister.—See note to s. 4, ante, on these words.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Consultation.—"The word 'consultation' is one that is in general use and that is well understood. No useful purpose would, in my view, be served by formulating words of definition. Nor would it be appropriate to seek to lay down the manner in which consultation must take place. The Act does not prescribe any particular form of consultation. If a complaint is made of failure to consult, it will be for the court to examine the facts and circumstances of the particular case and to decide whether consultation was, in fact, held" (Fletcher v. Minister of Town and Country Planning, [1947] 2 All E. R. 496, per MORRIS, J., at p. 500).

The case last quoted was decided under s. 1 of the New Towns Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 664), but these observations appear to be applicable to the duty to consult imposed by this section.

Local planning authority.—Sees s. 4, ante, and notes thereto. As to delegation of powers under Part III, ante, see s. 34, ante.

Enforcement notice.—See, generally, ss. 23 and 24, ante.

Regulations under Part III.—Up to the time of going to Press, no relevant regulations had been made under this Part of the Act.

Ss. 30 and 33.—See ante. These sections deal respectively with action in respect of the preservation of buildings of architectural or historic interest and the abatement of injury to amenity caused by the condition of vacant land.

Serve a notice.—See s. 105, post.

Sub-s. (2).—It is suggested that where any such order as is mentioned in this subsection, ante, is made on the directions of the Minister, the fact that the order has been so made should be recited in the order, particularly if the order is not one which the local planning authority would themselves have made had they not been directed by the Minister to make it.

Tree preservation order.—As to this type of order, see s. 28, ante.

Building preservation order.—See s. 29, ante, as to this type of order.

After holding a local inquiry.—For the provisions as to inquiries, see s. 104, post.

In the opinion of the Minister.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the words "If it appears to the Minister."

Definitions.—As to "develop" and "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "development plan," see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land," "use" and "buildings or works," see s. 119 (1), post. Other definitions are referred to in the notes supra.

101. Transfer of property and officers to local planning authorities under this Act.—(1) Regulations under this Act may make such provision consequential on or supplementary to the provisions of section four of this Act as appears to the Minister to be necessary or expedient, and in particular, but without prejudice to the generality of this section, such regulations may provide—

- (a) for the transfer to local planning authorities of property and liabilities of councils of county districts, being property and liabilities held or incurred for the purposes of the exercise, under the enactments relating to town and country planning in force before the appointed day, of functions corresponding with the functions of local planning authorities under this Act;

- (b) for the transfer to local planning authorities, or to the constituent authorities of joint planning committees, of property and liabilities of such committees;
- (c) for the transfer to local planning authorities of officers employed by councils of county districts immediately before the appointed day, being officers so employed solely or mainly for the purposes of any such functions as aforesaid, and of officers employed by joint planning committees;
- (d) for enabling any proceedings pending on the appointed day with respect to any such functions as aforesaid, or with respect to any property or liabilities transferred by virtue of the regulations, to be carried on by or against local planning authorities or the constituent authorities of joint planning committees, as the case may be;
- (e) for the making of adjustments between local planning authorities or the constituent authorities of joint planning committees, on the one hand, and the councils of county districts or joint planning committees on the other hand in relation to property and liabilities transferred by virtue of the regulations, including the making of payments by such authorities, councils and committees; and
- (f) for the determination of questions arising in relation to the matters to which the regulations relate. [2648]

(2) Regulations made for the purposes of this section shall provide for the payment of compensation, subject to such exceptions and conditions as may be prescribed by the regulations, by such authorities as may be so prescribed—

- (a) to officers who, immediately before the appointed day, were employed by local planning authorities, by the councils of county districts, and by joint planning committees, and who suffer loss of employment or loss or diminution of emoluments which is attributable to the provisions of this Act or of the regulations; and
- (b) to officers who, having before the appointed day been employed in any such employment as aforesaid, would have been in that employment immediately before that day but for any war service in which they have been engaged. [2649]

(3) In this section the expression “joint planning committee” means a joint committee appointed or constituted under the Act of 1932 or under any previous enactment relating to town planning; the expression “officer” includes servant; and the expression “war service” means service in any of His Majesty’s forces and such other employment as may be prescribed by regulations made for the purposes of this section. [2650]

Regulations.—As to regulations generally, see s. 111, post, and notes thereto.

As appears to the Minister.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the words “If it appears to the Minister.”

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (see ss. 119 and 120, post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Functions.—This includes powers and duties (s. 119 (1), post).

Officers.—The word “officer” includes servant; see sub-s. (3), supra.

Mainly.—This means “for the most part,” “chiefly,” “principally” (Miller v. Othilie Owners, [1944] K. B. 188; [1944] 1 All E. R. 277, C. A., per LUXMOORE, L.J.).

Emoluments.—In the Local Government Act, 1933, s. 305 (26 Halsbury’s Statutes 466), the word “emoluments” is defined as follows:—

“Emoluments” includes all salary, wages, fees, poundage and other payments paid or made to an officer as such for his own use, including the money value of any apartments, rations or other allowances in kind appertaining to his office, but does not include payments for overtime or any sum paid to him to cover travelling expenses, cost of office accommodation, assistance of deputies, or clerical, or other assistance.”

This definition is, however, for the purposes of the Local Government Act, 1933, and does not apply to the present Act, which contains no definition of the term. Note, however, that a similar definition to that quoted appears in s. 8 (1) of the Compensation of Displaced Officers (War Service) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 304), though here again the definition is not exhaustive.

In R. v. Postmaster-General (1876), 1 Q. B. D. 658; affirmed (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 428, it was held that the word "emolument" means all by which the officer has benefited. Where he has a fixed salary, or where he has a remuneration for his services, the emolument would be that by which he made a profit. Travelling allowances can therefore be taken into consideration and the question would be whether the officer derived any annual profit or advantage from them.

Recent examples of the use of the term "emoluments" may be found in the Police Act, 1946, ss. 10 and 11 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 625, 626), and the Fire Services Act, 1947, Sched. V, para. 14 (see title FIRE PROTECTION, ante).

Would have been.—It will doubtless be assumed (unless there are some very exceptional circumstances) that an officer, not due for retirement before the appointed day, "would have been in that employment," if he left that employment to engage in war service.

Joint planning committee.—This term is defined in sub-s. (3), ante. As to the references to the "Act of 1932 or . . . any previous enactment relating to town planning," see ss. 3 and 4 of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 473, 474), s. 9 of the 1943 Act (36 Halsbury's Statutes 249) and s. 40 of the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 466).

War service.—It may well be that the additional war service to be prescribed by regulations for the purposes of the present section will be essentially similar to that allowed by the Minister of Health under s. 14 (1) of the Local Government Staffs (War Service) Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 1128). Note that this provision was applied by s. 8 (1) of the Compensation of Displaced Officers (War Service) Act, 1945, supra.

Definitions.—As to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definition of "enactment," see s. 119 (1), post. Other definitions are referred to in the notes supra.

General Provisions

102. Applications for planning permission, determination of development charges, etc.—(1) An application to a local planning authority for planning permission under Part III of this Act, and an application to the Central Land Board for the making or confirmation of any determination under Part VII of this Act, shall be made in such manner as may be prescribed by regulations under this Act and shall include such particulars and shall be verified by such evidence as may be required by the regulations or by any directions given by local planning authority or the Board thereunder. [2651]

(2) Subject to the following provisions of this section, regulations made under this Act may provide for the combination in a single document, made in such form and transmitted to such authority as may be prescribed by the regulations, of—

- (a) an application for planning permission in respect of any development ;
- (b) an application for a determination of the Central Land Board in respect of that development ;
- (c) any submission or application required to be made to a local authority in respect of that development under any enactment specified in the regulations. [2652]

(3) Any regulations made for the purposes of this section which relate to any such application or submission as is mentioned in paragraph (c) of the last foregoing subsection shall be made by the Minister and the Minister of Health, after consultation with such local authorities or associations of local authorities as appear to them to be concerned ; and different provision may be made by such regulations in relation to areas in which different enactments are in force. [2653]

(4) An application or submission required to be made to a local authority under any enactment specified in such regulations as aforesaid shall, if made in accordance with the provisions of the regulations, be deemed to be valid notwithstanding anything in that enactment prescribing or enabling any authority to prescribe the form in which or the manner in which such an application or submission is to be made, but without prejudice to the validity of any application or submission made in accordance with that enactment, and without prejudice to any provision of that enactment enabling any such authority to require further particulars of the matters to which the application or submission relates. [2654]

Effect of section.—As regards applications for planning permission, this section should be read together with s. 14, ante, and as regards applications to the Central Land Board for the making or confirmation of any determination under Part VII, ante, with ss. 70 and 72.

The provisions contained in sub-s. (2), ante, are designed to obviate the necessity for a number of separate applications. A combined form of application will be prescribed.

Under the previous law, applications were often made for permission in principle before submitting plans showing the precise development in detail. This course, though it had disadvantages, had the advantage of saving the expense of preparing plans before it was known whether the development was of a kind which the authority would be prepared to accept.

By sub-s. (8), ante, different provisions may be made by the regulations in relation to areas in which different enactments are in force. The term "enactment" includes not only an enactment in any local or private Act of Parliament, but also an order, rule, regulation, bye-law or scheme made under an Act of Parliament (s. 119 (1), post). The provisions in the regulations could thus vary considerably in relation to different areas.

This section does not apply to applications under s. 17, ante, in Part III of the Act to determine whether planning permission is required, but there should be no difficulty in combining such an application with an application to which this section does apply (see s. 17 (1), ante).

The Minister has stated in Town and Country Planning Circular 37/47, that he intends to make regulations under the present section for all planning applications to be made in the first place to the county district council for the area. This will avoid confusion where differing delegation arrangements have been made under s. 34, ante. The district council will either deal with the application under the terms of the delegation, if any, or pass it to the county council.

Local planning authority.—See s. 4, ante, and Sched. I, post. For special provisions as to London, see s. 114, post.

Central Land Board.—See s. 2 and Part VII, ante.

Regulations.—As to regulations generally, see s. 111, ante, and notes thereto.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Consultation.—See note to s. 100, ante.

As appear to them.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the words "If it appears to the Minister."

Definitions.—As to "planning permission" and "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "local authority" and "enactment," see s. 119 (1), post.

103. Powers of entry.—(1) Any person duly authorised in writing by the Minister or by a local planning authority may, at any reasonable time, enter upon any land for the purpose of surveying it in connection with—

- (a) the preparation, approval, making or amendment of a development plan relating to the land under Part II of this Act, including the carrying out of any survey under the said Part II ;
- (b) any application under Part III of this Act, or under any order or regulations made thereunder, for any permission, consent or determination to be given or effected in relation to that or any other land under the said Part III or under any such order or regulations ;
- (c) any proposal by the local planning authority or by the Minister to serve or make any notice or order under the said Part III or under any such order or regulations as aforesaid ; and any person being an officer of the Valuation Office or a person duly authorised in writing by a local planning authority may, at any reasonable time, enter upon any land for the purpose of surveying it or estimating its value in connection with any claim for compensation payable by that authority in respect of that or any other land under Part III or Part VIII of this Act.

[2655]

(2) Any officer of the Valuation Office, or any person duly authorised in writing by a Minister having power to acquire land designated by a development plan under this Act as subject to compulsory acquisition, or to authorise the acquisition of land so designated, and any person being an officer of the Central Land Board or a person duly authorised in writing by a local authority having power to acquire land under Part IV of this Act, may, at any reasonable time, enter upon any land for the purpose of surveying it or estimating its value in connection with any proposal to acquire that or any other land or in connection with any claim for compensation in respect of any such acquisition. [2656]

(3) Any officer of the Valuation Office or of the Central Land Board may, at any reasonable time, enter upon any land for the purpose of surveying it or estimating its value in connection with—

- (a) any claim for a payment in respect of that or any other land under Part VI of this Act ;
- (b) any determination of the Board in respect of that or any other land under Part VII of this Act. [2657]

(4) A person authorised under this section to enter upon any land shall, if so required, produce evidence of his authority before so entering, and shall not demand admission as of right to any land which is occupied unless twenty-four hours notice of the intended entry has been given to the occupier. [2658]

(5) Any person who wilfully obstructs a person acting in the exercise of his powers under this section shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds. [2659]

(6) If any person who, in compliance with the provisions of this section, is admitted into a factory, workshop or workplace discloses to any person any information obtained by him therein as to any manufacturing process or trade secret, he shall, unless the disclosure is made in the course of performing his duty in connection with the survey or estimate for which he was authorised to enter the premises, be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds or to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months. [2660]

(7) Where any land is damaged in the exercise of a power of entry conferred under this section, or in the making of any survey for the purpose of which any such power of entry has been so conferred, compensation in respect of that damage may be recovered by any person interested in the land from the Minister, Board or authority on whose behalf the entry was effected. [2661]

(8) Any expenses incurred by a Minister or the Central Land Board under the last foregoing subsection shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [2662]

(9) Any power conferred by this section to survey land shall be construed as including power to search and bore for the purpose of ascertaining the nature of the subsoil or the presence of minerals therein :

Provided that a person shall not carry out any works authorised by this subsection unless notice of his intention so to do has been included in the notice required by subsection (4) of this section, and if the land in question is held by any statutory undertakers and those undertakers object to the proposed works on the ground that the carrying out thereof would be seriously detrimental to the carrying on of their undertaking, the works shall not be carried out except with the authority of the appropriate Minister. [2663]

Requiring information.—For power to require information as to ownership, see s. 106, post.

Any person.—The person duly authorised need not be an officer of the local planning authority or the Ministry. This is understandable as local planning authorities may employ consultants.

Duly authorised.—The giving of the authority would appear to be a “ ministerial act ” which might be delegated to an officer of the planning authority, but planning authorities may be well advised not to take any risk and to give the authority themselves.

As the authority under this section must take the form of a document to be issued or given by the local planning authority, the Minister could prescribe the form of the document by virtue of his powers under s. 111, post.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante). This should be distinguished from “ a Minister ” and “ appropriate Minister ” in later subsections of the present section.

For the purpose of surveying.—Note that by sub-s. (9), supra, the power to survey includes the power to search and bore for the purpose of ascertaining the nature of the subsoil or the presence of minerals therein. The term “ minerals ” is defined in s. 119 (1), post.

Valuation Office.—This means the Valuation Office of the Inland Revenue Department (s. 119 (1), post).

Central Land Board.—For the constitution and functions of the Board, see ss. 2 and 3, ante.

Sub-s. (4).—In view of the terms of this subsection it will be inadvisable to enter upon land without first notifying the owner or occupier of the intention to enter. If he refuses permission to enter immediately, the twenty-four hours notice mentioned should be given.

Sub-s. (6).—As the maximum term of imprisonment on summary conviction does not exceed three months, the accused has no right to claim trial by jury under s. 17 of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879 (11 Halsbury's Statutes 329).

Powers of entry.—The powers given by the present section may be compared with those conferred by s. 287 of the Public Health Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 507), whereby duly authorised officers of councils are empowered, on producing their authority, to enter any premises at all reasonable hours for the purposes of that section, subject to a proviso that admission to any premises not being a factory, workshop, or workplace, is not to be demanded as of right unless twenty-four hours' notice of the intended entry has been given to the occupier.

S. 343 of the same Act (29 Halsbury's Statutes 536) defines "authorised officer" by reference to general or special authorisation, but there is no express provision in the present Act allowing general authorisation.

Definitions.—As to "local planning authority," see ss. 4, ante, and 119 (1), post; and as to "development plan," see ss. 5, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land," "a Minister," "local authority," "statutory undertakers," and "appropriate Minister," see s. 119 (1), post. Other definitions are referred to in the notes supra.

104. Local inquiries.—The Minister may cause a local inquiry to be held for the purpose of the exercise of any of his functions under this Act; and the provisions of subsections (2) to (5) of section two hundred and ninety of the Local Government Act, 1933 (which relate to the giving of evidence at, and defraying the cost of, local inquiries) shall have effect with respect to any such inquiry as if the Minister were a department for the purposes of that section. [2664]

Effect of section.—This section confers on the Minister a general power to cause a local inquiry to be held for the purpose of the exercise of any of his functions. There are a few provisions in the Act which oblige the Minister, before making certain orders, to hold a local inquiry, but there are a number of other provisions which require him to afford an oral hearing. Provisions for other local inquiries and oral hearings will doubtless be made by the regulations which the Minister is authorised to make under the Act. Under the previous law it has been the practice of the Minister, when he has been obliged to afford an oral hearing, to direct a local inquiry to be held.

For cases relating to inquiries of this kind, see Re London-Portsmouth Trunk Road (Surrey) Compulsory Purchase Order (No. 2), 1938, [1939] 2 K. B. 515; [1939] 2 All E. R. 464; Franklin v. Minister of Town and Country Planning, [1948] A. C. 87; [1947] 2 All E. R. 289, post; Rollo v. Minister of Town and Country Planning, [1948] 1 All E. R. 13, C. A.; and Fletcher v. Minister of Town and Country Planning, [1947] 2 All E. R. 496, post.

Inspector's report.—The Inspector's report is a departmental document and its contents need not be (and are not in practice) disclosed to parties or other persons interested in the subject of the inquiry (see William Denby & Sons, Ltd. v. Minister of Health, [1936] 1 K. B. 337, following Local Government Board v. Arlidge, [1915] A. C. 120).

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Functions.—This term includes powers and duties (s. 119 (1), post).

Local Government Act, 1933, s. 290 (2)-(5).—26 Halsbury's Statutes 459.

105. Service of notices.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, any notice or other document required or authorised to be served or given under this Act may be served or given either—

- (a) by delivering it to the person on whom it is to be served or to whom it is to be given; or
- (b) by leaving it at the usual or last known place of abode of that person, or, in a case in which an address for service has been furnished by that person, at that address; or
- (c) by sending it in a prepaid registered letter addressed to that person at his usual or last known place of abode, or, in a case in which an address for service has been furnished by that person, at that address; or
- (d) in the case of an incorporated company or body, by delivering it to the secretary or clerk of the company or body at their registered or principal office, or sending it in a prepaid registered letter addressed to the secretary or clerk of the company or body at that office.

[2665]

(2) Where the notice or document is required or authorised to be served on any person as having an interest in premises, and the name of that person cannot be ascertained after reasonable inquiry, or where the notice or document is required or authorised to be served on any person as an occupier of premises, the notice shall be deemed to be duly served if—

- (a) being addressed to him either by name or by the description of "the owner" or "the occupier," as the case may be, of the premises (describing them) it is delivered or sent in the manner prescribed by paragraph (a), (b) or (c) of the last foregoing subsection; or
- (b) being addressed as aforesaid and marked in such manner as may be prescribed by regulations under this Act for securing that it shall be plainly identifiable as a communication of importance, it is sent in a prepaid registered letter to the premises and is not returned to the authority sending it, or is delivered to some person on those premises or is affixed conspicuously to some object on those premises.
- [2666]

(3) Where the notice or other document is required to be served on or given to all persons having interests in, or being occupiers of, premises comprised in any land, and it appears to the authority required or authorised to serve or give the notice or other document that any part of that land is unoccupied, the notice shall be deemed to be duly served on all persons having interests in, and on any occupiers of, premises comprised in that part of the land (other than a person who has furnished that authority with an address for the service of the notice on him) if it is addressed to "the owners and any occupiers" of that part of the land (describing it), and is affixed conspicuously to some object on the land. [2667]

Other document.—See R. v. Mead, [1894] 2 Q. B. 124 (summons held to be); R. v. Braithwaite, [1918] 2 K. B. 319 (summons held to be, following R. v. Mead); R. v. Hastings JJ., Ex parte Mitchell (1925), 89 J. P. Jo. 86 (summons).

Last known place of abode.—See Hanrott's Trustees v. Evans (1887), 4 T. L. R. 128 (person with no permanent place of abode); R. v. Farmer, [1892] 1 Q. B. 637, C. A. (last place of abode: distinction between person who has gone abroad and is wandering about and person who has gone abroad and is not merely wandering about but has got a fixed place of abode abroad); R. v. Webb, [1896] 1 Q. B. 487 (last place of abode).

Registered letter.—By s. 26 of the Interpretation Act, 1889 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1002), it is enacted as follows:—

"Where an Act passed after the commencement of this Act authorises or requires any document to be served by post, whether the expression 'serve,' or the expression 'give' or 'send,' or any other expression is used, then, unless the contrary intention appears, the service shall be deemed to be effected by properly addressing, prepaying, and posting a letter containing the document, and unless the contrary is proved to have been effected at the time at which the letter would be delivered in the ordinary course of post."

In this case, however, there is the additional requirement that the letter must be registered. As to necessity for proving repayment of postage, see Walthamstow U.D.C. v. Henwood, [1897] 1 Ch. 41.

Principal office.—This is the place where the business of the company is managed and controlled as a whole (Garton v. Great Western Ry. Co. (1858), 27 L. J. Q. B. 375; Pulmer v. Caledonian Ry. Co., [1892] 1 Q. B. 823; Clokey v. London North Western Ry. (Ir.), [1905] 2 I. R. 251).

Sub-s. (2).—The methods specified in this subsection are applicable:—

1. Where the notice or other document is required to be served on any person as having an interest in premises, and the name of that person cannot be ascertained after reasonable inquiry; and

2. Where the notice or other document is required or authorised to be served on any person as an occupier of the premises.

Sub-s. (2) (b).—Under a similar provision in the 1944 Act (s. 54; 37 Halsbury's Statutes 473), the regulations required that any notice or other document served in this manner must at the beginning of such notice or document have clearly and legibly inscribed upon it, in the following form, the words: IMPORTANT—This communication affects YOUR PROPERTY.

See also p. 991, post.

Regulations.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations, see s. 111, post.

Sub-s. (3).—Note that it suffices for the purpose of this subsection if it appears to the authority that any part of the land is unoccupied, in which case a notice posted on the site will be sufficient, except in the case of those persons who have furnished the authority with an address for service.

Definitions.—For definitions of "owner" and "land," see s. 119 (1), post.

106. Power to require information as to ownership of land.—The Minister, the Central Land Board or a local authority may, for the purpose of enabling them to make any order or serve any notice or other document which they are by this Act authorised or required to make or serve, require the occupier of any premises and any person who, either directly or indirectly, receives rent in respect of any premises, to state in writing the nature of his interest therein and the name and address of any other person known to him as having an interest therein, whether a freeholder, mortgagee, lessee or otherwise; and any person who, having been required in pursuance of this section to give any information, fails to give that information, or knowingly makes any misstatement in respect thereof, shall be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding five pounds. [2668]

General note.—Note that the power conferred by this section is solely for the purpose of enabling the Minister, the Central Land Board or the local authority to serve any notice or other document which they are authorised or required by the Act to make or serve.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Central Land Board.—For the constitution and functions of the Board, see ss. 2 and 3, ante.

Serve any notice.—For the general provisions applicable to service of notices, see s. 105, ante.

Definitions.—For definition of “local authority,” see s. 119 (1), post. Though “mortgage” and “lease” are defined in that subsection, “mortgagee” and “lessee” are not expressly defined.

107. Provisions as to Ecclesiastical property.—(1) Without prejudice to the provisions of the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, with respect to notices served under that Act, where under this Act any notice is required to be served on an owner of land, and the land is ecclesiastical property, a like notice shall be served on the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. [2669]

(2) Where the fee simple in any ecclesiastical property is in abeyance, it shall be treated for the purposes of a compulsory purchase of the property under Part IV of this Act as being vested in the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, and any notice to treat shall be served, or be deemed to have been served, accordingly. [2670]

(3) Any compensation payable under Part III or Part VIII of this Act in respect of land which is ecclesiastical property, and any payment falling to be made in respect of such land under Part VI of this Act, shall be paid to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners to be applied for the purposes for which the proceeds of a sale by agreement of the land would be applicable under any enactment or Measure authorising such a sale or disposing of the proceeds of such a sale. [2671]

(4) Where a development charge is payable under Part VII of this Act in respect of land which is ecclesiastical property, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners may apply any money or securities held by them in the payment of that charge. [2672]

(5) In this section the expression “ecclesiastical property” means land belonging to any ecclesiastical benefice, or being or forming part of a church subject to the jurisdiction of a bishop of any diocese or the site of such a church, or being or forming part of a burial ground subject to such jurisdiction. [2673]

Effect of section.—This section is an extension of s. 52 of the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 473), and is designed to remove uncertainties in connection with the disposal of Church of England property such as glebe land, consecrated churches and churchyards.

Where there is an incumbent or other owner any notice required to be served on the owner must also be served on the Church Commissioners for England (sub-s. (1), supra, and see the notes infra).

Where there is no incumbent or other owner the fee simple is treated for the purposes of compulsory purchase as vested in the said Church Commissioners and any notice to treat must be served on them. In cases where notice to treat is not served, but is deemed to have been served either under this Act or the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 52), it will be deemed to have been served on the said Church Commissioners (sub-s. (2), supra).

Compensation on compulsory purchase in respect of ecclesiastical property will be paid to the said Church Commissioners, as will also any payments made under Part VI of the present Act (sub-s. (3), supra).

Sub-s. (4), supra, relates to the payment of development charges by the said Church Commissioners, and sub-s. (5) defines “ecclesiastical property.”

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 52.

See para. 3 (2) and (3) of Sched. I and also paras. 3 (2) and 5 of Sched. II to that Act (39 Halsbury's Statutes 63, 67).

Ecclesiastical Commissioners.—On April 1, 1948, the day appointed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners were dissolved, and their functions, rights and privileges transferred to the Church Commissioners for England established under the Church Commissioners Measure, 1947, ss. 1 and 2 (40 Halsbury's Statutes 393).

Part III.—See ante. This Part of the Act comprises the control of development provisions. See ss. 20, 22, 27, 28, 29 and 32, ante.

Part VIII.—See, in particular, s. 79, ante.

Development charge.—See s. 69, ante.

Definitions.—For definitions of "owner" and "land," see s. 119 (1), post.

108. Expenses of tribunals, etc.—(1) The Minister may pay to the chairman and members of any tribunal established for the purposes of this Act, or of regulations made thereunder, such remuneration (whether by way of salaries or by way of fees) and such reasonable allowances in respect of expenses properly incurred in the performance of their duties, as the Treasury may determine. [2674]

(2) Any expenditure incurred by the Minister under the last foregoing subsection, or in the payment of the expenses of any committee established under section thirty-one of this Act, shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [2675]

General note.—Instances in which a tribunal may be appointed are under s. 16 (4), ante (appeal from decisions of planning authority relating to the design or external appearance of buildings or other similar matters); s. 31 (2), ante (appeal from decisions of planning authority on applications for consent to display advertisements), and s. 81 (3), ante (variation of mining leases).

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Committee . . . under s. 31.—See ante. This section relates to the control of advertisements, and sub-s. (1) (e) thereof authorises the constitution of advisory committees in that connection.

109. Expenses of Ministers.—There shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament—

- (a) any expenses incurred by a Minister in the acquisition of land under Part IV of this Act, other than expenses so incurred which are required to be defrayed out of the road fund;
- (b) any sums payable into the road fund for the purpose of defraying expenses of the Minister of Transport under this Act;
- (c) any sums authorised or required to be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament by virtue of any of the provisions of the Act of 1944 incorporated with Part IV of this Act;
- (d) any administrative expenses incurred by the Minister for the purposes of this Act. [2676]

A Minister; the Minister.—Note the distinction between these terms which are defined in s. 119 (1), post. "The Minister" is the Minister of Town and Country Planning (ss. 1, ante, and 119 (1), post).

Road fund.—This fund was established by s. 3 of the Roads Act, 1920 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 87). See also in this connection 23 Halsbury's Statutes 670, 684; 26 Halsbury's Statutes 891; and 29 Halsbury's Statutes 772.

Definitions.—For definitions of "land" and "Act of 1944," see s. 119 (1), post.

110. Determination of disputes as to compensation, etc.—(1) Except so far as otherwise provided by this Act or by any regulations or order made thereunder, any question of disputed compensation under this Act (other than compensation payable in respect of the compulsory acquisition of land) shall be determined in the same manner as compensation on the acquisition of land falls to be determined under the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, and sections one, three, five, six and eight of that Act shall accordingly have effect subject to any necessary modifications and to the provisions of any such regulations as aforesaid. [2677]

(2) Any dispute arising under any provisions of this Act in relation to any land as to what is the use which prevails generally in the case of contiguous or adjacent land shall, if application in that behalf is made by any party to the dispute within such time and in such manner as may be prescribed by regulations made under this Act, be referred to and determined by the Central Land Board. [2678]

(3) Any party to any such dispute as aforesaid who is dissatisfied with the determination of the Central Land Board may, within such time and in such manner as may be prescribed by regulations made under this Act, appeal to the Minister, whose decision shall be final. [2679]

Effect of section.—The effect of sub-s. (1), ante, is that disputes as to compensation in respect of planning restrictions in the limited number of cases in which any compensation is to be payable will be referred to the official arbitrator to be determined under the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176).

As to sub-s. (2), ante, see the provisions contained in ss. 82, 84 and 85, ante.

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, ss. 1, 3, 5, 6 and 8.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176, 1179, 1180, 1181.

Contiguous or adjacent.—See note to s. 5, ante.

Regulations.—For the general provisions as to regulations, see s. 111, post.

Central Land Board.—For the constitution and functions of the Board, see ss. 2 and 3, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Definitions.—For definitions of "land" and "use," see s. 119 (1), post.

111. Regulations and orders.—(1) The Minister may make regulations under this Act—

(a) for prescribing the form of any notice, order or other document authorised or required by this Act to be served, made or issued by any local authority;

(b) for any purpose for which regulations are authorised or required to be made under this Act, not being a purpose for which such regulations are authorised or required to be made by any other Minister, and in particular for prescribing anything which by this Act is required or authorised to be prescribed by regulations. [2680]

(2) Any regulations made under this Act (other than regulations which, by virtue of any provision of this Act, are of no effect unless they are approved by resolution of each House of Parliament) shall be laid before Parliament immediately after they are made, and if either House, within the period of forty days after the regulations are so laid before it, resolves that the regulations be annulled, the regulations shall thereupon cease to have effect, but without prejudice to the validity of anything previously done thereunder or to the making of new regulations. [2681]

(3) In reckoning for the purpose of the last foregoing subsection any such period of forty days, no account shall be taken of any time during which Parliament is dissolved or prorogued or during which both Houses are adjourned for more than four days. [2682]

(4) Any power to make an order conferred by this Act shall include power to amend or revoke that order by a subsequent order:

Provided that an order made by the Minister for the purposes of paragraph 6 of the Third Schedule to this Act shall not be amended or revoked at any time after the appointed day. [2683]

(5) Notwithstanding anything in subsection (4) of section one of the Rules Publication Act, 1893, regulations, orders and schemes made under this Act shall be deemed not to be, or to contain, statutory rules to which that section applies. [2684]

General note.—A regulation made under statutory authority has the same force as a statute if validly made (R. v. Walker (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 355; Kayley v. Hothersall, [1925] 1 K. B. 607; SS. Hontestroom v. SS. Sagaprock, SS. Hontestroom v. SS. Durham Castle, [1927] A. C. 37).

If there is a conflict between the regulations and the Act which cannot be reconciled, the regulations must yield to the Act (Minister of Health v. R., Ex parte Yaffé, [1931] A. C. 494).

Where the words of an Act under which the regulations are made or to which the regulations refer are repeated totidem verbis in the regulations, they must bear the same interpretation as in the Act (see the Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 31 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1003); and Potts (or Riddell) v. Reid, [1943] A. C. 1; [1943] 2 All E. R. 161, H. L.).

By s. 32 (3) of the Interpretation Act, 1889 (18 Halsbury's Statutes 1003), it is provided as follows :—

"Where an Act passed after the commencement of this Act confers a power to make any rules, regulations, or byelaws, the power shall, unless a contrary intention appears, be construed as including a power, exercisable in the like manner and subject to the like consent and conditions, if any, to rescind, revoke, amend, or vary the rules, regulations, or byelaws."

Note the omission of orders from the above enactment, an omission supplied by sub-s. (4), ante.

See note to s. 13, ante, as to the effect of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 783).

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Local authority.—For definition, see s. 119 (1), post.

Para. 6 of Sched. III.—See post. This provision enables the Minister by order to direct that certain uses of a general class shall be included in "existing use for all purposes." Such an order will limit the development value (see s. 61, ante) which may be claimed in respect of such an interest, since the owner will be entitled to compensation under s. 20 or 27, ante, should future limitation of the development be necessary. Since development value is determined at the appointed day this proviso ensures that the alternative of compensation will remain secured.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (see ss. 119 and 120, post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Rules Publication Act, 1893.—18 Halsbury's Statutes 1016 ; see also the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 783).

112. Assumptions as to permission for development.—(1) For the avoidance of doubt it is hereby declared that where, under any provision of this Act, the value of any interest in land is required to be assessed on the assumption that planning permission under Part III of this Act would be granted for development of any class specified in the Third Schedule to this Act, that assumption is to be made on the footing that any such development must comply with the provisions of any enactment, other than this Act, which would be applicable thereto. [2685]

(2) For the purposes of paragraph 3 of the said Third Schedule, the erection on land within the curtilage of any such building as is mentioned in that paragraph of an additional building to be used in connection with the original building shall be treated as the enlargement of the original building ; and where on the appointed day any two or more buildings comprised in the same curtilage are used as one unit for the purposes of any institution or undertaking, the reference in the said paragraph 3 to the cubic content of the original building shall be construed as a reference to the aggregate cubic content of those buildings. [2686]

(3) Any reference in the said Third Schedule to the cubic content of a building shall be construed as a reference to that content as ascertained by external measurement. [2687]

General note.—Sub-s. (1) of the section should be read together with s. 61, ante (ascertainment of development values of land).

Sub-ss. (2) and (3) should be read together with para. 3 of Sched. III, post.

Sched. III.—See post. This Schedule defines the development included in the existing use.

Enactment.—The word "enactment" is defined by s. 119 (1), post, to include "an enactment" in any local or private Act of Parliament and an order, rule, regulation, byelaw or scheme made under an Act of Parliament.

Para. 3 of Sched. III.—See post. This paragraph provides a certain tolerance to existing use by way of enlargement or alteration.

Curtilage.—See note to s. 12, ante.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (see ss. 119 (1) and 120, post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Definitions.—As to "planning permission" and "development," see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of "land," "erection" and "building," see s. 119 (1), post. Other definitions are referred to in the notes supra.

113. Amendments and repeals.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, the enactments specified in the first column of the Eighth Schedule to this Act shall have effect, on and after the appointed day, subject to the amendments specified in the second column of that Schedule, being minor amendments and amendments consequential on the provisions of this Act. [2688]

(2) Subject to the provisions of this section, the enactments specified in the Ninth Schedule to this Act are hereby repealed in the case of enactments specified in Part I of that Schedule, as from the passing of this Act, and in the case of the enactments specified in Part II of that Schedule, as from the appointed day, to the extent specified in relation thereto in the third column of that Schedule :

Provided that the repeal by virtue of this subsection of any enactment specified in Part I of the said Ninth Schedule shall not affect the operation of that enactment in its application to compensation in respect of land compulsorily acquired in pursuance of a notice to treat served before the date of the passing of this Act or compensation in respect of any order or direction made or given before that date. [2689]

(3) The repeal or amendment by virtue of this Act of any enactment contained in Part I or Part III of the Act of 1944 (other than an enactment specified in Part I of the Ninth Schedule to this Act) shall not affect the operation of that enactment as applied by the New Towns Act, 1946, but without prejudice to any amendment of the last-mentioned Act effected by this Act. [2690]

(4) His Majesty may by Order in Council repeal or modify so much of any local enactment in force on the appointed day as confers or imposes any such powers, prohibitions or restrictions as could be conferred or imposed by regulations made under section thirty-one of this Act :

Provided that any Order in Council made under this subsection shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure. [2691]

(5) Without prejudice to the provisions of section thirty-eight of the Interpretation Act, 1889 (which relates to the effect of repeals), the provisions of the Tenth Schedule to this Act (being transitory and consequential provisions) shall have effect in relation to the repeals effected by this section. [2692]

(6) In accordance with the foregoing provisions of this section, the Act of 1944 shall, as from the appointed day, have effect as set out in the Eleventh Schedule to this Act. [2693]

Dates of operation.—See s. 120, post, as to the coming into operation of this section.

Sub-s. (1).—Most of the amendments effected by this Act are consequential, but special attention is drawn to the amendments of ss. 6, 7 and 20 of the Betting and Lotteries Act, 1934 (27 Halsbury's Statutes 276, 278, 287).

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (s. 119, post). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Passing of this Act.—August 6, 1947.

Sub-s. (3).—The repeals and amendments to the 1944 Act, apart from those relating to the assessment of compensation upon the compulsory acquisition of land by reference to 1939 prices, are not to affect that Act as applied by the New Towns Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 661).

Sub-s. (4).—This is an example of the delegation of legislative powers to His Majesty, but note the proviso. The whole of the present Act affords an interesting study in delegated legislation. See, further, the notes to s. 111, ante.

Regulations made under s. 31.—See ante. S. 31 empowers the Minister to make regulations as to the control of advertisements.

Special parliamentary procedure.—See the notes to s. 5, ante.

Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 38.—18 Halsbury's Statutes 1005.

Definitions.—For definitions of "enactment," "land" and "Act of 1944," see s. 119 (1), post.

(9) References in section one hundred and one of this Act to the council of a county district shall be construed as including references to the Common Council of the City of London. [2702]

(10) In relation to land in the City of London, the London County Council may delegate to the Common Council of the City any of their functions under regulations made under section thirty-one of this Act with respect to the control of advertisements, and shall delegate to that Council, in accordance with regulations made under this Act, such of their functions in relation to applications for planning permission under Part III of this Act as may be prescribed by the regulations; and regulations made for the purposes of this subsection may make provision for any matters for which provision may be made by regulations made for the purposes of section thirty-four of this Act. [2703]

(11) Without prejudice to the provisions of the last foregoing subsection, the London County Council shall—

- (a) before submitting to the Minister a development plan relating to land in the City of London, or proposals for alterations or additions to any such plan;

(13) The class of applications for planning permission prescribed by a development order for the purposes of paragraph (b) of the last foregoing subsection shall be such class as appears to the Minister to involve matters of principle; and where an application of any class so prescribed is referred to the Minister for determination in pursuance of directions given by him under section fifteen of this Act, the London County Council shall give notice to that effect to the council of the metropolitan borough in which the land to which the application relates is situated, and the Minister shall, in dealing with the application, take into account any representations made to the London County Council by the council of that borough. [2706]

(14) The Common Council of the City of London may borrow money for the purposes of this Act under the City of London Sewers Acts, 1848 to 1897, and any expenses incurred by that Council under this Act shall be defrayed as part of their general expenses. [2707]

Effect of section.—By virtue of this section the London County Council become the local planning authority for the whole of the administrative county of London, including the City of London (sub-s. (1), ante).

The London County Council are required to delegate to the Common Council of the City of London (with respect to land in the City), in accordance with regulations made under the Act, such of their functions in relation to applications for planning permission as may be prescribed by the regulations (sub-s. (10), ante).

The London County Council may delegate in respect of land in the City of London to the Common Council, and in respect of land in a metropolitan borough to the council of that borough any of their functions under regulations made under s. 31 in respect of the control of advertisements (sub-ss. (10) and (12), ante).

By sub-s. (11), ante, the London County Council is to consult with the Common Council:—

(a) before submitting to the Minister a development plan relating to land in the City of London or proposals for alterations or additions to any such plan;

(b) before determining any application for planning permission relating to any such land; and

(c) before making a tree preservation order or building preservation order affecting any such land.

Similar provision for consultation is made in the case of metropolitan boroughs (sub-s. (12)), though in case (b), supra, the requirement is somewhat more limited (sub-ss. (12) (b) and (13), ante).

The powers under Part IV (Acquisition of Land, etc.), ante, are conferred on the Common Council as regards land in the City of London, and on the London County Council as regards the rest of the county.

Metropolitan boroughs are given a new power to acquire land compulsorily for open spaces, but before they submit an order for compulsory purchase (in this case to the Minister of Health) they must consult with the London County Council (sub-s. (5), ante).

The council of a metropolitan borough is not, except with the consent of the London County Council, to be authorised to acquire land compulsorily under s. 38 (3), ante (sub-s. (4), ante).

115. Application to Isles of Scilly.—The Minister shall, after consultation with the council of the Isles of Scilly, by order provide for the application of this Act to the Isles of Scilly as if those Isles were a separate county, and any such order may provide for the application of this Act to those Isles subject to such modifications as may be specified in the order. [2708]

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Consultation.—See note to s. 100, ante, on the subject of consultations.

116. Exercise of functions of Board of Trade.—Anything required or authorised under this Act to be done by, to or before the Board of Trade may be done by, to or before the President of the Board, any secretary, under-secretary or assistant secretary of the Board or any person authorised in that behalf by the President of the Board. [2709]

General note.—The Board of Trade means the lords of the committee for the time being of the Privy Council appointed for the consideration of matters relating to trade and foreign plantations (Interpretation Act, 1889, s. 12 (8); 18 Halsbury's Statutes 995). The Board of Commissioners never meets in fact, the responsible heads of the department being the President and the Parliamentary Secretary of the Board. This section, which it has been the custom for many years to insert in Acts conferring powers on the Board of Trade, arises from the obscurity of the Board's position and is designed to establish the validity of acts done by certain responsible persons on behalf of the Board.

117. Saving for Postmaster General.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, and to the provisions of subsection (4) of section twenty-three of the Act of 1944 as applied by this Act, nothing in this Act or in any order or regulations made thereunder shall affect any powers or duties of the Postmaster General under the provisions of the Telegraph Acts, 1863 to 1943, or apply to any telegraphic lines placed or maintained by virtue of any of those provisions. [2710]

(2) Where in pursuance of an order made by the Minister of Transport under section forty-nine of this Act any highway is stopped up or diverted and, immediately before the date on which the order became operative, there was under, in, upon, over, along or across the highway any telegraphic line belonging to or used by the Postmaster General, the Postmaster General shall have the same powers in respect of that line as if the order had not become operative :

Provided that if any person entitled to land over which the highway subsisted requires that the telegraphic line should be altered, paragraphs (1) to (8) of section seven of the Telegraph Act, 1878, shall apply to the alteration and accordingly shall have effect, subject to any necessary modifications, as if references therein to undertakers included references to the person so requiring the line to be altered. [2711]

(3) Where any order made under the said section forty-nine provides for the improvement of any highway, not being a trunk road, and, immediately before the date on which the order became operative, there was under, in, upon, over, along or across the highway any telegraphic line belonging to or used by the Postmaster General, then if the local highway authority require that that line should be altered, paragraphs (1) to (8) of the said section seven shall apply to the alteration and accordingly shall have effect, subject to any necessary modifications, as if references therein to undertakers included references to the local highway authority. [2712]

(4) In this section the expressions “alter” and “telegraphic line” have the same meanings as in the Telegraph Act, 1878. [2713]

S. 23 (4) of the 1944 Act.—For this enactment, see Sched. XI, post.

Telegraph Acts, 1863 to 1943.—These include the Telegraph Acts, 1863 to 1925 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 210–316) ; the Post Office and Telegraph Act, 1940 (33 Halsbury's Statutes 351) ; and the Telegraph Act, 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 307).

Telegraphic lines.—The term “telegraphic line” is defined by s. 2 of the Telegraph Act, 1878 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 261), as meaning “telegraphs, posts, and any work (within the meaning of the Telegraph Act, 1863) and also any cables, apparatus, pneumatic or other tube, pipe, or thing whatsoever used for the purpose of transmitting telegraphic messages or maintaining telegraphic communication, and includes any portion of a telegraphic line as defined by this Act.” By sub-s. (4), supra, this definition is applied for the purposes of the present Act.

S. 49 of this Act.—See ante. This is the lengthy section at the end of Part IV which deals with the power to stop up and divert highways and similar matters.

Should be altered.—The term “alter” is defined by s. 2 of the Telegraph Act, 1878 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 261), in this clause :

“The expressions ‘alteration,’ ‘alter,’ and ‘altering’ in respect of a telegraphic line, include the substitution of any new line or portion of a line, either in the same place or in some other place, also any removal of or other dealing with any telegraphic line or any part of such line.”

By sub-s. (4), supra, the definition of “alter” as set out above is applied for the purposes of the present Act.

Telegraph Act, 1878, s. 7, paras. (1) to (8).—19 Halsbury's Statutes 265 et seq. This section lays down general rules as to work which involves alteration in a telegraphic line. Where any such work is proposed and provision with respect thereto is not otherwise made by enactment, agreement or otherwise, the enactments in the eight paragraphs of the section apply ; it is these provisions which, with minor adaptations, are expressly applied to the alterations referred to in sub-s. (2), supra.

Trunk road.—As to trunk roads, see ss. 1, 2 and 13 (1) of the Trunk Roads Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 185, 187, 200), and ss. 1 and 2 of the Trunk Roads Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 151, 152).

Telegraph Act, 1878.—19 Halsbury's Statutes 261 et seq. See also the notes supra.

Definitions.—For definitions of “land,” “improvement” (in relation to a highway) and “local highway authority,” see s. 119 (1), post.

118. Application to land regulated by special enactments.—(1) For the avoidance of doubt it is hereby declared that the provisions of this Act, and any restrictions or powers thereby imposed or conferred in relation to land, apply and may be exercised in relation to any land notwithstanding that provision is made by any enactment in force at the passing of this Act, or by any local Act passed at any time during the present Session of Parliament, for authorising or regulating any development of the land. [2714]

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provision, references in any enactment contained in a local Act (including any such Act passed as aforesaid) to Part II of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, shall be construed—

- (a) in relation to compensation payable on a compulsory acquisition of land thereunder in pursuance of a notice to treat served before the passing of this Act, as a reference to the said Part II as amended by this Act;
- (b) in relation to compensation payable on a compulsory acquisition of land thereunder in pursuance of a notice to treat served after the passing of this Act, as a reference to Part V of this Act:

Provided that no such enactment shall, by virtue of this subsection, be construed as excluding the application of the said Part V in relation to compensation payable in respect of any compulsory acquisition of land. [2715]

General note.—This section deals with the position of land where special enactments apply. In cases where development has been authorised or can be authorised by some other Act in force on August 6, 1947, application for permission to develop under the present Act must still be made.

Passing of this Act.—August 6, 1947.

Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, Part II.—37 Halsbury's Statutes 476 et seq. This Part of the 1944 Act comprises ss. 57–62 thereof and relates to compensation in connection with the acquisition of land for public purposes. By ss. 113, ante, and 120 and Sched. IX, Part I, post, these sections are repealed as from the passing of the present Act, and accordingly they do not appear in Sched. XI, post, which reproduces the unrepealed provisions of the 1944 Act in their amended form.

As to modifications of the said Part II in cases where it continues to apply (sub-s. (2) (a), supra), see s. 50, ante, and Sched. VII, post.

Notice to treat.—See s. 18 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1120), incorporated in the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 52).

Definitions.—As to “development,” see ss. 12, ante, and 119 (1), post. For definitions of “land” and “enactment,” see s. 119 (1), post.

SCHEDULES

Section 4

FIRST SCHEDULE

LOCAL ADMINISTRATION

PART I

JOINT PLANNING BOARDS

1. A joint planning board constituted by an order made under section four of this Act shall consist of such number of members as may be determined by the order, to be appointed by the constituent councils.

2. A joint planning board so constituted shall be a body corporate, with perpetual succession and a common seal and power to hold land for the purposes of their functions without licence in mortmain.

3. An order constituting a joint planning board and any order amending or revoking any order constituting a joint planning board—

- (a) may, without prejudice to the provisions of section two hundred and ninety-three of the Local Government Act, 1933 (which authorises the application of the provisions of that Act to joint boards), provide for regulating the appointment, tenure of office and vacation of office of members of the board, for regulating the meetings and proceedings of the board and for the payment of the expenses of the board by the constituent councils ;
- (b) may provide for the transfer and compensation of officers, the transfer of property and liabilities, and the adjustment of accounts and apportionment of liabilities ;
- (c) may contain such other provisions as appear to the Minister to be expedient for enabling the board to exercise their functions ; and
- (d) may apply to the board, with any necessary modifications and adaptations, any of the provisions of Parts II and III of this Schedule. [2725]

General note.—S. 4 (2), ante, empowers the Minister by order, if he thinks it expedient, to establish a joint planning board as the local planning authority for the areas of any two or more councils. The areas or parts of areas affected by such orders are to be known as united districts. Unless there is general consent, a local inquiry must first be held, and orders must be laid before Parliament.

By s. 4 (4), ante, the provisions of this Part of the present Schedule are to take effect with respect to the constitution of joint planning boards.

Compare and contrast the position with regard to joint planning committees (see ss. 96 and 101, ante, and the notes thereto).

Order.—For the general provisions applicable to orders under the Act, see s. 111, ante.

Body corporate.—By constituting a joint planning board a body corporate the authority is placed on a like footing to that of a county council who are a body corporate by statute (Local Government Act, 1933, s. 2 (2); 26 Halsbury's Statutes 307). The position of councils of county boroughs, who are also local planning authorities under s. 4 (1) of the present Act, is different; the council of a county borough is not incorporated but the inhabitants of the borough are incorporated to constitute a municipal corporation which is capable of acting by the council (see the Municipal Corporations Act, 1882, ss. 6, 7; 10 Halsbury's Statutes 577; and the Local Government Act, 1933, s. 17; 26 Halsbury's Statutes 313).

Licence in mortmain.—The Mortmain and Charitable Uses Acts, 1888 and 1891 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 385, 396), as amended by the Mortmain and Charitable Uses Act Amendment Act, 1892 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 398), prohibit the assurance of land to corporations except under Royal Licence or with statutory authority. Such authority is given to joint planning boards by para. 2, ante.

Local Government Act, 1933, s. 293.—26 Halsbury's Statutes 461.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Definitions.—For definitions of "land" and "functions," see s. 119 (1), ante.

PART II

PLANNING COMMITTEES

4. A local planning authority may establish such planning committees as they think it expedient to establish for the efficient discharge of their functions as a local planning authority, and may authorise any such committee to exercise on their behalf any of those functions, except the power to borrow money or to levy or issue a precept for a rate.

5. A planning committee of a local planning authority may, subject to any restrictions imposed by the local planning authority,—

- (a) appoint such sub-committees constituted in such manner as the committee may determine; and
- (b) authorise any such sub-committee to exercise any of the functions of the committee on their behalf.

6. A majority of every planning committee of a local planning authority shall be members of the authority, and a majority of every sub-committee of any such committee shall be members either of the local planning authority or of the councils of county districts comprised in the area of that authority.

7. Any power conferred by this Part of this Schedule to establish or appoint committees or sub-committees, or to authorise such committees or sub-committees to exercise any functions, shall include power to dissolve or alter the constitution of such committees or sub-committees, and to revoke or vary any such authorisation. [2726]

General note.—By s. 4 (4), ante, the provisions of this Part of the Schedule are to have effect in regard to the establishment and functions of planning committees. Provision is made for the delegation of functions by local planning authorities to planning committees which may themselves delegate to sub-committees. Note that such sub-committees may cover different parts of the authorities' areas. Note also the wide scope for co-option, and the representation of county districts allowed by para. 6, supra.

Borrowing of money.—The Local Government Act, 1933, Part IX (26 Halsbury's Statutes 412 et seq.), sets out the general provisions as to borrowing applicable to local authorities, including county and county borough councils.

County districts.—This means non-county boroughs, urban districts and rural districts (ss. 1 and 305 of the Local Government Act, 1933; 26 Halsbury's Statutes 306, 466).

Definitions.—As to "local planning authority," see ss. 4 and 119 (1), ante. For definition of "functions," see s. 119 (1), ante.

PART III

JOINT ADVISORY COMMITTEES

8. Any two or more local planning authorities may, with the approval of the Minister, concur in establishing a joint advisory committee for the purpose of advising those authorities as to the preparation of development plans and generally as to the planning of development in their areas; and any such committee shall be constituted in such manner as may be determined by the authorities by whom it is established:

Provided that a majority of the members of any such committee shall be members of one or other of those authorities.

9. If it appears to the Minister to be expedient that a joint advisory committee of any two or more local planning authorities should be established in accordance with the last foregoing paragraph, he may, after consultation with those authorities, by order establish such a committee, and any such order may—

- (a) provide for the reference to the committee of such matters as may be specified in the order ;
- (b) make such incidental and consequential provisions (including provision for the payment of expenses of the committee and the transfer and compensation of officers) as appear to the Minister to be expedient.

10. Any power conferred by this Part of this Schedule to establish committees or to authorise such committees to exercise any functions shall include power to dissolve or alter the constitution of such committees, and to revoke or vary any such authorisation.

11. The provisions of this Part of this Schedule shall be in addition to and not in substitution for the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1933, with respect to the appointment by local authorities of joint committees. [2727]

General note.—By s. 4 (4), ante, the provisions of this Part of the present Schedule are to have effect with respect to the establishment and functions of joint advisory committees of local planning authorities. Power is here given to set up joint advisory committees, a bare majority of whose members need be members of the appointing authorities.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Purpose of advising.—Note that executive functions are withheld from joint advisory committees. As set out in para. 8, ante, the functions of such committees are merely to advise the appointing authorities as to the preparation of development plans and generally as to the planning of development in the areas affected. But note the provisions of para. 9, supra.

If it appears to the Minister ; as appear to the Minister to be expedient.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the phrase “ If it appears to the Minister.”

Consultation.—See note to s. 10, ante, on the phrase “ He shall consult,” and the cases there cited. See also note to s. 100, ante, on the word “ Consultation.”

By order.—For the general provisions as to orders under the Act, see s. 111, ante.

Local Government Act, 1933.—26 Halsbury's Statutes 295 et seq.

Appointment of joint committees.—See the Local Government Act, 1933, s. 91 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 355). This section gives local authorities a general residuary power to concur with any one or more other local authorities in appointing from amongst their respective members a joint committee of those authorities for any purpose in which they are jointly interested, with power to delegate to the committee so appointed. This power still holds, in relation to town planning, by virtue of the provisions of para. 11, supra, notwithstanding the special provisions of this Part of the present Schedule for the appointment of joint advisory committees.

Definitions.—As to “ local planning authority,” see ss. 4 and 119 (1), ante ; as to “ development plan,” see ss. 5 and 119 (1), ante ; and as to “ development,” see ss. 12 and 119 (1), ante. For definition of “ functions,” see s. 119 (1), ante.

THIRD SCHEDULE

EXCEPTED CLASSES OF DEVELOPMENT

PART I

DEVELOPMENT INCLUDED IN EXISTING USE FOR PURPOSES OTHER THAN COMPENSATION UNDER S. 20

1. The rebuilding, as often as occasion may require, of any building which was in existence on the appointed day and of any building which was in existence before that day but has been destroyed or demolished since the seventh day of January, nineteen hundred and thirty-seven (including the making good of war damage which has been sustained by any such building), so long as the cubic content of the original building is not exceeded in the case of a dwelling-house, by more than one-tenth or seventeen hundred and fifty cubic feet, whichever is the greater, and in any other case by more than one-tenth.

2. The use as two or more separate dwelling-houses of any building which on the appointed day was used as a single dwelling-house. [2729]

PART II

DEVELOPMENT INCLUDED IN EXISTING USE FOR ALL PURPOSES

3. The enlargement, improvement or other alteration, as often as occasion may require, of any such building as is mentioned in paragraph 1 of this Schedule, or any building substituted therefor by the carrying out of any such operations as are mentioned in that paragraph, so long as the cubic content of the original building is not increased or exceeded, in the case of a dwelling-house, by more than one-tenth or seventeen hundred and fifty cubic feet, whichever is the greater, and in any other case by more than one-tenth.

4. The carrying out, on land which was used for the purposes of agriculture or forestry on the appointed day, or any building or other operations required for the purposes of that use, other than operations for the erection, enlargement, improvement or alteration of dwelling-houses or of buildings used for the purposes of market gardens, nursery grounds or timber yards or for other purposes not connected with general farming operations or with the cultivation or felling of trees.

5. The winning and working, on land held or occupied with land used for the purposes of agriculture, of any minerals reasonably required for the purposes of that use, including the fertilisation of the land so used and the maintenance, improvement or alteration of buildings or works thereon which are occupied or used for the purposes aforesaid.

6. In the case of a building or other land which, on the appointed day, was used for a purpose falling within any general class specified in an order made by the Minister for the purposes of this paragraph, or which, being unoccupied on the appointed day, was last used (otherwise than before the seventh day of January, nineteen hundred and thirty-seven) for any such purpose, the use of that building or land for any other purpose falling within the same general class.

7. In the case of any building or other land which, on the appointed day, was in the occupation of a person by whom it was used as to part only for a particular purpose, the use for that purpose of any additional part of the building or land not exceeding one-tenth of the cubic content of the part of the building used for that purpose on the appointed day or, as the case may be, one-tenth of the area of the land so used on that day.

8. The deposit of waste materials or refuse in connection with the working of minerals, on any land comprised in a site which, on the appointed day, was being used for that purpose, so far as may be reasonably required in connection with the working of those minerals. [2730]

General note.—Both Parts of this Schedule may conveniently be considered together. The value of an interest in land which is being acquired for public purposes and which falls to be assessed under Rule (2) of s. 2 of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1178), is to be ascertained on the assumption that planning permission would be granted under Part III of the Act, enfe, for development of any class specified in this Schedule, but would not be so granted for any other development (s. 51, ante).

In order to ascertain the development value of land for the purpose of making a claim for a payment out of the £300,000,000 under Part VI, ante, it will be necessary to ascertain two values—the “unrestricted value” and the “restricted value” of the land. The latter is to be calculated on the assumption that planning permission would be granted under Part III of the Act for development of any class specified in this Schedule, but would not be so granted for any other class (s. 61, ante).

Except in certain very exceptional circumstances, Part VII, ante, which relates to development charges, does not apply to operations of any description specified in this Schedule or to any use of land so specified (s. 69 (2), ante).

The provisions of s. 81, which relate to mineral workings, and of any regulations made thereunder do not apply to the winning and working of any such minerals as are mentioned in para. 5 of this Schedule, ante (s. 81 (6), ante).

Planning permission must be obtained to carry out any development specified in this Schedule, but in the case of development included in Part II, ante, if it is refused by the Minister, either on appeal or on the reference of the application to him for determination, or is so granted subject to conditions, then a claim for compensation may be made under s. 20, ante. Where permission is refused in respect of development included in Part I, ante, the owner's remedy must be sought by way of a purchase notice under s. 19, ante.

Rebuilding.—See Re De Teissier's Settled Estates, Re De Teissier's Trusts, De Teissier v. Teissier, [1893] 1 Ch. 153; Re Walker's Settled Estate, [1894] 1 Ch. 189; Re Wright's Settled Estates (1900), 83 L. T. 159; Re Kensington Settled Estates (1905), 21 T. L. R. 351; Re Windham's Settled Estate, [1912] 2 Ch. 75.

Contrast para. 3 in Part II of the present Schedule (“enlargement, improvement or other alteration”).

As often as the occasion may require.—Cases may arise in which these words will prove important.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (see ss. 119 (1) and 120, ante). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Cubic content.—This is to be construed by reference to that content as ascertained by external measurement (s. 112 (3), ante).

The use.—Note the definition of “use” in s. 119 (1), ante. Enlargement, improvement or other alteration which may be necessary for the purpose of converting a single dwelling-house into two or more separate dwelling-houses is covered by para. 3, ante.

Separate.—This word is important.

Paragraph 3.—Note that by proviso (a) to sub-s. (2) of s. 12, ante, planning permission is not required for the carrying out of works for maintenance, improvement or other alteration being works which affect only the interior of the building or which do not materially affect the external appearance of the building.

In connection with this paragraph, read s. 112 (2) and (3), ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

Definitions.—For definitions of “building,” “war damage,” “use,” “land,” “agriculture,” “building operations,” “erection,” “minerals” and “buildings or works,” see s. 119 (1), ante.

2. Where any compensation is payable as aforesaid by virtue of any decision or order given or made before the expiration of two years from the end of the war period as defined by section forty of the Requisitioned Land and War Works Act, 1945 (in this paragraph referred to as “the Act of 1945”), Part VIII of that Act (which provides for adjustments of compensation for the purpose of eliminating changes in value due to the exercise of emergency powers) shall apply in relation to any such compensation as aforesaid as it applies in relation to compensation payable on the acquisition of an easement over land by virtue of Part II of the Act of 1945:

3. Where any interest in land is subject to a mortgage—

(a) any compensation as aforesaid which is payable in respect of the depreciation in the value of that interest shall be assessed as if the interest were not subject to the mortgage;

- (b) a claim for any such compensation may be made by any mortgagee of the interest, but without prejudice to the making of a claim by the person entitled to the interest ;

FIFTH SCHEDULE

SPECIAL PROVISIONS RELATING TO DEVELOPMENT BY STATUTORY UNDERTAKERS

1. Applications for permission to develop.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Schedule, where an application for planning permission to develop operational land, made by the person carrying on a statutory undertaking, is referred to the Minister under Part III of this Act in pursuance of directions given by the Minister, or where an appeal is made to the Minister under that Part from the decision of the local planning authority on such an application, the application or appeal shall be dealt with by the Minister and the appropriate Minister.

(2) Where, upon any such application or appeal, the Minister and the appropriate Minister propose to refuse permission or to grant permission subject to conditions, they shall notify to the person carrying on the undertaking the decision which they propose to give, and if within twenty-eight days from the date on which he receives the notification that person makes application to the appropriate Minister in that behalf, the decision shall be embodied in an order made by the Minister and the appropriate Minister, and any such order shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure.

(3) In respect of any decision given under this paragraph refusing permission to develop operational land, or granting such permission subject to conditions, the person carrying on the statutory undertaking shall be entitled to recover compensation from the local planning authority in accordance with the Fourth Schedule to the Act of 1944 :

Provided that if the Minister and the appropriate Minister are satisfied, in the case of land acquired by the undertakers after the seventh day of January, nineteen hundred and forty-seven, that it is unreasonable, having regard to the nature, situation and existing development of the land and of any neighbouring land, and to any other material considerations, that compensation should be so recovered in respect of the decision, they may include therein a direction that the foregoing provisions of this sub-paragraph shall not apply in relation to that decision.

(4) Notwithstanding anything in Part III of this Act, planning permission to develop operational land shall not except with the consent of the undertakers be granted subject to conditions requiring that any buildings or works authorised by the permission shall be removed, or that any use of the land so authorised shall be discontinued, at the expiration of a specified period.

(5) The provisions of this Act shall apply to an application which is dealt with under this paragraph by the Minister and the appropriate Minister as if it had been dealt with by the Minister.

(6) For the avoidance of doubt it is hereby declared that for the purposes of the application of the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945, to any order made by the Minister and the appropriate Minister under this paragraph, the requirements imposed by this Act with respect to the consideration of any such application or appeal as is mentioned in sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph are to be deemed to be requirements with respect to proceedings preliminary to the making of the order within the meaning of section two of the said Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945.

2. Special provisions as to development requiring government authorisation.—

(1) Where, under the enactments regulating the carrying on of a statutory undertaking, the authorisation of any government department is required in respect of any development of operational land, then—

(a) if that department decides to refuse that authorisation on the ground only that planning permission ought not to be granted for the development under Part III of this Act, or to grant that authorisation and direct that such permission shall be deemed to be granted subject to conditions other than conditions imposed as part of the authorisation, sub-paragraphs (2) and (3) of paragraph 1 of this Schedule shall apply, subject to any necessary modifications, in relation to that decision and to any proposal by the department to give that decision as they apply in relation to a decision, or a proposed decision, of the Minister and the appropriate Minister under that paragraph ;

(b) except where that authorisation has been granted without any direction as to the grant of planning permission, the Minister and the appropriate Minister shall not be required to deal with an application for such permission under sub-paragraph (1) of the said paragraph 1.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in the proviso to sub-paragraph (3) of the said paragraph 1, no direction shall be given thereunder for the exclusion of the payment of compensation in respect of a decision relating to the development of land of any statutory undertakers if the land was acquired by those undertakers for the purposes of that development (whether by agreement or compulsorily) with the consent or authority of a government department.

3. Revocation and modification of permission.—(1) The provisions of Part III of this Act with respect to the revocation and modification of permission to develop land shall have effect, in relation to any permission granted, on an application made by the person carrying on a statutory undertaking, for the development of operational land, as if for any reference therein to the Minister there were substituted a reference to the Minister and the appropriate Minister.

(2) Where the Minister and the appropriate Minister propose to confirm or make an order under section twenty-one of this Act as modified by this paragraph, they shall notify to the person carrying on the statutory undertaking the fact that they so propose, and shall afford him an opportunity of objecting to the proposal ; and if any objection is so made by that person and is not withdrawn, the order shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure.

(3) In relation to any order made by the Minister and the appropriate Minister under the said section twenty-one as modified by this paragraph, sub-paragraph (3) of paragraph 1 of this Schedule shall apply as it applies to a decision given under that paragraph refusing permission to develop operational land, or granting such permission subject to conditions, and references in the said sub-paragraph (3) to a decision under that paragraph shall accordingly include references to any such order as aforesaid.

4. Orders relating to authorised uses.—(1) The provisions of Part III of this Act with respect to the making of orders requiring the discontinuance of any use of land or imposing conditions on the continuance thereof, or requiring buildings or works on land to be altered or removed, shall have effect, in relation to operational land of the person carrying on any statutory undertaking, as if for any reference therein to the Minister there were substituted a reference to the Minister and the appropriate Minister.

(2) Where the Minister and the appropriate Minister propose to confirm or make an order under section twenty-six of this Act, as modified by this paragraph, they shall notify to the person carrying on the statutory undertaking the fact that they so propose, and shall afford him an opportunity of objecting to the proposal; and if any objection is so made by that person and is not withdrawn, the order shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure.

(3) Any compensation payable under section twenty-seven of this Act in consequence of an order made under the said section twenty-six as modified by this paragraph shall be assessed in accordance with the provisions of the Fourth Schedule to the Act of 1944. [2732]

General note.—This Schedule continues, with additions and modifications, ss. 35 and 36 of the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 463, 464) which, by ss. 113 and 120, ante, and the Ninth Schedule, Part II, post, are repealed as from July 1, 1948.

By s. 35 (2), ante, the provisions of the present Schedule have effect for the purposes of the application of Part III of the Act, ante, to land of statutory undertakers being operational land and to the development of such land by such undertakers, but a proviso to the subsection negatives its application to the display of advertisements on operational land.

Compensation to statutory undertakers in respect of operational land is to be assessed in accordance with the provisions of the Fourth Schedule to the 1944 Act, which, as amended by s. 113, ante, and the Eighth Schedule, post, appears in the Eleventh Schedule, post. As to compensation on the acquisition of operational land of statutory undertakers, see s. 84 (4), ante.

If permission to develop is refused or revoked, or if statutory undertakers are required to remove buildings or works under s. 26, ante, the refusal, revocation or requirement is to be embodied in an order to be made or confirmed jointly by the Minister of Town and Country Planning and the Minister concerned with the undertaking. Special parliamentary procedure may apply.

Operational land.—Not all the land of statutory undertakers is operational land, a definition of the term being given in s. 119, ante. Broadly, it means land used or held for the purpose of the undertaking, not being land comparable with land in general.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante). This term should be distinguished from "the appropriate Minister" (see in each case s. 119 (1), ante).

Special parliamentary procedure.—See note to s. 5, ante.

Fourth Schedule to the Act of 1944.—The Fourth Schedule to the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 (37 Halsbury's Statutes 487 et seq.). For the Schedule as amended by the present Act, see the Eleventh Schedule, post.

After January 7, 1947.—I.e. after the contents of the Bill which led to the present Act became known.

Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945.—38 Halsbury's Statutes 439. For s. 2 thereof, see 38 Halsbury's Statutes 442.

Definitions.—As to "planning permission," "develop" and "development," see ss. 12 and 119 (1), ante; as to "local planning authority," see ss. 4 and 119 (1), ante. For definitions of "operational land," "statutory undertaking," "land," "buildings or works," "use," "enactment" and "government department," see s. 119 (1), ante.

Section 49

SIXTH SCHEDULE

PROCEDURE FOR MAKING ORDERS UNDER S. 49

1. Before making an order under section forty-nine of this Act the Minister of Transport shall publish in at least one local newspaper circulating in the area in which any highway to which the order relates is situated and in the London Gazette a notice—

- (a) stating the general effect of the order;
- (b) specifying a place in the said area where a copy of the draft order and of any relevant map or plan may be inspected by any person free of charge at all reasonable hours during a period of three months from the date of the publication of the notice; and
- (c) stating that, within the said period, any person may by notice to that Minister object to the making of the order.

2. Not later than the date on which the said notice is published as aforesaid, the Minister of Transport shall serve a copy thereof (together with a copy of the draft order and of any relevant map or plan)—

- (a) on every local authority in whose area any highway to which the order relates is situated;

- (b) on any water, hydraulic power, gas or electricity undertakers, having any cables, mains, pipes or wires laid along, across, under or over any highway to be stopped up or diverted under the order.

3. Not later than the date on which the said notice is published as aforesaid, the Minister of Transport shall cause a copy thereof to be displayed in a prominent position at the ends of so much of any highway as is proposed to be stopped up or diverted under the order.

4. If before the expiration of the said period of three months an objection is received by the Minister of Transport from any local authority or undertakers on whom a notice is required to be served under this Schedule, or from any other person appearing to him to be affected by the order, and the objection is not withdrawn, the Minister shall cause a local inquiry to be held :

Provided that except where the objection is made by any such authority or undertakers as aforesaid, the Minister may dispense with such an inquiry if he is satisfied that in the special circumstances of the case the holding of such an inquiry is unnecessary.

5. After considering any objections to the order which are not withdrawn, and, where a local inquiry is held, the report of the person who held the inquiry, the Minister may make the order either without modification or subject to such modifications as he thinks fit.

6. Immediately after the order has been made, the Minister of Transport shall publish in the manner prescribed by paragraph 1 of this Schedule a notice stating that the order has been made, and naming a place where a copy of the order may be seen at all reasonable hours, and paragraphs 2 and 3 of this Schedule shall apply to any such notice as they apply to the notice required to be published by the said paragraph 1.

7. Subsections (2) and (3) of section eleven of this Act shall apply to any order under section forty-nine of this Act as they apply to a development plan approved or made under Part II of this Act, and as if for references therein to the notice required by subsection (1) of that section there were substituted references to the notice required by the last foregoing paragraph :

Provided that where any such order is subject to special parliamentary procedure, then—

- (a) if the order is confirmed by Act of Parliament under section six of the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945, the said subsections (2) and (3) shall not apply ;
- (b) in any other case the said subsections shall have effect as if in subsection (2) for the reference to the date on which the notice required by the last foregoing paragraph is first published there were substituted a reference to the date on which the order becomes operative under the said section six, and as if in subsection (3) the words from “ and shall become operative ” to the end of the subsection were omitted.

8. In this Schedule the expression “ local authority ” means the council of a county, county borough, county district or parish and the parish meeting of a rural parish not having a separate parish council. [2733]

General note.—S. 49 (1), ante, empowers the Minister of Transport by order to authorise the stopping up or diversion of any highway if satisfied of the necessity for such a course to enable specified development to be carried out, and it is provided that any such order is to be made in accordance with the provisions of this Schedule.

The Minister of Transport is the promoting and confirming authority for the order and the Minister will proceed by publishing in the local Press notice of the order proposed (para. 1, ante), and by serving notice of the draft on local authorities and statutory undertakers whose areas or works are affected (para. 2). A copy of the notice is also to be displayed at each end of the part of the highway affected (para. 3).

Three months must be allowed for the lodging of objections by any person affected by the order, and where the objection is made by a local authority or statutory undertakers, an inquiry must be held before the order is confirmed. In the case of other objections the Minister may, but is not bound to, hold an inquiry (para. 4).

Notice that an order has been made must be given in the local Press (para. 6).

See, generally, the notes to s. 49, ante.

Minister of Transport.—The Minister of Transport was originally appointed under s. 1 of the Ministry of Transport Act, 1919 (3 Halsbury's Statutes 422). During the war a Minister of War Transport was appointed, but by the Ministry of War Transport (Dissolution) Order, 1946 (S. R. & O., 1946, No. 375), made under s. 1 (2) of the Ministers of the Crown (Transfer of Functions) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 82), that Ministry was dissolved and the functions of the Minister transferred to the Minister of Transport.

Local authority.—Note the definition in para. 8, which differs from that in s. 119 (1), ante.

The Minister.—This term might have been expected to refer to the Minister of Town and Country Planning (ss. 1 and 119 (1), ante), but it is clear from the context that the reference is to the Minister of Transport. Previously the draftsman had been careful to refer to "that Minister." Note that in para. 5, ante, the only expression used is "the Minister," though para. 6, ante, refers again to "the Minister of Transport" in full.

Local inquiry.—See s. 104, ante, and notes thereto.

If he is satisfied.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the phrase "If it appears to the Minister."

Development plan.—For definition, see ss. 5 and 119 (1), ante.

Special parliamentary procedure.—See note to s. 5, ante.

Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945, s. 6.—38 Halsbury's Statutes 444. This section deals with the operation of orders to which that Act applies.

Section 113

TENTH SCHEDULE

TRANSITORY PROVISIONS AND PROVISIONS CONSEQUENTIAL ON REPEALS

1. Any application for permission to develop land made to the interim development authority before the appointed day under section ten of the Act of 1932, and any application for permission to develop land made to the responsible authority under a planning scheme, being in either case an application which has not been determined by that authority before that day, shall be treated for the purposes of this Act as an application made to the local planning authority for planning permission for the like development, and shall be treated as having been so made on the appointed day.

2. Where an application for any such permission as aforesaid, made to the interim development authority or the responsible authority before the appointed day, has been determined by that authority before that day and no appeal has been brought against the decision, then if the period during which such an appeal could have been brought before the appointed day has not expired, the decision of the interim development authority or the responsible authority, as the case may be, shall be treated for the purposes of section sixteen of this Act as the decision of a local planning authority on an application for planning permission.

3. Any appeal to the Minister from the decision of the interim development authority or the responsible authority on any such application as aforesaid which is pending on the appointed day shall be treated as an appeal to the Minister under section sixteen of this Act :

Provided that where under subsection (5) of section ten of the Act of 1932, any such hearing as is required by that subsection has been held before the appointed day, the proviso to subsection (2) of section fifteen of this Act shall not apply in relation to the appeal.

4. Any direction given before the appointed day under section six of the Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943, requiring any such application as aforesaid to be referred to the Minister shall be treated as a direction given by the Minister to the local planning authority under section fifteen of this Act :

Provided that where, under section six of the Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943, any such hearing as is required by that section has been held before the appointed day, the proviso to subsection (2) of section fifteen of this Act shall not apply in relation to the application.

5. Any application for consent for the development of land made by a local authority before the appointed day under section thirty-two of the Act of 1944 which has not been finally determined before that day shall be treated for the purposes of this Act as if it were an application for planning permission for the like development made by a local planning authority in pursuance of regulations made under section thirty-five of this Act.

6. Any order made before the appointed day by an authority empowered in that behalf by an interim development order in pursuance of subsection (8) of section ten of the Act of 1932 and any order made before that day by the Minister under subsection (2) of section thirty-nine of the Act of 1944, shall continue in force after that day and have effect as if it were included in a development order in pursuance of subsection (4) of section thirteen of this Act.

7. Notwithstanding the repeal by this Act of the Act of 1932, any scheme made under that Act and any such scheme as is mentioned in section fifty-four of that Act, being a scheme which is in force immediately before the appointed day shall, so far as it relates to the following matters, that is to say—

- (a) the designation of responsible authorities, and the constitution of joint bodies as responsible authorities ;
- (b) the preservation of trees and the protection of woodlands ;
- (c) the control of advertisements in areas protected under section forty-seven of the Act of 1932 ;
- (d) the execution of street works, and the recovery of charges in respect thereof, by the responsible authority ; and
- (e) the suspension of any enactment contained in a local Act or of any byelaws, orders or regulations ; continue in force until it is determined, in relation to any such matter as aforesaid, by an order made by the Minister, and the provisions of that Act, or of the Town Planning Act, 1925, as the case may be, shall have effect in relation to any such scheme accordingly.

8. Any order made by the Minister under the last foregoing paragraph may make such provision as the Minister considers expedient for winding up the scheme, including provision—

- (a) for the dissolution of any joint body constituted as the responsible authority thereunder ;
- (b) for the transfer to such authorities as may be prescribed by the order of officers, property, rights and liabilities of any such body, and for the compensation of any such officers.

9. Notwithstanding the repeal by this Act of section seventeen of the Act of 1932 and sections forty-two and forty-three of the Act of 1944—

- (a) any order made by a local planning authority or by the council of any county district under the said section seventeen which is in force immediately before the appointed day shall so far as is consistent with the provisions of section twenty-nine of this Act, continue in force and have effect as if it had been made by the local planning authority under that section ; and any such order may be amended or revoked under this Act accordingly ;
- (b) any list compiled or approved by the Minister under the said section forty-two before the appointed day shall continue in force and have effect as if it had been compiled or approved by him under section thirty of this Act, and may be amended under that section accordingly, and subsection (3) of the said section thirty shall apply to any copy of any such list or of amendments thereto deposited before the appointed day with the clerk of the council of any county borough or county district.

10. Subject as hereinafter provided, any agreement for restricting the planning, development or use of land made under section thirty-four of the Act of 1932 with any such authority as is mentioned in subsection (2) of that section, or made or having effect as if made under a planning scheme with the responsible authority for the purposes of the scheme, shall, if in force on the appointed day, continue in force in accordance with the terms thereof and may be enforced under the said section thirty-four or under the scheme, as the case may be :

Provided that—

- (a) nothing in any such agreement shall be construed as restricting the exercise, in relation to land to which any such agreement applies, of any powers exercisable by any Minister or authority under this Act so long as those powers are exercised in accordance with the provisions of the development plan or in accordance with any directions which may have been given by the Minister under section thirty-six of this Act, or as requiring the exercise of any such powers otherwise than as aforesaid :

- (b) if the Minister is satisfied, on application made to him by any person being a party to any such agreement, or a person entitled to land affected thereby or by the local planning authority, that any restriction on the development or use of the land imposed by the agreement is inconsistent with the proper planning or development of the area comprising the land, he may by order discharge or modify that restriction so far as appears to him to be expedient ;
- (c) without prejudice to the provisions of the foregoing paragraph, if any person being a party to any such agreement (whether as originally made or as modified under the foregoing paragraph), or a person entitled to land affected thereby, claims that the agreement ought to be modified or rescinded having regard to the provisions of this Act or anything done thereunder, he may refer to arbitration the question whether the agreement should be so modified or rescinded, and the arbitrator may make such award as appears to him to be just having regard to all the circumstances.

11. Where any such agreement as is mentioned in the last foregoing paragraph is modified or rescinded (whether by agreement or by virtue of the exercise of any powers conferred by sub-paragraph (b) or (c) of the proviso to that paragraph) at any time within three years after the appointed day, then if it appears to the Minister that it is reasonable so to do having regard to the terms on which the agreement was made and to any loss or damage sustained by any person having an interest in land affected by the agreement by reason of the provisions of this Act or of anything done thereunder, he may direct that the development value of that interest in the land, or in any part thereof, shall be calculated for the purposes of Part VI of this Act as if the agreement had been so modified or rescinded immediately before the appointed day.

12. The repeal of section fifty-one of the Act of 1932 shall not affect the rights of any person arising under that section in consequence of any event occurring before the appointed day.

13. Provision may be made by regulations under this Act for securing—

- (a) that any application to a highway authority under the Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935, for any consent which that authority have power to give under section one or section two of that Act, being an application which has not been determined by that authority before the appointed day, shall be treated for the purposes of this Act as an application made to the local planning authority for planning permission, and shall be treated as having been so made on the appointed day ;
- (b) that any decision of a highway authority on an application for such a consent under the Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935, shall, unless the applicant has appealed against that decision under section seven of that Act before the appointed day, be treated for the purposes of section sixteen of this Act as the decision of a local planning authority on an application for planning permission ; and
- (c) that any appeal to the Minister of Transport under the said section seven which is pending on the appointed day shall be treated as an appeal to the Minister under section sixteen of this Act :

Provided that where under the said section seven any such local inquiry as is required by that section has been held before the appointed day, the proviso to subsection (2) of section fifteen of this Act shall not apply in relation to any such appeal.

14. Notwithstanding the repeal by this Act of the Restriction of Ribbon Development (Temporary Development) Act, 1943, an Order in Council may be made under subsection (6) of section one of that Act for appointing the date on which the present war period within the meaning of that Act is to end.

15. Notwithstanding the repeal by this Act of section eight of the Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943, any order made by an interim development authority under that section for the preservation of trees and woodlands pending the coming into operation of a scheme under the Act of 1932, being an order which is in force immediately before the appointed day, shall, so far as is consistent with the provisions of section twenty-eight of this Act, continue in force and have effect as if it had been made by the local planning authority under that section, and as if for references therein to the interim development authority there were substituted references to the local planning authority; and any such order may be amended or revoked under this Act accordingly.

16. Where, at any time before the appointed day, application has been made to the Minister for an order under section one of the Act of 1944 declaring any land to be subject to compulsory purchase under Part I of that Act, the Minister may, if he thinks fit, direct that proceedings on the application shall be continued under that Act after that day; and where any such direction is given, section one of the Act of 1944, and section thirteen of that Act and the First Schedule to that Act so far as they relate to an order under the said section one, shall continue to apply in relation to the application, and an order may be made thereon accordingly.

17. Where any order has been made before the appointed day under section one of the Act of 1944 declaring any land to be subject to compulsory purchase under Part I of that Act or where any such order has been made after the appointed day by virtue of the last foregoing paragraph, the provisions of Part IV of this Act shall apply as if the land were comprised in an area defined by the development plan under Part II of this Act as an area of comprehensive development, and were designated as subject to compulsory acquisition under this Act by the appropriate local authority, and section sixteen of the Act of 1944 (which relates to the validity and date of operation of such orders) shall, notwithstanding the repeal of that section, apply in relation to any such order:

Provided that—

- (a) this paragraph shall not apply to any operational land of statutory undertakers unless an order made under paragraph (b) of subsection (5) of section thirteen of the Act of 1944 declaring that it is expedient that the land should be subject to compulsory purchase has taken effect;
- (b) nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as restricting the power of the Minister of Works or the Postmaster General to acquire any land to which this paragraph applies under subsection (2) of section thirty-seven of this Act.

18. Any compulsory purchase order made or prepared in draft under Part I of the Act of 1944 before the appointed day may be confirmed or made in accordance with the provisions of that Part after that day, and any such order, and any compulsory purchase order confirmed or made under that Part before the appointed day, shall continue in force and have effect as if it had been made under the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 as applied by Part IV of this Act.

19. For the purposes of the Act of 1944 as amended by this Act—

- (a) any land acquired by a Minister in pursuance of any such order as is mentioned in the last foregoing paragraph shall be deemed to have been acquired under section thirty-seven of this Act;
- (b) any land acquired by a local authority in pursuance of any such order as aforesaid shall be deemed to have been acquired under section thirty-eight of this Act;
- (c) any land acquired by a local authority by agreement under the Act of 1944 shall be deemed to have been acquired under section forty of this Act.

20. The Secretary of State may by order revoke or vary any order made under the Licensing Planning (Temporary Provisions) Acts, 1945 and 1946, so far as may be necessary or expedient in consequence of the provisions of this Act amending those Acts, or in consequence of any order made under section four of this Act constituting a joint board as the local planning authority in any area which comprises, or the whole or part of which is included in, a licensing planning area, but subject as aforesaid nothing in this Act or in any order made under the said section four shall affect the validity of any order made under the said Acts before the appointed day, or before the date of the order under the said section four, as the case may be, or of anything done under any such order. [2737]

Changes affected.—By s. 113 (5), ante, the provisions of this Schedule, comprising miscellaneous transitional provisions, are to have effect in relation to the repeals effected by that section (see also Sched. IX, ante). The Schedule provides for the continuation of any planning action which is in the course of being taken on July 1, 1948, the appointed day (see infra).

Effect of Schedule.—Where an interim development application has been made, but not decided on the appointed day, it will become an application for planning permission under s. 14 of the present Act, ante (para. 1, ante). If such an application has been refused or granted subject to conditions and the period of 28 days for appeal allowed under s. 10 (5) of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 483) has not elapsed, then an appeal may be made to the Minister under s. 16, ante, as if the decision given by the interim development authority had been a decision of the local planning authority under s. 14, ante (para. 2, ante). Any appeal which has been lodged will be treated as an appeal under s. 16, but where there has already been a hearing there will be no further hearing (para. 3, ante).

Similarly, any application to a local highway authority under s. 1 or 2 of the Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 81, 82), will become an application to the local planning authority and s. 16 of the present Act, ante, will apply to appeals in place of s. 7 of the 1935 Act (28 Halsbury's Statutes 85), and such appeals will lie to the Minister of Town and Country Planning and not to the Minister of Transport (para. 13, ante).

The following provisions in operative schemes are continued in force (para. 7, ante) until determined by an order of the Minister, notwithstanding the repeal of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 470 et seq.):—

- (1) Provisions concerned with the designation of responsible authorities and the constitution of joint bodies as responsible authorities;
- (2) Provisions for the preservation of trees and woodlands;
- (3) Provisions controlling advertisements under s. 47 of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 513);
- (4) Provisions relating to the execution of street works and the recovery of charges in respect of them; and
- (5) Provisions suspending enactments contained in local Acts, byelaws, orders or regulations.

Existing "building preservation orders" and "tree preservation orders" are continued until amended (paras. 9 and 15, ante).

Agreements under s. 34 of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 506) are continued in force but are not to be construed as affecting the exercise of any powers, given under the present Act, which are exercised in accordance with the provisions of the development plan or directions given by the Minister under s. 36, ante. Restrictions imposed by an agreement under s. 34 may be discharged by the Minister or by an arbitrator (paras. 10 and 11, ante).

This power to vary or discharge restrictions imposed by a s. 34 agreement should be examined carefully. Para. 11 provides that where the agreement is discharged or modified within three years after the appointed day the Minister may direct that the calculation of the development value is to be based on the assumption that the discharge or modification had taken place immediately before July 1, 1948. In this regard, note the provisions of proviso (c) to para. 10, ante, which entitle application to be made for arbitration on a claim that the agreement should be modified or rescinded "having regard to the provisions of this Act or anything done thereunder."

Lands affected by declaratory orders under the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 420 et seq.) which have not been purchased are to be regarded (para. 17, ante) as if they had been designated in a development plan under the present Act (see the notes to s. 38, ante).

Provision is also made in this Schedule for the revocation or variation of licensing planning orders where this is rendered necessary or expedient by reason of any amendment of the Licensing Planning (Temporary Provisions) Acts, 1945 and 1946 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 279; 39 Halsbury's Statutes 223), effected by the present Act (para. 20, ante). This provision is occasioned by the fact that the local planning authority under the present Act ceases to be the county district council.

Appointed day.—This means such day as the Minister of Town and Country Planning may by order appoint (see ss. 119 (1) and 120, ante). July 1, 1948, has been so appointed (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

S. 10 of the 1932 Act.—25 Halsbury's Statutes 482. This section provided for the making of interim development orders by the Minister to control the development of land in the period between the resolution to prepare a scheme and the actual coming into operation of the scheme. The order might be either a general one, or a special one with respect to land in any particular area. The order might itself permit development or empower any specified authority to grant permission for such development either conditionally or unconditionally. An appeal lay to the Minister against any refusal to grant consent or against any conditions imposed on the grant.

Local planning authority.—See ss. 4 and 34, ante; and as to London, see s. 114, ante. As to applications to the local planning authority, see ss. 14 and 34, ante.

S. 16 of this Act.—See ante. This section is concerned with appeals to the Minister against the decision of the local planning authority. It replaces s. 10 (5) of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 483).

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1, ante).

S. 6 of the Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943.—36 Halsbury's Statutes 247. This section is replaced in the present Act by s. 15, ante. It enabled the Minister to direct that interim development applications should be referred to him. The proviso to sub-s. (2) of s. 15, ante, makes similar provision for a hearing to that contained in the proviso to s. 6 (1) of the 1943 Act.

S. 32 of the Act of 1944.—37 Halsbury's Statutes 460.

Regulations and orders.—For the general provisions applicable to regulations and orders under the Act, see s. 111, ante.

S. 35.—See ante. This section deals with the application of the control of development provisions to development by local authorities and statutory undertakers.

Para. 6.—This paragraph is concerned with suspensions of enactments for planning purposes which have been effected under previous planning legislation. For s. 10 (8) of the Act of 1932, see 25 Halsbury's Statutes 484; and for s. 39 (2) of the Act of 1944, see 37 Halsbury's Statutes 466.

Repeal of the Act of 1932.—See ss. 113, 120, and the Sched. IX, Part II, ante. The repeal takes effect as from July 1, 1948, the appointed day.

S. 54 of the Act of 1932.—25 Halsbury's Statutes 522. This section was concerned, inter alia, with continuing in force schemes made under the Town Planning Act, 1925 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 1079 et seq.), which was repealed by the 1932 Act. For s. 47 of the 1932 Act, see 25 Halsbury's Statutes 513.

Town Planning Act, 1925.—13 Halsbury's Statutes 1079 et seq.

Para. 9.—This paragraph is concerned with existing "building preservation orders" under s. 17 of the 1932 Act (25 Halsbury's Statutes 490) and s. 43 of the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 467), and lists of buildings compiled under s. 42 of the latter Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 467).

List compiled or approved by the Minister.—For the present position as to publication of lists of buildings of special architectural or historic interest, see 445 H. of C. Official Report 1497.

S. 34 of the Act of 1932.—25 Halsbury's Statutes 506. This section was concerned with empowering authorities and owners to enter into agreements restricting the use of land. For a corresponding provision in the present Act, see s. 25, ante.

S. 36 of this Act.—See ante. This section enables the Minister to give directions as to provisions which are to be included in the development plan.

If the Minister is satisfied; if he thinks fit.—See note to s. 4, ante, on the phrase "If it appears to the Minister."

Development value.—For manner of ascertainment, see s. 61, ante.

S. 51 of the Act of 1932.—25 Halsbury's Statutes 518. This section is concerned with the payment of compensation to officers.

Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935.—28 Halsbury's Statutes 79 et seq. Ss. 1 and 2 of this Act were concerned with controlling means of access to and the erection of buildings within certain distances of classified roads and roads of certain standard widths. Such development required the consent of the appropriate highway authority.

S. 7 of the same Act (28 Halsbury's Statutes 85) provided for the conditions of such consent, and also for an appeal by an aggrieved applicant to the Minister of Transport against the decision of the highway authority.

Restriction of Ribbon Development (Temporary Development) Act, 1943.—36 Halsbury's Statutes 130. As to the repeal of this Act as from July 1, 1948, see ss. 113, 120, and Sched. IX, Part II, ante.

Where after the war period action is taken under s. 11 of the Restriction of Ribbon Development Act, 1935 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 90), note the definition of "building law" contained in s. 7 (1) of the Building Restrictions (War-Time Contraventions) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 907).

Para. 15.—This paragraph is concerned with providing a saving for "tree preservation orders" under previous planning legislation. For the relevant provisions of the present Act, see s. 28, ante.

As to the repeal as from July 1, 1948, of s. 8 of the Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 248), see ss. 113, 120 and Sched. IX, Part II, ante.

S. 1 of the Act of 1944.—37 Halsbury's Statutes 423. This section provided for the making of orders declaring areas of extensive war damage subject to compulsory purchase and also for declaring subject to compulsory purchase other lands required for relocation of population and industries made necessary by the re-development of the war-damaged lands.

The effect of a declaratory order under s. 1 of the 1944 Act, supra, is not substantially different from designation in the development plan under s. 5, ante, in an area of comprehensive development.

S. 13 of the Act of 1944.—37 Halsbury's Statutes 441. This section imposed certain limitations on the acquisition of operational lands of statutory undertakers, and, in particular, made such acquisitions in certain circumstances subject to special parliamentary procedure (see note to s. 5, ante).

Under s. 5 (4) (c), ante, where such lands are designated in the development plan, the order will be subject to such procedure. Since the declaratory order has not been subject to such procedure the lands retain the protection of s. 13 of the 1944 Act, supra.

For Sched. I. to the 1944 Act, see 37 Halsbury's Statutes 483.

Part I of the Act of 1944.—This comprises ss. 1 to 56 inclusive (37 Halsbury's Statutes 423-476).

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 52. As originally enacted, this Act did not apply to purchases under the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 420) except in cases where the speedy procedure of s. 2 of the 1946 Act (39 Halsbury's Statutes 56) was invoked.

S. 37 of this Act.—See ante. This section deals with the compulsory acquisition of land by Ministers, local authorities and statutory undertakers.

S. 38.—See ante. This section provides for the acquisition of land for development purposes.

Acquired by agreement, etc.—See ss. 2 (3), 3 (6), 10 (4) and 43 (9) of the 1944 Act (37 Halsbury's Statutes 427, 429, 436, 468).

Licensing Planning (Temporary Provisions) Acts, 1945 and 1946.—38 Halsbury's Statutes 279; 39 Halsbury's Statutes 223. These Acts are concerned with the re-siting and distribution of licensed premises in war-damaged areas and areas of relocation.

Constituting a joint board.—See s. 4 and Sched. I, Part I, ante.

Licensing planning area.—For definition of this term, see s. 1 of the Licensing Planning (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 280), as amended by s. 1 of the Licensing Planning (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 224).

Definitions.—As to "develop," "development" and "planning permission," see ss. 12 and 119 (1), ante; as to "development order," see ss. 13 and 119 (1), ante; and as to "development plan," see ss. 5 and 119 (1), ante. For definitions of "land," "interim development authority," "Act of 1932," "planning scheme," "local authority," "interim development order," "Act of 1944," "advertisement," "enactment," "use," "a Minister," "operational land" and "statutory undertakers," see s. 119 (1), ante. Other definitions appear in the notes supra.

Section 113

ELEVENTH SCHEDULE

UNREPEALED PROVISIONS OF THE TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING ACT, 1944, REPRINTED AS AMENDED BY THIS ACT

15. Provisions as to purchase of licensed premises.—Where land purchased under Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, not being land comprised in a licensing planning area within the meaning of the Licensing Planning (Temporary Provisions) Acts, 1945 and 1946, comprises premises in respect of which an old on-licence is in force, the following provisions shall have effect :—

- (a) the purchasing authority, before purchasing the premises, may undertake that in the event of the renewal of the licence being refused, they will repay to the compensation authority towards the compensation payable on such refusal under the Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910, such contribution as may be specified in the undertaking, and any sum payable by the purchasing authority in pursuance of such an undertaking shall be treated as part of their expenses in purchasing the land ;
- (b) if, after purchasing or contracting to purchase the premises, the purchasing authority intimate to the licensing justices that they are willing to surrender the licence, the licensing justices may refer the matter to the compensation authority and that authority, on being satisfied that the licence, if not surrendered, might properly have been dealt with as a redundant licence, shall contribute out of the compensation fund towards the compensation paid by the purchasing authority in respect of the purchase of the premises a sum not exceeding the compensation which would have been payable under the Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910, on the refusal of the renewal of the licence. [2738]

General note.—This section reproduces provisions originally appearing in s. 9 of the Housing Etc. Act, 1923, later included in s. 47 of the Housing Act, 1925 (13 Halsbury's Statutes 1029), subsequently in s. 14 of the Housing Act, 1930 (23 Halsbury's Statutes 406), extended by s. 16 (4) of the Housing Act, 1935 (28 Halsbury's Statutes 214) and reproduced (as extended) in s. 47 of the Housing Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 602).

As from July 1, 1948, the words "Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, not being land comprised in a licensing planning area within the meaning of the Licensing Planning (Temporary Provisions) Acts, 1945 and 1946," are substituted by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante, for the words "this Part of this Act."

Licensing planning area.—For definition, see s. 1 of the Licensing Planning (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 280), as amended by s. 1 of the Licensing Planning (Temporary Provisions) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 224).

Old on-licence.—This term is not defined in the Act. Sched. II, Part I, to the Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 1047), contains a description of old on-licences for the purposes of that Act. The main test is whether a justices' on-licence, other than a licence for the sale of wine alone or sweets alone, was in force on August 15, 1904, but reference should be made to the Schedule above referred to.

Compensation payable.—As to the payment of compensation on the refusal of the compensation authority to renew an old on-licence, see s. 20 of the Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 1000).

Redundant licence.—For a consideration of what constitutes a redundant licence and decisions in respect thereof, reference should be made to Paterson's Licensing Acts.

Shall.—The licensing justices have, it is submitted, a discretion whether or not to refer the matter to the compensation authority, but where the matter is so referred, a contribution must be made by the compensation authority if they are satisfied that the licence might properly have been dealt with as a redundant licence.

Compensation which would have been payable.—See s. 20 of the Licensing (Consolidation) Act, 1910 (9 Halsbury's Statutes 1000).

19. Disposal or appropriation by local authorities of land held by them for purposes of Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947.—(1) The following provisions of this section shall have effect with respect to the disposal or appropriation by a local authority of land which has been acquired under section thirty-eight or section forty of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, or appropriated for purposes for which land can be acquired under those sections, and is for the time being held by the authority for the purposes for which it was acquired or appropriated.

(2) Subject to the provisions of subsections (4) and (5) of this section, the authority may dispose of any such land to such person, in such manner and subject to such conditions as may appear to them to be expedient in order to secure the best use of that or other land and any buildings or works which have been, or are to be, erected, constructed or carried out thereon, whether by themselves or by any other person, or to secure the erection, construction or carrying out thereon of any buildings or works appearing to them to be needed for the proper planning of the area of the authority.

(3) Subject to the provisions of subsection (4) of this section, the authority may appropriate any such land for any purpose for which they are or may be authorised in any capacity to acquire land by virtue of or under any enactment other than Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, and, in relation to an appropriation under this subsection, subsections (2) and (3) of section one hundred and sixty-three of the Local Government Act, 1933, and subsections (2) and (3) of section one hundred and six of the London Government Act, 1939 (which relate to the operation of section sixty-eight of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, and to adjustments in accounts, on appropriations under those sections respectively) shall have effect as they have effect in relation to appropriations under those sections respectively.

(4) The consent of the Minister shall be requisite to any disposal or appropriation of land by a local authority under this section, and may be given as respects either a particular disposal or appropriation or disposals or appropriations of any class, and either subject to or free from any conditions or limitations.

(5) The consent of the Minister to a sale by a local authority under this section of the freehold in any land, or to a lease by them thereunder of any land for a term of more than ninety-nine years, shall not be given unless he is satisfied that there are exceptional circumstances which render the disposal of the land in that manner expedient as mentioned in subsection (2) of this section.

(6) The powers conferred by this section on a local authority in respect of the disposal of land thereunder, and on the Minister in respect of consent to such disposal, shall, in the case of land comprised in an area defined by a development plan as an area of comprehensive development or of land contiguous or adjacent to any such area which is designated by the development plan as subject to compulsory acquisition by the appropriate authority, be so exercised as to secure so far as may be practicable to persons who were living or carrying on business or other activities, on any such land which the authority have acquired as mentioned in subsection (1) of this section, who desire to obtain accommodation on such land, and who are willing to comply with any requirements of the authority as to the development and use of such land, an opportunity to obtain thereon accommodation suitable to their reasonable requirements on terms settled with due regard to the price at which any such land has been acquired from them.

(7) If it appears to the Minister that it is expedient as mentioned in subsection (2) of this section that a local authority should dispose of land under this section to any person and the authority have refused to dispose of it to him or are unable to reach agreement with him as to the manner in which or the terms or conditions on or subject to which it is to be disposed of to him, the Minister may, after consultation with the authority and that person, require the authority to offer to dispose of it to him, and give directions as to the manner of the disposal and as to all or any of the terms or conditions on or subject to which it is to be offered to him :

Provided that the authority shall not be required by any such directions (except to such extent as may appear to the Minister to be requisite in any particular case for giving effect to the last preceding subsection) to offer to dispose of land for a money consideration less than the best that can reasonably be obtained, having regard to the other terms and conditions on and subject to which the offer is to be made, so, however, that in estimating the best consideration any amount which only a particular purchaser might be prepared to offer by reason of special needs of his shall be disregarded, and any difference as to what is the best consideration shall be referred to and determined by an arbitrator agreed between the Minister and the authority or, in default of agreement, by an official arbitrator to be appointed in accordance with the provisions of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919.

(8) In the exercise of the powers conferred by this section, a local authority shall have regard to the desirability of preserving features of special architectural or historic interest, and in particular buildings included in any list compiled or approved under the provisions of section thirty of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, and the Minister shall not give his consent to the disposal or appropriation under this section of any land comprising a building included in such a list unless either—

- (a) the consent is given subject to such conditions or limitations as in the opinion of the Minister will secure the preservation of the building ; or
- (b) the Minister is satisfied, after causing such particulars as appear to him requisite of the disposal or appropriation for which his consent is sought to be published by Gazette and local advertisement not less than twenty-eight days before he gives his decision on the application for his consent, that the purpose which the local authority seek to achieve by the proposed exercise of their powers under this section is one which ought in the public interest to be carried out, and either that the preservation of the building would prevent the carrying out of that purpose, whether by the use of the land in question or otherwise, or that the effect of preserving the building on the carrying out as aforesaid of the said purpose would be such that notwithstanding the desirability of preserving the building it is inexpedient so to do.

In this subsection the expression “preservation,” in relation to a building, means the preservation thereof either in its existing state or subject only to such alterations or extensions as can be carried out without serious detriment to its character.

(9) In this section references to disposal of land shall be construed as references to disposal thereof in any manner (otherwise than by appropriation) whether by way of sale, exchange or lease, by the creation of any easement, right or privilege, or in any other manner, except disposal by way of gift, mortgage or charge.

(10) In relation to any such land as is mentioned in subsection (1) of this section, this section shall have effect to the exclusion of the provisions of subsection (1) of section one hundred and sixty-three and sections one hundred and sixty-four and one hundred and sixty-five of the Local Government Act, 1933, or of subsection (1) of section one hundred and six and sections one hundred and seven and one hundred and eight of the London Government Act, 1939, as the case may be.

(11) Section one hundred and sixty-six of the Local Government Act, 1933, and section one hundred and nine of the London Government Act, 1939 (which relate to the application of capital money received from the disposal of land) shall have effect as respects capital money received in respect of transactions under the provisions of this section relating to the disposal of land as they have effect in relation to capital money received in respect of such transactions as are mentioned in those sections respectively. [2739]

S. 38 or s. 40.—See ante. S. 38 of the 1947 Act deals with the compulsory acquisition of land for development, and s. 40 of the same Act deals with the acquisition of land by agreement for a similar purpose.

Amendments to the section.—As from July 1, 1948, this section is brought into line with the changes effected by the 1947 Act by the amendments set out in Sched. VIII, ante.

Sub-s. (2).—This subsection, which is unamended, confers general power to dispose of land acquired or appropriated for development. Normally the freehold of the land will not be parted with, but leases will be granted for a period not exceeding 99 years (sub-s. (5), ante).

Sub-s. (3).—In connection with this subsection, which has been amended only in a minor way, it should be noted that sub-s. (1) refers to land which has been acquired or appropriated and is held for the time being for the purposes of Part IV of the 1947 Act, ante. It is this land to which sub-s. (3) refers and which it provides may be appropriated for any purposes for which the authority are or may be authorised in any capacity to acquire land by virtue of or under any enactment other than Part IV of the 1947 Act.

Local Government Act, 1933.—For ss. 163 (1), (2) and (3), 164, 165, and 166, see 26 Halsbury's Statutes 396, 397.

London Government Act, 1939.—For ss. 106 (1), (2) and (3), 107, 108 and 109, see 32 Halsbury's Statutes 310, 311.

Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, s. 68.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1134.

Sub-s. (4).—This subsection, which is practically unamended, provides that the consent of the Minister shall be requisite to any disposal or appropriation of land under this section. This is but one instance of the power of control which may be exercised by the central authority over the local planning authority. The contention is that if the Minister is to be responsible to Parliament for planning throughout the country, he must possess this power (cf. ss. 163-165 of the Local Government Act, 1933 (26 Halsbury's Statutes 396 et seq.)).

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1 of the 1947 Act, ante).

Exceptional circumstances.—The Minister will be the sole judge as to whether there are exceptional circumstances.

Development plan.—See s. 5 of the 1947 Act, ante.

Area of comprehensive development.—See s. 5 (3) of the 1947 Act, ante.

Contiguous or adjacent.—See note to s. 5 of the 1947 Act, ante, on this phrase.

Development.—This includes re-development (s. 65 (1), post).

Sub-s. (7).—A person applying to the Minister for a direction under this subsection will have to supply the Minister with material on which he can form his opinion. In all probability, the Minister will endeavour to get the matter settled without the necessity for a formal direction by sending one of his officers to interview the person and the authority. All kinds of difficulties can arise with regard to sub-s. (6), and sub-s. (7) is designed to enable the Minister to overcome these difficulties, in the last resort, by a direction.

If it appears to the Minister.—See note to s. 4 of the 1947 Act, ante.

Special needs.—Compare the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, s. 2, Rule (3) (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1178).

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176.

Official arbitrator.—To secure the appointment of an official arbitrator for this purpose, an application should be made in accordance with the form which occurs in the Schedule to the Acquisition of Lands (Assessment of Compensation) Rules, 1919, S. R. & O., 1919, No. 1836/30.

Features of special architectural or historic interest.—See ss. 29, 30 and 41 of the 1947 Act, ante.

List compiled or approved.—See s. 30 of the 1947 Act, ante. As to the publication of such lists, see 445 H. of C. Official Report 1497, for a statement by the Minister in reply to a parliamentary question.

Definitions.—As to "local authority," "land," "use," "buildings or works," "erection," "enactment," "building," "lease" and "mortgage," see s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante. As to "Gazette and local advertisement," see ss. 65 (1), post. For the purposes of sub-s. (8), ante, the term "preservation" is defined in that subsection.

20. Power of local authorities to carry out development of land held by them for purposes of Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947.—(1) The functions of a local authority shall include power for the authority, notwithstanding any limitation imposed by law on the capacity of such a body by virtue of its constitution, to erect, construct or carry out on any such land as is mentioned in subsection (1) of section nineteen of this Act, any building or work not being a building or work for the erection, construction or carrying out of which, whether by them or by any other person, statutory power already exists by virtue of or under an enactment other than Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, or could be conferred under an enactment other than Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947.

(2) The consent of the Minister shall be requisite to any exercise by a local authority of the power conferred on them by the preceding subsection, and may be given as respects either a particular operation or operations of any class, and either subject to or free from any conditions or limitations.

(4) Where a local authority propose to carry out any operation which they would have power to carry out by virtue only of subsection (1) of this section, they shall notify the Minister of their proposal, and the Minister may direct such advertisement by the authority as appears to him to be requisite for the purposes of subsection (2) of this section.

(5) The functions of a local authority shall include power for the authority, notwithstanding any such limitation as is mentioned in subsection (1) of this section, to repair, maintain and insure any buildings or works on such land as is mentioned in the said sub-section (1), and generally to deal therewith in a proper course of management.

(6) Subsection (8) of the last preceding section shall apply to the power conferred on a local authority by subsection (1) of this section as it applies to the powers conferred by that section, with the substitution for references to the disposal of land of references to the carrying out of any such operation as is mentioned in subsection (1) of this section.

(7) A local authority may, with the consent of the Minister, enter into arrangements with an authorised association, as defined in section thirty-five of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, for the carrying out by the association of any operation which, apart from the arrangements, the local authority would have power under this section to carry out, on such terms (including terms as to the making of payments or loans by the authority to the association) as may be specified in the arrangements:

Provided that nothing in this subsection shall be construed as authorising such an association to carry out any operation which they would not have power to carry out apart from this subsection.

(8) Nothing in this section shall be construed as authorising any act or omission on the part of a local authority which is actionable at the suit of any person on any ground other than such limitation as is mentioned in subsection (1) of this section. [2740]

General note.—The powers of the preceding section enable local authorities, with the consent of the Minister, to arrange development of land acquired or appropriated by them under Part IV of the 1947 Act, ante, for a wide range of purposes.

The present section enlarges these powers. Sub-s. (1), ante, enables them, with the consent of the Minister, to erect, construct or carry out any building or work on the land, for which statutory power has not been conferred by any enactment other than Part IV of the 1947 Act, ante.

Sub-s. (3) of the section as originally enacted imposed a restriction on the Minister in giving his consent, but it was so worded that in practice a person who wished to carry out the development himself did not find it easy to prevail over the local authority. The subsection is repealed as from the appointed day by s. 113 of and Part II of Sched. IX to the 1947 Act, ante, and accordingly is omitted from the section as it appears ante.

As from July 1, 1948, the present section is amended as set out in Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante (see also s. 113 thereof, ante).

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1 of the 1947 Act, ante).

Authorised association.—By s. 35 (7) of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932 (25 Halsbury's Statutes 507), this expression means "any society, company or body of persons approved by the Minister whose objects include the promotion, formation, or management of garden cities and the erection, improvement or management of buildings for the working classes and others, and which does not trade for profit or whose constitution forbids the issue of any share or loan capital with interest or dividend exceeding the rate for the time being fixed by the Treasury."

Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, s. 35.—25 Halsbury's Statutes 506.

Definitions.—For definitions of "functions," "local authority," "land," "buildings or works," "erection" and "enactment," see s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante.

22. Authorisation of development on land acquired for purposes of Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, notwithstanding interference with easements, etc.—(1) The erection, construction or carrying out, or maintenance, of any building or work on land which has been acquired or appropriated by a local authority as mentioned in subsection (1) of section nineteen of this Act, or which has been acquired by the Central Land Board under section forty-three of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, whether done by the local authority or by any person deriving title under the local authority or under the Board, as the case may be, shall be deemed to be authorised by this section if it conforms with planning control, notwithstanding that it involves interference with any easement or other servitude or breach of any restriction as to the user of land arising by virtue of any contract, but subject to payment of compensation under section sixty-three or sixty-eight of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, to be assessed in the same manner and subject to the same rules as in the case of other compensation under those sections in respect of injurious affection where the compensation is to be estimated in connection with a purchase under that Act or the injury arises from the execution of works on land acquired under that Act:

Provided that nothing in this subsection shall authorise interference with any such right as is mentioned in section twenty-five of this Act.

(2) Any liability of a person deriving title under the local authority by whom the land in question was acquired or appropriated, or under the Central Land Board, to pay such compensation as aforesaid which that person fails to discharge shall be enforceable against that authority or against the Board, as the case may be:

Provided that nothing in this subsection shall be construed as affecting any agreement between the authority or Board and any other person for indemnifying the authority or Board against any liability under this subsection.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (1) of this section, the erection, construction or carrying out, or maintenance, of any building or work shall be treated as conforming with planning control if it is done in accordance with permission granted under Part III of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, and not otherwise.

(4) Nothing in this section shall be construed as authorising any Act or omission on the part of a local authority, or of any body corporate, in contravention of any limitation imposed by law on the capacity of such a body by virtue of its constitution, or as authorising any act or omission on the part of any person which is actionable at the suit of any person or any ground other than such interference or breach as is mentioned in subsection (1) of this section.

(5) In this section the expression "servitude" means any easement, liberty, privilege, right or advantage annexed to land and adversely affecting other land, and includes a natural right to support. [2741]

General note.—This section as originally enacted has been substantially amended by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante.

Central Land Board.—For the constitution and functions of the Board, see ss. 2 and 3 of the 1947 Act, ante.

S. 43 of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947.—See ante. This section provides for the acquisition of land by the Central Land Board.

Servitude.—Note that this term, as defined in sub-s. (5), supra, includes a natural right to support.

Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, ss. 63 and 68.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1133, 1134. S. 63 as modified by the 1944 Act and the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176), provides that in estimating the purchase money or compensation to be paid by the purchasing authority, regard shall be had by the tribunal not only to the value of the land to be purchased or taken by the purchasing authority but also to the damages, if any, to be sustained by the owner of the lands by reason of the severing of the lands taken from the other lands of such owner, or otherwise injuriously affecting such other lands by the exercise of the powers of this or the special Act, or any Act incorporated therewith.

S. 68 recognises a claim for compensation for lands injuriously affected by the execution of the works as well as for lands taken.

S. 25 of this Act.—See post. This section deals with the extinguishment of rights of way and rights as to apparatus of statutory undertakers.

Permission granted under Part III of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947.—See, in particular, ss. 12–14 of the 1947 Act, ante.

Definitions.—For definitions of "erection," "building or work," "land" and "local authority," see s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante.

23. Power to extinguish highways over land acquired for purposes of Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947.—(1) The Minister may by order extinguish any public right of way over any such land as is mentioned in sub-section (1) of section nineteen of this Act if he is satisfied that an alternative right of way has been or will be provided or that the provision thereof is not required.

(2) The Sixth Schedule to the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, shall apply to an order under this section as it applies to an order under section forty-nine of that Act, and the said Schedule shall, in its application to an order under this section, have effect as if for any reference therein to the Minister of Transport there were substituted a reference to the Minister.

(3) The Minister of Transport, or a local highway authority may be authorised to purchase land compulsorily for the purpose of providing any public right of way which is to be provided as an alternative to a right of way extinguished under this section; and the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, shall apply to the compulsory acquisition of land under this subsection and accordingly shall have effect—

(a) as if this subsection had been in force immediately before the commencement of that Act;

(b) as if this subsection were included among the enactments specified in paragraph (b) of subsection (1) of section one of that Act:

Provided that section two of the said Act shall not apply to the compulsory acquisition of land under this subsection.

(4) Where on the application of a local authority an order is made under this section extinguishing a public right of way, and at the time of publication of the notice required by paragraph 1 of the Sixth Schedule to the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, there was under, in, upon, over, along, or across the land over which the right of way subsisted any telegraphic line belonging to or used by the Postmaster-General,—

(a) the power of the Postmaster-General to remove the line shall be exercisable notwithstanding the making of the order, so however that the said power shall not be exercisable, as respects the whole or any part of the line, after the expiration of a period of three months from the date on which the right of way is extinguished unless before the expiration of that period the Postmaster-General has given notice to the local authority of his intention to remove the line or that part thereof, as the case may be;

(b) the Postmaster-General may by notice to the local authority in that behalf abandon the said line or any part thereof, and shall be deemed, as respects the line or any part thereof, to have abandoned it at the expiration of the said period of three months unless before the expiration of that period he

- (c) the Postmaster-General shall be entitled to recover from the local authority the expense of providing, in substitution for the line and any telegraphic line connected therewith which is rendered useless in consequence of the removal or abandonment of the line, a telegraphic line in such other place as the Postmaster-General may require ;
- (d) where under paragraph (b) of this subsection the Postmaster-General has abandoned the whole or any part of a telegraphic line, it shall vest in the local authority, and the provisions of the Telegraph Acts, 1863 to 1943, shall not apply in relation to the line or part in question as respects anything done or omitted after the abandonment thereof.

In this subsection the expression " telegraphic line " has the same meaning as in the Telegraphic Act, 1878.

(5) Regulations made under the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, may provide for securing that any proceedings required to be taken for the purposes of an order under this section may be taken concurrently with any proceedings required to be taken for the purposes of the acquisition of the land over which the right of way is to be extinguished, or for securing that any proceedings required to be taken for the purposes of the acquisition of any other land under subsection (3) of this section may be taken concurrently with either or both of the said proceedings. [2742]

General note.—There is clear precedent for this provision. Under the 1932 Act a scheme might contain provisions for the stopping up or diversion of a highway : see s. 11, and Sched. II thereto (25 Halsbury's Statutes 484, 528). Persons aggrieved by a proposed order to extinguish a public right of way have an opportunity of objecting under Sched. VI to the 1947 Act, ante, but the objection will be to the Minister of Town and Country Planning and not to the Minister of Transport as set out in that Schedule. Except in special circumstances, if objections are lodged a public inquiry will be held.

For the extensive amendments to this section, see s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante. In particular, the whole of sub-ss. (2) and (3), ante, are new.

Compare with these provisions the provisions of s. 49 of the 1947 Act, ante.

Note the powers of the Minister as to the extinction of non-vehicular ways under s. 3 of the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 58).

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1 of the 1947 Act, ante).

If he is satisfied.—See note to s. 4 of the 1947 Act, ante, on the phrase " If it appears to the Minister."

Sched. VI to the Act of 1947.—This Schedule lays down the procedure for making orders under s. 49 of the 1947 Act, ante, which empowers the Minister of Transport to authorise the stopping up or diversion of any highway.

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 523. For ss. 1 (1) (b) and 2 thereof, see 39 Halsbury's Statutes 55, 56.

Commencement of that Act.—The date of commencement of the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, supra, was April 18, 1946.

Telegraphic line.—By sub-s. (4), ante, this expression has the same meaning as in the Telegraph Act, 1878 ; see s. 2 thereof (19 Halsbury's Statutes 261).

Telegraph Acts, 1863 to 1943.—These include the Telegraph Acts, 1863 to 1925 (19 Halsbury's Statutes 210-316), the Post Office and Telegraph Act, 1940 (33 Halsbury's Statutes 351), and the Telegraph Act, 1943 (36 Halsbury's Statutes 307).

24. Extinguishment of private ways, and rights as to apparatus, over or in land purchased for purposes of Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947.—(1) Upon the completion by the purchasing authority of a compulsory purchase under Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, of any land, all private rights of way and rights of laying down, erecting, continuing or maintaining any apparatus on under or over the land shall be extinguished and any such apparatus shall vest in the purchasing authority :

Provided that this section shall not apply to any right vested in, or any apparatus belonging to, the person carrying on a statutory undertaking for the purpose of the carrying on thereof, and shall have effect as respects other matters subject to any direction given by the purchasing authority before the completion of the purchase that this section shall not apply to any right or apparatus specified in the direction and subject to any agreement which may be made (whether before or after the completion of the purchase) between the purchasing authority and the person in or to whom the right or apparatus in question is vested or belongs.

(2) Any person who suffers loss by the extinguishment of any right or the vesting of any apparatus under this section shall be entitled to be paid by the purchasing authority compensation, to be determined under and in accordance with the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919.

(3) Expenses incurred by a Minister or the Central Land Board in the payment of compensation under the last preceding subsection shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [2743]

General note.—This section as originally enacted has been amended in a minor way by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante, but the substance remains the same. Part of the original sub-s. (2) has been repealed as from August 6, 1947, the date of passing of the 1947 Act, by ss. 113 and 120 of and Sched. IX, Part I, to that Act, ante.

Compare generally the provisions of the section with those of the Housing Act, 1936, s. 46 (3) (29 Halsbury's Statutes 602). For the long legislative history of the section, see note to s. 46 of the Housing Act, 1936, in Lumley's Public Health, Eleventh Edition, Vol. II, at p. 1656. Note the omission of the words "and all other rights or easements" which occur in the Housing Act, 1936, s. 46 (3). The reason for this omission is that other rights and easements are dealt with in s. 22 of the 1944 Act, ante.

Completion.—As to expedited completion, see Sched. VI to the 1944 Act, post.

Compulsory purchase.—Note that the provisions of this section apply only to compulsory purchase, though the matters herein dealt with should receive consideration when a purchase is effected by agreement.

Proviso for protection of statutory undertakers.—See, further, s. 25 of the 1944 Act, infra.

Sub-s. (2).—This subsection provides for compensation for the loss which any person will suffer by the extinguishment of any right or the vesting of any apparatus under this section.

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176 et seq.

Central Land Board.—The reference to this Board in sub-s. (3), supra, is new, the Board being established by s. 2 of the 1947 Act, ante.

Definitions.—As to "purchasing authority," see s. 65 (1) of the 1944 Act, post. For definitions of "erect," "land," "statutory undertaking" and "a Minister," see s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante.

25. Extinguishment of rights of way, and rights as to apparatus, of statutory undertakers.—(1) Where there subsists over land which has been acquired by a purchasing authority under Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, or which has been appropriated by a local authority as mentioned in subsection (1) of section nineteen of this Act, any right of way or any right of laying down, erecting, continuing or maintaining any apparatus on under or over the land, or there is on under or over any such land any apparatus, vested in or belonging to the person carrying on a statutory undertaking for the purpose of the carrying on thereof, the purchasing or appropriating authority may serve on the said person a notice that at the expiration of such period as may be specified in the notice the right will be extinguished, or requiring that before the expiration of such period as may be so specified the apparatus shall be removed.

(2) A person on whom a notice is served under the preceding subsection may before the expiration of twenty-eight days from the service of the notice serve a counter-notice on the purchasing or appropriating authority stating that he objects to all or any of the provisions of the notice and specifying the grounds of his objection.

(3) If no counter-notice is served under the last preceding subsection, any right to which the notice relates shall be extinguished at the end of the period specified in that behalf in the notice, and if at the end of the period so specified in relation to any apparatus any requirement of the notice as to the removal of the apparatus has not been complied with, the purchasing or appropriating authority may remove the apparatus and dispose thereof in any way they or he may think fit.

(4) If a counter-notice is served under subsection (2) of this section on a local authority or on statutory undertakers, the authority or undertakers may either withdraw the notice (without prejudice, however, to the service of a further notice) or apply to the Minister and the appropriate Minister for an order embodying, either with or without modification, the provisions of the notice, and the Minister and the appropriate Minister may if they think fit, after affording to the person carrying on the undertaking on whom the notice was served under subsection (1) of this section an opportunity of objecting to the application and, if any objection is made, after considering the objection and affording to the said person and to the authority or undertakers on whom the counter-notice was served an opportunity of appearing before and being heard by a person appointed by the Minister and the appropriate Minister for the purpose, make an order in accordance with the application, either with or without modification.

prejudice, however, to the service of a further notice) or he or they and the appropriate Minister may make an order embodying, either with or without modification, the provisions of the notice.

Where a Minister and the appropriate Minister, or the Central Land Board and the appropriate Minister, propose to make an order under this subsection, they shall prepare a draft of the order and shall afford to the person carrying on the undertaking an opportunity of objecting to the proposal and, if any objection is made, shall consider the objection and afford to the said person an opportunity of appearing before and being heard by a person appointed by them for the purpose, and may then make an order in accordance with the draft, either with or without modification.

(6) Subsection (3) of this section shall apply to an order made under either of the two last preceding subsections as it applies to a notice in respect of which no counter-notice is served, but with the substitution for references to a notice of references to an order.

(7) Where an objection to an order under subsection (4) or (5) of this section is duly made and is not withdrawn before the making of the order, the order shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure.

(8) In respect of the extinguishment of any right, or the imposition of any requirement, under this section the person carrying on a statutory undertaking shall be entitled to recover from the purchasing or appropriating authority at whose instance the right was extinguished or the requirement was imposed compensation in accordance with Part I of the Fourth Schedule to this Act.

(9) Expenses incurred by a Minister or the Central Land Board in the payment of compensation under the last preceding subsection shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament. [2744]

General note.—This section as originally enacted has been subjected to numerous minor amendments, principally of terminology, by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante.

Note, in particular, the provisions of sub-ss. (2) and (3), ante, whereby, if the counter-notice is not served before the expiration of twenty-eight days, the notice extinguishing the right or requiring the apparatus to be removed will become effective; there is no power on the part of the Minister to extend the time.

May serve . . . a notice.—As to service of notices, see s. 105 of the 1947 Act, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1 of the 1947 Act, ante).

The appropriate Minister; a Minister.—As to the first term, see s. 65 (1) of the 1944 Act, post, and s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante; and as to the second term, see the said s. 119 (1). Each expression should be distinguished from "the Minister," supra.

An opportunity . . . of being heard.—In the past this has taken the form of a local inquiry (see s. 104 of the 1947 Act, and the notes thereto), and there is no reason to believe that on the present continuation of the provisions the current practice will be altered.

Central Land Board.—For the establishment and functions of the Board, see ss. 2 and 3 of the 1947 Act, ante.

Special parliamentary procedure.—This means the procedure set out in the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 439).

Definitions.—As to "purchasing authority," see s. 65 (1) of the 1944 Act, post. For definitions of "land," "local authority," "erect," "statutory undertaking" and "statutory undertakers," see s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante. "Statutory undertaking" is also referred to in s. 65 (1) of the 1944 Act, post.

26. Extension and modification of powers and duties of statutory undertakers.—

(1) Where it appears to the Minister and the appropriate Minister, on a representation made by the person carrying on a statutory undertaking, that—

- (a) in order to secure the provision of services which would not otherwise be provided, or satisfactorily provided, for any purpose in connection with which a local authority or Minister may be authorised under Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, to acquire land, or
- (b) in order to facilitate any adjustment of the carrying on of the undertaking necessitated by the acquisition under Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, of any land an interest in which was held, or which was used, for the purpose of the carrying on of the undertaking, or necessitated by the extinguishment of any right, or the imposition of any requirement, under the last preceding section, or necessitated by a decision on an application made under Part III of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, by a person carrying on the undertaking for permission to develop any such land or by the revocation or modification of permission granted on such an application or by the making of an order under section twenty-six of that Act in relation to any such land, it is expedient that the powers and duties of the said person in relation to the carrying on of the undertaking should be extended or modified, the Minister and the appropriate Minister may by order provide for such extension or modification of the said powers and duties as appears to them to be requisite in order to secure the provision of services as mentioned in paragraph (a) of this subsection, or to facilitate the adjustment of the undertaking as mentioned in paragraph (b) of this subsection, as the case may be.

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the provisions of the preceding subsection, an order under the preceding subsection may provide—

- (a) for empowering the person carrying on the undertaking to acquire, whether compulsorily or by agreement, any land specified in the order and to erect or construct any buildings or works so specified ;
- (b) for applying in relation to the acquisition of such land and the construction of such works enactments relating to the acquisition of land and the construction of works ;
- (c) for giving effect, where it has been represented that the making of the order is expedient for the purposes of paragraph (a) of the preceding subsection, to such financial arrangements between the local authority or Minister and the person carrying on the undertaking as they may agree or, in default of agreement, as may be determined to be equitable in such manner and by such tribunal as may be specified in the order ; and for such incidental and supplemental matters as appear to the Minister and the appropriate Minister to be expedient for the purposes of the order.

(3) As soon as may be after making a representation under subsection (1) of this section, the person carrying on the undertaking in question shall publish, in such form and manner as may be directed by the Minister and the appropriate Minister, a notice giving such particulars as may be so directed of the matters to which the representation relates and specifying the time within which, and the manner in which, objections to the making of an order on the representation may be made, and shall also, if it is so directed by the Minister and the appropriate Minister, serve a like notice on such persons, or persons of such classes, as may be so directed.

(4) The provisions of the First Schedule to this Act shall have effect in relation to the making of an order on the representation if any objection thereto is duly made, and, subject to those provisions in a case in which they have effect, the Minister and the appropriate Minister may, if they think fit, make an order.

(5) A local authority or Minister may represent to the Minister and the appropriate Minister that the making of an order under subsection (1) of this section as respects any statutory undertaking is expedient for the purpose of securing the provision of new services, or the extension of existing services, for any purpose in connection with which the local authority or Minister may be authorised under Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, to acquire land, and where such a representation is made the preceding provisions of this section shall have effect as if the representation had been made by the person carrying on the undertaking in question, but with the substitution in subsection (3) for the reference to the person carrying on the undertaking of a reference to the local authority or Minister.

(6) An order under this section shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure. [2745]

General note.—This section as originally enacted has been amended by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante. In addition, part of the original sub-s. (2) (b) has been repealed as from August 6, 1947, the date of the passing of the 1947 Act, by ss. 113 and 120 of and Sched. IX, Part I, to that Act, ante.

The effect of the section is to empower the Minister and the appropriate Minister (see infra), to make a provisional order (which is to be of no effect until confirmed by Parliament) providing for the extension or modification of the powers and duties of statutory undertakers and, among other things, to empower statutory undertakers to acquire land, whether by agreement or compulsorily, in order to construct buildings and works. The purposes for which an order could be made under this section are stated in paras. (a) and (b) of sub-s. (1), ante. The form of sub-s. (1) (b) has undergone change by reason of the provisions of the 1947 Act (see ante).

Where it appears, etc. ; if they think fit ; as appears to the Minister, etc.—As to all these phrases, see the note to s. 4 of the 1947 Act, ante, on the phrase “ If it appears to the Minister.”

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1 of the 1947 Act, ante).

Serve a like notice.—As to service of notices, see s. 105 of the 1947 Act, ante.

Special parliamentary procedure.—See the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 439).

Definitions.—As to "appropriate Minister" and "statutory undertaking," see ss. 65 (1) of the 1944 Act, post, and s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante; as to "develop" see s. 65 (1) of the 1944 Act, post, and ss. 12 and 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante. For definitions of "land," "local authority," "buildings or works" and "enactment," see s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante.

27. Relief of statutory undertakers from obligations rendered impracticable by exercise of powers of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947.—(1) Where on a representation in that behalf made by the person carrying on a statutory undertaking the appropriate Minister is satisfied that—

- (a) the compulsory purchase under Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, of any land an interest in which was held, or which was used, for the purpose of the carrying on of the undertaking;
- (b) a decision on an application under Part III of the said Act by a person carrying on the undertaking for permission to develop any such land, or the revocation or modification of permission granted on such an application, or the making of an order under section twenty-six of that Act in relation to any such land; or has rendered impracticable the fulfilment of any obligation of the said person incurred in connection with the carrying on of the undertaking, the appropriate Minister may by order direct that the said person shall be relieved of the fulfilment of the obligation either absolutely or to such extent as may be specified in the order.
- (c) the extinguishment under Part IV of that Act of any right, or the imposition of any requirement as to the removal of apparatus, vested in or belonging to the said person.

(2) As soon as may be after making a representation to the appropriate Minister under the preceding subsection, the person carrying on the undertaking in question shall, as may be directed by the appropriate Minister, either publish, in such form and manner as may be so directed, a notice giving such particulars as may be so directed of the matters to which the representation relates and specifying the time within which, and the manner in which, objections to the making of an order on the representation may be made, or serve such a notice on such persons, or persons of such classes, as may be so directed, or both publish and serve such notices.

(3) The provisions of the First Schedule to this Act shall have effect in relation to the making of an order on the representation if any objection thereto is duly made, and, subject to those provisions in a case in which they have effect, the appropriate Minister may, if he thinks fit, make an order.

(4) If any objection to the making of an order under this section is made and is not withdrawn before the making of the order, the order shall be subject to special parliamentary procedure.

(5) In relation to an order made under this section subsections (1) to (3) of section eleven of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, shall apply, subject to any necessary modifications, as they apply in relation to a development plan approved by the Minister under that Act, and accordingly the said subsection (1) shall have effect as if for the reference therein to the local planning authority there were substituted a reference to the appropriate Minister:

Provided that where any such order is subject to special parliamentary procedure, then—

- (a) if the order is confirmed by Parliament under section six of the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945, subsections (2) and (3) of the said section eleven shall not apply;
- (b) in any other case those subsections shall have effect in relation to the order as if in subsection (2) for the reference to the date on which the notice required by subsection (1) of the said section eleven is first published there were substituted a reference to the date on which the order becomes operative under section six of the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945, and as if in subsection (3) the words from "and shall become operative" to the end of the subsection were omitted. [2746]

General note.—Lengthy amendments to this section as originally enacted have been effected by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante.

By this section statutory undertakers may be relieved, by orders made by the "appropriate Minister," from obligations rendered impracticable by the exercise of three types of power under the 1947 Act. Provision is made for the entering of objections to representations made by statutory undertakers with a view to the Minister's exercising his powers in that respect and special parliamentary procedure may become applicable. Parts of s. 11 of the 1947 Act, ante, are applied, with modifications, to orders under the present section.

Where the appropriate Minister is satisfied; if he thinks fit.—See note to s. 4 of the 1947 Act, ante, on the phrase "If it appears to the Minister." Note that representation must first be made before the Minister can be "satisfied."

Has rendered impracticable.—Note that complete impossibility of fulfilment need not be shown. "A thing is impracticable when it can only be done at an excessive or unreasonable cost." (Moss v. Smith (1850), 9 C. B. 94, per MAULE, J., at p. 103.)

By order direct.—For the general provisions as to orders, see s. 111 of the 1947 Act, ante.

Serve such a notice.—For the general provisions as to service of notices, see s. 105 of the 1947 Act, ante.

Special parliamentary procedure.—This means the procedure set out in the Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945 (38 Halsbury's Statutes 439).

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1 of the 1947 Act, ante).

Statutory Orders (Special Procedure) Act, 1945, s. 6.—38 Halsbury's Statutes 444.

Definitions.—As to "statutory undertaking" and "appropriate Minister," see s. 65 (1) of the 1944 Act, post, and s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante; as to "develop," see s. 65 (1) of the 1944 Act, post, and ss. 12 and 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante; as to "development plan," see ss. 5 and 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante; and as to "local planning authority," see ss. 4 and 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante. For definition of "land," see s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante.

28. Authorisation of use and development of consecrated land, and burial grounds, notwithstanding restrictions.—(1) Any consecrated land, whether or not including any building, which has been acquired by a purchasing authority under Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, or which has been appropriated by a local authority as mentioned in subsection (1) of section nineteen of this Act, may, subject to the provisions of this section, be used in any manner, whether or not involving the erection, construction or carrying out, or maintenance, of any building or work,—

- (a) in the case of land acquired by a purchasing authority other than a Minister, or of land appropriated by a local authority as aforesaid, by that authority or by any other person, if that use conforms with planning control, or
- (b) in the case of land acquired by a Minister, by him or on his behalf for any purpose for which he acquired the land.

notwithstanding any obligation or restriction imposed under ecclesiastical law or otherwise as respects such land :

Provided that the provisions of subsection (4) of this section shall have effect to the exclusion of the provisions of this subsection as respects consecrated land being or forming part of a burial ground.

(2) Any use of consecrated land authorised by the preceding subsection, and the use of any land, not being consecrated land, acquired or appropriated as therein mentioned which at the time of acquisition or appropriation included any church or other building used or formerly used for religious worship or the site thereof, shall be subject to compliance with the prescribed requirements with respect to the removal and reinterment of any human remains and the disposal of monuments or other memorials and of fixtures and furnishings, and, in the case of consecrated land, subject to such provisions as may be prescribed for prohibiting or restricting the use of the land, either absolutely or until the prescribed consent has been obtained, so long as any church or other building used or formerly used for religious worship or any part thereof, remains on the land.

(3) Any regulations made for the purposes of the last preceding subsection—

- (a) shall contain such provisions as appear to the Minister to be requisite for securing that any use of land which is subject to compliance with the regulations shall, as nearly as may be, be subject to the like control as is imposed by law in the case of a similar use authorised by an enactment other than this Act or by a Measure or as it would be proper to impose on a disposal of the land in question otherwise than in pursuance of an enactment or Measure ;
- (b) shall contain requirements relating to the disposal of any such land as is mentioned in the last preceding subsection such as appear to the Minister requisite for securing that the provisions of that subsection shall be complied with in relation to the use of the land ; and
- (c) may contain such incidental and consequential provisions (including provisions as to the closing of registers) as appear to the Minister to be expedient for the purposes of the regulations.

(4) Any land consisting of a burial ground or part of a burial ground which has been acquired by a purchasing authority under Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, or which has been appropriated by a local authority as mentioned in subsection (1) of section nineteen of this Act, may be used in any manner, whether or not involving the erection, construction or carrying out, or maintenance, of any building or work,—

- (a) in the case of land acquired by a purchasing authority other than a Minister, or of land appropriated by a local authority as aforesaid, by that authority or by any other person, if that use conforms with planning control, or
- (b) in the case of land acquired by a Minister, by him or on his behalf for any purpose for which he acquired the land, notwithstanding anything in any enactment relating to burial grounds or any obligation or restriction imposed under ecclesiastical law or otherwise as respects burial grounds :

Provided that this subsection shall not have effect as respects any such land which has been used for the burial of the dead until the prescribed requirements with respect to the removal and reinterment of human remains, and the disposal of monuments, tombstones or other memorials, in or upon the land have been complied with.

(5) Provision shall be made by any regulations made for the purposes of subsection (2) of this section and the proviso to the last preceding subsection—

- (a) for requiring the persons in whom the land is vested to publish notice of their intention to carry out the removal and reinterment of any human remains or the disposal of any tombstones, monuments or other memorials ;
- (b) for enabling the personal representatives or relatives of any deceased person themselves to undertake the removal and reinterment of the remains of the deceased, and the disposal of any tombstone, monument or other memorial commemorating the deceased, and for requiring the persons in whom the land is vested to defray the expenses of such removal, reinterment and disposal, not exceeding such amount as may be prescribed ;
- (c) for requiring compliance with such reasonable conditions, if any, as may be imposed, in the case of consecrated ground, by the Bishop of the diocese, with respect to the manner of removal, and the place and manner of reinterment of any human remains, and the disposal of any tombstones, monuments or other memorials, and with any directions given in any case by the Secretary of State with respect to the removal and reinterment of any human remains.

Any expenses incurred by a government department or the Central Land Board under paragraph (b) of this subsection shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament.

(6) Subject to the provisions of any such regulations as aforesaid, no faculty shall be required for the removal and reinterment in accordance with the regulations of any human remains, or for the removal and disposal of any tombstones, monuments or other memorials, and the provisions of section twenty-five of the Burial Act, 1857 (which prohibits the removal of human remains without a licence of the Secretary of State except in certain cases) shall not apply to a removal carried out in accordance with the regulations.

(7) In this section—

- (a) the expression “ burial ground ” includes any churchyard, cemetery or other ground, whether consecrated or not, which has at any time been set apart for the purpose of interment ;
- (b) references to conformity with planning control shall be construed in accordance with subsection (3) of section twenty-two of this Act, with the substitution for references therein to anything done as therein mentioned of references to any use of land, whether or not involving the doing of any such thing.

(8) Nothing in this section shall be construed as authorising any act or omission on the part of a local authority, or of any body corporate, in contravention of any limitation imposed by law on the capacity of such a body by virtue of its constitution, or as authorising any act or omission on the part of any person that is actionable at the suit of any person on any ground other than contravention of any such obligation, restriction or enactment as is mentioned in subsection (1) or (4) of this section. [2747]

General note.—This section as originally enacted has been amended to bring it into line with the general tenor of the 1947 Act by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante.

The section authorises the use and development in accordance with planning control of consecrated land acquired or appropriated under the 1947 or 1944 Act respectively, subject to safeguards, particularly in the case of church buildings or sites.

Consecrated land.—Subject to statutory modifications, land which has been dedicated in sacros usus retains the ecclesiastical character bestowed on it by the act of consecration, whoever may be the actual owner. An act or sentence of consecration signed by a bishop constitutes the legal act of consecration.

Planning control.—As to this term, note the provisions of sub-s. (7) (b), ante.

Ecclesiastical law.—This phrase may in England be construed either as confined to the law of the Church of England as administered by the ecclesiastical courts, or in a wider sense as including within its scope all laws relating to a church or ecclesia as such, whether derived from the law of the State, the laws of nature and of right reason, the divine law, or the laws of independent societies (Hooker's Ecclesiastical Polity, Book I, section 16). Modern tendencies favour the latter (see generally 11 Halsbury's Laws (2nd Edn.) 405 et seq.).

Any church or other building.—When the fabric of a church of the Church of England has become devoted in sacros usus it cannot, apart from express statutory authority, ever be used as a habitation for man, nor has a judge any power to sanction its use for secular purposes and no alteration or addition can be made to it without a faculty (see 11 Halsbury's Laws (2nd Edn.) 863 et seq.).

Used for religious worship.—This wording is a good deal wider than references to the Established Church.

Compliance with the prescribed requirements.—I.e., compliance with the requirements of regulations of the Minister of Town and Country Planning under the 1944 Act (see s. 63 (1) thereof, post).

As appear to the Minister to be requisite.—See note to s. 4 of the 1947 Act, ante, on the phrase "If it appears to the Minister."

By a Measure.—The Church of England Assembly (Powers) Act, 1919 (6 Halsbury's Statutes 55), conferred legislative powers upon the National Assembly of the Church of England (the Church Assembly) in regard to Church of England matters. On a resolution being passed by each House of Parliament directing that a Measure in the form laid before Parliament should be presented to the King, such Measure is presented to the King, and, on receiving the Royal Assent, has the force and effect of an Act of Parliament (s. 4 of the 1919 Act, supra; 6 Halsbury's Statutes 58).

Burial ground.—Note the wide definition in sub-s. (7), ante.

Central Land Board.—As to the establishment and functions of the Board, see ss. 2 and 3 of the 1947 Act, ante.

Burial Act, 1857, s. 25.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 236. This section, which deals with the removal of bodies, enacts as follows:—

"Except in the cases where a body is removed from one consecrated place of burial to another by faculty granted by the ordinary for that purpose, it shall not be lawful to remove any body, or the remains of any body, which may have been interred in any place of burial, without licence under the hand of one of Her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State, and with such precautions as such Secretary of State may prescribe as the condition of such licence; and any person who shall remove any such body or remains, contrary to this enactment, or who shall neglect to observe the precautions prescribed as the condition of the licence for removal, shall, on summary conviction before any two justices of the peace, forfeit and pay for every such offence a sum not exceeding ten pounds."

In practice, the power of consenting to exhumation is exercised by the Home Secretary. As to the unauthorised removal of a body even from unconsecrated ground, see R. v. Sharpe (1857), Dears. & B. 160.

If a removal is carried out in accordance with regulations under the present section, no faculty or licence is required under the said s. 25, supra.

Sub-s. (8).—The provisions of this subsection can usefully be compared with the somewhat similar provisions appearing, inter alia, in s. 2 (4) of the New Towns Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 665), and s. 2 (8) of the Transport Act, 1947 (10 & 11 Geo. 6. c. 49). See also the similar provisions of s. 29 (3) of the 1944 Act, post.

Definitions.—As to "purchasing authority," see s. 65 (1) of the 1944 Act, post. For definitions of "erection," "building or work," "a Minister," "land," "local authority," "use," "enactment" and "government department," see s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante.

29. Authorisation of use and development of open spaces, etc., notwithstanding restrictions.—(1) Any land being, or forming part of, a common, open space or fuel or field garden allotment, which has been acquired by a purchasing authority under Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, or which has been appropriated by a local authority as mentioned in subsection (1) of section nineteen of this Act, may be used in any manner, whether or not involving the erection, construction or carrying out, or maintenance, of any building or work,—

(a) in the case of land acquired by a purchasing authority other than a Minister, or of land appropriated by a local authority as aforesaid, by that authority or by any other person, if that use conforms with planning control, or,

(b) in the case of land acquired by a Minister, by him or on his behalf for any purpose for which he acquired the land, notwithstanding anything in any enactment relating to land of that kind, including any enactment, whether public general or local or private, by which any such land is specially regulated.

(2) In this section—

- (a) the expressions “common”, “open space” and “fuel or field garden allotment” have the same meanings as in the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946;
- (b) the reference to conformity with planning control shall be construed in accordance with subsection (3) of section twenty-two of this Act, with the substitution for references therein to anything done as therein mentioned of references to any use of land, whether or not involving the doing of any such thing.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be construed as authorising any act or omission on the part of a local authority, or of any body corporate, in contravention of any limitation imposed by law on the capacity of such a body by virtue of its constitution, or as authorising any act or omission on the part of any person that is actionable at the suit of any person on any ground other than contravention of any such enactment as is mentioned in subsection (1) of this section. [2748]

General note.—This section as originally enacted is amended by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante. Its provisions remove any doubt which might otherwise have existed as to whether land which formed part of a common or open space, etc., acquired or appropriated for planning purposes could be used freely in connection with planning development. It is obviously essential that land of this kind should be capable of being used in that connection, notwithstanding subsisting statutory restrictions, once its acquisition or appropriation has been approved.

Common, open space or fuel or field garden allotment.—By s. 8 (1) of the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 61), these terms are defined as follows:—

“ ‘Common’ includes any land subject to be enclosed under the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1882, and any town or village green;

“ ‘Fuel or field garden allotment’ means any allotment set out as a fuel allotment, or a field garden allotment, under an Inclosure Act; . . .

“ ‘Open space’ means any land laid out as a public garden, or used for the purposes of public recreation, or land being a disused burial ground; . . .”

Planning control.—As to this expression, note the provisions of sub-s. (2) (b), supra.

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 52 et seq.

Sub-s. (3).—Note that this subsection, apart from its application, is identical with sub-s. 28 (8) of the 1944 Act, ante; see also the notes to that section.

Definitions.—As to “purchasing authority,” see s. 65 (1) of the 1944 Act, post. For definitions of “land,” “local authority,” “erection,” “building or work,” “a Minister,” “use” and “enactment,” see s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante.

30. Provisions as to displacements from land acquired for purposes of Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947.—(1) Where the carrying out of redevelopment on any such land as is mentioned in subsection (1) of section nineteen of this Act will involve the displacement of persons residing in premises thereon, it shall be the duty of the authority, in so far as there is not other residential accommodation suitable to the reasonable requirements of those persons available on reasonable terms, to secure the provision of such accommodation in advance of the displacements from time to time becoming necessary as the redevelopment proceeds.

(2) Section one hundred and thirty-seven of the Housing Act, 1936 (which imposes obligations as to the provision of housing accommodation where land is acquired under statutory powers) shall not have effect in relation to an acquisition by a local authority under section thirty-eight of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947.

(3) If the Minister certifies that possession of any house which has been acquired or appropriated and is for the time being held by a local authority as is mentioned in subsection (1) of section nineteen of this Act, is immediately required for the purposes for which it was acquired or appropriated, nothing in the Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions Acts, 1920 to 1939, shall be deemed to prevent the acquiring or appropriating authority from obtaining possession of the house.

(4) Where possession of any building, or any part of a building, on land which has been acquired or appropriated by a local authority as mentioned in subsection

(1) of section nineteen of this Act or which has been acquired by the Central Land Board or a Minister under Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, is required by them or him for the purposes for which it was acquired or appropriated, then, whatever may be the value or rent of the building or part of a building, they or he may obtain possession thereof under the Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838, as in the cases therein provided for, at any time after the tenancy of the occupier has expired or has been determined.

(5) A local authority, the Central Land Board or a Minister may pay to any person who is displaced in the carrying out of redevelopment on land which has been acquired by the local authority, Board or Minister under Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, or which has been appropriated by the local authority as mentioned in subsection (1) of section nineteen of this Act, such reasonable allowance as they think fit towards his expenses in removing, and to a person carrying on any business in a building from which he is so displaced they may pay also such reasonable allowance as they think fit towards the loss which, in their opinion, he will sustain by reason of the disturbance to his business consequent on his having to quit the building, and in estimating that loss they shall have regard to the period for which the premises occupied by him might reasonably have been expected to be available for the purpose of his business and the availability of other premises suitable for that purpose. [2749]

General note.—This section as originally enacted is here reprinted as amended by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante.

For legislative precedents see:—

As to sub-s. (1), ante, Housing Act, 1936, s. 45 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 601).

As to sub-s. (3), ante, Housing Act, 1936, s. 156 (1) (29 Halsbury's Statutes 667).

As to sub-s. (4), ante, Housing Act, 1936, s. 156 (2) (29 Halsbury's Statutes 668).

As to sub-s. (5), supra, Housing Act, 1936, ss. 18 and 44 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 580, 600).

Sub-s. (1) imposes a duty on local authorities to provide residential accommodation for persons who will be displaced, in so far as there is not other suitable residential accommodation available, while by sub-s. (2) the operation of s. 137 of the Housing Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 660), is negatived.

Next, sub-s. (3) enables authorities to get possession of dwelling-houses, notwithstanding the Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions Acts, 1920 to 1939 (see infra).

Sub-s. (4) enables possession of any building or part of a building to be obtained by proceedings under the Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838 (10 Halsbury's Statutes 324).

Finally, sub-s. (5) authorises the payment of allowances towards (1) removal expenses and (2) trade disturbance, in cases where compensation under these heads cannot be claimed under the Lands Clauses Acts (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1113 et seq.) as of right.

It shall be the duty.—Unlike s. 45 of the Housing Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 601), the duty in this case is imposed in clear terms. There seems to be no reason why this duty should not be enforceable by mandamus, but the practical course which might be taken by displaced persons who alleged that the duty had not been or was not being carried out would be to complain to the Minister.

Other residential accommodation, etc.—As originally enacted there was no provision in sub-s. (1) of the present section requiring the accommodation to be suitable. This omission has now been made good by the addition of the words "suitable to the reasonable requirements of those persons" (see s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante).

If the Minister certifies.—Note the provisions in s. 5 of the Minister of Town and Country Planning Act, 1943 (Seal, style and acts of Minister) (36 Halsbury's Statutes 40).

As far as the court is concerned, the production of the certificate will be conclusive that possession of the house is immediately required for the purposes for which it was acquired or appropriated.

Housing Act, 1936, s. 137.—29 Halsbury's Statutes 660. This section enacts as follows:—

"Where under the powers given by any local Act or Provisional Order or Order having the effect of an Act (not being an order made under this Act), any land is acquired, whether compulsorily or by agreement, by any authority, company or person, or where any land is so acquired compulsorily under any general Act other than this Act, the provisions set out in the Eleventh Schedule to this Act shall apply with respect to the provision of housing accommodation for persons of the working classes."

For Sched. XI to that Act, see 29 Halsbury's Statutes 699 et seq.

Rent and Mortgage Interest Restrictions Acts, 1920 to 1939.—As to these Acts, see note to s. 52 of the 1947 Act, title LAND, ACQUISITION, SALE, ETC., OF, ante.

Central Land Board.—For the constitution and functions of the Board, see ss. 2 and 3 of the 1947 Act, ante.

Small Tenements Recovery Act, 1838.—10 Halsbury's Statutes 324.

Sub-s. (5).—This provision is permissive, but it must not be overlooked that the subsection requires the exercise of a discretion. "Discretion" means, when it is said that something is to be done within the discretion of the authorities, that that something is to be done within the rules of reason and justice; not according to private opinion, but according to law and not to humour. It is not to be arbitrary, vague and fanciful, but legal and regular (Sharpe v. Wakefield, [1891] A. C. 173, per Lord HALSBURY, L.C.). This principle appears to apply not only to the exercise of a strictly judicial discretion but also to the exercise of what might be termed an administrative discretion (see, for instance, Roberts v. Hopwood, [1925] A. C. 578).

The courts, however, interfere less readily with the exercise of an administrative discretion than with the exercise of a judicial discretion, observing the principle enunciated in Kruse v. Johnson, [1898] 2 Q. B. 91, that when a discretion is conferred upon a local authority the court ought to show great reluctance before they attempt to determine how, in their opinion, the discretion ought to be exercised.

May pay, etc.—In Re Baker, Nichols v. Baker (1890), 44 Ch. D. 262, COTTON, L.J., said: "I think that great misconception is caused by saying that in some cases 'may' means 'must.' It never can mean 'must' so long as the English language retains its meaning. . . . There is given by the word 'may' a power as to the exercise of which there is a discretion."

Such reasonable allowance.—See Roberts v. Hopwood, [1925] A.C. 578. It is suggested that an allowance may be unreasonable because it is unreasonably low as well as unreasonably high.

As they think fit.—In Roberts v. Hopwood, supra, Lord WRENBURY said: "Thirdly and lastly, I point to the word 'fit.' That word means, I think, 'fitting' or 'suitable.' The words 'as they think fit' do not mean 'as they choose.'" Yet the whole trend of the law at present is to withdraw from the courts any power to inquire into the question of "fitness" where bona fides is not in question (see the note to s. 4 of the 1947 Act, ante, on the phrase "If it appears to the Minister" and the cases there cited).

Towards.—This word is important, but it must be construed together with the word "reasonable."

In their opinion.—Applicants for allowances should give the authority adequate information on which to form an opinion.

Shall have regard.—These words are mandatory.

Definitions.—For definitions of "local authority," "building," "a Minister" and "land," see s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante.

47. Provisions as to borrowing for purposes of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947.—(1) The power of the Public Works Loan Commissioners to make loans under section nine of the Public Works Loans Act, 1875, shall include power to make loans to a local authority for the purpose of the discharge by them of their functions under the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947.

(2) Notwithstanding anything in section three of the London County Council (Finance Consolidation) Act, 1912, the manner in which the London County Council may borrow shall include, in the case of money borrowed by them for the purpose aforesaid, borrowing from the said Commissioners in accordance with the Public Works Loans Acts, 1875 to 1882.

(3) So long as the making of an issue of capital in the United Kingdom without the consent of the Treasury is prohibited by regulations made under the Emergency Powers (Defence) Acts, 1939 and 1940, it shall not be lawful to exercise the powers of borrowing conferred by virtue of this Act without such consent. [2750]

* * * * *

General note.—The original wording of this section has been amended by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante.

The section empowers the Public Works Loan Commissioners to make loans to local authorities (including the London County Council) towards planning expenditure but no exemption is given from the emergency law as to the control of borrowing.

Public Works Loan Commissioners.—These Commissioners were constituted by s. 4 of the Public Works Loans Act, 1875 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 255), for the purpose of making loans out of moneys issued under that Act. The Commissioners are now appointed by the Crown, and are twelve in number with terms of office of four years, three Commissioners retiring annually (Public Works Loans Act, 1946, s. 4; 39 Halsbury's Statutes 311). They may now lend for any purpose for which, and for any period not exceeding the period for which, a local authority has power to borrow (Local Authorities Loans Act, 1945, s. 2; 38 Halsbury's Statutes 309).

Public Works Loans Act, 1875.—12 Halsbury's Statutes 255 et seq. This Act consolidated and amended the Acts then in force as to loans for public works.

London County Council (Finance Consolidation) Act, 1912.—2 & 3 Geo. 5, c. cv.

Public Works Loans Acts, 1875 to 1882.—These Acts comprise the Public Works Loans Act, 1875 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 255), the Public Works Loans Act, 1879 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 277), and the Public Works Loans Act, 1882 (12 Halsbury's Statutes 279).

Regulations made, etc.—See regulation 6 of the Defence (Finance) Regulations, 1939, S. R. & O., 1939, Nos. 950 and 1620 (as amended). On May 21, 1947, an order was made (S. R. & O., 1947, No. 944) revoking the said regulation 6 except in so far as it related to the making of public offers for sale of domestic securities of bodies corporate. On the same day the Treasury made under s. 1 of the Borrowing (Control and Guarantees) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 314), the Control of Borrowing Order, 1947, S. R. & O., 1947, No. 945 which replaced the revoked provisions of the said regulation 6. See title FINANCE, ante.

Emergency Powers (Defence) Acts, 1939 and 1940.—32 Halsbury's Statutes 930; 33 Halsbury's Statutes 541, 552.

Definitions.—For definitions of "local authority" and "functions," see s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante.

49. Works below high-water mark.—Nothing in the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, shall authorise the execution of any works whether of construction, demolition or alteration on, over or under tidal lands below high-water mark of have been required if the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, had not been passed, and except in accordance with such plans and sections and subject to such restrictions and conditions as, previous to such works being commenced, have been approved by the Minister of Transport. [2751]

General note.—This section as originally enacted has been amended by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante, and here appears in its amended form.

The effect of the section is to make it clear that any necessary consents to works below high-water mark must still be obtained despite the provisions of the 1947 Act.

The Ministry of Town and Country Planning have advised authorities to ascertain in each instance what consents are required, since the departments concerned vary at different parts of the coast (Ministry of Town and Country Planning Circular No. 3/43).

63. Regulations.—(1) In this Act, except where the context otherwise requires, the expression “prescribed” means prescribed by regulations made by the Minister.

(2) Any regulations made under this Act shall be laid before Parliament as soon as may be after they are made, and if either House of Parliament within the period of forty days beginning with the day on which the regulations are laid before that House resolves that the regulations be annulled the regulations shall thereupon become void, without prejudice, however, to the validity of anything previously done thereunder or to the making of new regulations.

In reckoning any such period of forty days as aforesaid no account shall be taken of any time during which Parliament is dissolved or prorogued, or during which both Houses are adjourned for more than four days.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in subsection (4) of section one of the Rules Publication Act, 1893, regulations made under this Act shall be deemed not to be, or to contain, statutory rules to which that section applies. [2752]

Note.—This section is unamended by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante.

The Minister.—The Minister of Town and Country Planning (s. 1 of the 1947 Act, ante).

Effect of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946.—This Act came into full operation on January 1, 1948 (see S.I. 1948 No. 3). The effect of the Act is that documents made after its commencement in exercise of certain statutory powers conferred by Acts passed before its commencement are “statutory instruments” (s. 1 (2); 39 Halsbury’s Statutes 784); such documents require to be laid before Parliament in accordance with the provisions of s. 4 of that Act in substitution for the corresponding provisions of the present section, and the provisions of s. 5 of that Act for annulment in pursuance of resolution of either House of Parliament are substituted for the corresponding provisions of the present section.

Only such documents, however, as are made in exercise of certain statutory powers are to be “statutory instruments”; these powers are identified by reference to the Rules Publication Act, 1893 (18 Halsbury’s Statutes 1016), and are powers conferred on a “rule-making authority” to make “statutory rules,” both of which terms are defined in s. 4 of that Act. A statutory rule means a “rule, regulation, or bye-law made under any Act” by, among others, any government department. Regulations under the present section are therefore “statutory instruments” when made on or after January 1, 1948.

Rules Publication Act, 1893, s. 1 (4).—18 Halsbury’s Statutes 1016. This Act is repealed by s. 12 of the Statutory Instruments Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury’s Statutes 789).

64. Powers of official arbitrator on references to him.—An official arbitrator appointed in accordance with the provisions of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, to whose determination any matter is referred under this Act shall have the like powers with respect to procedure, costs and the statement of special cases as he has under that Act. [2753]

General note.—This section as originally enacted is not amended by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante, but the repeal of certain words forming part of the original section took effect as from August 6, 1947, the date of passing of the 1947 Act, by virtue of ss. 113 and 120 of and Sched. IX, Part I, to that Act, ante.

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919.—2 Halsbury’s Statutes 1176. S. 1 (1) of that Act provides for questions of disputed compensation and other matters to be referred to and determined by the arbitration of one of a panel of official arbitrators selected in accordance with rules made by the appropriate Reference Committee.

As to procedure, costs and statement of special cases, see, in particular, ss. 3, 5 and 6 respectively of the 1919 Act (2 Halsbury’s Statutes 1179, 1180).

65. Interpretation.—(1) In this Act, except where the context otherwise requires, the following expressions have the meanings hereby assigned to them respectively, that is to say—

“appropriate Minister,” in relation to a statutory undertaking, has the same meaning as in the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947;

“development” includes re-development;

"Gazette and local advertisement" means, in relation to an application, order or certificate relating to any land, publication in the London Gazette and, in each of two successive weeks, in one or more newspapers circulating in the locality in which the land is situated ;

"owner," in relation to any building or land, means a person, other than a mortgagee not in possession, who is for the time being entitled to dispose of the fee simple of the building or land, whether in possession or in reversion, and includes also a person holding or entitled to the rents and profits of the building or land under a lease of agreement, the unexpired term whereof exceeds three years ;

"purchasing authority" means a Minister, the Central Land Board, a local authority or any statutory undertakers purchasing under Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947 ;

"statutory undertaking" has the same meaning as in the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947.

(2) References in this Act to any other enactment shall, unless the context otherwise requires, be construed as references to that enactment as amended by this Act or by or under any other enactment.

(3) Words in this Act importing a reference to service of a notice to treat shall be construed as including a reference to the constructive service of such a notice which by virtue of the Sixth Schedule to this Act or of any other enactment, is to be deemed to be served.

(4) Any reference in this Act to the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, or to Part IV of that Act shall be construed as including a reference to any provisions of this Act incorporated with the said Part IV. [2754]

General note.—Several amendments to this section as originally enacted have been effected by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante. In addition, a number of the definitions appearing in the original section have been repealed as from the appointed day by virtue of ss. 113 and 120 of and Sched. IX, Part II, to the 1947 Act, ante. The section here appears in its modified form. The appointed day is July 1, 1948 (S.I. 1948 No. 213).

Appropriate Minister.—By s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante, this expression means :—

"(a) in relation to statutory undertakers carrying on an undertaking for the supply of electricity, gas or hydraulic power, the Minister of Fuel and Power ;

"(b) in relation to statutory undertakers carrying on an undertaking for the supply of water, the Minister of Health ; and

"(c) in relation to any other statutory undertakers as defined by this Act, the Minister of Transport."

Development.—The definition appearing in this section is not exhaustive. Note the definition of the term in s. 12 of the 1947 Act, ante.

Owner.—Compare this definition with that in s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante. The phrase "lease of agreement," which appears in the King's Printer's copy, is obviously a misprint for "lease or agreement."

Purchasing authority.—As to "a Minister," "local authority" and "statutory undertakers," see s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante. For the constitution of the Central Land Board, see s. 2 of that Act, ante.

Statutory undertaking.—S. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante, defines "statutory undertakers" as "persons authorised by any enactment to carry on any railway, light railway, tramway, road transport, water transport, canal, inland navigation, dock, harbour, pier or lighthouse undertaking, or any undertaking for the supply of electricity, gas, hydraulic power or water," and enacts that "statutory undertaking" is to be construed accordingly.

Enactment.—See s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante.

Sub-s. (4).—This subsection, inserted by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante, is new.

66. Short title and extent.—(1) This Act may be cited as the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944.

(2) This Act shall not extend to Scotland or to Northern Ireland. [2755]

General note.—This short section is unamended and no part of it has been repealed by the 1947 Act, ante.

TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING ACT, 1944

Section 114

FIRST SCHEDULE

PROCEDURE FOR DEALING WITH OBJECTIONS UNDER SECTIONS 26 AND 27

1.—(1) The following provisions of this Schedule shall have effect where an objection is duly made to the making of an order under section twenty-six or twenty-seven of this Act, and is not withdrawn.

(2) An objection shall not be deemed for the purposes of any of the said enactments or of this Schedule to be duly made unless—

- (a) it is made within the time and in the manner specified in the notice required by the relevant enactment referred to in the preceding sub-paragraph, and
- (b) the objection comprises, or there is submitted therewith, a statement in writing of the grounds thereof.

(3) In this Schedule, the expression "the Minister" means the Minister or Ministers having jurisdiction to make or confirm the order in question.

2. Unless the Minister decides apart from the objection not to make or confirm the order, or decides to make a modification agreed to by the person making the objection as meeting the objection, the Minister shall, before deciding whether to make or confirm the order, or what modification if any ought to be made, consider the grounds of the objection as set out in the statement, and may, if he thinks fit, require the person making the objection to submit within a specified period a further statement in writing as to any of the matters to which the objection relates.

3. In so far as the Minister is satisfied, after considering the grounds of the objection as set out in the original statement and any such further statement, that the objection relates to a matter which can be dealt with by an arbitrator by whom compensation is to be assessed, the Minister may treat the objection as irrelevant for the purpose of his deciding as aforesaid.

4. If after considering the grounds of the objection as set out in the original statement and any such further statement, the Minister is satisfied that he is sufficiently informed, for the purpose of his deciding as aforesaid, as to the matters to which the objection relates, or if where a further statement has been required it is not submitted within the specified period, the Minister may decide as aforesaid without further investigation as to those matters.

5. Subject as mentioned in the two last preceding paragraphs, the Minister shall, before deciding as aforesaid, afford to the person making the objection an opportunity of appearing before and being heard by a person appointed for the purpose by the Minister, and if he avails himself thereof the Minister shall afford an opportunity of appearing and being heard on the same occasion to the authority or other person (if any) making the application or representation or submitting the order in question and to any other persons to whom it appears to the Minister to be expedient to afford it.

6. Notwithstanding anything in paragraphs 2 to 5 of this Schedule, if it appears to the Minister that the matters to which the objection relates are such as to require investigation by public local inquiry before he decides as aforesaid, he shall cause such an inquiry to be held, and where he determines to cause such an inquiry to be held any of the requirements of those paragraphs to which effect has not been given at the time when he so determines shall be dispensed with. [2756]

General note.—This Schedule here appears (a) as slightly amended by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante; and (b) after allowing for the repeals taking effect as from July 1, 1948, by virtue of ss. 113 and 120 of and Sched. IX, Part II, to that Act.

The provisions of this Schedule are relevant to the extension and modification of the powers and duties of statutory undertakers (s. 26 of the 1947 Act, ante) and the relief of statutory undertakers from obligations rendered impracticable by the exercise of powers under the 1947 Act (s. 27 of the 1944 Act, ante).

Duly made.—See para. 1 (2), supra. The importance of seeing that an objection is "duly made" is stressed. The Minister cannot dispense with or relax the requirements of this sub-paragraph and an objection which is not "duly made" cannot be considered.

Grounds of the objection.—These should comprise a fair statement of all the matters on which the objector relies (cf. Estate and Trust Agencies (1927), Ltd. v. Singapore Improvement Trust, [1937] A. C. 898; [1937] 3 All E. R. 324, at p. 331). The grounds of objection will, as a rule, fall under two heads:

- (1) Legal points; and
- (2) Grounds going to the merits of the case.

Obviously in order to ascertain whether any legal grounds are open to the objector, it will be necessary to study the relevant provisions of the Act very carefully and to scrutinise the procedure adopted by the authority making the order to see if there has been due compliance with all conditions precedent.

With regard to objections relating to the merits of the case, the maxim that "private interests must yield to the public good" must always be borne in mind. An objection is only likely to succeed if it can be shown that it is in the public interest that it should succeed. There may, however, be rare cases in which an objection will succeed on the ground that the proposed order, if made or confirmed, would cause the objector great hardship.

The Minister.—This definition is important. If objections have to be lodged with "the Minister," it will mean "the Minister" as defined by this Schedule.

Modification.—See Minister of Health v. R., Ex parte Yaffe, [1931] A. C. 494.

If he thinks fit : in so far as the Minister is satisfied.—See note to s. 4 of the 1947 Act, ante, on the phrase "If it appears to the Minister."

Can be dealt with by an arbitrator.—It is therefore useless to object to a compulsory purchase order on the ground that the compensation offered by the acquiring authority is inadequate.

For the purposes of his deciding as aforesaid.—I.e., for the purpose of deciding whether to make or confirm the order or what modification, if any, ought to be made (para. 2, ante).

Without further investigation of those matters.—I.e., without further investigation of the matters to which the objection relates.

In the circumstances mentioned in para. 4, ante, the Minister may decide "as aforesaid" without affording the objector an opportunity of appearing before and being heard by a person appointed for the purpose by him (para. 5, ante) or without holding a local inquiry (para. 6, ante).

Although the Minister may decide the matter without affording the objector an oral hearing, in so deciding he is still required to act "judicially." This means that :—

1. He must act in good faith and fairly ;
2. He must give the objector and any other party to the controversy a fair opportunity for correcting or contradicting any relevant statement prejudicial to his point of view ; and
3. He ought not to view property in the company of one party without giving the other party an opportunity of being present (Errington v. Minister of Health, [1935] 1 K. B. 249).

Para. 5.—Whether the hearing mentioned in this paragraph will take the form of a local inquiry or not (see para. 6, ante) will depend on the circumstances. A person appointed by the Minister or an inspector holding a local inquiry on behalf of the Minister is not a court of law bound by the rules of procedure relating to such courts. As no procedure is prescribed he can determine his own procedure (Board of Education v. Rice, [1911] A. C. 179). The Minister may decide any question of law as well as of fact arising in the course of the proceedings (Board of Education v. Rice, supra). The Minister need not give reasons for his decision (Broadbent v. Rotherham Corpn. (No. 2) (1918), 87 L. J. (Ch.) 308) and he need not disclose the report of the person who hears the parties, or that of an inspector acting on his behalf (Local Government Board v. Arlidge, [1915] A. C. 120) ; Denby (William) & Sons, Ltd. v. Minister of Health, [1936] 1 K. B. 337).

Public local inquiry.—As to public local inquiries, see the notes to s. 104 of the 1947 Act, ante.

TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING ACT, 1944

FOURTH SCHEDULE

ASSESSMENT OF COMPENSATION TO STATUTORY UNDERTAKERS

PART I

Amount of Compensation

1. The compensation to be paid—

- (a) in respect of any decision given under paragraph 1 of the Fifth Schedule to the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, refusing permission to develop operational land or granting such permission subject to conditions ;
- (b) in respect of any decision given by a government department under paragraph 2 of that Schedule refusing the authorisation of that department in respect of any development of such land, or directing that permission to develop such land shall be deemed to be granted subject to conditions ;
- (c) in respect of any order made under paragraph 3 of that Schedule revoking or modifying permission to develop such land ;
- (d) in respect of any order made under paragraph 4 of that Schedule in relation to such land ;
- (e) in respect of the extinguishment of any right or the imposition of any requirement, under section twenty-five of this Act as applied for the purposes of Part IV of the said Act ;
- (f) in respect of any such compulsory purchase as is mentioned in subsection (5) of section forty-five of the said Act ;

shall in default of agreement be assessed by the arbitration of the tribunal constituted in accordance with the provisions of Part II of this Schedule, and the amount of the compensation shall be an amount calculated in accordance with the provisions of the next following paragraph :

Provided that, as respects compensation in respect of a compulsory purchase, if, before the expiration of two months from the date on which notice to treat is served in respect of the interest of the person by whom the statutory undertaking is carried on, that person gives notice in writing to the purchasing authority that he elects that as respects all or any of the land comprised in the purchase the compensation shall be ascertained in accordance with the enactments, other than rule (5) of the rules set out in section two of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, which would be applicable apart from the provisions of this Schedule, the compensation shall be so ascertained.

2.—(1) The amount of the said compensation shall, subject to the provisions of this paragraph, be the aggregate of the following amounts, that is to say,—

- (a) the amount of any expenditure reasonably incurred in acquiring land, providing apparatus, erecting buildings or doing work for the purpose of any adjustment of the carrying on of the undertaking rendered necessary by the proceeding giving rise to compensation ; and
- (b) where any such adjustment is made, the estimated amount of any decrease in net receipts from the carrying on of the undertaking pending the adjustment, in so far as the decrease is directly attributable to the said proceeding, together with such amount as appears reasonable compensation for any estimated decrease in net receipts from the carrying on of the undertaking in the period after the adjustment has been completed, in so far as the decrease is directly attributable to the adjustment ; or
- (c) where no such adjustment is made, such amount as appears reasonable compensation for any estimated decrease in net receipts from the carrying on of the undertaking which is directly attributable to the proceeding giving rise to compensation ; and
- (d) in the case of compensation in respect of the imposition of a requirement under section twenty-five of this Act to remove any apparatus, any expense reasonably incurred by the person carrying on the undertaking in complying with the requirement, reduced by the value after removal of the apparatus removed.

(2) The amount of any compensation assessed in accordance with the preceding sub-paragraph shall be reduced by such amount (if any) as appears to the tribunal to be appropriate to offset—

- (a) the estimated value of any property (whether moveable or immoveable) belonging to the person carrying on the statutory undertaking in question and used for the carrying on thereof which as the result of any such adjustment as is mentioned in the preceding sub-paragraph ceases to be so used, in so far as the value of the property has not been taken into account under head (d) of the preceding sub-paragraph ; and
- (b) the estimated amount of any increase in net receipts from the carrying on of the undertaking in the period after any such adjustment has been completed, in so far as that amount has not been taken into account under head (b) of the preceding sub-paragraph and is directly attributable to the adjustment, and by any further amount which appears to the tribunal to be appropriate having regard to any increase in the capital value of immoveable property belonging to the person carrying on the statutory undertaking in question which is directly attributable to any such adjustment as aforesaid, allowance being made for any reduction made under head (b) of this sub-paragraph.

(3) References in this paragraph to a decrease in net receipts shall be construed as references to the amount by which a balance of receipts over expenditure is decreased, or of expenditure over receipts is increased, or, where a balance of receipts over expenditure is converted into a balance of expenditure over receipts, as references to the aggregate of the two balances ; and references to an increase in net receipts shall be construed accordingly.

(4) In this paragraph the expression “ proceeding giving rise to compensation ” means the particular action (that is to say, purchase, extinguishment of a right, imposition of a requirement, refusal of permission, grant of permission subject to conditions, or revocation or modification of permission or order under paragraph 4 of the Fifth Schedule to the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947) in respect of which compensation falls to be assessed, as distinct from any development or project in connection with which the action in question may have been taken.

PART II

Tribunal for assessment of compensation to statutory undertakers

3.—(1) The tribunal for the assessment of compensation referred to in Part I of this Schedule shall consist of four persons, namely—

- (a) a barrister or solicitor of not less than seven years' standing, appointed by the Lord Chancellor to act as chairman ;
- (b) two persons appointed by the Minister as persons having special knowledge and experience of the valuation of land and of civil engineering respectively; and
- (c) for each claim coming before the tribunal, a person selected by the appropriate Minister, as a person having special knowledge and experience of statutory undertakings of the kind carried on by the claimant, from the members of a panel appointed by appropriate Ministers of persons appearing to them to have such knowledge and experience of statutory undertakings.

(2) The Treasury may pay out of moneys provided by Parliament to the members of the tribunal such remuneration (whether by way of salaries or by way of fees), and such allowances, as the Treasury may determine.

(3) The provisions of sections three, five and six of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, shall apply in relation to the tribunal and proceedings before the tribunal as they apply in relation to an official arbitrator and proceedings before an official arbitrator, with the substitution for references in the said section five to the acquiring authority of references to the person from whom compensation is claimed and with the modification that rules regulating the procedure before the tribunal shall be made by the Lord Chancellor. [2757]

General note.—It may be convenient to consider both parts of this Schedule together. The Schedule as it here appears has been amended by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante, in particular by the insertion of new paragraphs (a) to (f) in para. 1, ante.

In the cases listed in those paragraphs the compensation to be paid to statutory undertakers is to be assessed by the specialised arbitration tribunal provided for by Part II of the Schedule, supra, but without prejudice to agreement between the parties. In practice, agreement as to compensation will be possible in a large proportion of the cases arising.

Para. 2 in Part I of the Schedule, ante, sets out the formula to be applied in assessing the actual amount of the compensation payable, though in cases of compulsory purchase to which the Schedule applies a limited right of election is allowed by the proviso to para. 1, ante.

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, s. 2, Rule (5).—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1178. This Rule, which deals with reinstatement in the case of special land, reads as follows :—

“Where land is, and but for the compulsory acquisition would continue to be, devoted to a purpose of such a nature that there is no general demand or market for land for that purpose, the compensation may, if the official arbitrator is satisfied that reinstatement in some other place is bona fide intended, be assessed on the basis of the reasonable cost of equivalent reinstatement.”

Proceeding giving rise to compensation.—Note the definition of the term in para. 2 (4), ante.

Immoveable property.—In Canada a gas main laid in the earth has been held to be an “immoveable” (Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated v. Outremont (City), [1932] A. C. 423).

In another case the existence of a building immoveable by nature was said to involve two things, namely, the existence of a structure and that such structure is incorporated with or adherent to the soil (Bell Telephone Co. of Canada v. St. Laurent (Ville), [1936] A. C. 73, P. C.).

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, ss. 3, 5 and 6.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1179, 1180. These are the provisions as to procedure, costs and statement of special cases applied in another connection by s. 64 of the 1944 Act, ante.

Definitions.—As to “develop,” see s. 65 (1) of the 1944 Act, ante, and ss. 12 and 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante; as to “statutory undertaking,” see s. 65 (1) of the 1944 Act, ante, and s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante; and as to “purchasing authority” and “appropriate Minister,” see s. 65 (1) of the 1944 Act, ante. For definitions of “operational land,” “government department,” “land,” “enactment,” “erect” and “building,” see s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante.

FIFTH SCHEDULE

MODIFICATIONS OF ACQUISITION OF LAND (ASSESSMENT OF COMPENSATION) ACT, 1919

9.—(1) As respects any house in the area of a local authority for the purposes of the provisions of Part III of the Housing Act, 1936, relating to clearance areas, which in their opinion is unfit for human habitation and not capable at reasonable expense of being rendered so fit, and which is comprised—

- (a) in land designated by a development plan under the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, as subject to compulsory acquisition; or
- (b) in land which is proposed to be acquired compulsorily under subsection (2) of section thirty-seven or subsection (2) of section thirty-eight of that Act;

the local authority for the purposes of the said provisions of the said Part III may make and submit to the Minister of Health an order in such form as may be prescribed by regulations made by the said Minister under section one hundred and seventy-six of the Housing Act, 1936, declaring the house to be in that state, and, if the order is confirmed by him, the compensation to be paid for the house on a compulsory purchase thereof pursuant to any authorisation given under Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, by the Minister having jurisdiction to give such authorisation, either before or within two years after the confirmation by the Minister of Health of the order submitted under this paragraph, shall be assessed in like manner as if it had been land purchased compulsorily under the said Part III of the Housing Act, 1936, as being comprised in a clearance area, and the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, shall accordingly have effect, in its application for the purposes of Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, subject to this provision.

(2) Before submitting an order under this paragraph to the Minister of Health, the local authority shall serve on every owner, and, so far as it is reasonably practicable to ascertain such persons, on every mortgagee, of the house or of any part thereof, a notice in such form as may be prescribed as mentioned in the preceding sub-paragraph, stating the effect of the order and that it is about to be submitted to the said Minister for confirmation, and specifying the time within which, and the manner in which, objection thereto can be made.

(3) If no objection is duly made by any of the persons on whom notices are required to be served, or if all objections so made are withdrawn, the said Minister may, if he thinks fit, confirm the order, but in any other case he shall before confirming the order consider any objection not withdrawn and shall, if either the person by whom the objection was made or the local authority so desire, afford that person and the authority an opportunity of appearing before and being heard by a person appointed by the said Minister for the purpose, and may then, if he thinks fit, confirm the order.

(4) Where the provisions of sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph have effect as to the compensation to be paid for a house on a compulsory purchase thereof under Part IV of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, the provisions of section forty-two of the Housing Act, 1936 (which relate to payments in respect of well-maintained houses) shall have effect, as they have effect where a house is made the subject of a compulsory purchase order under the said Part III of the Housing Act, 1936, as being unfit for human habitation, if the Minister of Health is satisfied as mentioned in that section on a representation made to him by a person who would be entitled to any payment under that section or to a share thereof within three months from his first becoming aware that a notice to treat for the purchase of any interest in the house has been served:

Provided that, in the application of that section for the purposes of this sub-paragraph, there shall be substituted, for references therein to the local authority therein mentioned and to the order therein mentioned, references respectively to the purchasing authority and to the order by which the purchase of the house is authorised.

(5) In this paragraph the expression "house" has the same meaning as in the Housing Act, 1936, and in determining for the purposes of this paragraph whether a house is fit for human habitation regard shall be had to the matters to which regard is required by that Act to be had in determining that question for the purposes of that Act, and sections one hundred and fifty-seven and one hundred and fifty-eight of that Act (which relate to the surveying and examination of land) shall have effect as if the powers conferred by this paragraph were powers under that Act. [2758]

General note.—By ss. 113 and 120 of and Sched. IX, Part II, to the 1947 Act, ante, paras. 1 to 8 and 10 of this Schedule are repealed as from the appointed day and accordingly none of these paragraphs appears in the text. In addition, s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante, make a number of amendments, mostly of a minor character, to the remaining para. 9 which appears in the text in its amended form. The appointed day is July 1 1948.

The Schedule as it now stands modifies the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176), by empowering local authorities to submit orders to the Minister of Health declaring houses in their area to be unfit for human habitation and incapable of being rendered fit for such habitation at reasonable expense. If the order is confirmed by that Minister the compensation payable is to be assessed as for land in a clearance area being compulsorily purchased under Part III of the Housing Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 584 et seq.). Authorisation to purchase compulsorily is to be given by the appropriate Minister either before or within two years after the Minister of Health's confirmation. Provision is made for service of notices, objections and other matters.

House.—Para. 9 (5), ante, applies for the purposes of this Schedule the definition of the term "house" in the Housing Act, 1936 (29 Halsbury's Statutes 565 et seq.). By s. 188 (1) of that Act (29 Halsbury's Statutes 681) "house" includes any yard, garden, outhouses, and appurtenances belonging thereto or usually enjoyed therewith.

As to the meaning of "house," see also Re Bainbridge, South Shields (D'Arcy Street) Compulsory Purchase Order, 1937, [1939] 1 K. B. 500; [1939] 1 All E. R. 419 (shop and living-rooms) and Re Butler, Camberwell (Wingfield Mews) No. 2 Clearance Order, 1936, [1939] 1 K. B. 570; [1939] 1 All E. R. 590 (news).

Part III of the Housing Act, 1936.—29 Halsbury's Statutes 584 et seq. This Part of the Act, which comprises ss. 25 to 56, inclusive, deals with clearance and re-development.

For ss. 42, 157, 158 and 176 of the same Act, see 29 Halsbury's Statutes 599, 668, 669, 676.

Unfit for human habitation.—For notes on this phrase and as to the law relating to clearance areas generally, see Hill's Complete Law of Housing (Fourth Edition).

Designated as subject to compulsory acquisition.—See ss. 5 (2) and 37 et seq. of the 1947 Act, ante.

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176.

The said Minister.—That is, the Minister of Health.

If he thinks fit; if the Minister of Health is satisfied.—See the note to s. 4 of the 1947 Act on the phrase "If it appears to the Minister."

Opportunity of appearing before and being heard.—This need not take the form of a public local inquiry.

Definitions.—As to "development plan," see ss. 5 and 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante. For definition of "local authority," see s. 119 (1) of the 1947 Act, ante, and for that of "purchasing authority," see s. 65 (1) of the 1944 Act, ante.

TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING ACT, 1944

SIXTH SCHEDULE

PROCEDURE FOR COMPLETION OF COMPULSORY PURCHASE UNDER ORDERS PROVIDING FOR EXPEDITED COMPLETION

PART I

Procedure for expedited completion

1.—(1) Except as provided by sub-paragraph (3) of this paragraph, when a purchasing order providing for expedited completion has come into operation, the Lands Clauses Acts and the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, shall have effect as if a notice to treat (that is to say, such a notice as is mentioned in section eighteen of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845) had been served on every person on whom the purchasing authority could under the terms of that section (and on the assumption of their requiring to purchase or take all the land as respects which this Schedule applies by virtue of the order, and of their having knowledge of all parties referred to in that section) have served such a notice.

(2) The date on which a notice to treat is to be deemed by virtue of the preceding sub-paragraph to have been served on any party in respect of any interest in land shall be the date on which the order is registered in the register of local land charges by the proper officer of the council mentioned in subsection (2) of section thirty-nine of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1947, in whose area that land is situated.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph, no notice to treat shall be deemed to be served on any person in respect of an interest being either—

- (a) a minor tenancy (that is to say a tenancy for a year or from year to year or any less interest); or
- (b) a long tenancy which is about to expire (that is to say, a tenancy granted for an interest greater than a minor tenancy but having, at the date when apart from this provision notice to treat would be deemed by virtue of the said sub-paragraph (1) to be served on the owner of the tenancy, still to run only such period longer than a year as may be specified in the order for the purposes of the operation of this provision in relation to the land in which the tenancy subsists, the period which the tenancy has then still to run being ascertained on the assumption that the tenant will exercise any option to renew the tenancy, and will not exercise any option to determine the tenancy, then or thereafter available to him, and that the landlord will exercise any option to determine the tenancy then or thereafter available to him).

(4) The reference in sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph to the Lands Clauses Acts and the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, is to those enactments as modified by the Second Schedule to the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, by the Fifth Schedule to this Act, and by paragraph 8 and Part II of this Schedule.

2. The notice of the confirmation of an order authorising compulsory purchase required by the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, to be published shall, in the case of a purchase order providing for expedited completion, include a notification to the effect that every person entitled to claim compensation in respect of any of the land as respects which this Schedule applies by virtue of the order, or in respect of any interest in any such land, is invited to give information to the purchasing authority in such form as may be prescribed of his name and address and of the land and interest in question.

3.—(1) At any time or from time to time after the coming into operation of a purchase order providing for expedited completion, but not earlier than such time as is mentioned in sub-paragraph (2) of this paragraph, the purchasing authority may execute, as respects an area consisting either of the whole or a part of the land as respects which this Schedule applies by virtue of the order, a declaration designating that area and stating—

- (a) their intention to enter on the land in the designated area and take possession thereof at the expiration of such period (not being less than fourteen days) as may be specified therein from the date on which the service of notices on occupiers required by sub-paragraph (3) of this paragraph is completed ; and
- (b) that the land in the designated area is to vest in the authority at the expiration of that period.

(2) The earliest time at which such a declaration may be executed shall be the expiration of two months from the date of first publication of the notice of confirmation of the order required by the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, to be published :

Provided that the order may provide for the substitution of a period longer or shorter than two months for the purposes of the operation of this sub-paragraph as respects any land, so however, that provision for the substitution of a shorter period shall not be so made in relation to any land unless the order as submitted made such provision in relation thereto.

(3) As soon as may be after executing such a declaration the purchasing authority shall serve upon every occupier of any of the land in the area designated thereby (other than any of the land therein in which a minor tenancy, or a long tenancy which is about to expire, is subsisting), and on every other person who has given information to the authority in relation to any of the land therein pursuant to such invitation as is mentioned in paragraph 2 of this Schedule, a notice describing that area and stating the effect of the declaration.

(4) At the expiration of the period specified in such a declaration from the date on which the service of notices on occupiers required by the last preceding sub-paragraph is completed (as to which date a certificate given by the purchasing authority shall be conclusive)—

- (a) there shall vest in the purchasing authority the right to enter on and take possession of the land in the area designated by the declaration or any of it without previous consent or compliance with sections eighty-four to ninety of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 ; and
- (b) the land in the area designated by the declaration shall vest in the purchasing authority as if the circumstances in which under that Act the promoters of an undertaking have powers to execute a deed poll for vesting in them lands or any estate or interest in lands, or for the extinguishment of, or of a portion of, any rent service, rentcharge, chief or other rent, payment or incumbrance, had arisen as regards all the said land and, subject to the next succeeding sub-paragraph, as regards all interests therein, and the authority had duly exercised those powers accordingly at the expiration of the said period ;

but the purchasing authority shall be liable to pay the like compensation for the said land, and interest on the compensation agreed or awarded, as they would have been required to pay if the provisions of sections eighty-four to ninety of the said Act, and the provisions thereof compliance with which would have been requisite in order to render the said powers exercisable by them, had been complied with.

(5) Notwithstanding anything in sub-paragraph (1) or (4) of this paragraph, the following provisions shall have effect as respects land in an area designated by a declaration made under sub-paragraph (1) of this paragraph in which a minor tenancy, or a long tenancy which is about to expire, is subsisting, that is to say—

(a) in the case of a minor tenancy, the right of entry conferred by sub-paragraph (4) of this paragraph shall not be exercisable and the vesting of the land in the authority shall be subject to the tenancy during its subsistence, but without prejudice to any power to require a tenant to give up possession exercisable by the purchasing authority by virtue of the Lands Clauses Acts ;

(b) in the case of a long tenancy which is about to expire, the right of entry conferred by sub-paragraph (4) of this paragraph shall not be exercisable unless or until the purchasing authority have served notice to treat in respect of the tenancy and they have thereafter served a notice upon every occupier of any of the land in which the tenancy subsists describing the land to which the notice relates and stating their intention to enter on and to take possession thereof at the expiration of such period (not being less than fourteen days) from the date on which the notice is served as may be therein specified, and that period has expired, and the vesting of the land in the authority shall be subject to the tenancy until the expiration of that period or the cesser of the tenancy, whichever first occurs.

(6) Every notice of the confirmation of a purchase order providing for expedited completion required by the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, to be published shall refer to the provisions as to entry and vesting contained in sub-paragraph (4) of this paragraph.

(4) Where the land as respects which this Schedule applies by virtue of a purchase order providing for expedited completion comprises part only of any house, building or manufactory, or of a park or garden belonging to a house, then if at any time after the coming into operation of the order and before the making of a declaration under the last preceding paragraph as respects the said part any person having an interest therein in respect of which a notice to treat would otherwise be deemed by virtue of this Schedule to have been served gives notice to the purchasing authority in that behalf, no notice to treat shall be deemed by virtue of this Schedule to have been served in respect of any interest in the said part, and as from the giving of the notice the order shall have effect in relation to the said part as if this Schedule had not been applied thereto.

5.—(1) Where the compensation payable in respect of an interest which becomes vested in a purchasing authority by virtue of paragraph 3 of this Schedule is not finally ascertained at the time of such vesting, section twelve of the Finance Act, 1895, (which provides for the collection of stamp duty, where property is vested by way of sale by virtue of an Act, within three months from the date of vesting) shall have effect, as respects the vesting of that interest, with the substitution for the reference therein to the date of vesting of a reference to the date on which the compensation has become finally ascertained.

(2) Where after the vesting in a purchasing authority under paragraph 3 of this Schedule of any land a person retains possession of any document relating to the title to the land, he shall be deemed to have given to the authority an acknowledgment in writing of the right of the authority to production of that document and to delivery of copies thereof, and (except where he retains possession of the document as mortgagee or as trustee or otherwise in a fiduciary capacity) an undertaking for safe custody thereof, and section sixty-four of the Law of Property Act, 1925, shall have effect accordingly, and on the basis that the acknowledgment and undertaking did not contain any such expression of contrary intention as is mentioned in that section.

PART II

Adjustments where provision for expedited completion made

6.—(1) The time within which a question of disputed compensation arising out of an acquisition of an interest in land in respect of which a notice to treat is deemed to have been served by virtue of this Schedule may be referred to arbitration shall be the expiration of six years from the date at which the person claiming compensation or a person under whom he derives title first knew, or could reasonably be expected to have known, of the vesting of the interest by virtue of paragraph 3 of this Schedule.

(2) This paragraph shall be construed as one with Part I of the Limitation Act, 1939.

7. The power conferred by subsection (2) of section five of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919, or that subsection as applied by paragraph 3 of the Fourth Schedule to this Act, to withdraw a notice to treat shall, in the case of a notice to treat which is deemed to have been served by virtue of this Schedule, not be exercisable at any time after the vesting by virtue of paragraph 3 of this Schedule of the interest in respect of which the notice is deemed to have been served.

8. In relation to a compulsory purchase authorised by a purchase order providing for expedited completion, being a purchase of an interest in respect of which a notice to treat is deemed to have been served by virtue of this Schedule, the following sections of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, shall be excepted from the incorporation of that Act with the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, that is to say, sections fifty-eight to sixty-two and sixty-four to sixty-seven (which relate to the mode of ascertaining compensation to absent parties), section ninety-two (which relates to sales of parts of buildings) and sections one hundred and twenty-four to one hundred and twenty-six (which relate to interests which have by mistake been omitted to be purchased).

9.—(1) Where any of the land as respects which this Schedule applies by virtue of a purchase order providing for expedited completion constitutes a part only of land charged with a rentcharge, the following provisions of this paragraph shall have effect.

(2) Any question as to the apportionment mentioned in section one hundred and sixteen of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, shall be referred and determined as mentioned in section one of the Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919.

(3) Such portion of the rentcharge as may be apportioned under the said section one hundred and sixteen to the land as respects which this Schedule applies by virtue of the order shall be treated as having been extinguished by virtue of paragraph 3 of this Schedule on the vesting of that land in the purchasing authority under that paragraph, and sections one hundred and fifteen to one hundred and eighteen of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, shall have effect as if the extinguishment had taken place under section one hundred and seventeen thereof:

Provided that if the person entitled to the rentcharge and the owner of the land subject thereto enter into an agreement to that effect, the said sections one hundred and fifteen to one hundred and eighteen shall have effect as if the person entitled to the rentcharge had released therefrom the land as respects which this Schedule applies by virtue of the order, on the condition mentioned in the said section one hundred and sixteen, at the time of the vesting of that land in the purchasing authority under paragraph 3 of this Schedule, and in that case none of the rentcharge shall be treated as having been extinguished by virtue of that paragraph so far as regards the remaining part of the land charged therewith.

(4) In this paragraph references to a rentcharge include references to any such rent service, chief or other rent, or other payment or incumbrance as is mentioned in the words introductory to the said sections one hundred and fifteen to one hundred and eighteen.

10. Where any of the land as respects which this Schedule applies by virtue of a purchase order providing for expedited completion constitutes a part only of land comprised in a lease for a term of years unexpired, section one hundred and nineteen of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845, shall have effect subject to the modification that for references therein to the time of the apportionment of rent therein mentioned there shall be substituted references to the time of the vesting in the purchasing authority of the leasehold interest in the first-mentioned land under paragraph 3 of this Schedule.

11. Any person who in consequence of the vesting of any land in the authority by virtue of paragraph 3 of this Schedule is relieved from any liability, whether in respect of a rentcharge, rent under a lease, mortgage interest or any other matter, and who makes any payment as in satisfaction or part satisfaction of that liability shall, if he shows that when he made the payment he did not know of the facts which constitute the cause of his being so relieved or of some one or more of them, be entitled to recover the sum paid as money had and received to his use by the person to whom it was paid. [2759]

General note.—Both Parts of this, the last Schedule, may conveniently be considered together. The Schedule as originally enacted is amended by s. 113 of and Sched. VIII to the 1947 Act, ante, though the amendments are of a minor character. In particular, references to the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 52), which became law after the passing of the 1944 Act, are incorporated in the text.

By ss. 113 and 120 of and Sched. IX, Part I, to the 1947 Act, ante, certain partial repeals are effected as from August 6, 1947, the date of passing of that Act. In addition, by the same sections and Sched. IX, Part II, para. 12 of this Schedule is repealed as from the appointed day (see ss. 119 and 120 of the 1947 Act, ante). The appointed day is July 1, 1948.

S. 39 of the 1947 Act, ante, provides that the expedited completion procedure of this Schedule is to be available in cases of acquisition under s. 38 of that Act, ante.

The present Schedule is also relevant to s. 119 (3) of the 1947 Act, ante, whereby words in that Act importing a reference to service of a notice to treat are to be construed as including a reference to the constructive service of such a notice which, by virtue of this Schedule or of any other enactment, is to be deemed to have been served. Similar provisions appear in the 1944 Act (see s. 65 (3) thereof, ante) and the present Schedule is consequently relevant also to that provision.

The procedure under the Schedule is to be by means of a purchasing order for expedited completion. By para. 1, ante, if an order is made it is to be registered in the local land charges register; the date of registration is to become the notional date of service of a notice to treat, and the notice is to be deemed to have been served on the persons who could have been served under s. 18 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1120).

The notice of confirmation of the order required by the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946, is to include a notification inviting all persons entitled to claim compensation to inform the acquiring authority of their names and addresses and interests (para. 2, ante).

After two months from publication of the notice of confirmation (or after a shorter period, if such is specially sought in the order and approved by the Minister) the acquiring authority may make a declaration as to the whole or part of the land in the order, stating:—

- (a) That they intend to enter and take possession at the expiry of a certain period; and
- (b) That the land is to vest in the authority at the expiry of that period.

The certain period referred to in (a), supra, is to be a period of not less than fourteen days from the service of notices as to the effect of the declaration on every occupier of the land and every person who has provided information in answer to the invitation published in the notice of confirmation of the order. At the expiry of that period the land will vest in the acquiring authority and, subject to the liability to pay compensation, all interests, except minor tenancies and long tenancies about to expire, will be extinguished (para. 3, ante).

The notional notice to treat cannot, by para. 7, ante, be withdrawn after such vesting.

"Minor tenancies" are tenancies for a year or from year to year or a less interest. "Long tenancies about to expire" are to be for such period, longer than one year, as may be specified in the order. In the case of minor tenancies, the acquiring authority may obtain possession in accordance with s. 121 of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1156), if possession is required before the expiration of the interest. In the case of a long tenancy about to expire, possession, if required, may be obtained after fourteen days' notice.

Para. 4, ante, excludes the acquisition of part of premises if notice is given between the coming into operation of the order and the making of the declaration by the acquiring authority.

For the purpose of s. 12 of the Finance Act, 1895 (16 Halsbury's Statutes 690), for the ascertainment of stamp duty there is to be substituted for the date of vesting a reference to the date on which compensation is finally ascertained (para. 5 (1), ante).

Where, after vesting, any document of title is retained by any person, he is to be deemed to have given to the acquiring authority an acknowledgment of the right to production of the document and to delivery of copies and an undertaking for safe custody thereof, and s. 64 of the Law of Property Act, 1925 (15 Halsbury's Statutes 241), is to have effect on the basis that the acknowledgment and undertaking did not contain any expression of contrary intention as is mentioned in that section (para. 5 (2), ante).

By para. 6, ante, cases of disputed compensation are not to be referred to arbitration after six years from the date when the claimant or his predecessor first knew or could be expected to know of the vesting.

The remaining paragraphs provide for the application of the Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (2 Halsbury's Statutes 1113), only subject to certain savings (para. 8, ante); for cases of acquisition of part only of land subject to a rentcharge (para. 9, ante) or an unexpired lease for a term of years (para. 10, ante), and for the recovery of certain moneys paid by persons in ignorance of their relief from liability by the vesting of land under the purchase order procedure of the present Schedule (para. 11, ante).

Lands Clauses Acts.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1113 et seq.

Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176. For ss. 1 and 5 (2) thereof, see 2 Halsbury's Statutes 1176, 1179.

Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845.—2 Halsbury's Statutes 1113 et seq. For ss. 58 to 62, 64 to 67, 84 to 90, 92, 115 to 118, 119 and 124 to 126, see 2 Halsbury's Statutes 1132 et seq., 1133 et seq., 1142 et seq., 1145, 1154 et seq., 1155, 1157 et seq.

Purchasing authority.—This means a Minister, the Central Land Board, a local authority or any statutory undertakers purchasing under Part IV of the 1947 Act, ante (see s. 65 (1) of the 1944 Act, ante).

Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946.—39 Halsbury's Statutes 52. For Sched. II thereto, see 39 Halsbury's Statutes 66.

Para. 4.—The provisions of this paragraph may usefully be compared with those of para. 4 of Sched. II, Part I, to the Acquisition of Land (Authorisation Procedure) Act, 1946 (39 Halsbury's Statutes 66).

Manufactory.—As to the meaning of this term, see Spackman v. Great Western Ry. Co. (1855), 26 L. T. (O. S.) 22 (cottages used for storing goods in connection with a manufactory but separated from the latter by a road; held to be part of the manufactory); Gibson v. Hammermith and City Ry. Co. (1863), 2 Drew & Sm. 603 (factory not actually in work, but in a condition to be worked at any time; held to be a manufactory); Reddin v. Metropolitan Board of Works (1862), 4 De G. F. & J. 532 (what is protected under the statute must be de facto a part of existing factory); Furniss v. Midland Ry. Co. (1868), L. R. 6 Eq. 473 (land used for supplying water power essential to the manufactory; held to be protected); Richards v. Swansea Improvement and Tramways Co. (1878), 9 Ch. D. 425, C. A. (a manufactory does not involve necessarily the idea of building; a manufactory may be carried on on premises where there is no house or other building); and Brook v. Manchester, Sheffield and Lincolnshire Ry. Co., [1895] 2 Ch. 571 (regard must be had, and perhaps principally, to the user at the time of the notice to treat: per CHITTY, J.).

Park.—As to the meaning of "park," see Re Ripon (Highfield) Housing Order, 1938, White and Collins v. Minister of Health, [1939] 2 K. B. 838; [1939] 3 All E. R. 548.

Finance Act, 1895, s. 12.—16 Halsbury's Statutes 690. If default is made in payment of stamp duty under this section as modified by para. 5, ante, the amount of the duty with interest at 5 per cent. becomes a debt due to the Crown.

Acknowledgment and undertaking.—Para. 5 (2) confirms the accepted practice whereby vendors holding in a fiduciary capacity give a statutory acknowledgment for production of documents of title retained but no undertaking for their safe custody.

Law of Property Act, 1925, s. 64.—15 Halsbury's Statutes 241. This section, which substantially re-enacts s. 9 of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, sets out the effect of acknowledgments for production and undertakings for safe custody respectively.

Construed as one.—Accordingly, para. 6 of the present Schedule is to be construed as if it were contained in Part I of the Limitation Act, 1939 (32 Halsbury's Statutes 223), unless there is any manifest discrepancy showing that the present paragraph has modified something to be found in that Part (Canada Southern Ry. Co. v. International Bridge Co. (1883), 8 App. Cas. 723, at p. 727; Hart v. Hudson Brothers, Ltd., [1928] 2 K. B. 629, at p. 634; and Phillips v. Parnaby, [1934] 2 K. B. 299, at p. 302). Thus words defined in Part I of the 1939 Act will bear the like meaning in the present paragraph, unless it is clear from the context that their construction in the present paragraph is different.

Limitation Act, 1939, Part I.—32 Halsbury's Statutes 225 et seq. This Part of the Act, which comprises ss. 1 to 21 inclusive, relates to the periods of limitation for different classes of action. As to actions against public authorities, see s. 21 thereof (32 Halsbury's Statutes 235).

Money had and received.—Where one person has received the money of another under such circumstances that he is regarded in law as having received it to the use of that other, the law implies a promise on his part to make payment to the person entitled thereto, and in default the rightful owner may maintain an action for money had and received to his use (see Moses v. Macferlan (1760), 2 Burr. 1005, and Sinclair v. Brougham, [1914] A. C. 398).

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Regulations, but is intended to indicate their general purport.)

These regulations prescribe the forms of the order and notice to be used under paragraph 9 of the Fifth Schedule to the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944. In such cases a local authority under Part III of the Housing Act, 1936, may submit to the Minister of Health an order declaring such house to be unfit and incapable of being rendered fit at reasonable expense.*

The effect of this unfitness order, when confirmed, is to reduce the amount of compensation payable in respect of the acquisition of the house under a compulsory purchase order made under Part I of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, either before or with two years after the confirmation of the unfitness order to that which would be payable on the basis applicable under the Housing Act, 1936, to a house in a clearance area.

Where different periods are proposed to be fixed as respects different tenancies the paragraph should be adapted to provide accordingly.
- (8) Strike out this paragraph where not required. The paragraph must be inserted where it is desired to take advantage of the proviso to paragraph 3 (2) of the 6th Schedule to the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, as applied by the Act.

Planning Act, 1932, as amended by the Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943, the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 and of all other powers enabling him in that behalf, hereby orders as follows :—

EXPLANATORY NOTE

(This Note is not part of the Order, but is intended to indicate its general purport.)

Section 10 of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, provides that an order made under the Section controlling the interim development of land may itself permit the development unconditionally or subject to any conditions specified in the order. The Town and Country Planning (General Interim Development) Order, 1946, permitted (Article 4 (1) and paragraph 5 (c) of the Schedule) until 30th June, 1947, development by the winning and working of minerals by surface working to be carried out on land which adjoined land being similarly developed on 1st January, 1946, provided that the development of both lands formed a continuous operation. The purpose of this Order (which comes into operation immediately as a provisional order pending the making of the substantive order) is to vary the general order by extending such permission until 31st December, 1947.

CASES

Town and country planning—Agricultural land—Refusal to permit construction of a sports stadium—Over-riding need of agriculture—Town and Country Planning Act, 1932 (c. 48), s. 10 (5).

The Minister of Town and Country Planning, in determining an appeal against the decision of a planning authority under s. 10 (5) of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932, is entitled to refuse permission for the development of agricultural land as a sports stadium on the ground of “ the over-riding need to preserve for agricultural use any land which can be so used and is not required for essential development, even though its quality may not be high.”—R. v. EAST KESTEVEN RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL, Ex parte SLEAFORD AND DISTRICT WHITE CITY SPORTS STADIUM CO., [1947] 1 All E. R. 310; 111 J. P. 192; 63 T. L. R. 112; 45 L. G. R. 464. [2777]

Town and country planning—War damage—Re-development of land—Compulsory purchase—Order by Minister—Powers of Minister—Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 (c. 47), s. 1 (1).

Before the Minister of Town and Country Planning makes an order under the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, s. 1 (1), declaring land shown to have sustained war damage, with or without other land contiguous or adjacent thereto, to be subject to compulsory purchase he must be satisfied on reasonable grounds that such an order is requisite for the purposes to which the section refers. The matter is not so peculiarly within the administrative capacity of the Minister that the making of the order is purely a matter for his discretion so that a court of law cannot inquire into the grounds on which he satisfied himself or call his jurisdiction into question.

Liversidge v. Anderson ([1941] 3 All E. R. 338), distinguished.—PHOENIX ASSURANCE CO., LTD. v. MINISTER OF TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, [1947] 1 All E. R. 454; [1947] L. J. R. 527; 176 L. T. 318; 111 J. P. 60; 63 T. L. R. 139; 91 Sol. Jo. 133; 45 L. G. R. 192. [2778]

Town and country planning—War damage—Re-development of land—Compulsory purchase—Order by Minister—Powers of Minister—Town and Country Planning Act, 1944 (c. 47), s. 1 (1).

An order, under s. 1 (1) of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, declaring that land in an area of extensive war damage shall be subject to compulsory purchase for dealing with war damage, is made by the Minister of Town and Country Planning as an executive authority, and he is at liberty to base his opinion on whatever he thinks fit, whether obtained in the ordinary course of his executive functions or derived from what is brought out at a public inquiry, if there is one, and the Minister cannot be compelled to disclose the source of his information. The executive act, i.e., the making of the order, is not a judicial or quasi-judicial decision, and cannot be controlled by the courts by reference to the evidence or lack of evidence at the inquiry, if one is held. The words “requisite” and “satisfactorily” in the subsection clearly indicate that the question whether the Minister is satisfied that it is requisite for the purpose of dealing satisfactorily with extensive war damage that all or some part of the land in question should be laid out afresh and re-developed as a whole is one of opinion and policy, matters which are peculiarly for the Minister himself to decide, and as to which, assuming always that he acts bonâ fide, he is the sole judge. No objective test is possible. It is a misconception of the purpose and effect of the order, of the powers of the Minister with regard to the making of the order, and of the relevance of the proposals of the planning authority, to say that the Minister can only be “satisfied” if at the time of the order he has before him evidence sufficient in law to entitle him to be so “satisfied.” Different considerations apply in a case where a Minister can be shown to have overstepped the limits of his powers, as, e.g., where the conditions in which they may be exercised are laid down in the statute and he purports to act in a case where those conditions do not exist. S. 1 (1) provides that the Minister must be satisfied that it is requisite that the land should be laid out afresh and re-developed as a whole and this need may exist although an existing building is not to be touched or is to be retained with a change of user.

Town and country planning—Resolution to prepare scheme—Scheme to include prohibition of use of land for certain purposes without consent of local authority—Validity—Town and Country Planning Act, 1932 (c. 48), ss. 1, 11.

The respondent council passed a resolution to prepare a planning scheme under the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932. While the resolution was still in force the appellant proposed to use as a fun fair premises in an area covered by the scheme. The council, as interim development authority, served on the appellant a notice under the Town and Country Planning (Interim Development) Act, 1943, s. 5, that it was their intention to prohibit the use of the premises as a fun fair on the ground, inter alia, that it was intended to provide in the scheme that the use of land for a fun fair should not be commenced without the consent of the council. It was contended on behalf of the appellant that, although the council could provide in a scheme for the absolute prohibition of the use of a site as a fun fair, it was not within their powers to prohibit such use conditionally on their consent being obtained :—

Held: (i) since the legislative permission given by s. 1 of the Act of 1932 to make a scheme with the general object of controlling development of the land comprised in the area to which the scheme applied was in extremely wide terms and would include the control of user of land by prohibiting a particular user, it would similarly include prohibition of user without consent, because to prohibit use without consent was just as much a manner of controlling development as was an absolute prohibition, and, therefore, on the true construction of the Act, the provision was one that could lawfully be included in the scheme.

(ii) provided a provision which was proposed to be inserted in a scheme was one that could lawfully be inserted therein, the question whether it was necessary or expedient (under s. 11 (1) (a) of the Act of 1932) to insert it was a matter not for the court but for the authority who had the ultimate control of the scheme (i.e., the Minister, or, in the last resort, Parliament), and the court could decide only whether the proposal in question could lawfully be inserted in the scheme and not whether it was reasonable.

(iii) the fact that neither the authority who had control of the scheme nor the Minister was bound to insert in the scheme, when it was made, any provision for an appeal against a refusal of permission by the council for use of the land as a fun fair was not sufficient to limit the general language of the Act of 1932.

Town and country planning—Town planning scheme—Industrial building—Factory—Premises used for testing concrete—Town and Country Planning Act, 1932 (c. 48), s. 13 (1) (c)—Factories Act, 1937 (c. 67), s. 151 (1).

The respondent carried on business as a consulting engineer specialising in the testing of materials used in building and engineering construction. One process carried out by him was the making and crushing of concrete blocks to test their properties, for which purpose he used a laboratory concrete mixer, six feet six inches high and three feet wide, and a crushing machine, twelve labour to conduct these operations. The premises on which the process was carried out were within an area designated as wholly residential by the local authority in pursuance of a town planning scheme under the Town and Country Planning Act, 1932 :—

Held : although the main object of the process was the testing of materials, it involved the employment of “ persons . . . in manual labour . . . for . . . the making of [an] article . . . or the demolition of [an] article ” within the Factories Act, 1937, s. 151 (1), and, therefore, the premises were an industrial building and their use as such contravened the provisions of the scheme.—HENDON BOROUGH COUNCIL v. STANGER, [1947] K. B. 753 ; [1947] 1 All E. R. 877 ; [1947] L. J. R. 1000 ; 111 J. P. 360 ; 91 Sol. Jo. 370 ; 45 L. G. R. 347, C. A. [2781]

Town and country planning—New town—Duty of Minister—Administrative capacity—Need to support proposed order by public inquiry—“ Bias ”—New Towns Act, 1946 (c. 68), s. 1 (1), Sched. I (3).

Pursuant to the New Towns Act, 1946, Sched. I, para. 3, the Minister of Town and Country Planning held a public local inquiry into objections to a proposed order under s. 1 (1) of that Act, called the Stevenage New Town Designation Order, 1946, by which Stevenage was designated as a “ new town ” within the Act. In a speech at a public meeting prior to the passing of the Act, the Minister had stated that the Bill would become law, that Stevenage was a most suitable site and should be the first scheme under the Act, and that the Stevenage project would go forward. At the inquiry, no evidence in support of the order was adduced, and the objections then made were subsequently considered and rejected by the Minister. He dealt in writing with the substance of all objections except that directed to the difficulties of water supply and sewage disposal, with regard to which he said he was taking advice, having in mind a scheme which representatives of the Metropolitan Water Board and the Lee Conservancy had agreed would meet the difficulty. The appellants, who were local residents and landowners, challenged the order under s. 16 of the Town and Country Planning Act, 1944, on the grounds that (i) before considering the objections the Minister stated that he would make the order, and was thereby biased in any consideration of the objections which the Act of 1946 impliedly required should be fairly and properly considered, and (ii) the inquiry did not comply with the statutory requirements for such a public local inquiry in respect that no evidence in support of the draft order was led on behalf of the Minister :—

Held : (i) no judicial or quasi-judicial duty was imposed on the Minister in the discharge of his statutory duties, those duties being purely administrative ; the only question was whether he had complied with the statutory direction to appoint a person to hold the public inquiry and to consider that person's report ; and the appellants had not established either that in his speech he had prejudged any genuine consideration of the objections or that he had not genuinely considered the objections at a later stage when they were submitted to him.

(ii) the words “ in respect thereto ” in para. (3) of Sched. I to the Act of 1946 meant “ in respect to the objections ” ; they definitely limited the scope of the inquiry, and none of the general procedural provisions of s. 290 of the Local Government Act, 1933, could be held to extend its scope ; the object of the inquiry was further to inform the mind of the Minister and not to consider any issue between the Minister and the objectors, which was for the Minister thereafter to consider and decide ; and, therefore, there was no need for the Minister to lead evidence at the inquiry in support of the draft order.

Per Lord Thankerton : the proper significance of the word “ bias ” is to denote a departure from the standard of even-handed justice which the law requires from those who occupy judicial office, such as an arbitrator.—FRANKLIN v. MINISTER OF TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, [1948] A. C. 87; [1947] 2 All E. R. 289; 111 J. P. 497; 63 T. L. R. 446; 45 L. G. R. 581, H. L. [2782]

Town and country planning—New town—Duties of Minister—Information as to proposed new town—Consultation—New Towns Act, 1946 (c. 68), s. 1 (1), Sched. I, para. 1.

On July 10, 1946, three weeks before the New Towns Act, 1946, became law, a meeting took place between representatives of the Minister of Town and Country Planning and those of the local authorities concerned at which the Minister proposed to "outline the main factors which . . . led him to consider the Crawley-Three Bridges area especially suitable to be the site of the new town. . . ." On September 7, 1946, the Minister published a draft order designating a certain area at Crawley as the site of a proposed new town, and accompanied the draft with a statement that: "At this preliminary stage the intention is that the proposed new town of Crawley shall, when fully developed, be self-contained in that accommodation will be provided for a total population of about 50,000 and that a proper balance will be maintained between industrial and residential development." In a subsequent affidavit the Minister deposed that this statement contained all the information which he considered necessary for indicating the size and character of the proposed town. On October 7, 1946, a second meeting was held between representatives of the Minister and the local authorities at the latter's request, "to explain the considerations which the Minister had in mind in arriving at the boundaries of the area." Objections were raised to the proposed order and on November 4, 5 and 6, 1946, a public local inquiry was held:—

Held: (i) the statement which, by Sched. I, para. 1, to the Act, must accompany the publication of the draft order is to be such a statement as the Minister, not the court, considers necessary for indicating the size and general character of the proposed new town, and, therefore, the requirements of Sched. I, para. 1, in this respect had been complied with.

Semle: if, in any case, the Minister gives all the information which he has, the statutory requirement will not be satisfied unless that information is all he considers necessary for the specified purpose.

(ii) in considering whether or not there has been "consultation" within s. 1 (1) of the Act, between the Minister and local authorities it is necessary to look at the substance and reality of what occurred and to determine whether the local authorities have had proper opportunity of expressing their views and tendering advice.

(iii) the consultation between the Minister and local authorities prescribed by s. 1 (1) of the Act need not take place before the preparation of the draft order: it is sufficient if it takes place before the Minister makes a final order: and the proceedings of July 10 and October 7, taken together, constituted fulfilment of the Minister's obligation to consult under s. 1 (1).

Semle: "consultation" within s. 1 (1) could take place before the passing of the Act.

(iv) "consultation" within s. 1 (1) need not be concerned with the selection of a site; it can consist of consideration of a chosen site.

(v) A statement by a local authority that it is not interested in a proposal to designate a site does not relieve the Minister of his obligation to consult that authority, nor does the attendance of representatives of a local authority at a local inquiry after objecting to a scheme, and the urging of certain contentions at the meeting. If a local authority does not contend that it has not been consulted, it is open to another interested party to put forward that contention.—ROLLO v. MINISTER OF TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, [1947] 2

Town and country planning—New town—Duty of Minister—Consultation—New Towns Act, 1946 (c. 68), s. 1 (1).

On July 16, 1946, the Minister of Town and Country Planning invited the representatives of six local authorities to a conference on July 26 with regard to a new town in the Hemel Hempstead district, the development of which was under consideration by him. At that conference the Minister made a statement explaining the whole project, and then invited comments and questions from the representatives of the local authorities. On August 1, 1946, the New Towns Act, 1946, became law, and on September 27, 1946, the Minister published a draft order which complied with the provisions of paras. 1 and 2 of Sched. I to the Act. Objections were made and, as a result, on November 19, 1946, the Minister attended a private meeting of the representatives of the six local authorities. At that meeting the Minister made no speech, but he invited questions. On December 2, 3, and 5, 1946, a public local inquiry was held, and on February 4, 1947, the designation order was made. It was submitted on behalf of the appellants that no proper consultation was ever held, since the consultation specified in s. 1 (1) involved an exchange of views between the Minister and those local authorities who appeared to him to be concerned and the seeking by the Minister of advice from the latter in circumstances in which it was made clear, either in express terms or by necessary implication, that a consultation for the purposes of the Act was at the time intended. It was also submitted that no purported consultation taking place before the passing of the Act could be considered to be a consultation as specified in s. 1 (1), and that, subject to its being after the Act, the logical time for such a consultation was before a draft order was made ; that, in regard to the private meeting of November 19, there were features that suggested that the meeting was not a consultation pursuant to s. 1 (1) ; that the procedure of inviting questions for answer negatived the idea of a consultation taking place ; that the fact that at the meeting the Minister imposed a stipulation that a note which was being made should not be used in any later proceedings also negatived the view that there was consultation ; that certain topics, such as the question of the water supply and of the sewerage system for the projected new town, were either expressly or impliedly stipulated not to be for discussion, that, accordingly, the Minister's mind was closed in regard to these subjects, and that, if these important subjects were excluded from discussion and the Minister was not welcoming or receiving advice on them, no consultation in any real and true sense was being held ; and that, when the evidence in regard to the meeting of November 19 is surveyed, the conclusion ought to be drawn that the Minister was giving his conceptions in regard to new towns and was explaining the reasons why he had selected Hemel Hempstead as the site of one of them, but was not consulting the local authorities :—

Held : (i) if a consultation precedes the making of the final order the requirements of s. 1 (1) of the Act will have been satisfied, and, semble, there is no reason why a meeting held before the passing of the Act should not be a consultation within s. 1 (1).

(ii) in deciding whether there has been a consultation within s. 1 (1) of the Act of 1946, the substance of the material events, and not merely their form, must be considered ; and it cannot be conclusive either way according to whether parties said in terms that a consultation under the Act was taking place, or to take place, or was intended, or whether nothing relative to this related and must be considered together. So linked, they constituted a consultation within s. 1 (1), the procedure adopted on November 19 of inviting questions for answer and the fact that it was agreed that the proceedings on November 19 should be private not being inconsistent with there being consultation on that date.

(iii) on the facts the obligation imposed on the Minister to have consultation in accordance with s. 1 (1) had been fulfilled.

Per Morris, J. : the word "consultation" is one that is in general use and that is well understood. No useful purpose would be served by formulating words of definition. Nor would it be appropriate to seek to lay down the manner in which consultation must take place. The Act does not prescribe any particular form of consultation. If a complaint is made of failure to consult, it will be for the court to examine the facts and circumstances of the particular case and to decide whether consultation was, in fact, held. Consultation may often be a somewhat continuous process and the happenings at one meeting may form the background of a later one.—FLETCHER v. MINISTER OF TOWN AND COUNTRY PLANNING, [1947] 2 All E. SIR,

RURAL WATER SUPPLIES AND SEWERAGE ACT, 1944

Rural Sewerage Schemes

PLANS TO BE PREPARED FOR AREAS WITH MOST URGENT NEEDS

Cost of Schemes

INFORMATION TO BE SUPPLIED WITH APPLICATION FOR GRANT

1. I am directed by the Minister of Health to state that a review of a number of schemes for the sewerage of rural localities, which have been submitted in response to Circulars 119/44 and 218/45, indicates that it is desirable that local authorities should be informed more precisely of the policy and procedure in respect to rural sewerage.

2. The amount of work which can be carried out in the near future is conditioned by the amount of labour and materials that can be made available. In view of the general shortage of labour and materials, and the demands of other public services, local authorities should, in order to avoid waste of time and unnecessary expenditure, limit their first programmes to the preparation of schemes for those parts of their districts where (i) groups of some 20 or more houses, supplied or likely to be supplied with piped water, are sufficiently concentrated to enable sewers and sewage disposal to be provided at reasonable cost; or (ii) sanitary conditions are such as to call for immediate attention; or (iii) new housing development during the next few years will bring areas within either of the foregoing categories.

3. The characteristics of the areas to be sewered are too varied to admit of any general rule as to the cost of the schemes. It is, however, being found that the capital cost of straightforward schemes on these lines, at present day prices, will not exceed £50 for each property likely to be connected to the sewers; more complicated schemes may cost as much as £100 per house on the same basis; in exceptional cases the cost may be as much as £120 for each house. As a general rule, the Ministry will not, for the present, approve schemes for immediate execution if the cost exceeds these figures. If it seems probable, on the best estimates available, that the cost will be higher, the local authority should consider very carefully whether local conditions necessitate the early provision of sewerage facilities in the area concerned. If they are satisfied on this point, the Ministry should be consulted, before any further steps are taken, as to whether or not the preparation of the scheme should proceed.

4. In these circumstances it may be necessary, in a number of cases, for local authorities to re-examine schemes already in course of preparation in order to decide whether, and if so, to what extent, they will meet those conditions.

5. Local authorities are reminded that it is generally uneconomical to provide centralised sewage disposal works in rural localities unless the properties to be drained lie fairly close together. It will usually be found that a number of small works, serving separate communities, will obviate lengths of sewers through sparsely populated areas and limit pumping costs. Efficient maintenance will often be secured by the use of mobile skilled workmen instead of by employing separate staff at each sewage works. Wherever practicable, use should be made of existing disposal works, including the works of adjacent Urban Authorities, in preference to the construction of new sewage disposal works.

6. Grants under the Rural Water Supplies and Sewerage Act, 1944, will for the present be confined to schemes which comply with the conditions of this Circular. The information set out in the Appendix should accompany every application for grant, and this information will usually be sufficient for the purposes of the local Inquiry into the scheme, which need not be held up for the preparation and submission of detailed plans, etc., since any question arising thereon can be dealt with later. In order to reduce to the minimum the number of local Inquiries, local authorities should, in their own interests, endeavour to submit a number of schemes at the same time.

I am, Sir, etc.

* * * * *

The Clerk to the Authority.
